WE had a short but very pleasant call from our office editor, Bro. D. L. Miller, and wife, of Mt. Morris. During their stay with us the weather was quite unpleasant, and Bro. D. L. not at all well, so that the visit for them was not as pleasant as it would otherwise have been. Yet we were glad for the opportunity of thus meeting and having together a very pleasant conference about our work.

DEC. 16 the School Committee, appointed by last Annual Meeting, gave us a visit, met with us in public worship and also had a meeting with the trustees and faculty of the school. The interview was pleasant, satisfactory, and, we hope, will be profitable for the school and all concerned. There is a faith that enables us to believe without seeing, but the average experience in regard to the practical things of life is, "seeing is believing." What we see with our eyes and hear with our ears is satisfactory evidence. This is the kind we want everybody to have that is interested in our work. We were glad to have the Committee with us, and as often as they can make it suit to return, they will be welcomed. We were sorry that the full committee could not be with us, and we hope that in future meetings all may be together.

OUR MINISTERIAL MEETING.

ONE among the pleasant meetings of the year was the late Ministerial Meeting, held at Maitland, in the Lewistown congregation, Dec. 18, 19 and 20. On account of the snow-storm, which occurred on the day before, the attendance was not as large as it would otherwise have been, but those who had the pleasure of being present, expressed themselves as being much pleased and benefited. Such meetings are attended with a number of advantages, both to the ministers and the churches.

In this way we become better acquainted with each other, which aids greatly in maintaining that Christian unity among us which is so desirable. Reports sometimes affect people very unfavorably and often give wrong views of persons and things, and the oftener such reports change hands or are repeated, the worse they get. By getting together, these things are corrected and very much better feelings are established. This is especially desirable on the part of ministers of the same denomination, and there is no way that this desirable end can so well be brought about as by freely associating together. For this the Ministerial Meetings afford excellent opportunities.

Another advantage that naturally grows out of these meetings is the unifying of ideas in regard to church work. We, as a church, have no special course in theology, and, as a result, we have nothing to give practical unification, so that these incidental opportunities are of great advantage to us as a people and ministry, and should be utilized when it is possible to do so, as we certainly need all in this line we can get.

Still another advantage that may come out of these meetings is the help we can give each other by throwing together our varied experiences. From them we can all get something that can be of service to us and that can be made practical in the high and holy calling whereunto we have been called.

The meeting, in all its deliberations, was most harmonious, and many subjects of vital interest to ministers and Christian work were discussed to the profit of all present. So well pleased were those present with the meeting that there were five or six calls for it when to be held again.

OUT AND IN.

As the midnight bells tolled the Old Year out, the New Year came in. Eighteen hundred and ninety has been spoken and written millions of times,—but now no more forever. With the Old it goes, and with the New comes eighteen hundred and ninety-one. While to the Old we reverently say, Farewell, to the New we reach out the welcoming hand and give the happy greeting, and try to persuade ourselves that during its stay we will do better than ever before. How much better, of course, we do not know. The thought of doing better is a good one, and gives the needed inspiration in a right direction.

Our ideal is generally better than our practice, but still our practice is the better because of our ideals being above or beyond it. If we can not be the thing itself, it is good to reach it through our desires. The Lord will assist us in our infirmities if our desires are right and a reasonable effort is made on our part. God cares not half so much for the act as he does for the motive that lies behind it.

Then, as we enter the New Year, let us, as a starting point, be sure that our motives are pure, that our intentions are right.

Sometimes, as we take the forward look, there seems to be nought before us but clouds and darkness. The sun of peace and prosperity is so completely hidden that we fail to recognize its presence and we say, It is all darkness. This is a mistake. These clouds and darkness are before us only to teach us the beauty and sweetness of light, when it comes bursting through the rifts in the clouds.

O, what a good, a glorious thing is faith! Of Paul's most beautiful definition we never tire,—so full, so complete,—"The evidence of things not seen, the substance of things hoped for." It requires a master soul to grasp such truth, but when possessed it is a rock that moveth not. How we wish we could all enter this New Year anchored on this rock!

The dead theorist stands up before us in his cold, soulless calculation and asks: "Why all this ado about the New Year? Whence the change? No very great change indeed, yet somehow we feel somewhat rested and newly energized, as we do after a night of rest. In the morning we go forth to our labors with renewed strength to meet, bear and endure the burdens of the day. So we feel as we enter the New Year. As we go out we unburden ourselves. Our year of labor is done. We take our inventory, cast up our accounts, pay our debts,—we should do so. Some wait for the Jubilee, and enter the New Year on a new lease.

These Outs and Ins are periods of importance to us, and teach that there is a time for settling up accounts, not only with each other, as men of business in our dealings with each other, but also with our Heavenly Father. He has entrusted us with his goods and the time will soon come when a reckoning must be made. Every day brings us nearer to that time, and everything will depend upon the preparations we are making as to how the account will stand.

The year 1890 was given us for this preparation, and it is now past. Each day has made its show for or against. As we retrospect, is there any doubt as to which side we have laid our contributions? Is it not a serious thought? Sad, indeed, is our condition, if, in our going out, we have left nothing behind us that will stand to our credit. We ought to have, because God has been good beyond his promise. The axman's stroke has been stayed, and, perhaps, the Good Man is now saying: "Let it stand another year, try another year, and then, O, then, may there be a fruitage to the Master's acceptance!

Dear reader, may God bless you as you go in, as you go forward and as you go out, so that, in the end, it may be said of you: "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE NEW YEAR.

Hope smiles upon a New Year's Day,
And wreathes the coming hours
With thoughts of future, bright and gay—
Imagination's flowers.

But blighted oft these flowers may be,
And only thorns appear;
Yet seeking rightly, we might see
This new—a happy year.

Let it be new in holy things—
New faith, new love, new zeal;
New in more constant prayer, which brings
God's blessing for its seal.

New in more full supplies of grace,
Which God, if asked, will give;
New strength to run the Christian race,
And to God's glory live.

Then should this year be thus begun,
And ended in God's fear,
We shall confess when it is done,
It was a happy year.

And thus may life's year pass away,
And fade in heaven's new year,
When an eternal New Year's Day
Shall shut up all things here.

NEW YEAR THOUGHTS.

BY WILLIAM G. SCHROCK.

It may be well, as we approach another New Year's Day, to come to a halt and review the history of our lives. The past is gone and the recording angel of time has, during the past year, placed upon record all our deeds, whether they be good or evil.

As we journeyed down the stream of time, it has left behind us another year. What has it been to us? Sunshine and darkness, prosperity and adversity met us on every hand. However, as a whole, the people of our land, with few exceptions, enjoyed undisturbed and unbounded prosperity on every hand. The bounties of nature, in almost every section of the land, have yielded plentifully, and our barns and granaries are filled to overflowing with the necessaries of life, both for man and beast. While along the frontier, in the West and North-west, the labor of the husbandman has not been as fully rewarded as in former years, and considerable suffering is occasioned by the same, the Nation's open heart will reach forth and supply the wants of all.

God has tenderly cared for us, and no great misfortune has befallen us in the way, as has been the case in former years. While we fondly remember the care, goodness and mercy of God in his providential dealings with us as a people, let us remember our many failings, repent of our wrongs and begin anew.

May our misdeeds in 1890 be forgotten and buried with the old year, as we go out and enter upon the new. By the experience of the past we are taught many lessons for the future. What will it be? As we close the old record, may our aspirations and hopes brighten with grand prospects for improving the year 1891. Let us square the old record before God and man, and start anew, as we enter upon the new year.

Another year has been lost in the measure of time and numbered with the past. A new and fresh era is now at our disposal, and it has come to tarry with us until the new year, now before us, has numbered its days. This should again remind us very forcibly how swiftly the gold dust moments of time are passing by, and that we have no abiding place here in this life, but seek a home beyond this vale of tears.

However fast the swift messenger of time is spurring us in our race in this life, time is given us to do the work required at our hands. God gives us a moment at a time, and this we can easily improve. And inasmuch as the present is ours, let us appropriate the same to some good purpose in life, and thus answer the design of God in our creation while it is called to-day.

Since time is so very precious and fleeting in its nature, we should so improve it as to secure the greatest possible benefit from it. Once lost, it is irretrievably lost and can not be recovered, unless in redoubled diligence in the discharge of every Christian duty incumbent upon us.

In our surroundings, circumstances, and the ever-changing scenes in the world about us, time, as well as distance, are almost lost sight of. What took months and years, a century ago, is now accomplished very often in so many days. The inventive genius of man, in these modern days of improvement, is indeed the wonder and admiration of the world. The march of civilization and time has almost revolutionized space. Comparatively speaking there is no distance. The latest and freshest news, in every quarter of the globe, however remote from us, finds its way into our daily newspapers simultaneously with ours.

We are truly living in a fast age, and while we are making such rapid progress in the arts, sciences, and the learning of the day, for the comfort, enjoyment, and conveniences of mankind, are we progressing in the divine life? If we have been recreant in Christian duties incumbent upon us, let us redeem the time, if possible, for the days in which we live are evil. Let us remember Satan, too, is busy, and wickedness, as the times unmistakably indicate, is on the increase. If we are not on our guard we may be enticed into the ways of wickedness and unconsciously glide into the current of sin, and in consequence be lost to all that is good.

What momentous times are these! With all the educational, social, moral, religious and other advantages before us, let us form new resolutions to live more devoted in the service of our Blessed Master, the coming year. Let us not grow weary in well-doing for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not by the way.

Many of our fellow-mortals, who started out with us, and that with the brightest hopes for continued life and usefulness in the world, have fallen to our right and left. Aged fathers and mothers, the middle-aged and the young, have been the victims of death and laid away among the pale nations of the dead.

Surely, death is no respecter of persons and enters the rich man's palace as well as the poor man's hut. In the language of the poet,

"There is a reaper whose name is death
And with his sickle keen
He reaps the bearded grain at a breath
And the flowers that grow between."

How many of us will see the end of another year, God only knows! Let us remember it is appointed unto man once to die, and may we take heed to the admonition of the prophet, "Prepare to meet thy God."

GETTING READY TO BE HAPPY.

BY ESTHER CRIPE.

Too many of us are looking forward to happiness in the future, instead of getting all the happiness possible out of the present. It is well to remember that the time never will come in this world when we shall have everything we want, just where and when we want it. The only way to be happy, is to enjoy all we have to the utmost as we go along, whether it be little or much.

It is right to prepare for a rainy day when it can be done without sacrificing Christian principle, but it is not right to bend all of our energies to this end, and put off, until the future, the happiness we might enjoy every day. It is far too common to see people working and saving, denying themselves all recreation and many comforts, to lay up money to buy more land and build larger and finer houses, or to save for their children, thinking that when they have accomplished this, they will be happy and begin to take comfort.

The hoped-for point may never be attained, or if it is, sickness or death may have come first, and the dear ones, with whom we expected to be happy, may be gone forever! How much better it is to use some of the good things of life, as we go along, for the benefit of the poor and needy. Try it and see if you will not be happy now, instead of waiting for a new house.

Don't starve to-day, either body, mind or soul, thinking that you will riot to-morrow. Don't hoard and scrimp through all the best years of your life that you may be generous in your wills. Life is uncertain, and it is better to make your children happy while they are under the home roof. It is better to call to that home every agency that will make their lives happier and better, than to deny them these that you may leave them a large farm or bank account when you are gone. Don't keep the parlor shut up and live in the kitchen, unless you want the boys and girls to be anxious to leave home. Take time to read, rest, go to church and enjoy the society of friends. It will only be a few years, at best, that you have, to make your children happy, and these ought to be years of happiness both to you and them. If we are ever happy in this life, we must enjoy what every day brings us! We must be grateful and glad for all the good that comes into our lives, and patiently bear our trials, believing that all, if rightly used, will fit us for the enjoyment of perfect happiness hereafter!

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE LAMBS OF THE LUNENBURGH FOLD.

BY D. C. MOOMAW.

Dear Brethren and Sisters.—

The grace of God has signalized itself in a wonderful manner in your conversion, as it does in all kindred cases and your joy and peace in believing his Word is very sweet. When the burden of sin rolled off the heart into the sepulchre of the dear, loving Savior and you came into a state of perfect obedience and faith, a divine influence, unlike any that ever comes to our souls in this far off world, rested serenely upon you. You felt just like our impulsive brother Simon Peter did when he saw his Master so gloriously radiant with the light of Heaven on the Mount of Transfiguration, and, like him, you would say, "Let us ever remain in this happy state and place."

How intoxicating is the precious wine of pardon and peace, when it first touches the lips of the convert! A radiant glow is diffused throughout the whole being and you feel and enjoy a foretaste of the maturer state, when "old things will have passed away, and behold all things have become new." Could the faint-hearted, halting, hesitating sinner, who lingers just outside of the kingdom of our Lord, see and feel, for a few moments, the ecstasy of a new-born soul, all the demons in all the dark, desolate prisons of Satan could not frighten them away.

How precious to me is the memory of that halcyon period of my religious experience, and how strange it seemed to me then that my unconverted friends could not rejoice with me in that same blissful state. There follows this state a temporary re-action which will surprise and pain you. The arch-enemy, baffled for a period, will return to you with intensified malice and you will find your former sinful propensities re-asserting their sway, and you will need to guard that especial point of attack. Your first impulse will be to doubt the reality of your conversion. Then you will despair of overcoming your old-time sins. You will need now to keep very near to the Lord in "all prayer and supplication in the spirit."

At every impulse to sin oppose it with a prayer for grace to help you. Our compassionate Lord is always within calling distance of those who love and obey him, and he will come at the instance of a prayer so silent that an angel could not hear it. Every wrong thought shows you that Satan is near and unless you ask our Master to bid him leave you, he will just enter your heart and stay there and your spiritual death will soon ensue.

Let prayer be your constant weapon for aggressive as well as defensive warfare. Whether in the privacy of your lovely woodlands, or wherever and whenever you can, have a private interview with the Unseen, raise the heart and thought to him for help. Bend the suppliant knee to Him who shed his blood for your redemption. You will soon rejoice in the new strength and confidence that such service brings. As your strength and courage increase, Satan's will diminish, and, ere long, you can stand erect and run onward in the Christian race.

Another matter of much weight should commend itself to your attention, that of watching the trend of your thoughts and acts. When we feel the approach of the rigor of sin as it manifests itself in our lives, and note that the chilliness continues and increases, we need to be prayerfully concerned. The symptoms are, an indifference to the duty of assembling with Christians in public worship, a lack of interest in the prayer-meeting, a preference for back seats in religious meetings, the choice of worldly associates, neglect of private prayer and religious reading, a desire for wealth for purposes of personal use and self-aggrandizement, etc. Any one of these symptoms is a cause for alarm and should excite in us vigilant watching and praying. That is the only known remedy. Watching and praying leads the heart into right channels, and the life is just what the heart prompts. Satan is always at hand with his suggestions when our sinful nature asserts itself. For instance we sometimes have generous impulses, and desire to lend a hand to help "some shipwrecked brother sailing over the shoals of time," but Satan suggests, "I wouldn't do it. Keep your money and goods for your own family. They might be destitute some day."

Once upon a time, to illustrate Satan's dogged persistence in plying the arts of his hellish trade, a certain man of benevolent intentions proposed to send a piece of bacon to a destitute neighbor and, on taking down a fine, large ham, he, of the evil heart, suggested that he should select a smaller one. Thereupon our generous friend, knowing where the suggestion came from, reached up and took down another fine one and laid it beside the first. Satan suggested that ruin would follow such indiscretion. Our friend retorted with warmth, "If you don't leave me, you stingy devil, I'll take every piece of bacon in the house."

Now learn the lesson this not unusual episode teaches. When you feel the impulse, to neglect prayer, stealing over you, go at once and get upon your knees and ask the Father to drive the prayerless spirit away.

If it is suggested that it is too cold or too hot, too wet or too dry, too muddy or too dusty, or you are too sick or too tired, or too worried, or it is too dark or too drear to attend religious service, that is just the time and occasion for you to smite the devil of indifference with a prayer for God's grace to help you to do the very thing that his majesty, of the sulphurous lake, don't want you to do.

Especially do we need to watch the tongue. I believe Satan is leading more people to hell by the tongue than any other member of the body. The greatest men and women in this world are those who successfully control the tongue, though the histories of the world have not chronicled their names or acts.

Young Christians are often seduced from the religious life by the glamor and tinsel and pomp and show and gayety of this wicked world. She or he who, before conversion loved the dance and cards and the bowl that intoxicates and so on, feels the old impulses return after conversion and just at the point of greatest weakness will Satan make his strongest attack.

As the only remedy, don't go to places of revelry. Don't go where people dance or play at games of hazard or drink intoxicants. You lose all your influence for good by such associations. The world knows you are outside of your circle at such places and if the devil or his pals despise one person more than another it is he or she who wishes to please the world, the flesh and himself and God and all good men and women at the same time. We can not go to places of revelry without having our sense of spiritual danger blunted and benumbed.

As an illustration of this thought we recall the history of a tragedy that occurred during the occupancy of the City of Moscow, in Russia, by the French army under Napoleon I. A grand company of French grandees and women who followed the fortunes of Napoleon, assembled for a grand ball in one of the deserted palaces of Moscow's wealthy nobles and swiftly flew the feet of the revelers to the strains of ravishing music, and quickly sped the hours of night that proved to be the last to that merry brilliant throng of thoughtless dancers. The flames of the terrific conflagration that was laying the proud old capital in ruins, rolled in thundering waves toward the enchanted hall and the dance would occasionally cease that the intoxicated throng might view the awfully sublime and terrible spectacle. At last the approach of the flaming ocean warned them that they must move to securer quarters and it was proposed to close the enchanting sport. A dashing, reckless, young French officer waived aloft his jeweled hand and shouted, "One more dance and defiance to the flames," and the echo of his shout rang from every mouth and again was the giddy crowd whirling in the mazes of the fascinating dance, when a messenger dashed into the hall and shouted "Fly for your lives! The fire has reached the magazine." Instantly terror froze the hearts of the thoughtless revelers and another moment the palace with its sinning tenants was hurled into unrecognizable destruction. A magazine of powder was slumbering in the basement of the palace and a touch of the tongue of flame let loose millions of the demons of destruction.

Thus God's magazines of pent-up wrath are underneath all sinning men and women and you need, young brethren and sisters, to keep aloof from such places. They are the pitfalls and snares spread for your entanglement by our old-time enemy.

After the Christmas sports are in the past, let it not be said that one German Baptist of Lunenburgh, was found engaged in them. Pray for special grace for that special period and an answer of peace will come from the far-off Fatherland. You will only have a few such trials and a successful resistance will be followed by the ministrations of comforting angels. There are many other suggestions that could be appropriately made on these lines of Christian duty, but for the present these will suffice. May the Grace of God richly encompass and preserve you unto the coming of the blessed Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ!

CHOICE SELECTIONS.

BY GEO. W. KAETZEL.

LET every man endeavor to make the world happy, by a strict performance of his duty to God and man, and the mighty work of reformation will soon be accomplished.

When I hear a person who has broken the laws of the land railed at, and hear people cry out, "Oh, he is a vile wretch; he deserves his sentence, for my part I can not throw a stone at him, but see that if God were to leave me to myself, I should commit as foul crimes, and a thousand times worse.

Banish all malignant and revengeful thought; a spirit of revenge is the very spirit of the devil, than which nothing makes a man more like him, and nothing can be more opposite to the temper which Christianity was designed to promote. If your revenge be not satisfied, it will give you torment now; if it be, it will give you greater hereafter. None is a greater self-tormentor than a malicious and revengeful man, who turns the poison of his own temper in upon himself.

The perfect and everlasting happiness of heaven is an object of a righteous man's hope in death. He hopes to drop all his sins and their attendant train of sorrow behind him, and to be perfectly holy, and consequently happy forever. He hopes to see his God and Savior, and to spend a happy eternity with him, and in his service. He hopes to join the company of angels, and of his fellow-saints of the human race. He hopes to improve in knowledge, in holiness, and in capacities for action and enjoyment; in an endless gradation he hopes to see "the face of God in righteousness and to be satisfied when he awakes in his likeness." In short, he hopes to be unspeakably happy through an endless duration.

A dying but immortal being, on the verge of eternity, is as solemn a spectacle as the world can furnish. A hundred tender ties are then about to be severed. The delusions of the world are over; it can promise nothing more. It has done its utmost, and the total sum is vanity of vanities. Its shadowy joys and sorrows, hopes and fears, cares and possessions, are now light as feather, weighed against the universe, and however once esteemed, can no longer pain or please, agitate or engage the immortal who is bidding them an eternal farewell. The past is nothing; but the future opens a tremendous, and, if true support is wanting, a heart-apalling prospect. New scenes, a new and untried world,— an eternity, vast, boundless and endless, joy without mixture, or pain without relief, the mansions of light and glory, or the dark dungeons of despair, the welcome of angels, or the yell of demons,—and the smile or frown of the Infinite Judge.

"What others think of us depends on what we are, rather than on what we try to seem. Most of us hope to be counted as a whole better than we deserve, even though some of us think that we are likely to be undervalued at one point or another. Yet the truth is that what we are is sure to show itself in our conduct, in spite of all our efforts at seeming better than we are. In order to secure the good opinion of others, we must first deserve it."

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

BY M. R. BASHORE.

THE above title should be carefully considered by every brother and sister. The inquiry should arise in the mind, What have we gained by the reading of its columns during the past year? No doubt, some pleasant, as well as sad recollections revolve through the mind in thus looking back. Some have lost, by the resistless hand of death, a father, a mother, a brother or a sister.

While, in some instances, the future prospects of the departed ones, are bright and clear, there are others, perhaps, in regard to whose future there is a doubt. An unbidden sigh will occasionally force itself upon us, and cause us to exclaim, in silent groans, "Where are they?" We have this consolation, however, that they are in the hands of a just God, who will give to every one a just reward.

Getting back to our subject,—the GOSPEL MESSENGER,—to us, who have read its columns during the past year,—what has it been to us? Have we made a step in the right direction? Have we been made better, wiser, and happier? Have we tried to judge all that has been written, and do we hold fast the good? Has it been a friend to us,—a welcome visitor? We hold the Brethren church as the dearest,—the church of our choice. Why not let the GOSPEL MESSENGER, also, be the paper of our choice?

We are aware that not all our brethren avail themselves of our church paper. I suppose they think they have lawful reasons. To be frank, I confess, that there have been times in the history of our church, when I have said, "I would not stop much and quit my church paper." Why? Well, because I thought things were not going right. There was too much controversy, too much backbiting, the general church government did not suit my views, etc. Whether any or all of the above reasons would have justified me to do so, I will let the reader judge. However, the final conclusion I came to was, "Through what medium shall I gather satisfactory information concerning the general workings of our beloved Zion?" In reading the church paper, we bring before our vision old and beloved acquaintances, and form new ones.

Why do not all of our Brethren get our church paper, or, rather, why do not more avail themselves of the benefit of reading it? We admit that sometimes matter appears in its columns that is not relished, or not so palatable as might be desired, but, my Brethren, where can we (outside of the Bible), get more solid and substantial matter than the price of the MESSENGER will give us? Of course, when we consider that the contributions to its columns are, for the most part, free, that the advertisements help to pay expenses, and that the agents' pay for their trouble is, comparatively, small, then we might begin to think that $1.50 is high enough; but, stop, let us look at both sides. Sometimes we pay $1.50 for a paper, not any larger, treating on secular matters and seem to be satisfied, not considering the value of matter published. We do not wonder, that so many of our poor Brethren do not take the church paper. Perhaps it is easier, after all, to speak of the sacrifices to be made, in order to avail ourselves of our church paper, than to go down into the real conditions of a brother who has a large family to maintain, single-handed, and who has, perhaps, a good deal of sickness to contend with. Perhaps a bright prospect in this life with him, is very dim.

I tell you, brethren, sitting in our easy rocking-chairs, reading the columns of our church paper is one thing, but to enter into the feelings of the poor, the really poor, and take their life into consideration, and make the necessary and Gospel-required sacrifices in helping them so they may enjoy similar privileges as ourselves is quite another thing. The old year which has just closed should be a good reminder of the past and present. The GOSPEL MESSENGER, in some way, should reach those who can not afford, of their own accord, to get it. Even then we should remember, that though they get the paper, that alone will not keep the poor widows and others from starving.

As said in the beginning of this article, we have stepped out of the old year into the new, and as we take a review of the past year, we will see where a good many missteps have been made, a good many things have been done that might have been avoided, had we been watchful. We can never retrace our steps; we can never regain lost time. Were the good works and deeds we have done in the past year put into a balance and brought before our view, some of us would, no doubt, be surprised how little we have done.

So, as we enter upon a new year, let the motto of our life be, to live more holy and more devoted to our high calling, in order to be the better prepared to meet the diversified conditions and requirements of the coming year. It will require careful study of the Bible. Let that thought be first and foremost in the mind, and every other thought a secondary matter. Let us avail ourselves of the best religious literature, of which the GOSPEL MESSENGER should be the first. From it we can become acquainted with the general church government,—from local church work up to general church work. We certainly sustain a great loss if we do not avail ourselves of these essential helps.

So I say again, Let all our brethren and sisters avail themselves of the benefits of the church paper, and thus keep posted on the general church work. Thereby they will be enabled to assist in all of its departments when called upon to do so.

I will venture to say if we carefully read the columns of the GOSPEL MESSENGER and practice the good instruction contained therein, to the end of the year, $1.50, compared to the great benefit gained, will be considered a small item.

Van Dyke, Pa., Dec. 15.

REMARKS.

Provision has been made by many churches to supply the MESSENGER to the poor in their own congregations, and the publishers have met this generous spirit by furnishing the paper for this purpose, and where it is donated at $1.00 per year; and where no provision has been made, we have furnished the paper free, in some cases, for many years. As a matter of fact we have several thousand names on our list at $1.00 per year, and a large number for which we receive no pay. We have adopted the rule, however, that those who desire to receive the benefit of the paper at reduced price, or to be placed on the free list, must apply to our agents who can vouch for them. This is made necessary because sometimes advantage has been taken of our offer. We want the paper placed in every family in the Brotherhood and if all who are able will subscribe and pay for it, we will see that those who are unable to pay for it get it free.—ED.

"DUTY ought never to wait on feeling; but feeling ought always to wait on duty. A man ought never to pivot his duty on his feelings: but every man ought to conform his feelings to the demands of duty. Kind speech is a duty, whether a man feels kindly or not. But kindly feelings are always a duty, and he who lacks them ought to set himself at acquiring them. Not feeling, but duty, must lead a man's course."

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, County and State. Be brief. Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Notice to the Churches of Kansas.

The solicitors for the Aged, Infirm and Orphans' Home, for Kansas, will, in the near future, visit all the churches in the State and will solicit the members for donations and endowments for said home. We kindly request elders and others to assist our solicitors in their work, by way of suggestions as to the best plans to see the greatest number of members with the least possible expense and time.

ISAAC H. CRIST,
Gardner, Kans. Secretary.

THE above notice is timely and we hope it will stir us all up to prompt action in this good work, as we should know by next April what we can do, or depend upon.

Furthermore, having consulted the Brethren in Indiana, in reference to the advantages of a Home to care for our poor, compared with the old way of providing for them in families and local districts, their experience in the work prompted them to answer very strongly in the affirmative, both as to donor and beneficiary; hence we are encouraged to push forward the good project set on foot, feeling assured it is within the scope of Bible duty. I rejoice that I can say, that it has always been a practice of the church of Christ to care for her poor members, and while there are brethren soliciting for other purposes,—such as our schools, the Tract Work, etc., we feel that the Old Folks and Orphans' Home stands between all the rest and the Bible. Speaking more plainly, it should be first, and I hope that our dear brethren will look at it in that way and cheerfully and willingly donate as the Lord has prospered them.

Notice further our appeal to our dear brethren and sisters, for sympathy and help in this good work, is not confined to Kansas. The members in Kansas, in the main, are in limited circumstances, and have their poor to see after, which they do cheerfully, according to their ability. In view of this fact any donation, from any part of the Brotherhood, will be most thankfully received.

I thought of the response a number made to the ten-dollar call for the Chicago meeting-house. O how our hearts would beat with joy to find a number of our dear brethren and sisters, all over the Brotherhood (especially from local churches who have no poor to keep), respond in a similar way to help us to start our home. We do not wish to stipulate any amount, but as the donor purposeth in his heart, so let him give,—not grudgingly—for God loveth a cheerful giver.

Where there is no solicitor, send your donations to Bro. George Ready, Booth, Reno County, Kans., who will receipt to you by return mail, as our treasurer. (Bro. J. H. Hollinger, formerly named, has gone west.) The money will be cared for, and reported and applied according to the best judgment of the committee.

Any further information will be gladly given by the secretary or the undersigned. We hope soon to hear from some sympathetic heart that beats in unison with ours. ENOCH EBY.

My Plan.

IN MESSENGER of Nov. 18, I gave my plan of raising money for the MESSENGER Poor Fund. I suppose some are wondering how my plan worked this year.

I left my home at Rockford, Ill., on the evening before Thanksgiving Day, for Franklin Grove, Ill., in the Rock River church, Lee County. We had preaching at our Franklin Grove meeting-house on Thanksgiving Day. Our elder, Daniel Dierdorff, preached a good sermon, and Bro. Levi Trostle admonished us to give as the Lord had blessed us during the year. After the regular preaching services were over, we organized our Sunday-school, by electing Bro. D. B. Senger, Superintendent and Bro. D. F. Lahman, Assistant Superintendent. Our elder then stated that there were several solicitors on hand to take a Thanksgiving offering. Bro. J. L. Miller has the Tract Work in charge; he raised about $45.00 at the meeting for this grand and noble work. Just think how many thousand of tracts this will send out in 1891, and God only knows the good it will do! Let the good work go on!

We did fairly well this year for the MESSENGER Poor Fund. I enclose, with this letter, a draft for $50.00 for this fund. Just think of the many hearts that will be made to rejoice, during 1891, by having a good church paper to read! I do not see why thousands of dollars could not be raised, if this matter were only looked after. If some one, in each church, would only take it in hand, it could be done.

I will give a few lines from a letter I recently received from our beloved brother, Levi Trostle, whose heart always burns for the good cause. He says, "I am pleased with the success you have made with your MESSENGER Poor Fund. While it has cost you a good deal of trouble, you certainly are more than repaid by knowing that fifty families have the MESSENGER visiting and preaching to them every week in the coming year. Counting the reading matter in each MESSENGER as ten sermons, and supposing that five persons read each family paper, you will have a congregation of 250, and you will be preaching, during the year, 500 sermons to those 250 readers. Who of us, that preach, does that much? Be encouraged to go on and still enlarge your field of labor and usefulness."

At our Thanksgiving meeting we took steps to aid the poor and needy in Kansas, Nebraska, and Dakota, and hope that much good may come from it, for they surely need help !WILLIS A. MOORE.

From Cartersville, Va.

BRO. KAUFFMAN returned Dec. 5, from Ohio and preached for us at Bro. Wm. Mallory's the night of the 6th and 7th. He did not preach at Mt. Horeb on account of the rain, which prevented the audience from assembling. The prospect here is now encouraging. We are in hopes that another minister will locate here. Bro. Kauffman is now our elder. Our former elder, Bro. B. F. Moomaw, being now seventy-two years of age, has given the work to younger hands. Brethren E. L. Brower and D. C. Moomaw have promised to labor among us this winter. We trust that they, as well as many others, will be with us!

FLORIDA ETTER.

From Reading, Pa.

I HAVE just returned from that rapidly-growing City of Reading. It now contains 60,000 inhabitants. As I walked about the city or looked over it from the home of my sister, I felt sad, that we, as a people, have no church there. We have a few members. I know of five. One brother and wife have three children. The oldest is about grown to manhood and has been converted at the M. E. church, but desires to unite with us. The children of a sister have all gone to the Baptists.

Now, if it is necessary to salvation to practice the ordinances as we do, why has the Mission Board of Eastern Pennsylvania not established a mission in the city? Is it for lack of funds? I suppose they can be raised easier than a suitable man of God to take charge of the work. A man full of the Holy Ghost, with ability to stand with the men called to the pulpits of the city churches could do a good work. The citizens of Reading being largely descendants of the Pennsylvania Dutch element, are more sociable than is generally the case. No doubt many more of our members will be drawn there by its many business enterprises. Is it not our duty to help establish a church there? If there are other members, I wish they would report. I know there are others. Let us awake and work while the day lasts, for the night cometh wherein no man can work. Have we all read the articles called, "The Lord's Work-Shop?" Perhaps we had better read them again!

ANDREW BASHORE, Treas.

From the Far West.

WIFE and I left our home at Galesburg, Kans., Dec. 16, for the Far West. After six days' travel over broad prairies, lofty mountains and deep canyons, we arrived safely at our destination,—Moscow, Idaho. Two brethren met us at the depot. After our long journey, we realized how good it is to be met by dear brethren, who kindly cared for us.

Since we are here, we have been visiting among the Brethren, getting acquainted and viewing the country. We had some fears that the country would be much colder, with deeper snow than Kansas, but, so far, the weather is about the same as in Kansas.

We are favorably impressed with the country as a farming country. The numerous straw stacks, to be seen on every hand, prove it to be a wheat country. We are informed by the brethren that fifty bushels of wheat are often obtained.

Thus far we have had three meetings, with fair congregations, and, seemingly, very good interest. We will continue our meetings in Moscow for a short time, before we go to other points. Our friends and Brethren will please note our change of location and address us accordingly. More anon.

SIDNEY HODGDEN.

Moscow, Idaho, Dec. 20, 1890.

From Ashland, Ohio.

WE commenced a series of meetings at the Maple Grove church, Ashland Co., Ohio, Dec. 13. Eld. F. B. Weimer, of Sterling, Wayne Co., Ohio, preached thirteen soul-stirring sermons for us. Congregations were fair from the start, with increased interest, but our meeting was suddenly interrupted on Sunday, Dec. 21, by the arrival of a messenger, who took Eld. Weimer back to his home congregation to conduct the funeral services of an old brother, who had suddenly passed to the spirit land. Consequently our meeting arrangements were disturbed and we thought best to close for the present. We were favored with pleasant weather, moonlight nights, and good roads.

On Sunday, Dec. 21, at the close of the services, Bro. J. E. Young's correspondence from Maywood, Nebr., in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 48, was read to the congregation by our elder, Bro. George Worst. After the reading of the article, a public collection was taken, which yielded, to the poor and needy of Kansas and Nebraska, $34.61. The donation was immediately sent on its mission. Neighboring congregations are invited to do "likewise."

DAVID SNYDER, Cor. Clerk.

From Garrison, Iowa.

BRO. B. F. MILLER, of Alpena, Dakota, came to us Dec. 16, and stayed until the 22nd. He labored faithfully while with us, pointing us to the duties we owe to him who has done so much for us. The meetings closed with increasing interest. May the Lord bless our dear brother in his Christian work, and protect him on his journey home!

Our Thanksgiving meeting was not very largely attended, so we continued our soliciting, and finished up by Dec. 20, the date of our quarterly council. Our contributions were as follows: For the poor fund, $10.70; for the Quinlan mission, $9.55; for a poor widow, $8.00; amounting to $28.25 in all.

Dear brethren and sisters, while we have made an effort to help along the cause of Christ, let us also ask him to bless all to his glory!

LIZZIE JOHNSON.

From Wayman Valley, Iowa.

OUR love-feast, which was held Oct. 18, passed off pleasantly. Bro. Samuel Miller, of Waterloo, our elder, was with us; also Bro. M. Smith, of Black Hawk Co., Iowa, and Bro. Joshua Shultz, of Lost Nation, Iowa. We had a love-feast in the true sense of the word. We were few in number, but I think we had an out-pouring of the Holy Spirit and a refreshment from the presence of the Lord. After the feast, brethren H. Miller and M. Smith came over to Wayman Valley and preached five sermons. As a result, one dear young sister came out on the Lord's side. I think there were others near the kingdom.

Bro. Joshua Shultz remained to preach for the Brethren at the Rosecrans school-house. There were no additions, but some good impressions were made. There is only a little band of Brethren at that point. May we ever keep close to the old landmarks, and stand firm to the profession we made before God and many witnesses, so that finally we may come out more than conquerors.

ELMIRA A. HANSEL.

East Elkport, Iowa.

From the Shoal Creek Church, Newton Co., Mo.

THE church here is progressing very slowly, on account of the members being scattered over so much territory, and an insufficiency in the ministry to fill all the calls made for preaching. Some of the Brethren on the outskirts have preaching only once, or, perhaps, two or three times a year.

Oh, that we could have more faithful workers for the Lord's vineyard, that the many starving souls might eat and live! Why do so many of our Brethren pass over our part of the country, where we have good soil, plenty of water and cheap land, and where we need their assistance in the church! Why do they go to Western Kansas, Oklahoma and other places, where crops, at best, are but uncertain!

We would gladly welcome, especially the ministering brethren, to stop as they pass through this part of the country, and give us some encouragement.

May God help our little band to work faithfully, and may we show to the world that we are contending for the faith once delivered to the saints.

MATILDA HOLDERREAD.

Ergo, Mo., Dec. 20.

A Letter from Louisiana.

On Monday, Sept. 22, I left my dear parents, home and friends in Central Pennsylvania. I stopped at Huntingdon between trains, to say farewell to my sister Lizzie and to the Brethren at that place.

Here I was joined by Bro. Himes who was, like myself, on his way to the Sunny South to teach school. We traveled together to New Orleans. Here we parted, Bro. Himes going north-west to fill a position in the State Normal at Natchitoches, and I due west, one hundred and twenty-five miles, by the Southern Pacific railroad to New Iberia, where I am now engaged in public school work. I have taught one week in the third month of a nine-month term.

This town is situated on the beautiful Bayou Teche, and in a country, recognized by Louisianians as the garden spot of their State. It is familiar to admirers of Longfellow as the "Land of Evangeline."

Many of the Creole population of this section are descendants of those ill-treated Acadians, who, in the early history of our country, were forced by the British from the happiness and contentment of their Northern homes. I imagine that the present generation are exceedingly well satisfied that fate or fortune has placed them here, for nature has undoubtedly done more for this country than she did for the land of their forefathers.

Rice and cotton are raised here, but the land is peculiarly adapted to cane, of which there is an unusually large crop just being harvested. Land is worth from $40 to $50 per acre.

The climate here is healthful and the weather, since my arrival, has been delightful. I have a little fire in my room to-day,—the first I have had for a month. Some of the teachers have had no fire in their school-rooms this fall.

I am pleased with everything I find, excepting one thing,—the religious influences and privileges, by which I have always been surrounded.

When I came South, I knew of no members in the State. I had not been here long, however, until I received an invitation from Bro. Simon Sutter to come and visit them. Bro. Sutter had learned of our coming to Louisiana through the columns of the Messenger, and of our location from Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh.

Bro. Sutter lives about two miles from Evangeline, which is on the Southern Pacific railroad, about sixty-five miles west of here. His post-office address is Esterly.

I at once determined to go to see the Brethren at that place, for Bro. Sutter told me that there were ten members within a radius of five miles. On Saturday, Nov. 29, I boarded the train and, after a pleasant ride of less than three hours, through as fine a country as I ever saw, the train stopped at my objective point, where a conveyance was waiting to take me to the home of our brother. Here I met sister Sutter and the rest of this happy and interesting Christian family.

They are situated on the only prairie in the State. The land is rich and well watered, but never subject to overflow. There is an abundance of timber a short distance away. The land is adapted to rice, cotton and corn, as well as pears, figs, grapes and many other fruits. All kinds of vegetables grow very well.

This is a new country. Land is very cheap and there is an abundance of it. It sells for from five to fifteen dollars per acre. In a few years it will, without doubt, be as valuable as Northern lands. The progressive Southern people are pleased to see the Northern people come in among them. But those who go to this section of the South, will find others to welcome them besides the Southern people, for it is a settlement, composed almost entirely of Northern people. I judged this before I left the cars, for I noticed that the houses were generally built with two stories.

I can not think otherwise than that any members, who think of seeking a new location for their future home, would do well to visit that section, see the country and meet the Brethren there. I can not see how any one could help but be pleased. Bro. Sutter takes great pleasure in entertaining the Brethren and showing them around.

The Brethren are desirous of seeing others come and settle with them and build up a church. A minister should be induced to settle there, for much good could be done.

I returned to my work on Monday morning, well pleased with my trip. W. M. Howe.

New Iberia, La., Dec. 6.

A Season of Refreshing.

Brethren Frank Myers and William Eisenbise, of Mount Carroll, Ill., came to the Spring Creek church, Iowa, and held meetings from Nov. 26 until Dec. 9. The brethren proclaimed the Word of God with the power of the Spirit, giving encouragement to the saints, and causing sinners to tremble and flee from the wrath to come.

Dec. 4, the ice was removed from the stream, and five precious souls were buried in the liquid grave, we trust, to walk in newness of life. Dec. 9, four more were baptized. One that had strayed away, returned to the fold again.

This church was organized Feb. 21, 1880, with eighteen members. We have not received any additions by immigration since that time, but some have moved away, some have gone to their reward, and others have fallen away. At present, we number forty-nine in all. We have held our meetings in school-houses up to the present. The church is now making an effort to build a meeting-house. We had a council Dec. 13, and it was decided to put forth every effort to raise money enough to build a plain, substantial building. We are much in need of a house, but will not go in debt. Our church is alive and active, and doing all in her power to raise means enough to build. May the Lord bless our undertaking, not only in building a house of worship, but in our efforts to build up his kingdom in this part of his moral heritage!

About one year ago it was said through the Messenger that dark clouds (or words to that effect) were resting upon us. Whatever may have been true of that time, it certainly is different at present. The Sun of Righteousness is shedding his glorious light upon us, and we rejoice.

Right here I wish to drop a word of caution to my dear brethren and co-laborers in the vineyard of the Lord. As we go among the churches, we may see some things that are not as they should be. Every church has her little home troubles that do not need to be made public. It is theirs to settle, if possible, and thus save exposure. Matt. 18 holds good in reference to churches as well as to individuals. If individual members have trouble, they are commanded to settle their trouble between themselves, if possible. The church need not know anything about it. So it is with different branches of the church. Their little home troubles are to be settled at home, and not to be spread abroad. In view of these facts, let us not be too ready to expose churches to the entire Brotherhood. It is not the right thing to do, as it surely does not promote the cause of our Master, and ofttimes proves injurious to the church thus exposed. The Scripture tells us that charity covers a multitude of sins. True charity does not expose to the public gaze, all that we see and hear. Let us be careful in all things, and may our Heavenly Father, in his infinite goodness and love, direct our minds aright, that all we say and do may be to the honor and glory of God!

M. H. Fowler.

Fredericksburgh, Iowa, Dec. 18.

Our Lunenburgh Meeting.

On the morning of Dec. 7 I left the busy, bustling avenues of Roanoke City, to assist the Brethren of Lunenburgh County, Va., in a series of meetings. Without serious detention, I arrived at the hospitable home of Bro. Jos. Oliver, one of the deacons of the congregation. Bro. "Joe," as everybody calls him, keeps "open house" and every one is "at home" the moment his door-step is crossed.

On Saturday evening we met a full house at their usual place of meeting, and a delightful service of song and prayer and reading and preaching occupied the passing hours. The Brethren have an evergreen prayer-meeting there, which assembles every Saturday evening and continues several hours. As a natural result, an excellent spirit prevails throughout the year and I found, in actual experience, that the usual ice-melting period, incident to the beginning of most revival meetings, was thus rendered delightfully short.

Sunday morning and evening and each evening following till the 23rd, the meetings continued with increasing interest. Hundreds attended, and only at two meetings was the house capable of holding the people, and I have never seen such unabated and intense interest. They seemed to be especially interested in hearing our peculiar doctrines preached and generally were willing to concede that they were supported by the Scriptures.

Twenty-nine were baptized as the immediate result of the meetings, and others are contemplating the step.

On the evening of the 14th, the feast of charity and accompanying ordinances were observed by forty-eight members, and all seemed greatly to enjoy the solemn services. There are now about eighty members enrolled. Since the organization, Aug. 8, 1888, one has died and six have been lost by desertion. We are hopeful of reclaiming some of them.

The members are faithfully walking in all the ordinances and commandments of the Gospel, and a more loving band of Christians is seldom seen. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another," is the grand and supreme test, and they strive to meet it literally. Work and pray is their watch-word, and their fervent spiritual life is the natural outcome.

They are a great power in that County, where the average spiritual life is not as bright as it should be, and with God's blessing on them, the day is not distant when strong congregations of Christians, professing and practicing the primitive doctrines and habits, will be established throughout that large region, heretofore unknown to our Brethren. The churches that have heretofore been dependent on a salaried ministry, are waning in spiritual and numerical strength, and once flourishing congregations of Baptists and Methodists are now pastorless and dispirited, and the more spiritual of their members seem willing to consider our claims to their confidence and affection.

Many of our acquisitions are from the immersionist denominations, whose belief in the doctrine of implicit obedience inclines them to listen willingly to our explanation of the constituents of obedience.

The brethren and sisters there have a great and grand mission to perform. If our principles flourish or decay, it will be as their life's influence tends. The vigilant eyes of the country are upon them, and their every word and act is duly noted and measured by the Word which they profess to believe and practice. If they are faithful to their solemn baptismal vows, and strive to grow into the likeness and image of Christ, many thousands of the amiable, loving people of their country will join them as the years roll by. God grant them the graces of love for his Word and for each other, and meekness and peace and all kindred qualities!

D. C. Moomaw.

From Maywood, Nebr.

We are glad to know that a number of churches have responded to the calls made for the needy of our country, and hope that many others will be induced to do the same.

A few days ago we received $24.50 from the Weeping Water church, Nebr., for the needy of our church at this place. May the Lord bless the donors!

There are many people here, that are suffering for the comforts of life. There will be a great many more, if they are not supplied till something can be raised again. Articles of clothing, provisions, grain, garden seeds, etc., would be gratefully received.

Bro. J. E. Young is giving the particulars of the condition of the country as near as any one can. He has been laboring faithfully for the spiritual welfare of the people, as well as their temporal. He only held a few meetings near us since he has been here. We could not have the school-house, as it was used for other meetings. What preaching he did do, aroused the people very much. Many are inquiring after the Truth. We are anxious to have our brother do more preaching and he expects to do so, if the Lord will.

There are more workers needed in this country, to feed the people with the Bread of Life. Souls are starving for it. While reading reports of meetings where there are so many able ministers present, many times my heart has been made to ache. I believe there are enough ministers in our Brotherhood, and also enough extra means, to supply all the wants. May God help us to see and act as he would have us do! Jennie Phillips.

Home-Going of Elder S. H. Sprogle, M. D.

With a saddened yet jubilant heart, I chronicle the exodus of our beloved and widely-known brother, Samuel H. Sprogle. No doubt to many readers of this notice it will bring a pang, as of personal bereavement.

His father, Eld. John Sprogle, will be remembered by the older readers of this journal, as one of the pillars and Boanerges of half a century ago. He was "mighty in the Scriptures," with a heart as large as the world and larger,—in labors and self-sacrifice a modern Paul. His son, the subject of this sketch, inherited largely his father's mental and moral characteristics, with greatly inferior physical capabilities. He had a strongly marked scrofulous diathesis, which developed itself early in his professional career, and became a festering "thorn in the flesh" during the remainder of his earthly pilgrimage.

He and I were office chums as medical students in 1852–3, pursued our curriculum partly at the same college, he going out from our Alma Mater to practice the Eclectic Healing Art, and I to a life of invalidism, wider studies, and a course of providential training to humble my pride, sanctify my ambition, and fit me for a higher, but less ostentatious mission than what I had marked out for myself.

In his convictions and their maintenance, the Doctor was granitic. He was exceedingly versatile, looked well at central points and took in a large range of correlations before halting in conclusions; but when once reached, they were fixed mental furniture. He was a man of native refinement and of the most delicate sensibilities, qualities which rendered him very welcome in the sick-room, and no less in his diagnosis and treatment of soul-maladies. As a counsellor in ecclesiastical perplexities he was prompt, comprehensive, firm yet genial. As a minister, he was evangelic, energetic, full of thought, and seldom passed from the expository to the hortatory form of delivery. As a Sabbath-school worker, he was especially magnetic and efficient. His whole soul was on fire for the Christian nurture of children and youth. He would hold the little ones spell-bound. A Barnabas has left us, a "man greatly beloved," and "he being dead, yet speaketh." On whom shall his mantle fall? It is worth wearing.

While living and practicing in Shannon, Ill., the Doctor passed through the supreme crisis that "turned him from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God," and "translated him into the Kingdom of His Dear Son." He shortly after became a member of the Waddam's Grove church. A few years later, he was elected to the deaconship, and a few years later still, to the ministry.

His health failing, he moved to the Southern border of Kansas where he labored in gathering and organizing a church. There, two years ago, he was advanced to the Bishopric. In the spring of 1889 he returned east, and settled in Harrisburg, Pa., where he practiced medicine and preached the Gospel until a month within his departure to "the inheritance of the saints in light."

For nearly twenty years, he was afflicted with scrofulous ulcers on various parts of his body, which often caused him intense suffering, and largely hindered both his professional and ministerial functions. About a month before his end, the ichor of his sores was absorbed into his circulation, blood-poisoning ensued, and he sank rapidly. His agonies were often extreme, but his patience was greater, and his hope of glory undimmed. I stood at his bedside as he passed through the mystic Beulah Land, and his face seemed verily radiant.

He expired at 7 P. M., Dec. 12, and was interred on the 16th. His age was fifty-five years, eleven months, and sixteen days.

His remains were brought from Harrisburg, twelve miles, and interred within a few rods of where I am penning these lines, in the cemetery of the West Hanover church, in the Big Swatara congregation.

Bro. John H. Witmer delivered the principal funeral discourse. Text: 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, 8. The main emphasis was laid on the word "ready," and its radical antecedents; and the word "henceforth," and its glorious certainties. Two mighty pivot-words, essential to all holy living and triumphant dying. Eld. David Etter and Bro. Samuel Reed followed with confirmatory exhortations. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." C. H. Balsbaugh.

The Little St. Joe church, of DeKalb County, is still pressing toward the great prize. Feeling the need of a house of worship, we decided to build one. It is now completed. Oct. 18 it was dedicated. Brethren J. V. Felthouse and Peter Long, of Lagrange County, were with us and conducted the services.

Bro. Felthouse came again Nov. 22, and commenced meetings the same evening in the church. He continued until the evening of Dec. 7. There seemed to be a good interest. Three were made willing to accept the invitation to come to Christ, and were baptized, we trust, to walk in newness of life. Two more made application to be received.

While the general health is good in the neighborhood, yet death is in our midst. On Saturday evening, when Bro. Felthouse commenced preaching, word came that a man,—Neal Baldwin,—living just close to the church, had passed away. Bro. Felthouse remained to preach the funeral on Monday, and then took his leave, to return home for a few days. May the blessing of God rest upon the church and upon the labors of his servants every-where! John Stafford.

From the Osage Church, Kans.

We had a very interesting meeting on Thanksgiving Day. A collection was taken for the Southern Kansas mission work. The brethren continued the meetings over Sunday. Our home brethren,—elders Martin and J. H. Neher,— did the preaching. Although there were no accessions to the church, I think the members were all built up in their most holy faith.

On Saturday, Dec. 6, we held our quarterly council. Much important business was transacted, but a general good feeling and brotherly love seemed to prevail. We decided to hold an election for a minister, Dec. 8. Bro. Eli M. Wolfe was chosen to fill that important office.

Monmouth, Kans., Dec. 8.

To the Churches of Southern Illinois.

I am informed by the Missionary Committee that there are now nine mission points filled, and that there are calls for several more. It is also known that we have money loaned out, the interest of which helped along last year, but as $300 of that amount has now been donated to the church at Litchfield for the meeting-house, this cuts down the principal, and hence the interest.

If there is not sufficient money paid in, the committee will be obliged to use still more of the principal. At the present rate it will not be long till we will have no principal to fall back on. Then what? Our mission work is growing and the expense in like proportion, and if we do not keep up now, we will then have to stop work or get the District in debt. I believe the dear brethren and sisters of Southern Illinois have too much of the spirit of the Master to permit either; hence let us push the work by supporting the committee. I believe they are economizing as much as possible and their desire is to keep, if possible, the present interest-bearing principal. Remember, it is better to "save at the brim than at the bottom." Send both General Mission and District Mission money to the undersigned, as requested by General and District Council. C. Bucher,

Collector.

"Too many think that God is cutting down the tree, when he is but lopping off its luxuriant branches. They imagine that he is demolishing the superstructure, when he is only laying a right foundation. Poor souls, he is nipping the flowers, but plucking up the weeds; he is not laying your land fallow, but ploughing the field; he is not putting out the light, but snuffing the candle. Providence hath a beautiful face under a black mask. God has the fairest ends in the foulest ways. The sheep may be dipped in water to wash it, when there is no design in the Good Shepherd to drown it."

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

How do you like the MESSENGER in its new dress?

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN will spend some time traveling among the churches this winter.

BRO. J. C. LAHMAN and wife are enjoying the mild and healthful climate of Florida this winter.

Two of the students at this place were received into church fellowship by baptism on the last day of the old year.

BRO. J. W. JARBOE has moved to Nebraska, and should now be addressed, Box 144, Republican City, Harlan County that State.

BRO. DANIEL SNELL has been holding a series of meetings in the Tippecanoe church, Ind. We expect a good report from that field.

BRO. C. D. HYLTON, of Hylton, Va., reports twenty-four inches of snowfall at that place Dec. 16, 1890. It was the heaviest snowfall known in that latitude for many years.

NINE additions by baptism at North Manchester, Ind.

MARY R. MOLER, of Clyde, Cloud Co., Mo., wants the address of James Burd, formerly of Tama County, Iowa. Who will send it to her?

BRO. NOAH FISHER is the treasurer of the Old Folks' Home in Middle Indiana, and his address is Perrysburg, Miami Co., Ind. For some cause it does not appear in the Almanac.

SISTER SARAH E. RENNER, of Milton, Umatilla Co., Oregon, has been distributing tracts, and would like to have the Brethren come and preach the Word. Will our Oregon brethren look after this call?

UNDER date of Dec. 22, 1890, Bro. Sharp says: "There were eleven baptized at the College yesterday, and two more applicants came forward in the evening. All are students but one, who is also a member of our Sunday-school."

WE acknowledge a kind invitation from Bro. C. H. Balsbaugh to visit his home on our Eastern trip. Sorry we did not have time to accept his, as well as many other invitations received. The nine weeks were much too short. How rapidly they passed away!

BRO. J. E. YOUNG, of Beatrice, Nebraska is receiving a number of donations from various parts of the Brotherhood for the Western sufferers, and will report all money received through the MESSENGER. He will also give a full statement of the use made of the money.

BRETHREN LEMUEL HILLERY and W. H. Leaman, of Reece, Kansas, held a series of meetings in the Spring Creek church. Three had been baptized and four more made application for membership. Bro. Leaman says: "We have seen no better opening for work than this in the West."

ELD. S. B. SHIRKEY reports good meetings in the Wakendah congregation, Rockingham Co., Mo. Bro. D. B. Gibson did the preaching. Bro. Shirkey says: "The result of the meeting was eleven baptized and two reclaimed. This makes forty-four baptized since the Miller and Sommer debate."

BRO. EMMANUEL LECKRONE, of Silver Lake, Ind., reports good meetings in the church at that place. Bro. John W. Metzger was with them and preached seventeen sermons. Nine were added to the fold of Christ. Bro. John Metzler commenced meetings at the West house and Bro. Leander Pottinger at the East house Dec. 23. A full report will be given when the meetings close.

Der Brüderbote, published by Bro. J. S. Snyder, at McPherson, Kansas, is our German church paper, and should receive the support of all our German Brethren. The paper can not be made self-supporting unless our German Brethren will subscribe for it and help to support it. There are churches in some parts of Pennsylvania where the paper ought to be largely circulated, and we hope our brethren, who read this notice, will make a special effort to secure subscribers for the German paper. Go to see the members who read the German, and ask them to subscribe for the Brüderbote. The price has been reduced from $1.00 to seventy-five cents per year. Bro. Snyder also publishes the Educator and Companion, a paper devoted to education and to the interest of McPherson College. It is one among the best educational journals that comes to our desk. He will send the Educator and Brüderbote to one address, one year for $1.50. Write to him for full particulars.

WE learn that Bro. S. S. Mohler is making some improvement in health. He has been a great sufferer, and has passed through a severe furnace of affliction. His recovery is slow, but it is sufficient to encourage us to hope he may again be fully restored to health. May God comfort and restore him!

THE Special Bible Work, including the series of Doctrinal Sermons, recommended by our last Annual Meeting, commenced on the fifth inst., at Huntingdon, Mt. Morris, and McPherson schools. We believe that much good will result from these special Bible Courses, and we hope our brethren will avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered to become better acquainted with the Bible, and the doctrines of the church.

BRO. B. F. MOOMAW reports an excellent Thanksgiving meeting with a liberal donation for local church work. We are glad to know that our Thanksgiving meetings are becoming more and more practical, and that our people are showing by their actions that they are thankful to God for the abundance of his blessings. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to give something to the cause of Christ only shows how our hearts are filled with gratitude.

SINCE our last report the following pledges have been received for the Chicago meeting-house: Geo. B. Knepper, Iowa, $10; Elizabeth Knepper, Iowa, $5; Lida Knepper, Iowa, $3; Susan Newsome, Iowa, $2; J. F. Eikenberry, Iowa, $5; Emma Kulp, $10; M. Snyder, Iowa, $10; Jacob and Amanda Witmore, Missouri, $10: J. E. Gnagy, Maryland, $10; Stephen Johnson, Iowa, $10. Cash received: Coal Creek church, Illinois, $10.50; Lizzie A. Hyde, Dakota, $4; Sisters' Mission, Huntingdon, Pa., $10; D. G. Hendricks, Chester, Pennsylvania, $10; H. Farnsworth, Washington, Iowa, $10. Notice in this list that Iowa occurs a number of times. Are there not some brethren and sisters in Indiana and Ohio, that want an interest in the Chicago meeting-house? If so, send in your pledges.

IN another column brethren Eby and Crist set forth the aims and purposes of the Old Folks' Home, which has been located at Booth, Kansas. This is one of those benevolent institutions for helping the poor and unfortunate, that appeals to all whom the Lord has blessed with this world's goods. Some there are who say: "We do not feel like giving for missionary work, we want to use our means for helping the poor." Now here is a golden opportunity to help the poor, and we just wish that the treasurer of the Kansas Home may be flooded with pledges until the cry shall be, "Hold, enough." There shall be, in the future, no excuse for those in our church who are hoarding up God's bounty. The avenues are open all around and about them, and if they fail, the responsibility will rest upon them. The church is doing her part, as a body, in establishing charitable institutions, in mission and tract work, and in looking after her educational institutions. She opens up the avenues for giving. God's blessings are promised to those who give, and now, why do we hesitate? Let us give to help the poor, and then will we be in the line of duty; remembering the words of the prophet, "Undo the heavy burdens; let the oppressed go free; break every yoke; deal thy bread to the hungry; bring the poor that are cast out to thy house. When thou seest the naked, cover him and hide not thyself from thine own flesh. Draw out thy soul to the hungry—then they that be of thee shall build the old waste places, and thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations." Who will help to raise up the foundations of the Brethren's Old Folks' and Orphans' Home at Booth, Kansas?

GREETING.

Out of the old into the new, and so the years come and go. The last number of the Messenger bore upon its pages the last imprint of the dying year 1890; this bears the first of the new year 1891. How soon the days and the weeks of the old year sped away, and already one-fiftieth of our work for the new is done. But why refer to the speed of time? We all know so well that it waits for none of us. Then let it pass away as a fleeting shadow on a summer day, but let our chief concern be that the work we have to do be well done: that we labor in the Master's vineyard with cheerful hearts and willing hands, and then the speeding years will bring us nearer and nearer to our home beyond the flood.

And what of the old year that has gone forever? What of its record? What has the recording angel written over against our names and our lives in the great book that is to be opened when the old year dies not and the new never comes? Behold what is written is written. We may profit by past experience, but squandered substance, wasted time, neglected opportunities never return again. The record is made, the books are closed, and the balance sheet for 1890 is finished, and we turn away from the past with its errors, sad in heart that our work was not better done.

But what of the future? We hope. Ah, what would the soul do without hope? Surely, it is an anchor, both sure and steadfast. We hope to improve upon the past, to do better, to advance in the spiritual life, to have more love for God and for humanity, to have more human sympathy, to care "less for people and more for persons" to have more zeal for the cause of Christ, and to be more like our Divine Master. God help us to grow up to the full stature of manhood in Christ Jesus.

And what of the Messenger? Our aim is, and has been to make it above all things, a true, Christian journal, an exponent of apostolic and primitive Christianity, a church paper without bitterness toward any who may differ with us, a paper that breathes only the spirit of the Master. We believe in the Gospel doctrines and principles, as held and practiced by the Brethren church, and we are with her, heart and soul, in her struggle to uphold primitive Christianity. We believe she has a mission to fill in this world, and our desire is, as God gives us ability, to help her fill that mission. She stands against the fashionable follies, the empty forms and hollow pretensions of the age, and in this struggle she needs the help of all her sons and daughters. Some there are who seem to be weary of the fight,—and who does not grow weary at times and sigh for the land of rest? But let us continue faithful unto death, and we shall receive a crown of life. Let the weary ones take fresh courage. Let us gird up our loins anew, and labor faithfully until our work is done, and we are called up higher.

To our readers we send the Messenger this week in an entire new dress. The old type was much worn, and new was purchased. We incurred this expense so that we might give you a clear, well-printed paper. Our efforts in this direction, in the past, will give assurance that we will leave nothing undone in the future to make the Messenger a credit to our church. We hope to continue our visits to all of you for the year 1891. We can not afford to lose a single subscriber, and we do not believe you can afford to do without the Messenger.

To our readers, agents, correspondents, one and all, we send our New Year's Greeting. May God's blessing rest upon us, one and all, and may we be faithful in all our work!

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

We closed our last letter at New Enterprise, Pennsylvania, and at that time we expected to close this correspondence in the last issue of the Messenger for 1890, but our labor was interfered with by severe illness, which kept us pretty closely confined to the house for about a week. During our stay at New Enterprise we stopped at the pleasant and comfortable home of Bro. Geo. S. and sister Rosa Myers. When sickness comes to us, we appreciate a good home, and surely we had all that heart could desire in this direction. We were most kindly cared for. The brethren and sisters at New Enterprise showed us many acts of kindness, and Bro. George and sister Rosa did all in their power to make our stay with them pleasant and comfortable. We shall not soon forget their kindness. May the Lord bless and reward them! As soon as we were able to travel, we went to Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, where we spent two days, and then started for home, reaching Mount Morris Dec. 22, after an absence of nearly ten weeks. We were glad to get home again, and we felt that the Lord had wonderfully blessed and sustained us in our journey and in our labors. We had arranged to visit several churches in Morrison's Cove, but were unable to do so.

The Cove, as it is commonly called, is one of the strongholds of our church. Four Annual Meetings have been held in Morrison's Cove, the first in 1825, the second in 1840, the third in 1863, and the fourth, and last, in 1877 at New Enterprise. This meeting was held nine miles from the nearest railroad station, and was among the last of our Annual Conferences that convened in a barn. We only need to refer to the fact, that in these days we are not even satisfied to have our conferences located on the line of a single railway, owing to the difficulty experienced in handling the crowds who attend the meetings, to show that there has been a wonderful increase in the attendance at our Annual Meetings. Think of locating the meeting nine miles from a railroad station to-day, and yet, only thirteen years have passed since the Conference was held at that distance from the railroad.

The Yellow Creek church, with its principal house of worship at New Enterprise, Pa., is strong in numbers and in the ministry. Brethren Joseph Z. Replogle and Chas. L. Buck are the elders. Brethren Geo. S. Myers, Levi Stuckey, L. F. Holsinger and David T. Detwiler are their co-laborers in the ministry. Besides the large meeting-house at New Enterprise, which has a seating capacity of 1,000, they have a house at Salemville, one at Waterside, another at Snyder's, and still another at Imlertown. The membership numbers about three hundred, whilst in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, there are one thousand or more members of the Brethren's church.

Our meetings at this place were largely attended, but were discontinued on account of sickness. The large meeting-house, 55x80, was well filled, and the people seemed to be interested in the message we had for them. We regretted very much that we were unable to continue the work, but we willingly submitted it all to the will of the Lord.

Our stay at Huntingdon was much too short for us. Bro. J. H. Brumbaugh, the principal of the school at this place, met us at the train, and kindly arranged to have us taken to the Normal, which is some distance from the depot. There we met a kind and warm reception from the brethren and sisters, who are engaged in the work of building up the cause of education in Pennsylvania. With the new building, recently completed, the Huntingdon Normal College has every facility needed for the success of the work. The faculty is composed of live, energetic educators, and their work is noted for its thoroughness. We heard this feature of the work commented on in Eastern Pennsylvania, and we are glad to know that the school enjoys an enviable reputation for thorough educational work.

We met with some of the brethren engaged in the work, and discussed at some length our church and educational work, and our relation to it. To us the meeting was a pleasant one. An interchange of views is helpful, and when we meet and talk over our work, in a kind and Christian spirit, it is always helpful. Differences do arise; we can not all see alike, but of this one thing we are glad, that the Brethren at Huntingdon express themselves strongly as being fully in sympathy with the general Brotherhood, including the Gospel principle of plainness, and that they are laboring to carry out this principle in their school work, and we hope they will succeed in their efforts. In their work they need not so much adverse criticism, as they do loving sympathy and kind words of encouragement. They are making sacrifices, as are all our brethren, who are engaged in school work, and they need help and encouragement. We met a number of the students in the Chapel and in the dining hall, and we were well pleased with what we saw. The school is in a prosperous condition, and the winter and spring terms promise to be the largest in the history of the institution.

We visited the home of sister Quinter, and had a pleasant interview with herself and family. As we sat in the library, which remains just as it was left by dear Bro. Quinter, when he left his home for the last time, we could not realize that he was gone. We felt that we must see him at his desk, where he spent so much of his time, and where we saw him for the last time in his home, when we visited him a few years before his death. Sister Quinter is anxious to have a selection made of Bro. Quinter's sermons, and have them published in book form. The work is now well under way, and will probably be ready for distribution early in the summer. It will contain a fitting biographical sketch of Bro. Quinter. It will be published in the interest of Bro. Quinter's family.

And now we close this editorial correspondence. We are at home again, seated in the old editorial chair. The rumbling of the press, the click of the type, the call for more copy, the pile of unanswered letters, the overflowing query box, are all realities again. We settle down to work in this new year with a thankful heart. God has been very good to us. Of our Eastern trip we retain many pleasant memories, many seasons of spiritual enjoyment, and these shall help us as we meet the trials of life yet before us. To the dear brethren, sisters and friends, in the twenty-four churches which we visited, who received us so kindly, we extend our grateful thanks, and pray God's blessing upon us all.

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY, AS APPLIED TO THE CHURCH.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

Number One.

WE have, for some time, felt that there was a necessity for noticing this question. The Savior says, "Take heed what ye hear." Mark 4: 24. This is at once sufficient to prompt us to inquire, Why take heed as to what you hear? One answer only, can reasonably be given, and that is, that there was danger ahead. Danger, because not every one would teach that which was safe, and our own observation has certainly been sufficient to establish the truthfulness of the above, beyond the question of a doubt. Not only that, but if the errors taught were of such a gross character as to be detected at a glance, or slight inspection, then there would have been little need of the caution given. We all know that the well-executed bill is the one that is most likely to delude the eye of the inspector, and, although the work is well done, it is nevertheless a counterfeit. It will not stand the test, when tried by the Great Detector.

The Master meant to forewarn his disciples, and as proof of the necessity for such warning, we cite the reader to what is said by the apostle Peter, "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. Many shall follow their pernicious ways: by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." 2 Peter 2: 1, 2. This goes strongly to prove, that the Savior's caution was not without good reasons, for Peter declares that false prophets were on hand in his day, and also foretells that false teachers would be among the disciples later. It does not require the skill of a great philosopher to see that it is true even now, hence the predictions of those who have preceded us, are being fully demonstrated in our midst, and we would have to be very dull of comprehension, or slow to learn, if we can not see the literal fulfillment of those prophecies right in our midst.

The above refers to quality or character. Next we shall notice a different form of expression: "Take heed therefore how ye hear." Luke 8: 18. Now we have manner under consideration, more than quality. The Savior well understood the depravity of man's nature, and hence he gives us the benefit of his friendly caution, "Take heed how ye hear." As an additional caution, given by the apostle, we quote the following, "For when they speak great swelling words of vanity, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonness, those that were clean escaped from them who live in error. While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption." 2 Peter 2: 18, 19.

Here you should notice carefully the class thus spoken to,—not the sinner, who needs the help of all good people that he may be saved,—but the class here spoken to, are such as have renounced sin and Satan, and have made a "clean escape" from them who live in error. Notice, too, the medium through which such teachers operate. They do not address themselves to their higher moral faculties, but to their lower nature, and allure them through the lusts of the flesh.

When they have succeeded in thus capturing their victims, what do they promise them? Peter says, They promise them liberty. Well, we inquire, What kind of liberty? More Gospel liberty? Certainly not, for these were persons who had already made a clean escape from them who live in error, which they could only do by obeying the whole Gospel. The Savior says to his disciples, "Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you." John 15: 3. And, again, Jesus says, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Matt. 4: 4. Then it is clear that they could not promise any liberty to such as had obeyed the Gospel, except it would be liberty to the flesh. And since they appealed to the lusts of the flesh, as the medium of their success in alluring them, it is easy to see, that the liberty which they promise them would be of the same kind. The apostle says, "But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government," etc. 2 Peter 2: 10.

Some of them will not go so far as to encourage them to indulge in anything that is unclean or low in character, but will just give them liberty to dress more as they may feel to do. They admit the doctrine to be all right, but they say the church is too strict in holding to a style of dress, as recommended by the church. Now, the Savior and the apostles are foretelling what shall be in the last days, and it is certainly time that we would open our eyes to the fact that we are right in the midst of the fulfillment of what they told us should come to pass. Will we sacrifice any of the principles, as held sacred by our beloved Brotherhood? I hope not. The time is here to take heed what and how we hear.

THE OVERSEER.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

PAUL, to Timothy, corrects an impression naturally growing out of the term employed to denote the office of overseer. The office is a work, rather than a position of honor. The truth, then, is that he that desires the office of a bishop, desires a good work, for work he will find and plenty of it, so absorbing and of such a character, that the office will be swallowed up in the service. The bishop, then, must be:

"BLAMELESS," free from blame.

"VIGILANT," attentive to discover and avoid danger.

"SOBER," serious, sedate, grave.

"OF GOOD BEHAVIOR," orderly.

"HOSPITABLE," kind reception of friends and strangers.

"APT TO TEACH," having the gift and readiness to impart Scriptural knowledge.

"NOT GIVEN TO WINE," an abstainer, from principle.

"NO STRIKER," not a quarrelsome man.

"NOT GREEDY OF FILTHY LUCRE," not making gain the leading object of life.

"PATIENT," enduring trials without murmuring.

"NOT A BRAWLER," not a high, noisy talker, making an uproar.

"NOT COVETOUS," to desire ardently what can not be obtained lawfully.

"JUST," giving to every one what is due.

"OF GOOD REPORT," to be well spoken of.

"HOLY," free from sin and sinful affections,—consecrated.

Looking at the varied tests of an overseer's qualifications, we readily see that the office is not only a good work, but that it requires a good man to fill it. His work in the church is willing, consecrated service. He works in the church for love, peace, harmony, good-will. He is not self-willed and narrow enough to work simply for the narrow limits of his own neighborhood and home church. He will take as much interest in the peace and prosperity of the entire Brotherhood as for his own church.

To be "just" in the true sense of the word, requires that the overseer rise above all petty differences and disputes among his brethren, in order to conduct them to the place of peace and safety. When differences arise, as sometimes they do, the overseer must not take sides, or he will become the leader of a party. He must stand above all strife and know no man in it. A party leader is no longer a ruler, or overseer. Upon this rock many have made shipwreck.

An overseer is, in a true sense, a shepherd. He will leave the ninety and nine in safety, and seek to gain the one that has wandered away. He will not seek to array one part against the other for the sake of victory in a contest for a point of a conceived violation of principle. Love and self-sacrifice surmount all differences, and dispense justice without partiality to all.

Paul produces another feature of good ruling in that Titus should shew himself "a pattern of good works; in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity." Titus 2: 7. A pattern is a model for imitation. It says, "Work as I work. Do as I do." It is a standard measure, after which all may shape their actions with safety. It is a centre toward which and by which to work harmoniously. The same idea is advanced with still deeper meaning by the word "gravity." Gravity is a power or force which attracts all bodies to a common centre. To be grave is to be weighty,—to have force.

An overseer, then, should not be gay, light, nor trifling. He should have weight of character, force to hold in check all tendency to fly from the proper sphere of action. Gayety,—levity,—is the opposite of gravity, and is irregular, frivolous, light, carried away as the wind carries the chaff. True love runs deep, —is grave. A party spirit is simply an exhibition of a morbid love. True, brotherly love did not exist, and a closer intimacy was sought in a divided state. This brings a closer intimacy, yet it is deceptive,—it is a morbid love,—a love that seeks the good of a few to the ruin of many.

True Christian love is high as heaven,—wide as the universe. It is an attractive force from God that holds all his children to him. It is this quality of force and weight of character that an overseer should possess, in order to rule well as the steward of God. It means that he will co-operate with all his co-laborers to secure the same order, peace and faith among all and through all.

Let this spirit be fully imbibed and put into practical operation, and the far east will be the same as the far west, and the north and the south will drink at the same fountain; for "thy watchmen shall lift up the voice, with the voice together shall they sing: for they shall see eye to eye, when the Lord shall bring again Zion." Isa. 52: 8.

A CHRISTIAN LIFE.

BY MARY M. COX.

To be a Christian is to be like Christ. We must go about doing good. We must sacrifice all selfish interests for the good of others. We must, like our Savior, be ever ready to say, "Not my will, oh, Father, but thine be done!" If this be our desire, as shown in our life, we may be assured we are living a Christian life!

God has done so much for us, even when we were yet sinners in his sight, that we surely can make the few sacrifices he demands of us. Among the duties we sometimes fail to perform is that of having a proper love for each other. Jesus says, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another.

A Christian life is a progressive life. We must grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To live in the church for years, and still be babes in understanding, is not making much progress. God wants workers in his vineyard,—not idlers. He has given us a field of labor, and offered us a reward for our labor, but we need not expect the reward if we sit with folded hands.

Each one of us has a work to do. All have not the same talents, but we must learn to use the talent or talents we have, to the best advantage. Time is passing by swiftly, and it will not be long until we will be called away from our labor to our reward.

Our time and our money belongs to the Lord. He has entrusted them to our care and we should use them in his service. If we can sit at ease while brothers, sisters and friends are perishing for the Bread of Life, we are not growing in the knowledge of our Savior.

Jesus wept over Jerusalem, and shall our eyes be dry when we see loved ones living in sin! Oh, that we all could realize what a Friend we have in Jesus, what a loving, tender Father we have in heaven! His ears are ever open to the cry of his children.

Our earthly parents may cast us out and forsake us, but our Heavenly Father is always ready to hear us! Oh, the blessed privilege of prayer! To think that we poor mortals are allowed to bow before the throne of the Creator of the heavens and the earth with the assurance that he will be well pleased to listen, and that, if we come to him in faith and meekness, our prayers will be answered.

Oh, let each of us try to be more worthy of this great love by living a more consecrated life! Let us try to realize the many blessings we are daily receiving, and to be more grateful! Let us show our gratitude by doing all we can for our fellowbeings!

Many, in the Far West, are suffering for the necessities of life. Can we live a Christian life and let them suffer, if we have anything we can give them? Jesus says, "The poor ye have with you always." We are told that "he that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." Who would not be willing to lend to the Lord, the owner of all! Let not our ears be deaf to those urgent appeals, and while supplying their bodily needs, let us not neglect to administer to their spiritual needs also!

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

Writing under date of Dec. 20, Bro. J. E. Young, of Beatrice, Nebr., informs us that they are having an interesting series of meetings at that place. They expected to have their love-feast Dec. 27.

A commendable plan is pursued by the Brethren of Nora Springs, Iowa, who, as Bro. G. M. Noah writes, continue their Sunday-school throughout the winter. This is right; for if the Sunday-school is worth anything at all, it is worthy of our attention every Sunday in the year.

—Under date of Dec. 16, sister Emma Purkey, of Inwood, Ind., writes: "Bro. Daniel Wysong held a series of meetings at Mt. Pleasant church, Ind., beginning Nov. 29, and closing Dec. 14. There were no accessions, but we trust that the many good admonitions may be heeded, so that Zion may prosper."

—"The members of the Lick Creek church, Ohio,"—writes Bro. G. W. Sellars,—"are now in the midst of a series of meetings. Bro. Isaiah Rairigh, of Michigan, is doing the preaching, and we are looking, with fond anticipations, to the time when there will be an ingathering of many souls to the church of Christ. We have good audiences and excellent interest."

—Under date of Dec. 13, sister Lizzie A. Miller, of the Union Centre church, Elkhart County, Ind., writes: "To-day was our quarterly council. Much business came before the meeting but all passed off pleasantly, with the exception in the case of two members who were disowned. Two that had wandered away, came back. May they be bright and shining lights, and show that they are truly children of God."

—From the Eden Valley church, Kans., Bro. S. P. Weaver writes: "Bro. John Wise came to us Nov. 23 and held a very pleasant council-meeting. He commenced preaching that evening, and continued meetings until Dec. 7. During the meetings we had the best of order and attention. As an immediate result seven made the good confession and were buried with Christ in baptism. Brethren, pray for them, that they may ever be kept faithful to their vows!"

—From the Mound church, in the Middle District of Missouri, Bro. Jacob Blocher writes: "Our Thanksgiving meeting was well attended. While we returned thanks to God for the blessings we enjoyed during the past year, we also felt to take up a collection for the Church Erection and Mission cause. Having enjoyed the use of our house for a year, we realize that, by the help of others, we were enabled to secure a house of worship, and now are desirous to help others to secure the same blessing."

—Under date of Dec. 20, Bro. J. D. Haughtelin, of Panora, Iowa, writes: "Since brethren Goughenour and McCune closed the meetings at Maple Grove, twelve miles north-east of Panora, brethren Sisler, Hawbecker and Julius, of Dallas Centre, have been holding a series of meetings at the church near Panora, with full attendance and growing interest. We are having splendid roads and fine whether, and while we are having such pleasant meetings at home, we do not propose to neglect other points. Bro. Brower is preaching in Adair County, Bro. Deardorff in Woodbury County and the writer is now on his way to Madison County and writing these lines in Des Moines, while waiting for a train. Next week Bro. Diehl will go to Dallas County, leaving Bro. Myers busily employed taking care of the work at home. We propose to 'work till Jesus comes.'"

—Under date of Dec. 19, Bro. Theo. H. Davis, of Abilene, Kans., writes: "Last Sunday Bro. C. Hope came to us to hold a few meetings. He preached five sermons at our meeting-house in Navarre. While there were no immediate results, yet we hope that his labors will eventually result in great good. We expect to commence another series of meetings in January, and hope that the blessing of the Lord may rest upon our efforts."

—Bro. S. M. Miller, of the Washington Creek church, Douglas Co., Kans., writes: "Bro. Andrew Hutchison came to the above-named church, Nov. 17, and commenced a series of meetings which he continued for two weeks, preaching, in all, sixteen sermons. He held one children's meeting. Bro. Hutchison is an able defender of the Truth. As an immediate result of the meeting one was baptized, and others are almost persuaded. The church is much strengthened and built up. At this time Bro. Hutchison is preaching in the Pleasant Grove church. From there he goes to Franklin County."

—Under date of Nov. 15, Bro. Jefferson Matthias, of Elkhart, Polk County, Iowa, writes: "On Sunday, Dec. 6, Bro. J. S. Snowberger, from Colorado, commenced a series of meeting for us at our school-house, and continued one week, with increasing interest. One dear soul expressed a desire to unite with the church and we believe that others are near the kingdom. Bro. Snowberger and companion are on their way to the East, and will visit several churches while here. We appreciated their labors very much, and hope that the Lord will be with them and all other faithful soldiers of the cross!"

—From the Mohican church, Wayne Co., Ohio, sister Nancy A. Fackler, under date of Dec. 18, writes: "The members of the Mohican church have just closed a series of meetings, which was held by our much esteemed brother, W. F. Dessenberg. He, although young in years, feared neither saints nor sinners, but proclaimed the Truth. Two,—a husband and wife,—were added to our number by baptism. A father and husband, who had wandered away, came back to the Father's house. May they hold out faithful until death! Our meetings commenced Nov. 30 and closed Dec. 14."

—Bro. John Calvin Bright, of New Lebanon, Ohio, writes: "The Wolf Creek church had a large and interesting meeting on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. Samuel Horning delivered the principal discourse. He spoke of the good and perfect gifts that our Heavenly Father bestows upon us, and how we should appreciate as well as dispose of them. Since our last Thanksgiving our three oldest sisters,—Erbaugh, Myers, Hay,—have gone to the eternal thanksgiving above. Our council-meeting, Dec. 4, was harmonious and pleasant. Bro. Q. Calvert commences a series of meetings at the Eversole meeting-house Dec. 15."

—Under date of Dec. 8, sister Mamie Hall writes: "Nov. 29 Bro. A. Molsbee came to us and began a series of meetings next day. He continued until Dec. 7, and though our congregations were not as large as we hoped they would be, all were much strengthened, and felt that it was good to thus assemble together. Surely, God has a people, even here in Texas, and if we will all labor faithfully, in doing our part, there will be a glorious ingathering in the future. May we use every means in our power to advance our Blessed Master's kingdom. There is no time for Christians to be idle. Every brother and sister should keep plenty of tracts on hand. They are silent but powerful missionaries. I owe my conversion to the reading of tracts before I ever heard a brother preach, and I feel safe in saying that people may be reached in this way who would be hard to reach by any other means."

—Bro. J. K. Shively, of the Wallace church, Nebr., writes: "Our church work is increasing. Bro. G. W. Stambaugh when he was here Nov. 1, aroused a great interest in the minds of all. We think that another series of meetings should be held here to complete the work, and we hope that some brother will come to our aid."

—At this writing, Dec. 17, Bro. S. E. Yundt has just returned from four weeks' labor in the field, and brings the following Thanksgiving offering: Nancis J. Bitterly, 50 cents; Simon Bitterly, 50 cents; Annetta Yarger, $1.00; Rachel Wells, 75 cents; Wm. H. Gift, $1.00. Bro. Yundt started Dec. 20 for Loran to hold a series of meetings.

—From Locust Grove, Henry Co., Ind., Bro. Izorah Rohrer, under date of Dec. 24, writes: "We have just enjoyed a most interesting series of meetings. Dec. 10, Bro. J. C. Murray, from Nappanee, Ind., commenced a series of meetings at this place, which he continued until Dec. 23. By his earnest labors, saints were encouraged and sinners warned. We had a large attendance and the very best of attention."

From the Middle District church, Miami Co., Ohio, Bro. D. P. Sollenberger writes: "Bro. J. Bennett Trout, of Springfield, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Nov. 29, at which the attendance was excellent. While there were no additions to the church, we know that many are counting the cost. Our meeting closed Dec. 9 with a service for the children. It was a complete success and interesting to both young and old."

—Sister Laura E. Ulrich, of Lanier, Ohio, writes, under date of Dec. 18, the following: "Bro. Quinter Calvert, of Highland County, came to the Brethren at the Lower Twin church, to conduct a series of meetings, Nov. 30, which lasted until Dec. 15. Altogether he preached twenty-nine sermons. I felt that the meetings were highly appreciated by all. During the meetings, four precious souls were added to the church by baptism. May the Lord help them to hold out faithful! Others were near the fold, and we hope that the good seed sown in the hearts of many may be gathered in due time."

From the Roann church, Wabash Co., Ind., Bro. Joseph John writes: "Our protracted meetings, referred to in my last notice, conducted by Eld. Samuel Sprankle, from Stark County, Ohio, resulted in much good. He commenced meetings at the New Enterprise church, Dec. 7, and closed on the evening of the 16th ult. After preaching twelve sermons at this place, he came to the old church near Roann, and preached three sermons to eager listeners. The result of his earnest labors among us, drove the arrow of conviction to the hearts of seven dear souls, who were led down into the liquid stream. May they be shining lights in the church!"

Under date of Dec. 11, sister Sue C. Fontz, of Port Allegany, Pa., writes, "I received the package of tracts and MESSENGERS, and have distributed these silent missionaries among the people. All seem pleased, and especially with the MESSENGER. The number, with the article on our faith and practice, has been going from house to house, and still the calls for it continue. No one here seems to know anything of the Brethren except an aged man, who recently made the remark, 'The Dunkards are nice people; where they live you need not lock your barns.' May we never give occasion that people must lose the good opinion they have of us at present! The church of Christ must be a light-bearer; if she once ceases to be such, her glory has passed away. Brethren traveling on the Western New York and Pennsylvania R. R., will please stop with us. We can secure a place of meeting and guarantee a good congregation."

Bro. I. Fortner, of Aurora, Lawrence Co., Mo., writes under date of Dec. 14, the following: "Reading about the many good meetings, described in the columns of the MESSENGER, called to mind the more vividly our isolated condition. There are only about eight members located at this place. I am quite anxious that an effort be made here for the upbuilding of Zion, and hope that our dear brethren will remember us!"

From the Howard church, Ind., Bro. George Brubaker, under date of Dec. 24, writes: "Bro. Branson, of Muncie, Ind., commenced a series of meetings Dec. 12. The next day we held our council-meeting, which passed off pleasantly and, seemingly, to the satisfaction of all. One was baptized after the meeting. Bro. Branson preached thirteen sermons while with us. He did his part well. During the meetings we had excellent interest."

Sister Mary Haines, of New Lebanon, Ohio, writes: "Bro. B. F. Honeyman, of Gettysburg, Darke Co., Ohio, came to us Nov. 30, and remained with us until Dec. 14, preaching, in all, seventeen sermons. While with us, the Brethren held a little meeting at the house of our aged sister Martin, who can not attend meetings on account of the infirmities of old age. We also had a meeting at Bro. Musselman's, who has been afflicted for some time. One dear sister came out on the Lord's side while Bro. Honeyman was with us. Many others are awaiting a more convenient time."

Meeting Notes.

AFTER the District Meeting closed at Pleasant View, I had the pleasure of meeting with the members, and a large number of my old friends, on Lord's Day morning. The following Saturday the church met in council, and an enjoyable meeting it was, since it was manifest that some dark clouds, which had hovered over the church for a while, had passed over, and that brotherly love was again restored. May the prayers of the church be continued!

This church has regular, monthly business meetings, and when no business is presented, the time is occupied in singing and exhortation. The plan meets my hearty approval. The longer business of importance is deferred, the more complicated it becomes, for idle tongues will soon get it made out into two or three sides and then the instigator may stand off, if he chooses, for others will fight his battles for him.

Five resident elders are set over this little flock, about three too many, in my judgment, for any congregation, and I found my objections on the following premises: (1) it naturally breeds emulation and jealousy; (2) the holy character of the presbytery is made an order of succession and promotion without due regard to Scriptural qualifications; (3) the churches best supplied with elders cast the heaviest vote in District Conferences. My objections are general. Many of the Tennessee churches have an overstock of elders and ministers, while hundreds of members and thousands of sinners are perishing for the "bread of life." But if, by presenting a solid phalanx of invincible workers to the seceding parties, the flock has been unharmed, the Brethren in the South may still have something to be thankful for, for as yet there is no division worthy of note, nor the shadow of a chance for any serious trouble.

The Saturday following, through the kindness of brother Wm. A. Sherfy we were enabled to attend a pleasant council-meeting at Pleasant Valley, and continued the meetings with marked interest till Sunday night. They follow the plan of the above-named church in having stated monthly business meetings.

Through the efforts of the home ministers, this church enrolled about fifty new members last year. (It was here we had our membership before coming to Ohio.) We were strongly inclined to visit the other two churches in the County, namely, Limestone and Knob Creek, but were hindered. I am credibly informed that the Pleasant Valley church is the "banner church" in the whole "Sunny South," so far as membership goes, at least. The Brethren down there are the victors of many a hard-fought battle, and deserve much praise and sympathy. The additional force of brethren J. H. Moore and Newcomer, late of Illinois, has already had telling effect upon the work. The locating of Bro. James Neff at Knoxville, I likewise commend, and it is a noble work for the Book and Tract Work to do, but, brethren, Knoxville is a modern Nineveh, and the gateway to the boundless Southern missionary field, and let us not forget him, "a stranger in a strange land," and the magnitude of his work.

At Johnson City the Christian church was kindly opened to us, and a large congregation awaited the preaching of the Word. We were kindly received and encouraged on our way. We also enjoyed, while there, a good, social meeting at the home of my sister, and a Thanksgiving service at the Presbyterian church. The same afternoon, at 3 o'clock, we bade our relatives and friends a sad farewell and, at 8 P. M., the following day, we were at Camden, Ohio. We feel thankful, first, to God for his kind care over us in permitting us to see the home of our childhood days, and a safe return, and secondly to many who brought us on our way and cared for us so kindly. A. G. CROSSWHITE.

Gratis, Ohio, Dec. 18.

From the Maple Grove Church, Norton Co., Kans.

THIS congregation met in quarterly conference Dec. 6. Eld. John Ikenberry, of Quinter, Kans., was present at our council. Everything passed off pleasantly. Bro. John Ikenberry remained with us after the council and preached ten very interesting sermons. Though his stay with us was short, we believe much good seed was sown. The members were strengthened and sinners warned of their condition. We are sorry that Bro. J. W. Jarboe, one of our ministers here, is going to leave us. He is moving to Philips County, Kans., where quite an interest is being manifested. They expect to organize themselves into a church soon.

Dear brethren and sisters, as partings and separations do occur, it is vividly brought to our minds that we are in a world of changes, that in this life we have no abiding place. May we meet in yonder bright and sunny clime where parting will be no more! G. M. THRONE.

Dec. 15, 1890.

From Centre View, Mo.

THERE has been quite an awakening in the Centre View church and the surrounding community during the past two weeks. From Dec. 6 to 21, Bro. G. W. Lentz, of Adrian, Mo., conducted a series of meetings. He is young in the ministry as well as young in years, but zealous and earnest in the work of the Lord, and he did not shun to declare all the counsel of God. He, with husband and I, visited nearly all the members, and others, going from house to house, to encourage the members, and to try to implant the doctrine in other hearts. There was nothing to mar the pleasure of the meeting except the sad death of Bro. Samuel Byerly, which cast a gloom over the neighborhood. The funeral took place Dec. 10. (See obituary.)

We had many blessings showered upon us during these meetings. We had good roads, mild and lovely weather, large attendance and excellent attention to the Word spoken. Our aged brother and sister Repp,—now past three score and ten, did not fail to keep their seats filled. They came out each evening to help the work and encourage the cause. As a result of the meetings, the church was much built up and the members strengthened. Sinners were made to tremble and weep on account of sin. Five precious ones, in their youth, heeded the Savior's call and were buried with Christ in baptism, to walk in newness of life. We trust they may ever be bright and shining lights, that others may be constrained to follow Christ! We all feel to thank God and take courage with the work here.

On the 11th was our quarterly church meeting. We had a good meeting: the business was transacted in love and in harmony with the Gospel rule. The dear members were made to rejoice when one came back to the fold, who had wandered away. We trust we may now go together, hand in hand, in the upbuilding of this little band. One was added by letter. Three letters were given to members who went to other fields.

Two dear ones united with the church by baptism a short time ago. Thus the good and glorious work goes on in this arm of the church. We are trying to labor as one of old.—"She hath done what she could." AMANDA WITMORE.

From the North Manchester Church, Ind.

BRO. SILAS GILBERT, of Ohio, came to us Dec. 6 to hold a series of meetings. He labored earnestly and faithfully while among us, preaching in all twenty-seven sermons, to the strengthening of the church, and the conversion of souls. Nine dear souls were brought into the fold of Christ. Two of them, a brother and sister, young in years were baptized on Wednesday, Dec. 17. On this beautiful morning, after hearing Bro. Gilbert's last sermon, we accompanied seven more, three young brethren and four young sisters,—to the baptismal stream, where they enlisted in the army of the Lord.

O, how we rejoiced to realize at last, God's answer to our prayers, as we saw our dear associates stepping down into the water, one by one, following Christ's example! Our dear brother goes to his home this evening. Both old and young join in wishing him success in gathering souls unto life eternal, wherever he goes. May God's blessing rest upon him! SARAH E. CRIPE.

An Inducement.

THERE are now brighter prospects for the building up of Zion in this part of the Lord's moral vineyard. For the benefit of others, who may be looking for a location where the climate is warmer, I can offer an inducement. There is a gentleman here, who has a farm of 250 acres. Most of the land is good. A good house is on the place, built in the northern style. There is a fine orchard and a well of good water. The farm is situated in the forks of two public roads, one of them is the Richmond road. The distance to the latter place is forty-five miles. Hucksters passing by, purchase all produce and pay its full value in cash. The post-office is one-fourth mile from the house, and the railroad station, two and one-half miles. The owner of the property, being in declining health, and having no help, wishes to sell and buy a smaller place. Any one, having plenty of help, should purchase it. He asks $3,000. $1,000 down as first payment.

This farm is twelve miles from Mt. Horeb. A place for preaching is near by. Address me or B. M. Luce, Fife's P. O., Goochland Co., Va. His companion united with us at our late love-feast. We trust some of our Brethren will come,—not only for their temporal benefit, but for the spiritual good of all concerned. We are few in number, and need more workers, to help us battle for Christ. To work for Christ should be our object in this life! FLORIDA J. ETTER.

Cartersville, Va.

From Elizabethtown, Pa.

ON Wednesday, Dec. 3, the Brethren commenced a series of meetings at Elizabethtown, Lancaster County, Pa. Bro. J. M. Mohler labored for us.

After the meetings were in progress for several evenings, the attendance became quite large and continued so until the close on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17. During his two weeks' stay among us, Bro. Mohler preached eighteen sermons,—seventeen at Elizabethtown and one at Chiques meeting-house, six miles north-east of town. His radical position and straight-forward manner of presenting the Truth, provoked many criticisms on the part of professing Christians, but no one undertook to argue the controverted points with him, although the invitation was given.

There were no immediate results in the way of additions to the church, but the good seed sown can not help but be productive of much good.

The members were greatly revived and strengthened in the faith. May God bless the efforts of Bro. Mohler and amply reward him for the many sacrifices he makes! SAMUEL H. HERTZLER.

Random Thoughts.

IF Bro. J. H. Moore thinks it "in order" now "to search for a prophecy concerning people traveling through the air" he may read Rev. 14: 6. How will that do, Bro. John?

We spent Thanksgiving Day with a few isolated members at Stuart's school-house. The leading speaker selected John 3: 16, as a demonstration of God's love to the human family, for which we have great cause to be thankful. He was followed by three other speakers. It was said by many, "It is good for us to be here," and from the tears shed, no doubt others felt the same.

Gold is a very precious metal. It is found in some places in such small deposits that it does not pay men to work and toil in mining it. Just so with some of our sermons. We say some very precious things, but so many excuses, so much self, so much telling our own condition and feelings and experience, and so much boasting, before we get to the precious truths of the Gospel, and it seems to be in such small deposits and mixed with so much dross, that it hardly pays us to toil after it. We prefer sermons with large deposits of Gospel in them.

We read in the Bible of a poor blind man, who, on hearing that Jesus was passing by, began to call on him. He had, no doubt, heard of the miracles performed by Jesus. Those who pretended to be his friends, rebuked him, but he cried the more, "Thou Son of David, have mercy on me." Then Jesus stood still and commanded him to be called. He rose and came to Jesus and received the desired blessing.

We have many blind men and women now-a-days, who need the "scales" removed from their eyes, but if they begin to call on the Lord, some one rebukes them and they become discouraged and cease to call on the Lord and thus lose the desired blessing. Sinners, "Seek the Lord while he may be found. Call on him while he is near,"—and if he does not answer your first call, like Bartimeus, call again.

During the late rebellion a soldier came home sick, sick of war, sick of sin, and physically sick. He gradually grew worse; he could not bear the thought of being hurled into the presence of God without first making peace with him. Eld. C. Bowman was sent for and the sick man demanded baptism. Various ideas were expressed in reference to the possibility of performing the ordinance. Time was precious; he was gradually sinking. Death would soon claim the victory over a man standing at the door of the church, pleading for admittance. He was carried into the water and when all was ready to perform the ordinance, he said, "When you dip me in the name of the Father, if I die, complete the baptism before you stop." The work was performed and the man revived and lived for several days, and then died a happy man. This was faith verified by works.

Dec. 16, twenty-four inches of snow fell in Floyd County, Va. We had expected to leave home on the 18th to hold some meetings thirty miles from home. How glad we are that the snow found us at home! C. D. HYLTON.

Special District Meeting of Northern Illinois.

IN accordance with the call for a special District Meeting, in order to provide for the sufferers of Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota, a number of the brethren and sisters convened in the College Chapel, Mt. Morris, Ill., Dec. 18, at 10 A. M. The following organization was then effected: D. E. Price, Moderator; J. G. Royer, Reading Clerk; Joseph Amick and L. A. Plate, Writing Clerks. The congregations were fairly represented, and the deliberations of the meeting were characterized by a spirit of sympathy with the unfortunate ones, and a desire to devise the best means for the alleviation of their deplorable condition. A District Committee of three brethren was appointed, and all funds are to be sent to the Treasurer, Bro. D. R. Price, Oregon, Ill. In order that the funds may be properly distributed, Bro. D. E. Price was chosen to go to the different places where help is needed, and, by proper investigations, make the most judicious use of the means collected.

May a general response, all along the line, result in a liberal donation to the suffering ones, and may He who has said that it is "more blessed to give than to receive," abundantly bless the cheerful giver! * * *

WE have just enjoyed a most interesting series of meetings. Dec. 1 Bro. D. H. Replogle, of Henry Co., Ind., accompanied by his wife, came to our place of meeting, at the Oasis meeting-house. Bro. Replogle labored earnestly for three weeks, preaching in all twenty-four sermons. By his earnest labors saints were encouraged and sinners warned. Six made the good confession and were baptized. This caused much rejoicing. May the Lord keep them humble, faithful and trustful. Many were almost persuaded. May they not put off their duty until it is too late! Our meeting closed with good interest. SAMANTHA MCMAHAN.

TUESDAY evening, Dec. 16, closed an exceedingly interesting series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Michael Claar, of Claysburgh, Pa. Since he came to this congregation, he delivered, in all, thirty-five sermons. While laboring for us, he "shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God." He preached at three different appointments in this congregation. As the result of his labors seven souls came out on the Lord's side, and united with the church by baptism. May they ever prove true and faithful to the cause which they have espoused, and be as shining lights in the church!

Those of us, who are trying, in our weak way, to follow in the footsteps of the Master, have been re-awakened to a sense of our duty, and new life has been imparted unto the church.

Mother was born in Stark County, Ohio, Jan. 26 1816. She was the mother of eleven children, of whom three preceded her to the spirit world. MARTHA BEEGHLY.

FOWLER—Near Ligonier, Ind., Dec. 8, 1890, sister Naomi Fowler (formerly Garrett) aged 43 years and 26 days.

Thus another consistent member of our beloved Brotherhood has passed away. She leaves a loving husband. Both united with the church last winter, during a protracted meeting, held near Ligonier, Ind. She was loved by all, and an earnest and zealous Christian. Our sympathies are with the dear, bereaved brother. May he also, at last, gain the crown! Funeral services by Bro. J. H. Elson and the writer.

H. H. BRALLIER.

FRYE. In the North Morrill church, Brown Co., Kansas, Dec 12, 1890, Bro. Daniel Frye, aged 57 years, 4 months and 20 days.

Bro. Daniel was cut in the foot while cutting stalks in the spring. The wound, after making him considerable trouble, healed sufficiently to allow him to be about again, seemingly well, until a few weeks previous to his death, when it again troubled him, and finally resulted in his death.

The church here sustains a great loss by the departure of our dear brother. He, though holding the office of minister, did but little preaching from the pulpit, but was a loud preacher in his every day life. He leaves a wife and seven children. Funeral services by Bro. J. S. Mohler.

T. A. EISENBISE.

GARBER. — In the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, Dec. 6, 1890, Jonathan Garber, aged 76 years, 2 months and 26 days.

Deceased was born in Rockingham County, Va., Sept. 10, 1814. He emigrated to Montgomery County, Ohio, in 1835. He married Catharine Rife, who preceded him to the spirit world about seventeen months. Seventeen children were born to them, fifteen are living, with scores of grandchildren, and a number of great-grandchildren. Funeral services by John Kimmel, W. Bucklow, F. Kline and George Miller to a large concourse of people.

JNO. CALVIN BRIGHT.

MOORE.—In the Hopewell church, Saxton, Bedford County, Pa., Dec. 14, sister Lizzie M. Moore, wife of Frank Moore, aged 26 years, 3 months and 2 days. Funeral services by Bro Henry Clapper from Rev. 13: 14.

SHIMER. — In the same church, Mr. Jacob Shimer, aged 97 years, 7 months and 17 days.

Mr. Shimer never made any profession, but his children belong to the Brethren, at least part, as far as known by the writer. Services by Henry Clapper from John 14: 15-16. J. H. CLAPPER.

BOWSER.—In the Brush Valley church, Armstrong County, Pa., Dec. 13, 1890, Bro. V Bowser, aged 84 years.

In one week from that evening there was a Communion held for his benefit. Funeral services improved by Eld. Samuel Leckrone and the writer. WM. F. NEAL.

BENN. - In the bounds of the Upper Deer Creek congregation, Cass Co., Ind., Oct. 30, 1890, after a short illness, Eva Jane Benn, only daughter of friend Bennet and sister Mary Lenon.

BYERLY.—In the Centre View church, Johnson Co., Mo, Dec. 8, 1890, Bro. Samuel Byerly, aged 34 years, 8 months and 16 days.

He died without a moment's warning. For a number of years he had been afflicted with heart trouble, and, for the past few weeks, was complaining more than usual. While he was engaged in helping his brother to load flax straw, fourteen miles from his home, he fell and only uttered a groan before passing away. His body was brought home and to-day was interred in the silent tomb. He was the support of a widowed mother and a sister. Services conducted by Bro. Jacob Witmore, assisted by Bro. G. W. Lentz to a large and sympathizing congregation from Matt. 24: 44. AMANDA WITMORE.

KINSEY. — At her home, near Avilla, Jasper Co., Mo, Dec. 1, 1890, of inflammation, Anna Kinsey, wife of J. W. Kinsey, aged 32 years, 2 months and 8 days.

Deceased was a consistent member of the Brethren church for nearly eighteen years, having united with the church of her choice when but a child. As time rolled on, she clung the more ardently to the cross of Christ. Love to God reigned supreme in her heart, and she was an ever-loving wife and an indulgent mother, always trying to aid, in every time of need, those within reach of her helping hand.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Anna Holderread, was born near Locktown, Elkhart County, Ind, Sept. 23, 1858. She leaves a husband and five dear sons, besides parents and scores of sorrowing and loving friends to mourn their loss. Her ever-abiding faith and self-sacrificing zeal and integrity won the writer and brought him, after twelve years of earnest endeavor, into the fold of Christ.

Deceased moved with her parents to Marshall County, Indiana, about 1867, and, in March, 1878, was joined to the writer in the holy bonds of matrimony. The funeral services were conducted by Eld. Geo. Barnhart, assisted by Eld. C. Holdeman.

J. W. KINSEY.

NICEWANGER.—In the North Beatrice church, Nebr., Dec. 14, 1890, sister Lettie Nicewanger, wife of Dan. Nicewanger, aged 23 years and 1 day.

She was a faithful member of the Brethren church for over forty years. All of last winter she suffered with rheumatism and La Grippe, but by spring she had somewhat recovered. During the latter part of summer she visited her children at Shirley and Grafton. She stood the trip well and enjoyed herself very much, but, on the Monday after her arrival, took sick and died the next Sunday. She was brought home Oct. 7, and laid to rest in the Cherry Grove cemetery, beside three of her children. Services by Eld. James R. Lane.

KOUGH.—Also, at the same place, Nov. 23, 1890, Caroline Kough, daughter of brother Lewis and sister Pollie Masemore, aged 47 years and 7 months. Services by Rev. Sparks, of the U. B. church.

J. M. MASEMORE.

The maiden name of the deceased was Weirich. She joined the Brethren church while in her youth, and was a faithful member. Though young in years, she was seemingly rich in the faith. The cause of her death was a severe attack of bronchitis. She leaves a sorrowing husband and two children to mourn their loss. Funeral services by brethren Joseph Kulp and D. H. Jones.

J. R. STUTSMAN.

AUSTIN. — In the Wallace congregation, Nebr, Dec. 15, 1890, infant daughter of Bro. Edwin C. and Mary F. Austin. Funeral services by the writer from James 1: 11. P. K. SHIVELY.

LONG. — In the Panther Creek church, Dallas Co., Iowa, Dec. 1, 1890, of hemorrhage of the brain, sister Susannah, wife of Bro. Christian Long, aged 75 years, 4 months and 16 days.

The subject of this notice was born in Alleghany County, Pa. After marriage she moved to Huntingdon Co., Pa., and in 1852 to Carroll County, Illinois. In 1869 she moved to Dallas County, Iowa. Our sister and her husband lived together for nearly fifty-seven years, and they were members of the Brethren church nearly fifty-three years. They were the parents of nine children,—six sons and three daughters. Five children preceded their mother to the spirit world. The aged father still remains to mourn the loss of his companion. T. J. BEAVER.

HOKE. In Elkhart County, Ind., of paralysis, and other diseases, Isaac Hoke, aged 68 years, 6 months and 23 days.

Bro. Hoke was a deacon, and left a wife and eight children,—all in the church. One son is a minister and one a deacon. In Bro. Hoke's death the family lost a kind father, the wife a faithful and kind husband, the church a good official, the neighborhood a good neighbor. Bro Hoke was a man who, by daily walk, did his loudest preaching. While in good health, his seat was hardly ever found vacant at church. His influence in the family was such as to bring up all his children in Sunday-school work. J. H. MILLER.

GARBER.—In the bounds of the old Beaver Dam church, Frederick Co., Md., Dec. 1, 1890, of heart-failure, sister Mary, wife of Bro. William Garber, aged 68 years, 7 months and 1 day.

Sister Garber was a daughter of Eld. Jacob Sayler, deceased and a strong pillar in the Beaver Dam church. She never swerved from the right. She was anointed Dec. 6th, and on the 7th calmly and peacefully breathed her last, without a struggle. The writer and Solomon Stoner attended to both services. She leaves a husband, four children and twenty-one grandchildren. One son, one daughter and one granddaughter are members of the church. E. W. STONER.

DOUB.—In the Clear Creek congregation, Huntington, Ind., Nov. 30, 1890, sister Mary Doub, wife of Hiram Doub, aged 53 years, 4 months and 4 days.

Deceased was born in Montgomery County, Ohio, July 26, 1837, and leaves a husband, three brothers, one daughter and three grandchildren to mourn their loss. She was faithful, and passed away in the triumphs of a living faith. She was anointed some time before her departure. Funeral services by the writer and Bro. John H. Wright.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY.

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising."—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.

"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music."—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

Price per single copy, 30 cts.; per dozen by mail, $3 00; by express, $2 60. Lots of more than a dozen must be sent by express.

Food for Thought.

"Do to-day's duty: fight to-day's temptations; and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you can not see, and could not understand if you saw them."

"He who bears a message should know what the message is. To proclaim that message in its real significance, so that men shall comprehend and appropriate it, is to be in the best sense a true Gospel preacher."

*

"Who ever knew a lamp that never needs refilling, and that never needs trimming and other attention? But many professing Christians seem to act upon this impression: for they do nothing to nourish and sustain the holy life within their own souls."

"I would not give much for your religion unless it can be seen. Lamps do not talk, but they do shine. A light-house sounds no drum, it beats no gong, and yet far over the waters its friendly spark is seen by the mariner. So let your action shine out your religion. Let the main sermon of your life be illustrated by your conduct, and it shall not fail to be illustrious."

* * *

"God bless the cheerful person,—man, woman, or child, old or young, illiterate or educated, handsome or homely. Over and above every social trait stands cheerfulness. What the sun is to nature, what God is to the stricken heart which knows how to lean upon him, are cheerful persons, in their silent mission, brightening up society around them with the happiness beaming from their faces."

"Not what a man has, but the way in which he looks at it, is the measure of a man's wealth of possessions. If a man deems his present property as fully enough for his needs, he is richer by far than the man who, with ten times as much property, is reaching out with longing, for a great deal more. Contentment is of one's self, not of one's position and belongings. He who is discontented with his present lot, would not be likely to find contentment in any other lot in the universe."

"You thank God for your daily bread, but his holy Word supplies spiritual food, 'the bread from heaven from which if a man eats he shall live forever.' You thank God for bodily health and for the means of preserving it, and when lost of restoring it. But you owe him warmer gratitude for the gift of his Word, which is the means of healing the diseases of the mind, and imparting spiritual health and vigor. Better forget to thank God for food, and health, and the light of the day, and even existence, than for the sacred volume."

A good-bearing orchard contains many choice varieties of fruit. The farm is situated within one and one-half miles of Sidney, a station, on the Nickel Plate R. R., and ten miles of North Manchester, in a well organized church of the Brethren (the Spring Creek church), not far from a good church house. Terms liberal. ONE of the growing dangers that is threatening the church is the loose manner in which people hold their religious convictions. Anything that has the name of religion is accepted as safe, without trying to make a fair discrimination between the real and the professed. This vacillating around, through the multitudinous sects, indicates a very superficial view of the true Christ religion. The religion of Christ is not an institution that can be bent and shaped to suit the crookedness of sin. The plan of salvation is very simple, but in it God will be honored. Such has been the character of his laws through all the ages and changes. To obey was to live and be blessed. To disobey was to be cursed and die. In making a choice of a church home, let it be the one that holds and lives the truth.

ON Wednesday evening, Dec. 31, 1890, was held the last prayer-meeting of the year, in the Normal Chapel, and it seemed to us to be one of unusual interest, as all, apparently, felt the importance that should be attached to the time and the occasion. The subject was "The endurance of the Word of the Lord." Though ages, centuries and years had passed, yet we had the same life-giving Bible unchanged. After the close of the regular meeting, we had an hour's service specially devoted to the closing of the year. The time was profitably and interestingly spent in appropriate readings and remarks, reflections and retrospects, all of which are good for the soul when actuated by the proper spirit. Our passing years should be upward steps towards our home on the other side, thus making our retrospects downward look over achievements made and victories won, bringing to our souls joy and peace.

OUR Holiday season has been after the old style,—plenty of snow, ranging in deepness from twelve to forty inches, sleighing excellent, and the sleigh bells jingle from early morning to the late hours of night. The time has not yet come when there shall be stamped on these bells, "Holiness unto the Lord," but we are assured that when this holiness gets into all of our hearts, it will be seen every-where else.

As we go forward in the New Year we should all double our energies in promoting the peace, unity and effectiveness of our church. The great question for the time should be, How can we make our work in the church more effective in saving souls? This is the church's mission, and we are filling it only so far as we are doing this work. We need more aggressiveness, more of the Pauline energy and determination. We are too easily satisfied with small achievements. If we expect to help to conquer the world for Christ, we must get out of the puddles and rivulets, and, like Peter and Luke, Paul and Barnabas, beard the great lions, and plunge into seas and oceans of sin and human depravity. We must not be afraid of sin and sinners, because Christ came to save sinners.

A BROTHER minister asks: "Should we be personal in our preaching?" As a rule, we say, No. And we also say, Yes. No minister, in a broad sense, can preach the Gospel and not be personal to some one. The leading object of preaching is to make it personal in a general sense. By virtue of its legitimate application it must necessarily be personal to the sinner, and the Christian who sins. But if one of our members or neighbors have wronged us or committed a fault of any kind, the pulpit is not the place to deal out reproof. Such a course is not in harmony with either the teaching or spirit of the Gospel. But no matter how little we may intend to do such a thing, there may be those present who will make a personal application of it and then grumble about it. Of course, we can not avoid such applications.

AN AGED FATHER GOES TO REST.

AMONG the early settlers of this, now Huntingdon, County, were Samuel, Daniel, George and David Brumbaugh. While the yells of the Red Man were yet heard ringing from hill to mountain, and the smoke of their wigwams curled up through the unbroken forests, these hardy pioneers made their way through the trackless wilderness and drove stakes for future homes along the Raystone Branch and in Woodcock Valley.

Over a hundred years ago, our grandfather,—Eld. George Brumbaugh,—located in the valley near where the James Creek church now stands. Here he lived, here he labored, and here he died. He was the father of three children, Isaac, Jacob and John. Isaac was the elder of James Creek church for many years, but years ago went to his reward.

Jacob, the subject of this notice, passed over on Dec. 15, 1890, full of years, the latter end of which were years of afflictions, borne with patience and commendable resignation. Eighty-five years, five months and fifteen days was the time of his pilgrimage on earth. All his days were spent on the old homestead, and in the house in which he was born. What a peculiar experience was his, within the same walls and surrounded by the same familiar scenes! Here was the place of his childhood, here he grew up to manhood, here he wooed and won the companion of his life and the mother of his children, who long ago was laid away in the cemetery up on the hill. And now Jacob and Rachel lie side by side in the Silent City, awaiting the voice of the trumpet angel to call them forth to enjoy the immortal life. Early in life he gave his heart to God, and of him it may be truly said, "He walked with God." Bro. Brumbaugh was an humble, unobtrusive Christian. His sphere in life was not large, yet, within the circle in which he lived and moved, his life was a power for good. As long back as we can remember he occupied a front seat in the house of worship, which was seldom vacant until within the last year, when the infirmities of age kept him away.

As a rule, he was a man of few words, yet in the church he was such a one as we are pleased to call "preacher helpers." He hung with peculiar interest on the living message, and when it fell in harmony with his own aspirations, he never failed to give the assenting nod,—not of the drowsy sleeper,—but that of the hungering soul that drinks deeply from the out-gushing fountain. This manner of assenting to the preacher, as he delivers his message, may seem of small importance to the indifferent, but not so with the earnest minister. To him it is inspiration, and often greatly encourages his heart while laboring to deal out the saving truth.

He was the father of nine children, three of whom preceded him. All are members of the church. George B. is one of the ministers of the James Creek church, and three of them residents of this place,—Dr. A. B., our very efficient physician and lecturer, and J. H., Principal of the Normal Faculty, and their sister, Mrs. John Rodgers. The funeral services were conducted by Bro. W. J. Swigart. Thus we record the end of a good man who lived beyond the allotted time, and went down to the grave, honored and beloved by all who knew him.

Of the three brothers there is one yet living, and he is our own beloved father, full of years, greatly blessed with physical health and strength, rich in Christian experience and submissively resigned to the Master's will.

One after another are passing over to the other home, and after a while we will all be there. Let this great truth make us happy while we live and give us joy and peace in the time of our departure.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

Record my days and months ran on,
How soon another year is gone,
How swift the golden moments roll,
How much neglected by my soul

Let me begin with holy fear,
This new, this fleeting, flying year,
Too many unimproved have passed
This year, perhaps, may be my last

Give me, O Lord, a heart to pray,
Let all old things be done away;
Give me new strength, to conquer sin,
And plant new holiness within

Ask new wisdom, for this year,
New fitness for my trials here;
Of every grace, a richer store,
My God to love, and honor more.

O may this be the prayer of all
Who now upon their Lord do call,
May Christians let their light so shine,
That sinners may thy way incline

Visit thy church, oh! may she bear
Much blessed fruit, another year;
And may her work be all for thee
Forever and eternity.

Dec. 20th, 1890.

"OUT OF THE DEPTHS."—Ps. 130.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To a despairing soul: -

I HAVE read your letter with mournful interest. You "see not the bright light in the clouds;" you heed not the zephyrs of Grace that dissipate the thick darkness that overhangs the sin-burdened soul. Job 37: 21. You seem to give God but little credit for what he has done in Christ and attach an unwarrantable ambignity to his words, if not downright unveracity. "Let God be true, but every man a liar." Rom. 3: 4. When God says yea, it is presumption to say nay. And vice versa. When Jesus says, "Neither do I condemn thee," it shows neither trust nor humility to continue the wail, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" When God puts into our mouth the challenge of Rom. 8: 33, 34, it is our joy and His pleasure that we sing with heart and lip and life, the sublime pæan of verses 35 to 39. When Grace and Faith dovetail, "there is no more condemnation," but we are "justified by faith and have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Rom 8: 1, and 5: 1.

It was not necessary to give me a circumstantial account of the sin which you deem beyond forgiveness, nor to enter so minutely into the upbraidings and perturbations of your inner life as evidence of your reprobation. Your sins, no matter how many or how heinous, are as effectually expiated by the blood of Jesus, as the life of God is more than an equivalent for the works of the devil. Your case is indeed a pitiful one, but by no means hopeless. No sinner is beyond salvation so far as the resources of redemption in Emmanuel are concerned. "Take the pound from him" is not an arbitrary Divine act, but the result of deliberate, obstinate persistent, stereotyped, consummate selfishness.

There is such a thing as absolute spiritual petrifaction, and for such "the door is shut" not from God manward, but from man Godward. To be "seared as with a hot iron," to be "past feeling," to be metamorphosed through and through into the very essence of evil, into the very image of the devil, is indeed to make void the Grace of God, count the blood of Christ an unholy thing, and wantonly to court the wrath of God.

The impossibility of renewal to repentance implies a moral callosity and blindness which can neither see nor feel either the nature or issues of sin. Take sin in its most revolting form and most appalling consequences, pile it up to heaven with the turpitude of Cain and Manassah and Ahab and Judas Iscariot, and we see it all provisionally covered by the blood of Atonement.

To betray the Son of Man was no worse sin than to murder Him; and yet for the envious, malicious, diabolical Deicides Jesus interceded on the cross, and the Holy Ghost offered pardon in the Day of Pentecost. There is not a soul in Hell for whom the Great Sacrifice would not have availed, and who would not have been gladly welcomed by God and His Angels, had they but accepted the proffered mercy.

Jesus took not on Him the nature of Angels because Angels did not sin in the flesh. But as God was manifest in the flesh, suffered and died in the flesh for sin, therefore all human transgression, from murder and adultery and blasphemy down to white lying and stealing a tooth-pick, is remitted in consideration of the value of that blood which cleanseth from all sin. 1 John 1: 7. And wherever there is repentance and self-renunciation with sincere desire and honest purpose to do the will of God connected with faith in Him on whom was "laid the iniquity of us all," there is the certainty of forgiveness. Isaiah 53: 6. AND THAT MEANS YOU.

Your letter is full from beginning to end of Godly sorrow, and hunger and thirst after righteousness. Whence this sorrow and longing? Is it of the devil? Never. If it be, then is his Kingdom divided against itself, and will be brought to desolation. Luke 11: 17. He is full of rage against you because of your very thirst for holiness. "We are not ignorant of his devices." By his subtlety he beguiled our primeval ancestors and he is as ready to pronounce sin unpardonable as to represent it a trifle. Your agonies are indeed dreadful, but they are the psychological inflictions of self-reproach and remorse, and not the indications of the unpardonable sin, or the tokens of God's unpeasable wrath. Because your soul and body are quivering under the scourgings of a guilty conscience, and you have lost sight of the all-sufficiency of Divine Grace you are locked up in the horror and helplessness of "Doubting Castle." Herein you greatly err, commit spiritual suicide, and do great dishonor to the Eternal Love that bled for you on the Cross, and intercedes for you on the Throne.

The God of the Psalms is the God of the Gospel, the compassionate Savior of to-day. Psalms 103: 8 to 14. You defrauded a fellow-mortal, and then covered your sin with a false oath. Theft and perjury are palpable violations of the Decalogue. Are they too deep and virulent for the death of God Himself to expiate? Let the death-throes and burial and resurrection of the God-man forever negative this blasphemous, Christ-belittling, Devil-prompted suggestion. Where is David, the adulterer and murderer, Noah, the drunkard, Solomon, the idolater and sybarite, Peter, the apostle of false cursing and swearing, and Paul, the mad persecutor and daring blasphemer, and the low, filthy rabble depicted in 1 Cor. 6: 9, 10? In Hell, every one of them? Dare you say so? Dare you for a moment cherish the thought? No, they are with Jesus Christ in glory, because "they are washed, they are sanctified, they are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." 1 Cor. 6: 11.

If your sin of claiming with reiterated oaths a little toy which you knew belonged to another, will debar you from the "rest which remaineth for the people of God, then woe is me! Woe to "the sweet Singer of Israel," the "man after God's own heart," and thousands of others who have been "plucked as brands from the burning!"

Your sin is like a snowflake compared with many in my own history, and with those of a multitude of redeemed transgressors who are now chanting the Hallelujah-chorus of Redemption in the Celestial Paradise. Oh, Beloved, do not longer pain the great Heart of Infinite Love by believing the devil and your morbid feelings more than Him who died for your sins and rose again for your justification. Rom. 4: 25.

Sin ABOUNDS, but GRACE ABOUNDS MUCH MORE. Rom. 5: 20, 21. Jehovah Jesus died for sinners, for you, yea, for YOU. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation," and you have no right to count yourself an exception. 1 Tim. 1: 15. "He that believeth on Him is not condemned." John 3: 18. "Through this man is preached unto us the forgiveness of sins; BY HIM ALL THAT BELIEVE are JUSTIFIED from ALL THINGS." Acts 13: 38, 39. Believest thou this?" This is the pivot of salvation. "Come: for all things are now ready." God has promised, and "swore by Himself" and "it is impossible for HIM to lie." "He cannot deny Himself." 2 Tim. 2: 13. To cast away a believer is Jesus against Jesus. Omnipotence is our confidence and security. When God becomes weak and unfaithful, then can the believer perish. Not till then—NEVER.

God is Love. Jesus died. The chasm is bridged. Heb. 8: 12, is gloriously true.

With what music, with what measure,
Saints below and saints above
Will ye sing the sacred treasure
In this Paradox of Love?
Paradox of Love Eternal,
Paradox of Love Divine,
Oh! what power of thought supernal
Shall explore so rich a mine?

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

BY J. HANNA.

NEXT to the gifts and the "Happy New Years" that make the season resound with peace on earth, and good will toward men, resolutions are, with thoughtful minds, the order of the day; and for minds to be unthoughtful, is to have come short of the purpose of their creation. Upon looking about us, however, at the many things that have run their race with the departed year, yea, that even have outstripped it in fleetness, we find many resolutions, that met it upon its arrival. It would be wise, therefore, for us to inquire into the cause of their failure, that we may be able to overcome it in these of to-day, else their newness also, may be the only cause of their lustre, for

It is fulfillment, and not invention,
Of vows, ascending from good intentions,
That is the more admired,
A fence is useless, with nought to turn,
And where is something, 'twere well to learn
A good one is required.

In resolution, as in means to any end, it is not the means, but the ANSWERING of the PURPOSE for which they were formed, that is desired; hence sufficiency is their controlling attribute. However, it is necessary that the means precede their accomplishment, and, hence, that they receive due consideration. Resolution is like the oar with which we row up or across stream, and it is well for those who form a resolution, to realize that just at the very moment that it is going to be needed, will necessarily be the time when it will have become the most distasteful,—the time of temptation; for if the natural course were to be taken, no resolution would be required; but when the whole current of nature is sweeping against it, just then, if ever, must it perform its office.

With what care, then, should we guard it? In the duty of that moment must be drowned all sense of desire, of ease, of pleasure, of anything that might divert it from its purpose, or all is lost. But defeat need not be, for God's grace is sufficient for us; hence we only need to "let patience have her perfect work," that we may be "perfect and entire, wanting nothing;" for by his grace, patience,—the sufficiency of virtue,—is supplied.

We speak of patience, sometimes, as though it were a distinct virtue, but is it not rather the good measure of other virtues? If, when necessity comes, our appearance, our profession is proved inadequate, let us not imagine that, just for a moment, some trivial circumstance clouded or hindered it, let us realize that we have been measured, and found wanting; that the jar was caused by striking the limits of our attainment.

> The evening star, the midnight queen,
> That loses not her ray serene,
> Reigns Patience, till the break of day,
> When hides she, in its brighter ray.

Then let this evening star shine brightly, remembering that did no trials come, our resolutions would remain unproven. Were there no night, the stars could not be seen. As the sun withdraws from view, supplying the stars with brilliancy to shine, it may be that God allows darkness, that those, reflecting his light, may be discerned. If, then, we reflect no light, surely we, though unaware, have been devoid in the day.

"TEKEL."

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

My first and most sensible impression of this text came from Bro. Umstad, of blessed memory, who preached from it many years ago in Virginia, when the writer was a boy. We do not remember ever having seen a man who was more distinctively a Christian in the true sense of that word, when we apply it to character, rather than creed. The cheerfulness and simplicity of his faith, the spirituality of his nature, were the most marked characteristics of the man. He seemed to dwell in perpetual sunshine, attracting and warning all who came within the circle of his influence. We say this of a dear old saint, long since gone to his reward, first because we can never read this text without recalling the man, and second because he was a true type of the old-time spiritual Christianity which used to flourish in the church. May it never give place to the barren forms and punctilious rules of an unspiritual ecclesiasticism!

We trust that this introduction is not irrelevant to our subject, for may not the thought of the text be more clearly illustrated by the practical contrasts of life than by the laborious deductions of reason? We should always bear in mind the moral quality of responsible life. There is no responsible life below the level of human life, for below this level exists no trace of this moral faculty, and, consequently, no standard of right or wrong. But no human life has fallen so low as to be utterly destitute of moral sense, or entirely ignorant of right and wrong. In respect to this condition there are vast differences among men. Wide chasms yawn between the sunny heights of knowledge, where stands the enlightened and cultivated Christian, and the great gulf where the cannibal savage sits in darkness and in the shadow of death. More or less difference prevails in every society, and even under the shadow of the same roof may be seen striking contrasts both in respect to moral endowment and moral cultivation.

But while superior knowledge and superior acuteness of the moral sense may be regarded as relatively great blessings, the fact that they carry along with them an increased measure of responsibility, is sufficient to check every feeling of pride and self-gratulation.

Nor will any one be able to excuse himself on the ground of a measure of knowledge too limited to involve responsibility, for even where knowledge is absent, Nature holds the balances and judges by that involuntary law which is integral to the constitution of man. Nevertheless we are taught explicitly that no little difference exists between voluntary and involuntary transgression of law. "He that knew not . . . shall be beaten with few stripes. He that knew . . . shall be beaten with many stripes." Belshazzar the corrupt Babylonian king had few external opportunities of knowing God, yet what he knew in his consciousness and rejected in his life was sufficient to bring upon him sudden and summary destruction. How much greater will be the condemnation of those whose superior knowledge of law, of duty, of Providence, and of destiny render their wickedness far more culpable, and far less entitled to extenuation!

Knowledge and duty go hand in hand, and duty and responsibility are eternally co-responsive, but natural inclination stands by, like a siren of old, wooing the soul away from the path of duty and honor, away from its heaven-born destiny, away from its strength and its happiness to that bleak shore which is strewn with the wrecks of hope.

Upon the wide plain which often stretches between duty and inclination, have been fought the heroic battles of the world. History does not record many of them. God was the witness and often the arbiter. Supernal pens have doubtless inscribed upon deathless pages, the long, fierce struggle, the patient endurance, the sublime heroism, the fearful odds, the varying fortunes of the day, the final victory or final defeat. Here have been decided fortunes far beyond human computation, empires more extensive than all the continents, and destinies which will yet be in infancy when the sun shall die of old age.

Over this fearful strife hover angels and demons, like Homeric gods above the battle fields of Troy. "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." Tremble, thou Belshazzar, at the mysterious hand and dreadful message, until the knees smite together with terror. Eternal defeat and eternal shame has fallen to the lot (and for the matter of that to the lot of every man) whose life of unrepentant sin, and unused opportunity for good, has been a calamity to the world, and an insult to God.

But how can any man not be found wanting? "Can mortal man be just before God?" "For in thy sight shall no flesh be justified." This thought troubled me until light came in a vision. I saw mighty balances swung from heaven. An Archangel made proclamation that all things must be weighed. The sun, moon, stars, worlds, nations, all classes of the wicked, were solemnly weighed in the mighty balances, and found wanting. Last of all sounded forth the proclamation, Let all the saints of God come into the balances. Then came they from the four quarters of heaven, and from the ends of the earth, a multitude which no man could number, and stood in the balances, yet they were not sufficient. Shall the saints be found wanting? Come, ye angels of God, and stand with them in the balances. Yet they were not sufficient. Not all the saints of earth or angels of God can weigh against the law of absolute and eternal righteousness. But now is seen a wonder in heaven. When the scales were trembling to rise, and it appeared that all these would be found wanting, the Son of God descended from his throne, and stood with his saints in the balances, and they were not found wanting.

MUSINGS BY THE WAY.

BY FANNY MORROW.

COMFORTING words of Jesus, "I am the good Shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine—my sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me." "In my Father's house are many mansions, I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am there you may be also." Do we know his voice? Do we follow him?

Here to-day, and there to-morrow. Sometimes, in the course of earthly events, we contemplate a journey, longer or shorter as the case may be. We make the necessary preparation. Here, in our homes to-day, we pack our satchels; to-morrow, in the home of a dear friend, we unpack them. Here, we anticipate the pleasure of meeting loved ones, we almost see their smiles and hear their voices; there we are enveloped in the warm atmosphere of the love we know existed for us; our hopes are realized and we are happy. The revolution of some kind of wheels is almost always a necessary factor in the accomplishment of any journey by land or by sea. This is perhaps, emblematical of the great wheel of time, which bears us onward in the journey of life. Here we are to-day, in our earthly homes, making some preparation for the home on the other shore. We measure off the days, months and years. Oh, how rapidly the wheel of time revolves, and we are borne along. To-day we write 1891, we have passed another milestone, passed—yea, swifter than a weaver's shuttle. We anticipate something of the joyful meeting of friends over there, and something of the glory and bliss of heaven. But our finite minds fail to comprehend much of the eternal weight of glory, or of the fathomless ocean of love which shall envelop us there. Infinite Father, we thank thee, that, by the swiftness of an arrow, the regularity of a heart beat, we are taught the truth that we are here to-day and THERE to-morrow, THERE where hope will end in GLAD FRUITION.

Osborne, Kans.

"PROLONGING his life is not a man's first duty. It is less important that a life be a long one, than that it be well used. Life, like every other possession, is a sacred trust, to be cared for religiously, to be made use of wisely, and to be surrendered ungrudgingly at the call of its Giver. A soldier has no right to throw away his life, or to expose it recklessly; neither has he a right to refuse its risking in the line of plain duty. His life is at the service of his government, to be used to the uttermost for that government's welfare. It may, indeed, be better for a soldier to put his final life-service into one campaign, or even into a single battle, than to be borne on the army rolls for a series of years, simply drawing pay and rations without rendering any equivalent return to his government. Every Christian is a Christian soldier. His life is to be used as his Commander shall direct. His special duty for the hour may be the protecting of his life, in order to its more efficient using by and by; or it may be the exposing of his life in a struggle which shall be his last one. Whichever duty it be, he is to discharge it faithfully, regardless of the consequences to himself. To refuse an important service, however simple, on the ground of its tendency to shorten one's life, is the prompting of cowardice rather than of prudence. A short life well used is better than a life prolonged by the shirking of duty."

QUERY ANSWERED.

BY GEORGE BUCHER.

BRO. S. J. HARRISON, in No. 36 of GOSPEL MESSENGER, asks for the chapter and verse for the expression: "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone." I answer, In John 8: 7, "Wer unter euch ohne Sünde ist, der werfe den ersten Stein auf sie." This translated into English reads, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone at her." I suppose the point that Bro. Harrison has reference to, is the distinction between "let him first cast a stone" and "let him cast the first stone." In English we have the former expression, and in German the latter.

And now, Bro. Harrison, the rule is that, when one puts a question and no one answers it, the querist is obliged to answer himself. So I remind you of your duty, and ask you to give chapter and verse for the other expressions you presented.

THOUGHTS BY THE WAY.

BY JAS. B. SELL.

SOME suggestions have been made to change the name of our church from German Baptist to something else, more appropriate. Why not call it, "The Church of the Primitive Christians," which we really are? Having the advantage of all other denominations on that line, in regard to the doctrine of Christ and his teachings, there is perfect propriety in doing so.

The champion, Mr. Ray, editor of the Baptist Battle Flag, in his discussion with Eld. Stein on church succession, tried hard to establish their claim, as to being the primitive church, but made a total failure, as any thinking mind will conclude. One of his own members told me that he joined our church because Mr. Ray failed to meet the arguments produced by Eld. Stein. By turning to page 199 of that debate, you can see that Eld. Stein adduced six of the Greek Fathers in favor of trine immersion, and agreed to give the six for one against it, if Mr. Ray could just bring that one. Is that not fair? Yes, and more than fair. This debate should be in the hands of all thinking people.

Then, again, we have the Miller and Sommer Debate. The disputants had decided to discuss the differences for eight days, but Eld. Miller's opponent had so much rehashing to do, that he got tired and wanted the time shortened. He evidently saw that the foundation of his church was not as solid as it should be. This Debate, also, should be in the hands of every honest seeker after the Way of Truth.

The article on the church of the Brethren in the Brethren's Almanac gives good information in regard to our people. Any persons having more than they can sell should give them to honest, thinking people. In that way we may be instrumental in bringing souls to the Truth.

A Good Meeting.

BRO. J. P. ZEIGLER commenced a series of meetings at the Pleasant Valley church, Rockingham Co., Va., Dec. 13. On account of the large snowfall, the 17th, the meeting was postponed a few nights. He then continued until Christmas night, preaching in all fourteen sermons. The weather being inclement, hindered many from attending, but we had a good meeting.

We rejoice that three precious souls decided to work for Christ and were baptized in the chilly waters on Christmas Day. Others are counting the cost of a Christian life. May they come soon!

Bro. Zeigler is a plain expounder of the Truth. May his noble efforts in building up Christ's kingdom not be in vain! MARTHA GLICK.

The Western Sufferers.

BELOW is a list of money received from various places for the Western homesteaders. All who sent money to me, requested that the amounts be published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER. I will report monthly:

Beatrice church, Nebr.,	$16 70
Eight Mile church, Mo.,	7 80
Job and Lizzie Trout, Indiana,	1 00
North Beatrice church, Nebr.,	4 55
Uriah Fink, Michigan,	1 00
Huntingdon church, Pa.,	30 00
P. D. Rosenberger, Pennsylvania,	5 00
Rome church, Ohio,	7 17
A brother and sister in Missouri,	2 00
Centre View, Johnson Co., Mo.,	34 00
Harrisonville, Cass Co., Mo.,	1 50
Collection at family reunion of Wise and Youngs, Ohio,	5 16

The above is a list of the amount received up to Jan. 1, 1891. A number of boxes of second-hand clothing have also been sent in from other States. These were forwarded at once to the needy. But little of the money has been used yet. We expect to go west among the needy again, in a few weeks, and see that the money is rightly applied, after which I will report. A good many have enquired to whom to send the collections. Whatever is sent to me, I will apply in the very best way I can for the poor. J. E. YOUNG.

From the Pacific Coast.

THE rainy season has now set in when, in a great measure, out-door work is suspended in Oregon, and when it is also an unpleasant time to hold meetings. I therefore resolved to go to other fields of labor, where the climate and weather would be better adapted to evangelistic as well as other work. Sunday, Dec. 9, I delivered my farewell address to the members and friends of the Coquille church, Coos Co., Oregon. I must confess that I never was associated with a body of members who possessed more of that spirit of love and kindness that should characterize the people of God. I thank them all for the kindness conferred upon me.

A few days later I made my way to Coos Bay. The steamer on which I was to take passage being bar-bound, I was compelled to wait several days at Empire City. Like Paul, my spirit was stirred within me, when I saw the city wholly given to idolatry. Nearly forty years ago this city was laid out. It is the County-seat, and supports a great number of saloons, but no church. Marshfield, another thriving city on the Bay, supports eighteen saloons and many business houses, and every lodge and society is well represented except the religion of Jesus Christ.

Sunday, Dec. 14, we steamed out of Coos Bay. The bar and sea were still very rough. Breakers and waves, like mountains, would strike us, and the vessel would rise and fall, and roll from one side to the other, until all on board, not accustomed to the sea, were prostrated with seasickness excepting myself. After two days and nights we were in the San Francisco Harbor. From here, by railroad, we came to Los Angeles, where we are now assisting Eld. John Metzger in conducting a series of meetings at the Brethren's new meeting-house, six miles north of Los Angeles. In a few days I expect to go to Lordsburgh, where my correspondents will please address me.

Wayside Notes.

I JUST closed a two weeks' meeting at Greene, Iowa. I had to contend with strong opposition by the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., who gave entertainments each night for a week; then, also, there was the usual amount of Christmas festivities, and also a protracted meeting in the Methodist church, all of which had a tendency to decrease our congregations. We thank God, however, that we had very profitable meetings. We all felt that God was with us and bestowed upon us his blessing.

I was with this church about one year ago, when quite a number were received into the church. Upon this occasion four precious souls came out on the Lord's side.

This church is presided over by Bro. J. F. Eikenberry, assisted by brethren S. C. Hipes and Harvey Eikenberry. A more warm and affectionate membership is not easily found. We should have remained here longer, but our time had expired, and as Bro. Jacob Murray, of Waterloo, was with us during the latter part of our meetings, we left him to continue the work, and hope that the Lord will bless his labors to the conversion of many.

I am now in the Dry Creek congregation, Linn Co., Iowa, presided over by Eld. Thos. G. Snyder. May the Lord bless the work every-where!

A Sad Accident.

ON Saturday evening, Dec. 27, 1890, James F. McCane and Libbie A. Snoeberger (daughter of Bro. Aaron Snoeberger), both of Carroll County, Indiana, were killed by the train, while attempting to cross, in a two-seated rig, the railroad track at Camden depot. Mr. McCane was instantly killed. Libbie lived about seven hours, but was unconscious all the while. At the time of the accident, another couple, sitting on the seat in front of them, were not seriously hurt.

Funeral services of Libbie A. were conducted by Bro. J. G. Royer, of Mt. Morris, Ill., at the Nebo church, to an immense concourse of sympathizing friends, from the words, "We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." Rom. 14: 10.

Libbie A. Snoeberger was born Nov. 17, 1872, died Dec. 28, 1890, aged eighteen years, one month and 11 days. She leaves a father, stepmother, a sister, four brothers, a half-brother, two step-sisters, and a number of friends to mourn their loss.

The funeral services of James F. McCane were conducted at the same place immediately after the above by Rev. J. C. Reeve, of the M. E. church, from Rom. 6: 23. James F. McCane was born Aug. 29, 1871, and died at the date above given, aged nineteen years, three months and twenty-eight days. Those funerals were said to be the largest ever known in this section of country. It is estimated that from 1,500 to 2,000 people attended the last sad rites in behalf of the departed ones. S. H. BECHTELHEIMER.

Our Visit to Mt. Morris.

MANY of the MESSENGER readers are aware of the Special District Meeting of Northern Illinois, which was held at Mt. Morris, Dec. 18, to devise the best means to send relief to the suffering people in the West. The Meeting was largely represented by all the churches in the District, and it was determined to send relief at once.

If the needy ones, in those Districts where the crops failed, feel like accepting second-hand clothing, they will please address the writer, at Box 352, Lanark, Ill., giving full particulars as to their needs, and we will see what can be done for them in this.

Our visit was very short, but we were glad to notice the prosperity of the school at Mount Morris. Bro. Royer has his heart in the work, and Mt. Morris should feel proud of the excellent literary institution in the very center of their city. About 250 students are enrolled for the term.

We were informed by the Superintendent of the Sunday-school, Bro. Hoover,—that, in their Sunday-school in the College Chapel, they had, on Dec. 12, 321 in attendance. Just think of the powerful Christian influence this Sunday-school has in teaching the Written Word of God! Their collection, each Sunday, during the school year, averages $3, which is all donated to the mission work of the church. The expenses of the Sunday-school are kept up by private subscription, and about $50 a year is raised for that purpose. Here is a little item for Sunday-school workers.

JAS. H. LARKINS.

Cherry Grove, Ill., Dec. 28, '90.

Notes of Travel.

I HAVE been a wanderer from the good old town of Mt. Morris for many years, delicate health rendering a change of climate necessary. The past summer has been spent in the Rocky Mountains, crossing the "Great Divide," penetrating canyons, climbing passes, prospecting gorges, traversing picturesque valleys, pausing at rich mining camps of gold and silver, visiting Indian Reservations,—in short, familiarizing myself with peaks, plains, lakes, rivers, canyons, and mesas, the difficulty being not where to go but what to omit.

My most enjoyable experience was a ride to the top of Pike's Peak over the new, so-called "Cog Wheel Railroad," recently opened to tourists. It is the most novel railroad in existence. Compared with it those of Mt. Washington, N. H., and the Rhigi, Switzerland, are insignificant. The winding and curving necessary to attain the three miles of altitude makes the road ten miles in length. Its cost was a half million of dollars. The road bed is twenty feet wide, the culverts are of solid masonry, and the bridges and rails are of the heaviest steel, with a double cog rail in the center. The track is substantially anchored, at short intervals, to the solid rock. The cars, without being tilted, are hung within fifteen inches of the rails, and two pinion brakes are so arranged that the train can be stopped within a space of ten inches, either in ascending or descending. The seats are level. The engine was placed at the rear and pushed the train, a desirable innovation, relieving one's eyes from the annoyance of cinders. Stops were frequent at all points of interest. The round trip, costing five dollars, occupied three hours. I considered it the best time and money investment ever made during ten years of foreign and home travel.

A brief chat with Sergeant O'Keeffe, in charge of the U. S. Signal Station, elicited the following interesting facts. This gentleman having made the rude cabin on the peak, his residence for five years, and being the only person ever detailed twice to the station, his information may be considered reliable. The lowest temperature he ever experienced was 57 degrees below zero, the highest 62 degrees above. The mean highest winter temperature was 14 degrees below. The winter zephyrs are frequently rapid. In one instance one hundred and thirty-five miles per hour was indicated, at which point the wind blew the balls out of the socket, and the roof from the cabin. This was followed by a marked increase in velocity, continuing several hours, during which time he estimates that the speed attained was fully equal to 150 miles per hour.

Bowlders, weighing tons, are not unusual near the summit. More effective than chains, they are frequently utilized for holding in position the cabin roof.

Sergeant O'Keeffe pronounces the story of the death of an associate, while on duty at the station, recently published in the New York Sun, and extensively copied throughout the country, a pure piece of fiction. No person of the name given was ever employed there, and no death has ever occurred. He attributes the thrilling narrative to the effervescing but fertile brain of some New York newspaper scribbler, too far removed from the "seat of war" to devise a reasonable yarn.

It is not generally known that, a year ago, at the solicitation of the astronomical department of Harvard College, the station was turned over to that institution by the United States. Some Harvard "tender-feet" were sent out to assume charge. All went well till winter approached, when the new custodians incontinently fled. The Government resumed possession, but only to abandon it after a few brief months. The U. S. Signal Station, on the top of Pike's Peak, is now a matter of history.

The prospective Silver Bill, of which the main feature is free coinage, is already giving Colorado a prominence never before attained.

Mining is to-day prosecuted with renewed vigor. Vast fortunes are being rapidly accumulated. This stimulates real estate, the prices for which have rapidly advanced, not only in Denver, "The Golden City of the Plains," where seventy-five millions of dollars were expended last year for buildings, but also in smaller cities, where all sorts of fraudulent and bona fide land schemes are being worked to induce people to come.

J. B. BOSTWICK.

From the Antietam Church, Pa.

OUR love-feast was held Oct. 23, and though the weather was disagreeable, we had a good attendance, and about two hundred members communed. Elder D. R. Saylor officiated. His helpers were brethren Culp, D. M. Foglesanger, Stouffer and Franklin. We had excellent preaching. The Antietam church is in a good, healthy condition. The increase of our number for the year 1890 has been twenty-six persons, their ages ranging from fifteen to fifty. Several of them are heads of families.

While we have been made to rejoice because souls have come to Christ, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in his wisdom, to call quite a number to himself. This has caused many vacancies and sad and sorrowful hearts. Among the number were eleven dear mothers, some young in years, six fathers, and thirty-one children. Such is life! We are born to die, and this earth is not our abiding place. It is only a state of probation, a time of preparation for a better place, which the Lord has purchased for his obedient children.

We have every advantage and opportunity for higher attainments in the Christian life. We have Sunday-school for the training of our children, to impress upon their youthful minds the teachings of the Gospel. We have two Sunday-schools in this congregation, the one in the country closed Dec. 24. I was present on that day and gave the school a short address. Quite a number of gifts were presented to the Superintendent, his Assistant, and the teachers. The children also received little gifts, suitable for the occasion. The average attendance during the year was fifty scholars and twelve teachers. The school will open again early in the spring, if the Lord permits.

A new meeting-house was built this year on the site of the old Antietam house, so well known as "Price's meeting-house,"—the second-oldest meeting-house in the Brotherhood. It was built ninety-seven years ago. We now have, on the same site, a plain, two-story meeting-house, 50 by 70 feet in size, with a seating-capacity of about eight hundred persons. The house was dedicated June 7, 1890. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Bro. W. J. Swigart to a very large and attentive congregation. Elders Solomon Stoner, D. F. Stouffer, W. F. Franklin, Jesse Roop, and many other ministering brethren, were with us. Four made the good confession at this meeting and were baptized. A love-feast followed the evening meeting. It was an occasion never to be forgotten!

J. F. OLLER.

From the Kingsley Church, Iowa.

AGAIN we have had a season of refreshment,—one of the most enjoyable seasons we have ever experienced since the organization of this little band of members. Bro. Moses Dierdorff, of Guthrie Co., Iowa, labored with us from Dec. 15 to 31, conducting nineteen meetings in all. His labors with us were not in vain. As an immediate result, eleven young soldiers were made willing to forsake sin and turn in with the overtures of mercy. For this we, with the angels, are made to rejoice. Among those received was my only sister, and eldest and youngest brothers. It had a great influence over the friends of this vicinity to see those young and tender lambs starting on their journey to the Celestial City. We feel to press onward with more zeal Zionward. May those, who have lately entered the fold, find it a pleasure to live for Christ, and may our Good Shepherd care for them and so strengthen them, that they may be found faithful unto the end. May we all realize the fact that the crown is not given at the beginning, nor in the middle, but at the end of the race! Much good advice was given by Bro. Dierdorff to us all, especially to the young lambs in the fold of Christ. Many are near the fold. May they not delay to take the all-important step!

My prayer is that we may live more faithful and consistent to our professions than we have in the past. May our light so shine as to constrain others to follow Jesus, our Lord!

VIOLA M. TROSTLE.

From the Pipe Creek Church, Miami County, Ind.

OUR church held an election for church officers Dec. 11. Bro. Isaac Shepler was called to the ministry, and brethren Allen Metzger and William Wissinger to the Deacon's office. May they prove faithful in their calling, and help in advancing the cause of our Master!

Our solicitors for the Home Mission reported $20.18 for the Mission Fund. I am glad that our members are becoming more and more interested in the mission work of the church.

We are in the midst of an interesting series of meetings. Bro. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, Ind., commenced meetings here Dec. 20. We have had large congregations and good interest. Up to date, six have been baptized. We are looking for a number more to come to the fold of Christ. I expect to go to Bear Creek, Montgomery County, Ohio, Jan. 9, to commence a series of meetings. My prayer to God is, that the cause of Christ may prosper!

DANIEL P. SHIVELY.

In Memoriam.

THE subject of this notice, Bro. Daniel E. Fry, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., July 22, 1833. About the year 1853, his parents moved to Stephenson County, Ill., and located in the Yellow Creek church. He there united with the Brethren church at about the age of twenty-four years. A few years later he was elected to the ministry in said church. In the year 1859 he married sister Mary Hahn. Together they emigrated to Richardson County, Nebr., in the year 1869, and located in the Pony Creek church (now North Morrill). Our brother labored in the ministry until his death, about twenty-six years.

His most powerful ministry was his private, every-day life. So far as he was known, he will be preaching powerfully, for years to come. The Christian influence he exerted daily, in his department, was clearly seen by the very large attendance at his funeral, and the willing kindness manifested by every one around him, during his affliction and death. One hundred and sixty vehicles were in the procession. His death, at the age of fifty-seven years, was occasioned by "blood poisoning from an ulcerated sore in one of his feet. Service by the writer, assisted by brethren C. Hooper and T. Eisenbise. We give this rather extended notice for the satisfaction of his many friends and relatives in Illinois, Pennsylvania and California. J. S. MOHLER.

From the Walnut Creek Church, Mo.

WE began a series of meetings in our church Nov. 22. Eld. A. W. Reese, of Warrensburgh, did the preaching. The meetings were well attended. Good interest and attention prevailed. The meetings closed Nov. 30. While there were no accessions to the church, the members seemed to be built up in the faith once delivered to the saints. The sermon, delivered by Bro. Reese on Thanksgiving Day, seemed to be especially appreciated by all present. Our duty to God for what we have and are, was laid before us. Upwards of $4.00 was collected. Immediately after the services, the motherless, little children of sister Landis (deceased) were remembered with some refreshments, brought together by the Sunday-school class of little boys and girls. In a quiet and orderly manner the little ones partook of the meal thus furnished. Oh, that we might always have the good of the poor in view!

After dinner the children, about twenty-one in number, were called together to be more fully instructed in good works. Bro. Reese, in his loving and touching, as well as instructive manner, told them of the purpose of their coming together, that it was to gladden and make happy the hearts of the little children who had no mother, also admonished them earnestly to be good children. He told them that, sooner or later, they would be without the counsel of a good mother. The children were made to weep and all present felt the solemnity of the occasion. Long will this day be remembered! ISRAEL CRIPE.

Wayside Notes.

SEPT. 19, I boarded the train at Conway Springs, en route for the above place, to hold several meetings. Upon my arrival at Seward, a station on the Q. M. and A. R. R., I was met by Bro. S. P. Weaver, and taken to his pleasant home. Here we had meeting in the evening.

Sept. 20 we had a council, preparatory to love-feast. The visit was reported by the deacons. The council passed off very pleasantly. Arrangements were completed for Communion service Sept. 27, at Bro. S. P. Weaver's. We continued meetings each day and evening until the evening of the 28th.

Sept. 25 a young man made application for membership. He was baptized next day. We had to drive about fourteen miles to find a suitable place for baptizing.

Our love-feast Sept. 27, was an enjoyable one. Ministers present, Eld. John Hollinger, G. W. Chrisman, M. Keller and the writer. About forty members communed. The attendance and order were good. The meetings, Sunday morning and evening, were well attended. I returned home on Monday, and found all well. Thanks to the Good Lord for his mercy!

Nov. 21 I went again to the Eden Valley church to attend quarterly council. Council met on the 22nd, and passed off very pleasantly. We had preaching at night, and continued until the night of Dec. 7, holding twenty-two meetings, and visiting twenty families. We had a good meeting.

As an immediate visible result, seven souls were baptized and two reclaimed. The members were much revived, and a good feeling pervaded the entire audience. There were four members of one family baptized at the same time, something I never saw before. There are now seven members in that family, surely "a church in this household."

Dec. 8 I returned home and found that my wife had about recovered from a severe attack of sickness, contracted during my absence.

A Call from Mendon, Chariton Co., Mo.

I RECEIVED a letter Dec. 4, from friend J. M. W. Smith, and will give here a part of his letter:

"I have often thought of our last conversation we have had. The more I think about your people, the more I am convinced that you are nearer right than any denomination with which I have ever been acquainted. The Methodist Episcopal church to which I belong has left the old paths. We have not a city here of your denomination, but the people here say they will furnish all necessary means, if you, or some other brother, could come."

I have written to this friend in Missouri and promised to see that the call is filled. God's time is man's opportunity to work, and I hope, dear brethren and sisters, that, while we have the opportunity, we may work with courage, energy and zeal for the promotion of the cause of the Blessed Christ, that many of the fallen creatures of Adam's race might be redeemed. Friend Smith is living in the town of Mendon. SAMUEL TENNIS.

A Young Soldier Has Fallen.

DEATH makes tremendous strides. About four years ago, Floyd M. Coulson, a young man from Carroll County, Va., presented himself before the Brethren as a candidate for baptism. Two years later he was installed into the ministry. At once he went about his Father's business, and was soon advanced to the second degree of the ministry. He was the only minister the Brethren had in the County, and was very zealous in the good work. He exposed himself to the inclement weather and late hours of night, in order to meet his appointments. Feeling the necessity of a better education, he left the work and entered school. But his health soon gave way, and he was advised by his physician to leave school. He went home and tried to work in the Lord's vineyard, but his time was up. That dreadful foe of humanity,—consumption, laid hold upon him.

We visited him a short time before his departure. He told us he had made some serious mistakes in life, but he had confessed all and invoked the mercy of the Lord. He said he felt sure he would enjoy one of those mansions Jesus had gone to prepare for his people, and would wear a crown, but it would be starless, on account of his mistakes.

Before we left him we sang and prayed, and he praised God with all the strength he had. We learn from his mother that, a short time before he died, he said his time was short and he must talk fast, and he began to preach. He then began to shout praises to God and closed his eyes in death, Sept. 1, 1890, aged twenty-two years, nine months and sixteen days.

Death has made frequent visits to this house. In 1871 a little daughter and sister was laid in the tomb. In 1878 a little boy was called home. In 1884 another little girl was carried into the eternal world. In 1886 death came again and father answered the call. In 1890 death made three visits and took three loving brothers and left a poor, widowed mother, a heart-broken sister and a lonely brother to weep and mourn their loss. God be merciful to them! C. D. HYLTON.

From Wayside, Kansas.

BRO. SAMUEL EDGECOMB came to our place on Monday, Dec. 15, and commenced a series of meetings the same night at the Wayside Union church. He preached fourteen instructive sermons. Bro. Fogle was also with us. We had good congregations and excellent attention, with a growing interest to the last. The doctrine of the Brethren is new to nearly everybody at this place, as the Brethren never preached in this neighborhood before. What few members live here, feel very much encouraged, and we hope, that, sooner or later, some will come out on the Lord's side. The Brethren closed their meetings on Saturday night, the 27th. Many requested our brethren to come again. As here is our earthly home, we hope to see a church built up, at this place, soon. May the Lord bless the earnest labors of our Brethren every-where!

Bro. Fogle left an appointment at this place for once a month, and also at Havanna. If any of our ministering brethren pass through here, we would be glad to have them stop off at Wayside or Havanna and preach for us. MARY E. NEEDELS.

A Sad Accident.

ON Saturday, Dec. 13, Charles Karn, son of Bro. Gabriel and sister Susan Karn, met with a sad and fatal accident.

He drove out to the farm, to bring up some corn for the hogs, when suddenly the horses became frightened, and ran away, throwing Charles out of the wagon, injuring him internally. No one was present at the time, but as soon as he regained consciousness, he walked to the house,—a distance of about eighty rods. A doctor was at once summoned and all was done that loving hands could perform.

It was soon discovered that Charles was fatally wounded. When asked who, in case he did not get well, should preach his funeral, he requested the writer to do so. He said he wanted to join the church and be baptized. Water was at once prepared, Charles praying all the time that he might be permitted to live a few minutes longer. When all was ready, he threw his feet out of the bed and told them to hurry, as he was dying. He was baptized by his father, and soon after passed away, aged nineteen years, three months, and twenty-four days. Oh, what a warning! How precious, very precious, were a few minutes to this young man! "Oh, Jesus, let me live a few minutes longer!"—was his prayer then.

Charles was a well-behaved and obliging young man. The funeral services were conducted at the Union Grove church house by the writer, assisted by Bro. Isaiah Howard, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends. May the good Lord sustain our brother and sister in this their sad hour of bereavement! GEO. L. STUDEBAKER.

Shideler, Ind.

From the La Porte Church, Ind.

THE brethren and sisters of the above-named church, have recently been enjoying a feast of good things. Our dear brother, Daniel Snell, of Sidney, Kosciusko Co., Ind., began a series of sermons on the evening of Dec. 5, in the Rossburg meeting-house, closing on Sunday morning, Dec. 15, with his twelfth discourse. He began again the same evening in the Waterford school-house,—a point about eight miles west from the former place, where he preached six more sermons, closing on Friday night, Dec. 19.

These eighteen sermons were delivered with "power and in demonstration of the Spirit," in a manner peculiar to himself, and, although we had no additions to report, these meetings were undoubtedly a success. The instructions, admonitions, reproofs and chastisements administered, were highly beneficial to us, as the professed disciples of Christ, and the deep impressions thus made will not soon be forgotten. There were marked impressions made upon others who "do not walk in all the commandments of the Lord," and who seemed "almost persuaded" by the powerful arguments, presented in defense of the Truth. It appeared, however, that each had his or her "Benjamin," that could not yet be given up. May God help them to see the propriety and great spiritual advantage in a full surrender of self to the will of the Lord, and be saved!

Although the little church here has been much built up, and all have no doubt felt to take fresh courage, and resolved to be more zealous in our united work for the Master, the lasting benefits will depend upon putting into practice the many good lessons taught us by Bro. Snell. Let us not forget that some of us, too, may have some self-esteemed treasure, that we must part with, ere a full measure of spiritual happiness shall be enjoyed. Then, in very truth, will our brother's visit to us have been a grand success. May the Good Father so order it!

Sister Snell joined her husband here two days before he closed his meetings, and indulged in some sight-seeing at Michigan City where is located Indiana's Northern State Prison, to which they made a visit. We were all sorry that the sister did not come so as to be with us longer, but our good wishes go with her, as well as our prayers to Heaven in her behalf, in her many lonesome hours! THURSTON MILLER.

Notes by the Way.

DEC. 14 I started by private conveyance for Berkeley County, W. Va., by way of Sharpsburg. I stopped at Bro. Henry Neikirk's, where Bro. Jacob Bricker met me. We started at once on our trip, crossing the great Potomac at Shepherdstown. After our arrival at Van Clevesville we stopped at Bro. George Bricker's. There we learned that Bro. Absalom Malotte, of the Pleasant Ridge congregation, was holding a series of meetings at the church in this village. We had the privilege of attending two meetings at this place. While we were with them, a man, eighty years of age, united with the church.

Last October I attended the love-feast at this place. This aged brother was there at that time. He is a cripple, and it took him four days to get to the meeting. No doubt he was counting the cost at that time.

On the morning of the sixteenth we started for home. We went as far as Keedysville and stayed for meeting at Marker's Chapel, in the Manor congregation. The majority of the audience being children, they concluded to hold a children's meeting. We were permitted to hear Bro. Daniel Wolf, who talked to the children in an interesting manner. This was the first meeting of this kind I ever attended and I think there should be more of them. Then, perhaps, more of our children would be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord! J. O. BUTTERBAUGH.

From the Weeping Water Church, Nebr.

THE members of the above-named church met in regular quarterly council on Saturday, Dec. 27. We had a fair attendance. Our elder, Owen Peters, was with us and ably assisted in adjusting the large amount of business that came before the meeting.

At this meeting, one who formerly was a member, and a minister of this church, was received again. His name is Samuel Schloutman. He has done all in his power to make reconciliation, and, upon his fair promises and humble acknowledgments, he has been again received into our fellowship here, as a private member, according to the usual order. Our prayer is that he, with all the faithful every-where, may resist the devil and prove himself to be steadfast in the faith. "May grace and peace be multiplied unto all, through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord!"

J. L. SNAVELY.

My Visit to the North Manchester Church, Ind.

I LEFT home Dec. 6, and arrived at North Manchester the same day, and commenced meetings in their church, two miles west of town, where the Annual Meeting was held in 1878. The meetings grew in interest and attendance, and, during the twenty-seven times that we met for worship, the Lord blessed the church with nine additions by baptism. Quite an interest seemed to be awakened.

This church has a large membership. It is presided over by Eld. R. H. Miller and is in good order. The Brotherhood will rejoice with the church there, that our brother's health is being restored. He only missed one meeting during my visit there.

To those dear young brethren and sisters that gave their hearts to God, I would say, "Be faithful and improve the talents God has given you for the promotion of his cause." To all the members I return my sincere thanks for their kindness to me. I arrived home Dec. 23 and found all well.

BRO. D. E. BRUBAKER, of Mt. Morris, commenced a series of meetings on the evening of Dec. 19. We had our quarterly council on Saturday, Dec. 20. All the business that came before the meeting was adjusted in a Christian feeling. We were glad to have Bro. Brubaker's presence and aid in the work. On Sunday Bro. Brubaker preached to an attentive congregation. We do hope and pray that lasting impressions were made. Though we had fine moon-light nights during our meetings, yet the congregations were not as large as they should have been. Bro. Brubaker labored for us until the evening of Dec. 26. He then, in company with Bro. J. Sollenberger, left to fill appointments south of Joliet.

Bro. Brubaker labored earnestly and faithfully in the cause of our Master. Oh! how we were made to rejoice when we saw one precious soul promise to unite with the church in the near future. We hope he will not put it off too long, for delay is dangerous.

Many good impressions were made which we hope will be lasting. How our hearts burned within us as our brother was opening the Scriptures to us. May the Lord bless our brother, whom we have all learned to love! May he do much good for the Master and have many bright stars in his crown! HARVEY M. BARKDOLL.

Dec. 19.

From Rocky Ford, Colo.

I LEFT my home Dec. 18 to visit and hold some meetings with a few isolated members, living in Kiowa County, this State. I was driven fifteen miles north to Meredith, on the Missouri Pacific R. R., where I took the train for Eads. I was met by Bro. John Shoemaker and conveyed to his home, a distance of six miles. Here I met with sister Elizabeth Shoemaker. Brother and sister Shoemaker formerly lived at Ashland, Ohio.

We spent the greater part of the day in holy conversation. In the evening sister Franco joined our company, having driven about twenty miles to meet with us. At night we went to the school-house, where we met in public worship with their neighbors and children. Thus we met five times. All felt that "it was good to be there." I visited all the families in the immediate vicinity of our meetings, and enjoyed their friendship and hospitality very much. I have not met with a more kind and sociable people, in all my experience in the ministry, and will always hold them in fond remembrance when imploring the divine blessings.

I trust that ministering brethren will remember this place, and give them some meetings occasionally. I returned home Dec. 24th and found all well, —thank the Lord! JOHN J. HOOVER.

Dec. 27.

From the Franklin Church, Decatur Co., Iowa.

BRO. ABRAHAM WOLF, of the Libertyville church, Jefferson Co., Iowa, came Dec. 13th to hold a protracted meeting with us. He began the same evening and continued until the night of the 21st, preaching in all eleven sermons. He also was with us and helped us in a council-meeting on the 20th.

Our brother faithfully discharged his duty in holding forth the Word of Life. Would that every hearer might discharge his duty as well! The members were strengthened in the "one faith," sinners warned to forsake their ways, and one soul, who had wandered away, returned to the fold. May she, and all of us, who have started Zionward, ever live faithful, and strive to labor together in peace and union in the good cause, for "how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in union." "In union there is strength." Pray for us! JEMIMA KOB.

Dec. 27.

From the Blackwater Congregation, Va.

THE Blackwater congregation met at the Antioch meeting-house, Franklin Co., Va., on Saturday, Dec. 20, to elect two brethren to the ministry and advance two brethren to the second degree of that office. The adjoining elders, brethren Daniel Peters and Henry Eikenberry, also Riley Flora, their home elder, were present.

As the result of the election three brethren were called to the first degree of the ministry. One of the brethren, who was to be advanced, was absent; the others were installed into their respective offices. Those newly chosen are: Brethren Lewis Brubaker, Charles Montgomery and Samuel M. Eikenberry. May they adorn their holy calling!

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized Organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and is devoted to the faithful setting forth in the New Testament and pleading for a return to the simple and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration or the New Birth, and Baptism by Trine Immersion for the remission of sins unto the reception of the H. Ghost by the laying on of hands are the terms of adoption into the household of God, the Church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, the sending out the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a zealous defender of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and labors, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Jan. 13, 1891.

BRO. HOPE is laboring among the Scandinavians in Kansas.

BRO. J. H. MOORE says: "One was baptized here on Christmas; weather is cool; meetings were interesting."

BRO. D. E. PRICE, who had intended to start on his Western trip, last week, was, by the illness of his wife, detained at home.

WILL some of the Brethren, living near Washington C. H., Ohio, inform us if there is an organized church near that place?

BRO. M. L. HAHN, of the Upper Stillwater church, Ohio, has been holding meetings at Bloomerton, Ohio. Five were added to the church by baptism.

A SISTER of Allen County, Kansas, writes us a kind letter, requesting a private explanation of the 11th chapter of 1 Corinthians, in regard to the prayer-covering, but fails to sign her name. If she will send her name, we will reply to the letter.

BRO. GEO. BUCHER, of Kleinfeldersville, Lebanon Co., Pa., reports eight baptized in the Tulpehocken church during the month of December.

WE still have on hand a good lot of the Brethren's Almanac for 1891, and all orders are being promptly filled. Every family should have a copy of the Almanac.

BRO. GALEN B. ROYER spent the Holiday vacation with the Brethren of the Waddam's Grove church, Illinois. The meetings were full of interest, with one applicant for baptism.

BRO. JAMES R. GISH reached this place on the 3rd inst. He will spend some time here, attending the Bible Term. Bro. Gish, we hope, will also do some preaching for us.

THE Brethren at Pine Creek, Ogle Co., Ill., have been holding a series of interesting meetings. The home ministers, with help from surrounding churches, have been doing the preaching.

ON Sunday, Dec. 28, brethren Royer and Amick attended dedication services in a new church at Burnettsville, White Co., Ind. Bro. Royer continued the meetings two evenings, and three were baptized.

BRO. JOHN N. KIMMEL, of Wadesville, Clark Co., Va., wants the address of Frederick Eichholtz, who moved from Indiana to Kansas about fifteen years ago. He will be thankful for the required information.

HOW is it with the good resolutions made on the first day of the new year? Are you living up to them? If not, do you know that you are weaker now to meet life's temptation than you were before you made and broke your last vow?

BRO. SIMON E. YUNDT, of this place, spent a week and a half at Loren in the Yellow Creek church, Stephenson Co., Ill., returning on the 2nd inst. Six united with the church during the meetings. Bro. Yundt's health is not good at present.

BRO. JAMES M. NEFF is now located at 145 Broad St., Knoxville, Tenn., where he should be addressed. He says: "So far as I know, there are seven members in the city besides myself." May not these eight members form a nucleus around which a strong and prosperous church may be formed? If there are any readers of the MESSENGER in or about the city, they will please drop a card to Bro. Neff, giving their address.

THE last edition of "Europe and Bible Lands," is now exhausted, so far as the cloth binding is concerned. A few copies of the leather binding are still to be had. As soon as possible a new edition, the tenth, will be published, and all orders will be promptly filled. The book has had a remarkable sale, and there is still a constant demand for it. Address all orders to Brethren's Publishing Company, Mt. Morris, Ill.

The Mt. Morris Index, our local paper, and, by the way, it is one of the best local papers in Ogle County, has this to say about the District Meeting held at this place Dec. 18, 1890: "A representative meeting of the Brethren church was held in this place a short time ago for the purpose of adopting measures whereby means may be procured to relieve the distressed and suffering humanity in Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota. Solicitors of funds were appointed for the several congregations, and Eld. David Price, of this place, was selected to attend personally, to the division and distribution. It is a well-known fact that the Brethren church is among the first in the land as regards charity, and one thing greatly in their favor is, that charity at home comes first."

BRO. DAVID EBY is preaching for the Brethren at Franklin Grove, Ill. The meetings will continue for some time.

WILL those who have queries unanswered, please bear with us a little longer? We hope soon to find time to give more attention to that department.

BRO. J. M. MOHLER held meetings at Petersburgh, Pa., during the closing days of the old year. There were twelve applicants for baptism. Bro. Mohler went from Petersburgh to Ashland, Ohio.

BRO. I. B. KELLER, of the Ephratah congregation, Pa., reports a series of meetings held by Bro. John Herr, of Lebanon County, Pa. The Lord blessed the labors, and twelve came out on the Lord's side.

BRO. T. T. MYERS and Wilbur Stover spent the vacation week at Mt. Carroll, Ill., holding meetings for the Brethren. An excellent interest was awakened, and three made application for baptism. This was at the close of the meeting; for the brethren were compelled to give up the work at the end of the week. The indications were favorable for a great work, if it had been possible for the brethren to have continued the meetings.

THE General Missionary Committee met at this place, on the 6th inst. Brethren Jas. R. Gish and J. C. Murray were present, and assisted by their counsel and advice. Arrangements were made to locate a minister in Louisiana. Assistance was given to build a house of worship in Lincoln, Nebr., where Bro. L. H. Eby has been laboring for some time. Calls for help were also responded to in other localities. Reports from various fields of labor show that some work is being done for the Lord, and still there are many calls that must go unheeded, because men can not be found to fill them.

ACCOUNTS of bloodshed and sickening details of cruelty fill our daily papers, as the news of the Indian war come to us. An attempt to disarm a determined band of Indians, resulted in an outbreak in which twenty-five United States soldiers were killed and thirty wounded. The result was, that almost the entire band of Indians,—men, women and children,—were massacred. Is it not shameful in the highest degree that, in this enlightened age, a band of soldiers, belonging to the foremost civilized nation in the world, should indulge in the barbarous practice of killing helpless women and children? The treatment of the Indians by the Government has been marked by terrible wrongs. The present trouble grows out of violated treaties and broken promises.

OUR readers possess a good deal of patience. This has been made manifest to us recently in a special way. Our large paper cutter was broken, and after having it repaired, it was found that it was not strong enough to do the MESSENGER trimming, and, as a result, we have been sending the paper out folded and pasted without trimming it, and to this arrangement our readers have quietly submitted, only a few intimating that a trimmed paper would be more acceptable to them. We are arranging to introduce a machine into our office that will paste, fold, and trim the MESSENGER as it comes from the press. We hope to have it in working order before many more weeks pass around. Then the paper will again be neatly trimmed when it reaches our readers. To those who have so patiently borne with the inconvenience of cutting their papers, we offer our thanks. The new machinery will obviate this difficulty, and the paper will before long, we trust, be neatly trimmed.

The Franklin Grove church, Lee Co., Ill., has raised a donation of about $600.00 for the Western sufferers. We believe this money was given with willing and cheerful hearts, and surely the Lord's blessing will attend those who help to relieve the poor and needy.

Bro. M. T. Baer, under date of the 5th inst., says: "I have been holding meetings in the Mineral Creek church, Missouri, for several weeks. I visited Bro. S. S. Mohler again this morning, but am not able to report anything encouraging as to his case. I am happy to say, that, spiritually, his condition is good."

The Special Bible Term, now in session at this place, is now in successful progress. The series of sermons on Church Government, by Bro. J. G. Royer, were exceedingly interesting. The Bible classes and the Sunday-school Normal work are also full of interest. Bro. James R. Gish is conducting a special class in the study of the New Testament. There are about forty ministers here now, and we are not at a loss for preachers. This week, in addition to the other work, a series of sermons will be given on the Evidences of Christianity, to be followed next week by Doctrinal Sermons. The work is a good one, and we wish more of our ministers might have the advantage of enjoying it.

We are sometimes disposed to murmur and find fault with our lot in life. We talk about persecution and suffering for Christ's sake, but we have yet to learn the first letter in the alphabet of suffering for the cause of Christ. In this country we are free in the fullest sense of the word, to worship God according to his commandments. Imprisonment stares none of us in the face for adhering to the principles of the Gospel. Not long since we received a letter from our brother, Andrew Westergren, of Sweden, in which he informed us that he was sentenced to some months of imprisonment, for refusing to take up arms and become a soldier. And now Bro. Olssen writes us of another brother, who has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment, because he adheres with great firmness to the peace principles, taught by Christ, and held by the Brethren church. Bro. Olssen closes his letter by asking the prayers of the entire Brotherhood in behalf of the prisoners, who are suffering for Christ's sake. A taste of persecution might arouse the church in America, for we are not doing what we can for the Lord. If we were doing more for the Lord, we would have less time to find fault with the church and with her work. May God grant us his grace and the unction of the Holy Ghost, that we may be faithful, for we may yet be called upon to suffer for Christ's sake! May our prayers go up to God for those who now suffer!

HELP FOR THE SUFFERERS IN THE WEST.

As was noted in last week's Messenger, the Northern District of Illinois met and effected a special organized plan for raising money and distributing it among the needy in Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota. Already more than $1,000.00 has been sent in by the various churches in the State District, one church alone having contributed over $400.00, and others lesser sums. Owing to the fact that, in the past, many complaints have been made that funds appropriated did not reach the parties for whom they were intended, the District Meeting thought it well to appoint a general distributor, and Eld. D. E. Price was appointed to attend to the work of distribution. Bro. Price will visit the destitute districts, and render such help as the cases found demand, and the funds in hand will warrant him in doing.

Those who give will rest assured that the money contributed will be carefully used, and that it will go for the purpose it was given. Several thousand dollars will doubtless be raised in Northern Illinois to help the sufferers.

Will not other State Districts make a move in this matter? The hard, cold, stern winter is upon us, and there are people suffering from cold and hunger. We have many letters from the West, asking for clothing to keep them warm from the cold blasts of winter, and food to feed the starving children. We know if these letters could be read by our Brethren generally, hearts would be moved to help the suffering.

One sister says: "Our crops were a total failure. My husband is sick, and we do not have covering to keep warm in bed, nor sufficient food for the children, and unless we receive help we must suffer greatly."

A brother says: "We are in great need. We raised no crop here this year. We do not have winter clothing or provision. I have lost my health and am unable to work."

The following appeal, signed by the Lieutenant Governor Fletcher and other prominent citizens, with reference to the condition in Brown County, South Dakota, shows what is needed in one County alone:

"It is with a large degree of humiliation that the farmers of the north and west portions of Brown County have again to appeal to a charitable and generous public for aid to carry us through the coming winter.

"Last year our crops were miserably poor, but owing to the large-hearted benevolence of a generous people —both in and outside the State—the consideration given us by our railroads, and the energy of many of our public men, we have managed to live through the year. This year, we regret to say, the failure of our crops from drouth, has been more complete and disastrous than ever before; some farmers receive two or three bushels of wheat to the acre, some do not get back as much as they put into the ground, and many have not harvested a single bushel of anything. Oats, potatoes, corn and other crops have fared equally as bad as wheat, and indeed worse. As the consequence of these two seasons of failure we have reached the limit of our means, we have mortgaged everything upon which money can be realized, and to-day we find ourselves utterly destitute of food, seed grain, clothing, fuel and other necessaries of life. We have not even the means to leave the State, if we were so disposed, and unless aid comes to us in some way, there is nothing in store for us but cold, hunger and death. Realizing our fearful condition, and feeling that we do not appeal to a merciful people in vain, and that the Almighty God will not suffer us to perish, we ask those who have been blessed with plenty to open their hearts once again and save us from the impending calamity, and God will surely bless the giver.

"A careful personal canvass, by committees, selected at a public meeting, held at Hecla, Oct. 18th, has been made of several of the towns.

"The committee for Greenfield township reports that the average yield of wheat was one-half bushel per acre for the township, and that oats, flax, barley and potatoes are a total failure.

"The committee for Brainard township reports about the same yield, and that ninety-five per cent of the people need aid at once. The committee for the other towns report about the same condition of affairs. A few individual cases have been selected, whose names and post-office address are given, that any who doubt the statements here given, may substantiate them by personal correspondence. Hundreds of families might be named whose circumstances are fully as bad as these, but it was thought unnecessary to multiply cases, and the circumstances of a few are given to show the condition in which nearly all are placed.

"Geo. Schmidt, Claremont, S. D. this year sowed 325 acres to wheat and harvested 254 bushels. He is a renter and has one-half of the crop, which is covered by a crop mortgage. He has four small children, the youngest of which is two years old. He has no fuel for the winter, no flour, no potatoes and nothing to buy with.

"Geo. Godfrey, Detroit, S. D., sowed 230 acres to wheat and harvested forty-three bushels. He has no fuel, no flour, no potatoes, and not a dollar in the world.

"Mrs. Featherhoff, Detroit, S. D. is a widow with four children. She has no potatoes, no fuel and nothing to live on.

"Fred Graff, Hecla, S. D., has three children. He has no fuel, scanty clothing and no money. His hay was burned by a prairie fire."

Extracts from private letters and appeals might be given to great length, but this will suffice to show that there is actual suffering, and that help is needed. Our brethren are not slow to help when the necessity for help exists.

We will continue to receive money from those desiring to assist in this good work, and see that it is distributed, through the agency of Bro. D. E. Price, or sent directly to those who are suffering for the necessaries of life. If the State Districts do not take action, then individual churches can raise money and forward it. All sums received will be acknowledged through the Messenger, and an account given as to the disposition made of the money.

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY, AS APPLIED TO THE CHURCH.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

Number Two.

IN this article we notice, first, an objection to our method of preaching, and we notice one case only, as a sample. A man approached the writer, with the following remark: "I don't like your manner of preaching." We wished to know what was wrong. "Why," said he, "you ought not to preach these hard things—such as the ordinances and commandments. These," he said, "will tend to discourage the people, and then you can not get them into the church." We inquired what course he would suggest or recommend. He said, "You should appeal more to their emotional feelings,—get them converted, and then they will come into the church. Then, after they are in the church, preach to them these hard things. You must speak smooth things before hand, or you can not catch them."

We asked him if he would like to see his "Photo?" He said, "Have you my picture?" We told him we had. "Well, yes, I believe I would like to see it." We opened the Bible, and read from Isa. 30: 10, which reads as follows: "Which say to the seers, See not; and to the prophets, Prophesy not unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophesy deceits." "Well," said he, "I guess it is aptly applied." Again we hear Paul saying, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. 4: 3, 4. We can surely see that the words of both Isaiah and Paul, are literally true, even now.

Next we notice the language of Jude, as applied to these days. He says, "But, beloved, remember ye the words which were spoken before of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; how that they told you there should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts. These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the spirit." Jude 17, 18, 19. Here the apostle is calling attention to what shall take place in the last time. "These be they who separate themselves." We are to understand the above language, as applied to some who separated themselves from the church, for he is speaking to those who were in the church, and is forewarning them of what should take place.

Now we have certainly seen, in our own day and time,—and in our own beloved Brotherhood, a complete fulfillment of the above case, when it was said (by those whom we had learned to love), "We will separate ourselves from all who stand with the, then recognized Annual Meeting." Right here, it may be asked, "Is there any proof that those who so said, were not under the influence of the Holy Spirit, when they so resolved?" Answer.—The Holy Spirit does not give liberty to any man, or number of men, to sever the fellowship between him or them and others, unless such member or members, violate a Gospel or Christian principle. All persons become members of the church upon their confession of faith in Christ, and promise of fidelity to the principles and precepts of the Gospel, and they can not be dismissed from fellowship according to the Word of the Lord, until they violate said Gospel principles or rules.

In the case cited above, as given by Jude, and also in that acted out by "Resolution," when one broad sweep was made, irrespective of character, no distinction was observed between the orderly or disorderly ones. No difference how loyal and true to Gospel or church rules any of them were, they must go out of the camp. If this is in harmony with the spirit of the Lord, then we have to confess our utter ignorance of the Law of the Holy Spirit. We do see in this a very lucid fulfilling of prophecy, as applied to the church.

Next, we notice the language, as given by the apostle John, "Little children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time. They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us." 1 John 2: 18, 19.

Here you can see how completely the testimony of Jude and John agree,—Jude saying, "Having not the spirit," and John saying, "that they were not all of us." This is equal to saying, that such as were not of us, had a different spirit, for if they had not been under the influence of a different spirit, they would have remained with us,—for under the guidance of the same Spirit, they must unite instead of separate. Through the influence of such as were actuated by a foreign spirit, some were induced to fall in line, and go along with them. Hence we have the form of expression, used by John, when he said, "Not all of us." Some were led away, who had not the spirit of opposition, and therefore were of us, but were misled. Such persons deserve pity, more than censure.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

"Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21: 24.

FOR eighteen centuries the cruel hand of oppression has ruled the "land of promise," and the iron heel of persecution has trampled upon the rights of a people "led away captive into all nations." But at the time of the end, the Jews shall return to their own land. That time we have now entered. Moslem power is now in the decline, and God's ancient people are again returning to the land of their fathers.

The ruthless persecution of the Jews in Russia, is raising up in all enlightened lands a proper sense of justice for this long oppressed people.

Those who have cherished anti-Jewish prejudices hitherto, are now brought to silence and shame by witnessing the cruel wrongs endured by this persecuted people. Many who stood aloof and looked on with cold indifference, are now active with kindly interest and good will toward them, which speaks volumes for the practical growth of the true spirit of a common brotherhood. This was the sentiment of Paul when he said: "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer for Israel is that they might be saved."

Two remarkable conferences between leading men and the Jews of Chicago and London, two commercial centres of the Old and New Worlds, to discuss questions of vital interest to the religious world, furnishes new evidence of the spirit of unity, of humanity and good will, that is animating both Jew and Gentile, and is a precursor of the spirit that shall move the nations to hasten the return of the Jews to their native land. We may regard this spirit of amity, springing up between Jew and Gentile, as one of the significant signs of the times. It is an evidence of the fulfillment of prophecy concerning this long oppressed people. It is evident that when the Jews shall return again to their land, it will be through the assistance and encouragement of other nations. England is preparing the way for Israel's return. Her statesmen are in sympathy with the move, and the Jewish population of Palestine is growing and still increasing, year by year, by an influx of Hebrews from all over the world.

The relentless persecution of the Jews in Russia has been a problem almost inexplicable to many minds; but "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," and Russian oppression has turned the heart and feet of this people toward their own land. It is estimated that a million or more will leave Russia within the next four months. It was thought, for a while, that they would come to America; but the delegates representing the largest colonies of thirty-six different Russian cities, after a prolonged discussion, unanimously decided in favor of Palestine as their future home. This movement is in direct fulfillment of prophecy. Israel is first to be restored to their native land, before their conversion to Christianity, and their conversion shall be the work of the Lord himself. (See Ezekiel 36: 24–28.)

The return of the Jews to the land of Canaan will be upon the decline of Mohammedan power. St. John, in Rev. 16: 12, says, "The sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared." Moslem power has been waning for years. The Jews enjoy comparative security under Turkish rule. The great river has so far dried up that this kingly race, originally from the east, are now crossing over into the land which will again be theirs. Thus the continued persecution of the Jews in Russia will be the means of their return to the land of their fathers. If God raised up Pharaoh, whose oppression of ancient Israel turned their hearts to their own land, has not the same over-ruling Hand raised up Autocratic Russia for a similar purpose? And if Pharaoh and his host fell in a vain attempt to bring again the children of Israel into bondage at the Red Sea, will not despotic Russia,—the Gog and Magog of prophecy, fall in the same endeavor at the battle of Armageddon? Surely the times and the destinies of nations are in God's hands. We are upon the eve of startling prophetic events. God is moving among the nations, and all the forces of nature are under his control. He who indicates the approach of summer by the opening buds of spring, would have us know that "when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

We are further warned to "take heed to yourselves lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares." "And what I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch."

The return of the Jews to the Holy Land is of importance to us, because it indicates the fulfillment of the times of the Gentiles. The Jews have not been in possession of the Holy Land since A. D. 70, when Jerusalem was taken by Titus. Our Savior spoke of this event in these words: "For there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people. And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations." Luke 21: 24. The fulness of the times of the Gentiles marks the close of this age, and the second coming of Christ. "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

NOTICE TO THE ELDERS OF MIDDLE INDIANA.

I TAKE this method of calling attention to the general mission work of our District. From the present outlook I am afraid that we, as a State District, are neglecting one of the grandest principles in our Brotherhood, by failing to support the mission work.

I must admit, brethren, that the churches in Middle Indiana are doing a grand work in support of the Old Folks and Orphans' Home at Mexico, Ind., and while some few congregations have responded liberally to the demands of the general mission work, a large majority has done nothing since our last District Meeting. Some wealthy congregations have contributed nothing for the general mission work, since I have been appointed District Treasurer (or at least they have not reported to me). I acknowledge that I have neglected my duty, as Treasurer, in not seeing or notifying the elders to appoint solicitors in the several churches, so that each member could have an opportunity to give.

Now, brethren, let us go to work all along the line! Let solicitors be appointed in each church in Middle Indiana, and solicit every member. If we would only get an average of five cents to the member, by next District Meeting, all would be surprised to see the report of your District Treasurer. BENJAMIN NEFF, District Treasurer.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

TWO BAPTIZED.—Our meeting is still in progress in the Raccoon Creek church. One was reclaimed yesterday (Dec. 19), which caused much rejoicing. Two have been baptized and others are near the kingdom.—Geo. L. Studebaker.

AT WORK.—The Brethren of the Rogue River church, Oregon, have been enjoying an interesting series of meetings, held by Bro. D. Brower, who commenced his labors at this place Dec. 21. May God bless these efforts to the upbuilding of Zion. —J. M. Vanhorn, Dec. 22.

ENJOYABLE MEETINGS. – Bro. Oliver Beaver came to the Middle Creek church, Mahaska Co., Iowa, Dec. 12, and remained until the 22nd, during which time he preached twelve sermons. While there were no immediate accessions, the church was greatly built up, and all were encouraged to press onward.—Elizabeth Gable, Dec. 25.

EIGHT ACCESSIONS. – Bro. I. J. Rosenberger closed a three weeks' series of meetings with us Dec. 15. Among the eight who united with the church, six were heads of families. Others expressed a desire to come soon. –Geo. L. Jennings.

SIX ADDITIONS. –Dec. 7 the writer commenced a series of meetings near Climax, Camden Co., Mo. I remained until Dec. 15, preaching, in all, twelve times. Six souls were made willing to follow Christ, and were baptized. Many others were almost persuaded. –R. S. Rust.

GOOD MEETINGS. –Bro. C. Holderman came to us, at Jericho, Cedar Co., Mo., Dec. 6, to commence a series of meetings. He preached eleven sermons in all. The Gospel was set forth to us in all its beauty and simplicity. Six were added to this church, recently, by letter. –Samuel Duncan.

A PLEASANT COUNCIL. –The Clear Creek church Huntington Co., Ind., met in council Dec. 6, and disposed of such business, as came before the church, in a Christian-like manner, to the satisfaction of all that were present. There was a collection taken up for the missionary fund and the Book and Tract Work. –Henry Shock.

IN LOVE AND UNION.—The Cheyenne church, Kans., is in love and union. Some of the Brethren are in poor circumstances on account of the failure, or partial failure, of crops last year, yet we have not asked for aid. We have a regular appointment near Bird City, but as we have only one minister and one deacon at present, traveling ministers are requested to remember the Cheyenne church, when passing by.—Mary Slifer, Dec. 28.

GOOD MEETINGS.—Bro. John Gable, of New Sharon, Iowa, came to hold some meetings for us. We moved from his congregation last March and are now living in Page County, isolated from any of the Brethren. Bro. John preached five interesting sermons for us. He told us many good things, and gave us good advice. Some things were new to the audience, for they had never heard any of the Brethren preach, and while they thought it to be strange doctrine, yet they admitted it to be true. We would be glad to have any of our ministers come and preach for us.—Isaac E. Webb.

MINISTER ELECTED. — The love-feast in the Verdigris church, Kansas, was a refreshing season to all. Bro. Lemuel Hillery preached for us one week prior to the feast. Owing to the busy season and the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not as large as usual, and while there were no additions, yet we know that the efforts of our dear brother are not in vain. On the morning after the feast, the church held an election for a minister. Bro. J. A. Stouder was chosen to the responsible work. May the Lord bless him! Bro. Wm. H. Lehman leaves us to-day for the Spring Creek church. His address will be Reece, Greenwood Co., Kans. J. M. Quakenbush, Dec. 14.

TWO SOULS FOR THE LORD. –The members of Fairview church, Kans., are moving on in the work of the Lord. Our weekly prayer-meeting is quite interesting. Though only about eight members live near enough to attend it, all are active in doing their part. Dec. 14 two dear souls came out on the Lord's side. Owing to opposition on the part of the husband of one of the sisters, one could not be received on that day, but we hope that matters will soon be so adjusted, that she can do what she feels to be a sacred duty. Last Saturday, in company with brother and sister Cline and sister Price, we went to Wallace County, where we attended meetings Saturday night and Sunday. Brethren Sprague and Peterson are continuing the meetings, and, we hope, may succeed is arousing a general interest.—Mary E. Wichael, Dec. 3.

TWO APPLICANTS.—I just returned from a point across the Des Moines River, at Eldora, where I had three meetings and left with two applicants for baptism, which will be attended to in the near future. All praise to a kind Father in heaven for his love to fallen humanity!—Abraham Wolf.

THREE ADDITIONS. The Brethren at Burr Oak, Kans., have just enjoyed an interesting series of meetings. Bro. A. C. Daggett came to us Dec. 18 and preached sixteen sermons for us. Three souls were made to forsake the ways of sin, and to unite with the people of God. May many others, who are seriously considering the cost, decide to come ere it is too late.—J. H. Kinzie.

SAINTS ENCOURAGED. — Bro. Eli Yourtee, of Washington County, Md., held an interesting series af meetings in the church near East Berlin, Pa. The meetings were well attended by attentive hearers, and the expressions of the congregation, from time to time, lead us to believe that a good work has been done. The believing portion of the community has been encouraged, and others are impressed with the importance of a religious life. The meetings lasted from Dec. 20 to 28 inclusive.—J. A. Long.

A LIVE CHURCH.—The fall session of our Sunday-school in the Greene church, Iowa, closed Dec. 28. Good interest was manifested by old and young. We had an average attendance of fifty scholars. We have decided to continue our school during the winter. Eld. George Cripe, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., has just closed a two weeks' series of meetings. While there were no immediate accesions, we think the church has been built up anew, and we hope that the good seed sown will bring forth fruit in abundance!—D. Eikenberry.

SIX ADDITIONS.—Wife and I came to the saints of the Summit church, Madison County, Ind., Dec. 1, 1890. I continued meetings until Dec. 21, having, during that time, twenty-five meetings in all, including one council-meeting. During these meetings six precious souls were added to the church by baptism. More promised to follow soon. The members seemed much revived. This church is presided over by Bro. Isaiah Howard. The kindness shown us by the members of the Summit church will ever be held in fond remembrance.—D. H. and M. E. Replogle, Dec. 29.

ONE ADDITION.—Dec. 11, Bro. W. R. Harshbarger, of Indiana, came to this church and preached nineteen sermons. We had a very pleasant series of meetings, and feel that the church has been strengthened. At our last meeting one dear sister united with the church. May the Lord help her to hold out faithful! At this writing Bro. W. H. Bowser, of this place, is holding meetings at a point about thirty miles from here, known as the Green County mission, where there are a few members living. We pray that the Lord may bless them, and that much good may be done at that place!—B. F. Filbrun.

THE WORK OF THE FLAMES. – On Thursday, Dec. 11, the alarm of fire was raised and we soon learned that the house of Bro. D. R. Prowant, of Dupont, Ohio, was being consumed by the destroying element. Hastening to the place, we found that all efforts were in vain to save the house, but we rejoiced to see that all the inmates as well as the larger part of the contents of the house, were saved. This occurrence brought vividly to my mind the night of Oct. 14, 1889, when I, too, had the misfortune to lose not only all that I possessed, but to be left $2,000 in debt, by the total destruction of my hardware store. Still I say, "The Lord is good; he knows what is best, and can turn all things to his glory."—I. A. Carnahan.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—The Brethren of the Ridge church, Pa., have just enjoyed a very refreshing series of meetings, conducted by Bro. David Bonsack, of Westminster, Md. While we can not report any immediate results, yet we know that the Lord will not withhold his blessing. Lizzie N. Foglesanger, Dec. 30.

CURED OF THE TOBACCO HABIT. I was requested by Bro. Harshbarger, of Indiana, to report as to whether I was cured of the habit of using tobacco. In reply I would say: I have been a slave to the use of the weed for over twenty-one years. I am completely cured, feel much better, and enjoy good health. E. Landes.

FIVE ADDITIONS.—Eld. David Troxel, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., came to the Big Creek church, Richland Co., Ill., Dec. 5, and commenced a series of meetings. He closed on the night of the 21st. His labors resulted in four additions by baptism and one reclaimed. A good interest is taken in the meetings, considering the weather. J. M. Forney.

FOUR ADDITIONS.—Bro. John Metzler came to the Eel River church, Ind., Dec. 23, and stayed with us till Jan. 1. He preached seventeen sermons at our West House, the immediate results of which were, three baptized and one reclaimed. The members were much built up in the faith, and others are seriously reflecting. Emanuel Leckrone, Jan. 2.

FOUR ACCESSIONS. Bro. Joseph Spitzer came to the Eight Mile church, Huntington Co., Ind., Dec. 9, to hold a series of meetings, which he continued until Dec. 21. He held forth the Word in such a manner that all could understand. Four dear souls came out on the Lord's side. Others, who are much impressed, will, it is to be hoped, come soon.—Geo. W. Cline, Dec. 28.

ONE RESTORED.—Dec 20 I commenced a series of meetings at the Keokuk church, Iowa. While with them I preached twelve sermons. One dear soul, that had wandered away, returned to the fold. We hope that others, who are seriously considering, may come ere it is too late. The Brethren of the above-named church have no resident minister at present, but are under the care of Eld. John Gable, of Mahaska County. During our short stay we visited nearly all the members and greatly enjoyed our associations with them.—C. M. Brower, Jan. 3.

AFFLICTED. Our aged elder of the Lower Deer Creek church, Ind.,—Bro. John Shively, —who has been under the hand of affliction for some time past, was anointed to-day, Dec. 31, 1890, in the name of the Lord, by Bro. Hiel Hamilton and the writer, after which he expressed himself as feeling much better. He is over eighty-five years of age. The doctor seems to think his recovery somewhat doubtful. He has served the Lord and the church faithfully for a long time and it looks as though his race were nearing the end. May the Lord bless our aged brother! S. H. Bechdelheimer, Dec. 31.

ALIVE TO THE WORK.—The Cerro Gordo church, Ill., held her quarterly council Jan. 1. It passed off pleasantly. We started a poor fund, which, if properly conducted, will do a great deal of good. Our social meeting, on Tuesday evening, and our teachers' meeting, on Thursday evening, are well sustained. Bro. Isaac Frantz came to us Dec. 27 to hold a series of meetings, but was called home a few days later by the serious illness of his wife. May she soon be restored to health! Our Sunday-school was reorganized Dec. 28 with Bro William Landis as Superintendent and F. A. Vaniman as Assistant. The average attendance for the year has been: Scholars, 100; teachers, 13; officers, 8. E. A. Shively.

A PLEASANT PLACE.—I would hereby notify my friends that I am now at the Old Folks' Home, at Honey Creek, Henry Co., Ind. Though I have been here but a few days, I like my new home and surroundings. I think the officers of the Home are doing the very best they can for the inmates. God bless the kind donors, who have provided such a good home for the helpless ones!—Samuel W. Orerstreet.

TWENTY ADDITIONS.—Last night we closed another interesting series of meetings at the Bethel meeting-house, in the Hopewell church, Pa. Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Pa., did the preaching. As a result of the seventeen sermons delivered, twenty souls were made willing to join in with the people of God. As usual, the meetings closed too soon as we believe, from the interest taken, there were many good impressions made upon the audience.—Abraham Steele, Jan. 3.

CORRESPONDENCE.

From Gownie, Iowa.

DEC. 13 the brethren and sisters of Calhoun and Webster Counties were called together at Bro. Stringer's, for the purpose of organizing. Eld. Wm. Thomas, from the Middle District of Iowa, and Eld. Joseph Trostle from the Northern District conducted the meeting.

An organization was then effected. Bro. Alex. White was the choice for deacon. He is a brother well worthy to fill that responsible position in the Lord's house. A minister was also chosen at the same time.

This organization is the result of mission work done by the Middle District, ten of our number being received by their efforts. But as our territory is in the Northern District, elders came from both Districts to organize us.

Our organization will be known as the "Farnhamville Church." Praise the Lord for the missionary spirit in our beloved Brotherhood!

A. B. WOODARD.

Come to the Rescue.

I LEARN through the GOSPEL MESSENGER of the distress and suffering of our brethren and friends on the western frontier.

I feel sad to think of the long, cold winter before them, without the necessaries of life; and even spring will bring them no food until they can raise a crop of some kind.

Our sympathy will do them no good, only as it draws from us the necessary effort and means to relieve them. Let us come to their rescue. There is enough in these United States to supply all their wants, and we would never miss it. Believing there are many now ready to do something to help the poor, if there were a system or plan by which their charities could be forwarded and distributed, I offer the following suggestions:

(a) Food, and possibly clothing, can be purchased, not in the districts of the suffering, but in the adjoining sections, as cheap and sometimes cheaper than in the East.

Therefore let there be a committee of several Brethren appointed to have general supervision of this work, and let them elect a Treasurer from their number to whom all funds can be sent. The above committee could appoint sub-committees in different sections of country where they would be needed, and the work thus would be made as far-reaching as possible.

If any one has anything better to suggest let us have it, and get to work as soon as possible. Some may be starving while we are tarrying.

While some systematic arrangements are being made, we can send assistance to some one that we know needs it, or to some friend that will turn it over to the needy. May our Heavenly Father, who feeds the sparrows, work upon the hearts of his people to feed the hungry in the West.

JOHN BENNETT.

Elbinsville, Pa.

[The suggestions are good. We are glad that our Brethren are moving in the direction of helping in this time of dire necessity. We suggest that, as there is an organization here, money be forwarded until the Districts get their organizations perfected. See Editorial on page 25.—ED.]

From the Appanoose Church, Kans.

ON Monday, Dec. 15, Bro. A. Hutchison commenced a series of meetings in this church, which he continued for two weeks. He held forth the Word in such plain and simple terms, that none could fail to understand.

On Friday, Dec. 19, Bro. Lemuel Hillery came to us and preached two sermons. Next day we held our council-meeting. As neither our elder, Bro. D. B. Barnhart, nor Bro. A. Hutchison was able to take charge of the business of the meeting, owing to ill health, Bro. Hillery presided over the meeting. Everything passed off harmoniously and with the best of feelings.

On Saturday night Bro. Hutchison again resumed his labors, and continued the meetings until Christmas Day. His health failed to such an extent that he could not attend the meeting on Christmas. He had previously announced a children's meeting for that day, but as his health would not permit, Bro. John Sherfy addressed the audience on that occasion. Bro. Hutchison preached to us on Saturday evening and on Sunday forenoon, which closed the meetings. On Monday he returned to his home at McPherson, Kans.

Although we saw no immediate results of our meetings, we feel sure that many are counting the cost, and we hope they will soon make their return, and join in with the people of God!

Echoes from the Highway.

AT present Southern California is fairly well supplied with ministers. We do not think it best to let them spend the winter in idleness, therefore quite a number of meetings have been held, and are now in progress, and a number of appointments are made for the future. A series of meetings is being carried on at Tropico, brethren Neher, Metzger, and others, doing the preaching. One was baptized at that point recently. At Covina quite a number of meetings were held; also at Glendora. Brethren Moore, Lehmer, Heiney, Myers and others are doing the preaching. Brethren Myers and Megie are holding a series of meetings near Anaheim in Orange County, at a new point. Regular meetings are held at Lordsburgh, Eswena and this place. We contemplate holding a series of meetings here soon. Thus the work of sowing the seed goes on, and we hope the result will be a bountiful harvest.

Bro. W. W. Horning, who has been, for some time, on the Pacific Coast in the North, has just arrived, and will be another addition to the ministerial force. The combined efforts of the seventeen ministers, now in this part of California, ought to do valiant work for the Master's kingdom.

The winter, so far, has been unusually warm and pleasant. To the newcomers from the frozen East, the climate is a marvel. It is difficult to clearly understand it is really a Christmas Day with the temperature at eighty-one degrees in the shade, and tables supplied with a profusion of strawberries, peas, tomatoes, green corn, and other vegetables, freshly gathered from the gardens. Yet, with all those blessings, people do not seem to realize how thankful they ought to be to their Heavenly Father for his many good gifts,—especially the gift of his dear Son, to whom we should show our gratitude by obedience to his Word. We should do good to him, by manifesting, to the least of his disciples, a spirit of true, substantial charity. If our Blessed Master were on earth in person, and in need of food or clothing, how willing his disciples would be to help! The same kind of love will prompt us to do to his, as we would feel to do to HIM. J. S. FLORY.

The Kansas City Meeting.

Though the congregations were small, yet the attention, paid to the Word preached, was good. The Hall was well filled at the last meeting.

The love-feast was an impressive one. Twenty-four communicants surrounded the Lord's tables. One dear soul who had wandered away, returned to the fold, during these meetings.

There will be preaching at the Chelsea Park school-house, Kansas City, Kans., every third Sunday, at 11 A. M. The place of meeting is one and one-half blocks from the Elevated Railroad. All interested in the above meetings should come whenever they can do so. One of the Kansas City daily papers says, in speaking of the work and the church: "Since last Thursday night the Dunkards have been holding a series of interesting meetings at London Heights Hall. There is no organization of these people here, but it is thought that an organization will be effected in the near future. I. H. Crist, of Gardner, is the leader in the movement. The Dunkards found their belief in the New Testament Scriptures just as the Savior taught them. They are a little like the Baptists, but differ on the rite of baptism. The Dunkards baptize with the forward motion, and three times, saying, 'In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.' They hold their Communion services at night always; for the Testament says, 'They sung a hymn and went out, and it was night.' A supper of bread, meat and water always precedes the Communion at which they use wine and unleavened bread. They also observe the ceremony of the washing of feet, as taught in John 13." ALBERT SHARP.

The Little Church at Keuka, Florida.

YESTERDAY we listened to a sermon by Bro. E. J. Neher here in the church, in which he presented the various phases of the great invitation, and the excuses that were made by those bidden to the great supper. The thought strongly impressed was this, that there is no legal excuse for not accepting, but, upon the other hand, there are many infallible proofs why all should at once accept. Because the first did not accept of the invitation, and made excuses, they could not partake of his supper.

A few have been made willing, since we are here, to turn their hearts to God, and there is one more applicant,—an old gray-haired father (a native citizen). May there be others, here and elsewhere, to hear the great invitation ere it is too late.

This little body of members is active in Sunday-school and church work. This is as it should be. From the Sunday-school came most of the late additions, and as I listened to the quarterly report, I found that forty-two had been the average attendance for the quarter. Oh! what an amount of good may have been learned and stored away for days to come! If a small church, like this, may have such an advantage, what might some of our larger congregations do?

It has been said, and truly too, that the Sunday-school is the nursery to the church, and if there are any congregations in our Brotherhood, not yet provided with Sunday-schools, let me entreat all such to commence at once. Bring in the young, teach the little ones and older ones too!. There is much to be learned, and there is food for all in the Good Book,—the Bible, when the proper effort is put forth. Many, who are upon the highways, need the Bread of Life brought to them in the Sunday-school and thus you may create a taste for better things.

The song service should be adapted to the minds of young and old. It should create a feeling of love and sympathy for the good. Thus impressions may be stamped upon the youth, not easily forgotten. The injunction is to bring up the young in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. May God's blessings be with all engaged in the good cause! J. C. LAHMAN.

From Mt. Vernon Church, Augusta Co., Va.

THE present winter has already given us a snow-fall of forty inches.

The District Meeting of the Second District of Virginia will be held at Mt. Vernon church, Augusta Co., Va., May 14 and 15, 1891. Brethren are cordially invited.

On Sunday night, Nov. 30, we closed an interesting series of meetings. Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Bridgewater, Va., came to us Nov. 15, and labored faithfully and earnestly in the word and doctrine, preaching twenty-one sermons, which were edifying and instructive.

As an immediate result three young members were added to the fold. We hope that others may soon heed the many good lessons they have learned. At this writing the year closes, and we naturally recount the work done during the year. Our field of labor is large, embracing many Counties, in four of which some work is being done. Twenty have been added to the church during the year. For them our great desire is that they may be faithful. E. D. KENDIG.

Fisherville, Va.

From the Sugar Creek Church, Ohio.

A VERY interesting series of meetings was held at Ragersville, commencing Dec. 13 and closing Dec. 23. Bro. Reuben Shroyer, from Stark County, Ohio, was with us and preached fourteen sermons in all.

The weather was favorable and the attendance good. The house was often filled to its utmost, with attentive listeners. Bro. Shroyer shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. The sermon on "The Conditions of Salvation," convinced many of the correctness of the doctrine of the Gospel, as taught and practiced by the Brethren.

Although none have been added to the church, we are convinced that deep and lasting impressions have been made on the minds of many, and we hope to see a bountiful ingathering of the seed sown during these meetings. The members were all greatly built up in the faith, and we pray that we may all try to carry out the principles of the Gospel, and heed the instructions, warnings and entreaties, given by our brother while with us.

Notes by the Way.

SINCE leaving Fulton County, Ill., many thoughts, both sad and joyous, have passed through my mind. Sad, because we had to say farewell to loved ones, now far away, whose kind wishes still linger in our ears. Often I think of the glorious meetings, the fervent prayers, the spirited songs and holy salutations, enjoyed with our dear brethren of Illinois. May they be steadfast and immovable in their profession, and the victory shall be theirs!

Yesterday, Dec. 19, I was made to feel sad. I visited our dear old brother, John J. Thomas and family. They are lamenting the loss of a comfortable home. It was consumed by the flames about six o'clock, on the morning of Dec. 28th. Part of the household goods were saved with considerable difficulty. Bro. John is suffering from a burn on his head, which he received from a falling piece of timber, while attempting to go up-stairs. The afflicted ones desire the prayers of God's children in their behalf! JOHN HORATTER.

To Our Friends in Missouri and Elsewhere.

Our family, together with Robert Vaughn, Wm. Weals and sister Naomi Vogley, our niece, started from Charleston, Mo., Dec. 18, for Galesburg, Kans. We had fine weather and an enjoyable trip, with the exception of Mr. Weals, who, by a misstep, fell over a culvert and broke a bone in his shoulder.

We saw some very fine country on our trip, but like this about as well as any we saw. We had a lay-over at Leroy, Coffey Co., Kans., but were kindly cared for by Bro. Hiram Buck and wife. Next morning their son took us over the Neosha River, where we met the desired train.

Dec. 20 we arrived at Galesburg, where we were met by kind brethren and conveyed to their home in Galesburg. Next morning Bro. Register conveyed us to the Brethren church, some distance from town, where we attended Sunday-school and became acquainted with a number of brethren and sisters. Bro. Merril Hodgden and his kind family cared for us until Dec. 23, when our goods arrived. We feel thankful to the Giver of all Good for his care over us!

From Woodbury Church, Bedford Co., Pa.

WE are in the midst of very inclement weather, deep snows, and it is storming to such an extent that snow-drifts in the roads make it impossible to travel. Indeed, it seems we are having an old-fashioned winter. It brings with it sickness and death to the human family. A good many old people are passing away. Among the sick in our church, sister Snyder, wife of Bro. Simon Snyder, near Curryville, Pa., and Aunt Betsy Replogle, wife of our elder, J. B. Replogle, are not expected to recover, yet we hope God may yet spare them to remain with us.

Bro. John B. Fluke, of Loysburgh, Pa., will commence a series of meetings in the Woodbury church, Jan. 10. Some time in February, Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Pa., will engage in a similar effort at the Holsinger church, near Baker's Summit, Pa. As quite a number of such meetings are being held around us, surely some good work should be done in the name of the Lord. D. S. REPLOGLE.

Postponed Meeting.

In consequence of the inclemency of the weather, the Ministerial Meeting of Western Maryland, which was to take place at the Manor church, seven miles south of Hagerstown, along the line of the Washington County Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., has been postponed until Jan. 30 and 31, commencing at 10 A. M., Jan. 30. A general invitation is extended. The Program is as follows:

Jan. 30 at 10 A. M., the meeting will open by singing and prayer.

First Subject. "What are the Hinderances to the Brethren building up Churches in Cities and Towns, and how shall they be Overcome?" Introduced by W. S. Reichard and A. B. Barnhart.

Second Subject. — "Whom does the Apostle mean when he says, 'Set them to Judge who are Least Esteemed in the Church?' 1 Cor. 6: 4." Introduced by Samuel Foltz and Joseph Thomas.

Third Subject. Explain the difference between the Jewish Passover and the Lord's Supper, as instituted by Christ. Introduced by David Long and John Brindle.

Fourth Subject. "Who are the 'Meek' and How and When shall they Inherit the Earth? Matt. 5: 5." Introduced by D. F. Stouffer and D. V. Long.

Fifth Subject.- "Who are Meant by the Apostle in the Clause beginning at the Word Predestinated? Eph. 1: 11." Introduced by V. Reichard and D. Ausherman.

Sixth Subject. — Explain 2 Cor. 12: 2. Introduced by Daniel Wolf and John Roland.

Seventh Subject.—State some objections urged by Single Immersionists against Trine Immersion, and prove why they are not well founded. Introduced by Eli Yourtee and N. Martin.

Eighth Subject. "What are the Duties of the Minister in his Relation to the Sunday-school?" Introduced by S. B. Shoop and D. Emmert.

From Morrill, Brown Co., Kans.

Bro. J. S. Mohler commenced a series of meetings in the South Morrill church, Dec. 15, and continued until the 28th. The interest, and attendance was good and, we believe, good impressions were made. While the children of God were made to rejoice, sinners were made to feel the need of their Savior. An an immediate result one tender lamb was taken into the fold of Christ, — a dear young sister. May the Lord ever help her to walk in newness of life!

Bro. Mohler's sermons were practical and to the point, and we feel that a debt of gratitude is due to our dear brother for his earnest labor while with us. The way has been made more clear, dark clouds are passing by and sunshine is beginning to brighten the church again. May we all let our light so shine that the world may see our good works, and glorify our Father in heaven.

D. B. Stover.

Literary Notes.

The Pulpit, which has heretofore been published monthly, will commence Jan. 1st to be issued weekly. It will be, we think, the first venture of the kind in this country and judging from its past standard and the results of similar publications across the water, it can not fail of success. It will be 16 large pages, giving five or six sermons in full each week and be published at the price of $2 00 a year. Address, The Lakeside Publishing Co., 41 Franklin St, Buffalo, N. Y., for a sample copy.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

DEARDORFF.—At his late home in New Lexington, Ohio, Oct. 29, after more than a year of suffering from dropsical affections and a complication of diseases, Benjamin Deardorff, aged 66 years, 10 months and 6 days.

Bro. Deardorff was born, and lived in, Lanier township to within a few years of his death. Having the advantages of a good education early in life he engaged in the profession of teaching, and was for several years, one of the most advanced pioneer teachers in the country.

He never lost his interest in the cause of education and, of late years, took great pleasure in relating his early struggles in the school-room and on the farm. Being a provident, industrious man, he was fortunate, in early life, in securing a good home, where he lived during the raising of his family. Bro. Deardorff was a public-spirited man, taking an active part in everything pertaining to the interests of his neighborhood, State and nation, holding places of honor and trust in the gift of his friends. For some years he held the position of Commissioner of Preble County, and belonged to the Board of County Examiners.

The Eaton Register, of Nov. 6, 1890, furnishes data for the tribute above, and it is but due the noble life of our departed brother to further state that he was passionately fond of music, and his cheering songs in our church and Sunday-school will be missed. He was strictly temperate in his habits all through life, never having used tobacco, intoxicants, coffee, nor tea but seldom, and never having eaten any meat of any kind. He united with the church of the Brethren in November, 1886, and lived a devoted, consecrated life to the service of his Master. The first of last February he was anointed according to the apostle's instruction, and ever afterwards expressed a full resignation to the Master's will. A few weeks before his decease he was struck with paralysis, from which he never fully rallied.

In his dying hours he expressed much confidence in his Savior and earnestly desired to "go home." He was laid to rest in the Wheatville cemetery Oct. 31, 1890, after appropriate funeral services had been held at the church, conducted by Eld. Jacob Rife and the brethren from 1 Thess. 4: 13 15.

A devoted wife, five daughters and three sons are left to bear their sorrow in their stricken home. Two brothers and one sister remain out of a family of nine to share their grief.

A. G. Crosswhite.

MILLER. - In the Lower Cumberland church, Pa., Dec. 19, 1890, Bro. Jacob C. Miller, aged 84 years, 9 months and 6 days.

Deceased was born in York County, near Hanover, where he lived until about six or eight years ago, when he, with his son, moved to the Lower Cumberland church. His remains were taken to Hanover, where he was buried in the cemetery belonging to the Mennonite church. Funeral services by Eld. Peter Brown and the writer.

David Nibley.

FLICKINGER. — In the Maple Grove church, Norton Co, Kans., Dec. 22, of diphtheria, Maggie, youngest child of friend John and sister Flickinger, aged 6 years, 11 months and 22 days. Funeral services by Bro. G. M. Throne and the writer from Luke 12: 40.

J. R. Garber.

JARVIS. In the Loudenville congregation, Holmes Co., Ohio, Dec. 10, 1890, Bro. John Jarvis, aged 70 years, 11 months and 18 days.

Deceased leaves a wife, six children and twelve grandchildren to mourn their loss, but they are not without a hope that their loss is his gain. Funeral services by the writer, assisted by a Baptist minister, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends.

David Brubaker.

HUBER.—In Rocky Ford, Colo., Dec. 17, 1890, of consumption, Dr. L. Huber.

John J. Hoover.

MILLER. In the Sugar Creek church, Allen Co., Ohio, Nov 6, 1890, of diphtheria, Arba Dale, son of Bro. Daniel L and sister Lucinda Miller, aged 7 years, 2 months and 11 days.

Funeral services by Bro. Jesse Stutsman, of Darke County, Ohio, assisted by Bro. Samuel Driver.

Geo W. Miller.

HOPWOOD. - At the residence of her son, Bro. G. W. Hopwood, at Deep River, Iowa, Dec. 16, 1890, sister Ann Hopwood (maiden name Buser), wife of William Hopwood, aged 83 years, 8 months and 3 days.

Grandmother Hopwood, as she was generally called, was born in Botetourt County, Va., April 12, 1807. She was married to William Hopwood in Frederick, Md., Dec. 25, 1829, and has been a member of the Brethren church for nearly fifty years. There were eleven children born unto them,—four sons and seven daughters; all but one lived to reach manhood and womanhood. Among her descendants are sixty-three grandchildren and fifty six great grandchildren, of whom most are now living.

Grandma Hopwood was truly a mother to many and has had an almost innumerable number of friends, who came out to pay the last tribute of respect to the dear mother in Israel. She had an attack of sickness about June, 1888, and afterwards had something like a paralytic stroke, from which she never entirely recovered. Though she was not in the best of health since, she has still been able to come to meeting occasionally. She attended our love-feast in October, and felt bad about one hour before she passed away, but not worse, apparently, than at some other times. Then she fell asleep in Jesus without a struggle. She leaves a dear old father in Israel to mourn the loss of his dear wife with whom he has journeyed for nearly sixty one years. Only a few more days, and they can strike glad hands again where parting is known no more.

By her request, sometime before her departure, the funeral services were conducted by Eld. Jacob Brower, of South English, assisted by Bro. J. S Snyder, of Brooklyn, from Job 14: 14, "If a man die, shall he live again? All my appointed time will I wait till my change come." She selected her text probably about two years before her departure, since which time she has been waiting with patience for the change.

Two of his last wife's children are left to mourn their loss. The community has lost a good citizen, the church a faithful deacon, and the family a kind father. They have the sympathy of many friends. Funeral services by Eld. Peter Forney, assisted by brother John Ridenour.

He called for the elders and was anointed in the name of the Lord sometime before he departed this life. Uncle Daniel is missed in the church, as he was generally at his post of duty. We hope that he is at rest. Funeral services by brethren J. L. Jordan, A. Rodabaugh and A. Killingsworth.

J. A. Yost.

KIMES.—In the Sandy church, Columbiana County, Ohio, Dec. 23, 1890, sister Lovina Kimes, wife of Bro. John Kimes, aged 63 years, 5 months and 23 days.

The subject of the above notice leaves two children, ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild. She was an invalid for forty years. During the last twenty years she had to be handled like a child, and assisted in and out of bed, and carried wherever she wished to go. The writer, with other brethren and sisters, had occasional meetings at their residence, engaging in singing, prayers, and exhortations, which she enjoyed very much, until God relieved her of her suffering. Services by the writer from 2 Cor. 5: 1.

BY WM. BEERY.

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

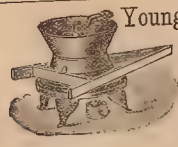
"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising."—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes" is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.



"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music."—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Respected Friend:

If an agent comes to your house and asks your wife to buy a Singer Sewing Machine "made exactly like the Singer was made thirty years ago," do you think she would want it? The chances are that she would prefer an improved light-running Singer machine such as they make at the present day.

If you are a farmer, and an agent would ask you to buy a McCormick reaper and mower, made exactly like the McCormick machine was made forty years ago, would you take the heavy, clumsy, horse-killing reaper when you can get the improved, light-running modern machine of the same name for less money? Then, do you suppose that a medicine made exactly as it was made a hundred years ago is as desirable as an improved medicine adapted to the diseases of to-day? There are now a number of diseases that were unknown to our forefathers; it has been less than forty years since Diphtheria made its appearance in this country; Gastritis, Diabetis, Bright's Disease are modern complaints, caused undoubtedly by Baking Powder and unwholesome cooking. HERBICURA is intended to cure all diseases known in olden times, as well as the diseases of the present day; — Pepsine and Stillingia are modern remedies intended for the cure of modern diseases, — these curative agents were discovered in recent years and were unknown one hundred years ago. A proper combination forms HERBICURA.

We guarantee that HERBICURA will do good in more cases than Sarsaparilla, or any other blood medicine, so artfully advertised. When you have tried other medicines to no purpose, then do not be discouraged, for HERBICURA may be just what you want.

HERBICURA is sold at a low price to introduce it more readily where it is not yet known.

HERBICURA is not an experiment.

HERBICURA is perfectly harmless.

On last Sunday we were very pleasantly and profitably relieved from preaching by brethren M. Claar and A. H. Stahl. At this time we have a good supply of ministerial help,—more than can be utilized at the pulpit, —but we hope that their being here will be none the less profitable on this account, as all seem to be busy at work and making good use of the time. We would be glad to have the Bible session last all the year. We enjoy the associations.

Bro. M. G. Brumbaugh, Professor of English and the Sciences in the Normal, the other evening gave a very practical and interesting lecture on the South. He was selected, by the Louisiana State Board of Education, for two seasons, to conduct Institutes and introduce Normal methods. Thus mingling with the Southern people, he has had opportunities of knowing whereof he affirms, and it is a real pleasure to learn of the great developments that are being made in the "Sunny South."

There seems to be a disposition, on the part of some of our brethren, to overload their arguments and positions taken with evidence, whether it is applicable or not. Every quotation thus given, instead of adding strength to the argument or position, weakens it; and besides, it is positively wrong to wrest Scripture from its original intention and meaning. Biblical interpretation should be carefully studied by us all. If we hold a position for which we have no Scriptural evidence, let us say so, and if we want to uphold it, let us do it because we believe it to be reasonable, and not try to prove a thing right by Scripture for which there is none. We charge other churches for misapplying Scripture. Let us be careful that we don't do the same thing. Don't think that our notions must be sustained and defended at all hazards. This is all a mistake, and we ought to be humble enough to see it.

THE OBJECT OF OUR BIBLE SESSIONS.

Our Bible Session has started in with encouraging prospects, and is quite in advance over that held last year. As we daily meet together for the purpose of studying the Scriptures, we are reminded of the schools of the prophets, as held in the days of King David and the other ancient worthies whose names stand out so prominently in Bible history. It is a fact every-where acknowledged by all people, that, in teaching the arts and sciences, and all other branches of human knowledge, the teacher must know more than the ones he is expected to teach. Why should the teaching of the Bible be an exception to this rule? There is certainly no reason for such an idea, neither have we any Gospel precedent.

The disciples took a three years' course under the instructions of the greatest Teacher that the world ever beheld. The apostle Paul took a thorough course in the school of the prophets, and a post-graduate course at the feet of Gamaliel, so that when the Lord called him he was well equipped for the great work that the Master had for him to do. In the Arabian wilderness he systematized and put in order his forces, and when the field fairly opened he entered to fight and conquer. To his adopted son, in the faith, his admonition was, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Yes, my brother, preparation is what we all need, and we can not well have too much of it. The teaching, perhaps, is not so much as getting down to solid work, and making Scripture study the "one thing" for the time being. It is sometimes said that we can study our Bibles just as well at home. Perhaps so. The same may be said of the sciences and all other studies, but do we do it? Our surroundings have much to do with our work in life. It might be said that we could preach as well without an audience as with it. But can we? The circumstances would not be favorable. To preach well we need inspirations, and an audience constitutes the essential condition. So it is in all work. Inspiration is needed, and this we can have only when the necessary conditions are present. These we try to make in our Bible Sessions, and the more earnest Bible students we can get together, the greater will be the success of our work.

An elder wrote us to learn the object of our work and how it is conducted. He said that, while some approved of it, others feared that harm might grow out of it. We explained the best we could, and then invited him to come and see for himself, as that which we see with our eyes and hear with our ears we generally believe. It is a work to which we take pleasure in inviting inspection. Scripture study is a good thing, and always in season. And yet it may be studied in a way that will not be profitable. Wrong interpretations may be made and received, so that a safeguard should be thrown around this teaching as well as any other. And a good way to do this is to have those of age and experience to be present at the Sessions and see how the teaching is done and what is taught. Hence we invite, indeed we urge, our brethren to come and be with us.

We believe that all of our brethren interested in these Sessions are a unit in purpose; and that is, that they may be a benefit to those who attend, and through them a benefit to the church.

We hope that we are all interested in the success of our church. And we labor for it in proportion as we feel this interest. If our interest is deep and well-founded, we are willing, not only to labor, but also to sacrifice, that the great work may go forward. And how shall we do this best? We have thought of this much and seriously, because we have set our heart on doing something in this direction. After considerable careful thought, we have come to the conclusion that there is no way we can do better service for the cause of Christ than by helping those who are to bear the burden of the work.

To do this there are two ways. One is, to afford them the needed help while in the work. By this we mean, to give them the needed encouragement and support while in the work, so that they can, for the time being, give their whole attention to the ministry.

The other is, to aid them in the preparation for the work. The farmer, the mechanic, the physician and, indeed, those entering any calling need preparation. And on the thoroughness of this preparation success largely depends. Work, to those who are well prepared, is much easier than to those who are not prepared—and they can do more of it and do it better. So it is with those who are called to do special work for the church. The better the preparation they have, the more and the better work they can do. Hence the preparation is the important subject for our consideration. And here is where our first efforts should be put forth. After our workers are well equipped, then, as they go forth, see that they are given the necessary encouragement and support, and success will attend our work.

While others are rightly engaged in providing the necessary funds to carry on the work, we are trying to direct our efforts in helping to give preparation to the workers, which we believe to be quite as essential as the other—and by counting the two together will produce a power that will tell for Christ and the enlargement of his kingdom.

Both departments of Christian effort need the aid and sympathy of the church, and we believe that they will get it by all who are truly interested in the cause of the Master.

Michael Zug 1893

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

HEAVEN.

THERE'S a land for saints prepared,
Far from pain and sorrow here,
High in heaven, bright and fair: Always there.
Saints will dwell forever there,
Free from toil, and sin, and care,
Pure, eternal joys to share. Always there.

CHORUS.—Always there, Always there,
Where the rose of Sharon's blooming, Always there.
When the toils of Life are o'er,
On that bright and vernal shore,
To be happy evermore. Always there.

There's the pure the crystal stream,
Mortal eyes have never seen,
Nothing earth in heaven's beam: Always there.
Glorious beauty! theme sublime,
There on shores of living green
All along the starry sheen: Always there. CHO.

There's the tree of endless life,
Far away from cereal strife,
Standing there in Paradise. Always there.
Healing leaves, destroying death,
Sweet perfume with every breath,
Fruits of joy, eternal bliss. Always there. CHO.

There is Sharon's lovely rose,
In that land of sweet repose,
None so fair in heaven grows: Always there.
Heaven's breezes softly blow,
Sweet its fragrance, none can know,
Till we pass from earth below: Always there.—CHO.

Christ will there in beauty stand,
Chief, above the heavenly band,
Full of pity, reach his hand. Always there.
Lead us on all o'er that Land,
Drink of fountains on the sand,
Gently doing his commands. Always there.—CHO.

There we'll meet our Christian friends,
Where no partings ever end,
And [illegible] Always there.
Parents meet their children there,
Husband, wife to greet again,
Ever free from grief and sin. Always there.—CHO.

There in youthful beauty bloom,
In the crimson'd room,
Far away from mortal gloom. Always there.
Death, to me, to us welcome,
Ever there to dwell at home,
Singing glad redemption's songs: Always there.—CHO.

DEATH.—A NEW TREATMENT OF AN OLD SUBJECT.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

ON the right hand and on the left, before us and behind us, above us and beneath us are solemn mysteries which the lore of human knowledge has never penetrated. Nature is full of them; life is full of them; and death.—ah, death is all mystery, hiding in shadows impenetrable and awful.

The irresistible impulse of the human soul, to know that which is unknown, beats against the boundaries of that dim and dreadful world, peering anxiously but vainly into the gloom beyond, straining to see and hearkening to hear the secret which has been kept forever. This much, however, we know that death is not the normal condition of the creature. It has been imposed upon him by circumstances over which he had no control.

One man, standing as the representative of the whole race, opened, by transgression, the fatal door through which death entered the world. All the generations of men have suffered the consequences of that one act of that one man,—an act which we did not prompt, and which we could not prevent. This is one of the mysteries of the divine government, which has been the fruitful source of controversy and doubt,—why the human family was placed in such relation to its Founder, and why the act of one man should involve the untold miseries and horrors of all succeeding ages. Why, also, are men now held strictly responsible for courses of life which they follow as much, or perhaps, more on account of inheritance than by personal and original volition?

It is neither profitable nor safe to wander too far into these unexplored regions of metaphysical speculation, for the reason that our minds are too circumscribed to take in every point of view, and too undisciplined to draw the right conclusions from facts so far removed from the ordinary channels of human knowledge.

Many a "why," in relation to Providence and theology must be left for the solution of eternity,—true wisdom teaching the soul to trust where it can not understand, and to wait until our present limitations are lost in the boundless range of immortality. We may be sure of one thing that if he shall judge whose knowledge and whose justice is infinite, the whole question of environment in its relation to responsibility will, in every individual case, be carefully and accurately weighed.

It is pleasing, and perhaps not unprofitable to dwell upon the deduction that, without the agency of sin, there would have been, in the whole world, no knowledge or experience of death.

Christian optimism has sought to mitigate the horrors and illumine the darkness of dissolution, by calling death the "door to life," and the "gate to glory," but all these beautiful allegories are like the flowers which we lay upon the graves of our departed,—very soon they are withered, and beneath them death is no less death, and the grave is no less a grave. This is not the kind of gate to glory which God might be expected to build. Of all the countless myriads of men only two passed through God's gate, which he builded for the exit of his children from this world, and their entrance into the glory world.

Death is not God's gate; it is the devil's gate, and even the saintliest saint can not do more than to submit, with pious resignation and heroic trust and courage, because he knows that Christ has spoiled the despoiler, and led captivity captive. But for the Savior's sweet presence and blessed intervention, it would still be what it has always been, "a horror of great darkness."

We may, not unreasonably, infer that, without the entrance of sin into the world, the state of society would have been perfect in every aspect. Every individual would have been in possession of unimpaired powers, animated by a completely dominant and natural impulse toward knowledge and wisdom on the one hand, and perfect moral rectitude on the other.

As men advanced far into life, adding century to century of blessed existence, the constantly increasing ripeness of wisdom and sanctity would have eventually fitted them for a more exalted and sublime sphere of life, so that at length, upon a set day, and amid the glad shouts and hallelujahs of assembled multitudes, one after another, or many at once, would take passage in glittering chariots, drawn by fiery steeds, and drive along the highway of the sky to brighter worlds, their friends coming to see them off, rejoicing in the happy translation, and inviting their oft return. This is God's gate, and though sin shut it, redemption will open it again, and the scene, here depicted, may soon become far more real in actual experience, than in the colors of fancy.

It is extremely interesting to note how the recent discoveries of science corroborate the utterances of revelation, and set one of Paul's mystic passages in a new and peculiar light. In Eph. 2: 2, the apostle calls Satan "the prince of the power of the air," and in Heb. 2: 14, he tells us that this same Satan possesses the power of death. Putting these two facts together, may we not discover their relation to the recently demonstrated microbe theory of disease? It has been proven beyond all doubt that nearly every human disease, cholera, consumption, fevers, maladies of the throat, lungs, liver, stomach, bowels, muscles, bones, nerves, are, with few exceptions, or none, the direct result of small living germs or microbes, that float around in the air, and infect the human system, producing sickness and death. These germs are visible under a powerful microscope, and medical experts have learned to detect and classify them.

To-day the absorbing topic and effort of medical science is to find substances which will destroy or neutralize these germs, and thereby save the patient's life. Prof. Koch, of Berlin, Germany, has discovered a substance which will destroy the microbe of tubercular consumption, and cure that dreadful disease. It is confidently expected that, in a short time, this new field of medical discovery will cover all the contagious diseases, and greatly lessen the dangers and mitigate the sufferings of human life. But think for a moment of this "Prince of the air," exercising the dread power of death by filling the atmosphere with deadly microbes, breeding them in swamps and sewers, in charnel houses, and dead bodies of beasts, compounding and classifying them in some hidden laboratory of mist, and mountain-cave, and night-wind, and scattering them broad-cast for millions of men, women and children to breathe in, and sicken and die. Worthy employment, and cunning art for the arch-fiend and implacable enemy of mankind! When, therefore, he shall be hurled from his high place into the dungeon of nether darkness, will not the fell influence depart, the ambient air and health return to the myriad sick, even as the blush of the morning when the night mists have rolled away? Aye, it shall come to pass that the life of a man shall be as the life of a tree, and he shall be yet a child who has seen a hundred years. However it may be done, it shall be. God has spoken it, and the zeal of the Lord will perform it. Christ will bring more abundant life to the living, as well as new life to the dead. The earth shall be full of his glory. Allelujah! Amen!

LET US MAKE OTHERS HAPPY.

BY W. W. CUPP.

WE do not need to go far from our own door to find a great deal of misery and woe. In every vicinity there are those who are made unhappy either by physical or mental pain. Some few of these it takes a higher power to relieve, but many of us could surely do much more than we are doing to make others happy.

Where shall we make others happy? Here on earth. "Let us make some one happy here," are the words of one of the most prominent infidels that ever lived. They are indeed good words and express a noble sentiment, but can we give true happiness to any one without giving the person reason to believe that it will be a lasting happiness?

"Oh! many a shaft at random sent,
Finds mark the archer little meant,
And many a word at random spoken
May soothe or wound the heart that's broken."

Little do we know the value of kind words until we are in anguish ourselves and are relieved by some kind-hearted person, who knows how to use kind words, so as to give the best result. Many a son has been driven into the cold world for the want of only a kind word or tender act. Many a brother has been driven into evil company by a sister who thoughtlessly gave him an unkind word, or simply remained silent when she might have encouraged him to be good by one kind word.

Many of our rich brethren and sisters, too often have their tables laden with good things and, perhaps, invite some of their rich neighbors. Think, brethren, how much you may help that poor neighbor of yours by giving him a few of the mere necessities of life! You may cheer him to such an extent that he may have a better opinion of the world and also of God's people.

Some of us may be compelled to say, "Earthly gifts have I none, but can we not give that which we have and become richer by giving? Can we not teach the way and so lead some one to Christ and thus give eternal life?" Think of these things, for the grave does not end life.

LOST!

BY DENNIS WEIMER.

Number Three.

HITHERTO we have been trying to show how believers become lost and bewildered, and that, by faith in Jesus, as their Lord and Redeemer, they are enabled to find their way out of the snares of the devil.

We desire now to notice the condition of those who have never exercised faith towards God,—why it is, and the dreadful result. All who have not faith, are lost somewhere. To simply believe, without knowledge, is to be lost. To believe in an object or personage that has not demonstrated saving power in himself, to an absolute certainty, is to be lost. Jesus Christ has demonstrated this power in his miracles by healing the sick, making the deaf to hear the blind to see, the lame to walk, the dead to arise, and, finally, by passing under death, and coming out victorious over the same, triumphantly ascending to the mansions on high. We, who believe in him, know whereof we speak. There is no guess work about it, and in the heavens above, or in the earth beneath, there is no power able to pluck us out of his hand, while we believe.

But how about those who have not heard of him? While "there is no other power known under heaven whereby men can be saved,"—how can they believe unless they hear? It is utterly impossible to believe in a personage or object of which we know nothing. They may not, in the end, be beaten with as many stripes as those who have heard, but evidently they ARE lost from God and his truth, from Christ and his salvation. Hence the great importance of preaching the Word to every creature in all nations. Think of the millions of lost souls for the want of a preacher, and how shall they preach, except they be sent?

Thousands upon thousands perish in the land of prodigals. These have heard the truth even from their childhood days; they know the truth; they know that in their Father's house is plenty and to spare. While they are prodigals in a strange land, they are in our midst, surrounded by Christian associations and Gospel influences. They have left the soul, and have gone down into the flesh, to feed the low, degraded, sordid propensities of their lower nature. May the good Lord help all such to return to their Father's house and speedily repair the damage that has been done by their long absence.

"But," says one, "I am what the world calls a good man. I am moral, virtuous, honest and open-handed. I am as good as any of your church members, and I believe that men and women can be as good out of the church as in it."

We will now examine your case and see whether you are not sadly lost. Your case is similar to that of a rich young man that came to Jesus, desiring to know what he must do to obtain eternal life. When Jesus rehearsed to him the requirements of the law, he said he had done all these from his youth. The Savior did not dispute this, but said, "One thing thou lackest." This is one of the saddest cases on record. Jesus looked on him and loved him, but the young man went away sorrowing. So it is with you, dear moralist. You are doing, and probably have been from the days of your youth, all things that constitute good morals, but one thing,—one single thing,—is lacking yet, that you may obtain eternal life.

That one thing may be illustrated in this supposed case: A landlord employs a servant to conduct his business. He gives this servant written instructions how to run the farm, and authority to sell and buy. He tells him to deposit his money in the bank and draw on him when he needs money. The man takes charge of the affair, follows the instructions, sells stock and produce, but while depositing the money, he does so in his own name, and draws it out in the same way. After some time he finds that the expenditures exceed the proceeds and that the last dollar has been drawn out. He now comes to the proprietor whom he knows to be abundantly able to supply the wants, and he says, "What must I do to save my credit?" The landlord refers him to the regulations, and the servant says: "I have done all that from the beginning." Then the landlord tells him, "You lack one thing; you must stop doing business in your own name, and do business in my name; deposit in my name, and draw out also in my name, and that will correct the whole trouble."

There are numbers of these moralists whom the Lord loves. The church desires them to accept the name of the Great Author and Proprietor of all things, but many of them turn away sorrowing, being lost and ruined for the want of one single thing. Dear sinner, accept this name, if you would be safe!

"SUPPER ENDED."

BY JAS. R. GISH.

"And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's Son, to betray him."—John 13: 2.

THERE has been, and perhaps still is, some difficulty in the minds of some people, and of some of our own brethren as well, in trying to reconcile the above Scripture with our practice in washing feet before eating the Supper. Some have concluded that the practice is wrong and have washed feet after the eating of the Supper. But it is clear that Jesus was eating with his disciples after he had washed their feet. See verse 12. "So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again" (that was to the table), Jesus said: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." Verse 21. Upon being questioned as to who it was, Jesus answered, "He it is to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it." Verse 28. "Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him." Verse 26.

This makes it plain that Jesus ate the Supper with his disciples after he had washed their feet. But now comes the difficulty. John, in verse 2, plainly says, "Supper being ended." "No," one says, "I think Supper was only prepared." Another says, "It means that supper was rather come." So say some of the learned theologians. I heard another say once that the supper was only prepared and was setting on the hearth to keep it warm. Webster defines the word ended as follows: "To finish, to close, to conclude."

Now, did John tell the truth? Was the supper eaten, was it finished, was it closed, when Judas betrayed Christ? Read verse 2 carefully. John has said nothing about feet-washing. He has only said that supper was ended when Judas betrayed Christ. And so it was. When Judas received the sop, he went immediately out and betrayed Christ. That was after the supper was eaten,—ended. John does not give us a full, connected statement of the different events as they occurred. After making the statement as he did about Judas and the supper being ended, etc., he then goes on and gives us his statement about the washing of the disciples' feet. Then, when we come to verses 26 and 27, John again refers to Judas, and takes him up where he left him, saying, "And after the sop Satan entered into him," etc "And after the sop, Judas betrayed Christ." So, supper being ended,—eaten, the devil put it into the heart of Judas to betray him.

SAVED BY FAITH ONLY.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

UPON the above subject we quote the following from the Christian Advocate, the church organ of the Methodist church, South, published at Nashville, Tenn., bearing date of Nov. 1, 1890. "We can not too often assert the old Protestant Pauline doctrine, that men are saved by faith only. To cut down this doctrine at any point, is to invite the most disastrous consequences. To place reliance on ceremony or legal enactment of any kind, is to fall from grace. Not by faith plus this or that or the other thing, but by faith only are we justified before God. There is no other condition."

The Apostle James seriously confronts the above statement with the following interrogatives: "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? Can faith save him?" "Wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" "Ye see then how that by works a man is justified and not by faith only." The author of the foregoing quotation says, "We are saved by faith only," while the apostle James says, "not by faith only." That sounds well nigh like a flat contradiction. I remind the reader that "he that is sent of God speaketh the things of God." I add that the Scriptures teach, that men are saved by the following different things:

1. Faith. "Thy faith hath saved thee." Luke 7: 50.

2. Hope. "For we are saved by hope." Rom. 8: 24.

3. Grace. "For by grace are ye saved." Eph. 2: 8.

4. Baptism. "Even Baptism doth also now save us." 1 Peter 3: 21.

5. God. "Who hath saved us," etc. 2 Tim. 1: 9.

6. "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." 1 John 1: 7.

7. The apostle Peter bids us, in that noted Pentecostal sermon, "save yourselves from this untoward generation." Hence the Divine Record does teach us, that if we are saved it will be by faith; but not by "faith only." If we are saved, it will be by hope; but not by hope alone. It is equally true that if we are saved, it will be by grace; but not by grace alone. The same is true of baptism. In short, "man doth not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

A farmer, some time since, in eulogizing one of his faithful working animals said, that the horse had raised him thirty acres of corn. The statement was questioned, yet the farmer insisted that he was correct; that the animal rendered him the service named. It is almost needless to say that there were other important auxiliaries and factors in producing the crop of corn. There were tools, seed and soil, an intelligent hand to direct the work, besides all, a Great and a Good Being to send showers and sunshine. No one of the above agents alone would have produced the crop. While faith lies at the base of the economy of grace, for "without faith it is impossible to please God," yet it must be a "faith that worketh by love," for "faith without works is dead, being alone."

The writer in the foregoing quotation says, "To place reliance on ceremony or legal enactment of any kind is to fall from grace." How about that vast multitude of anxious seekers, who presented themselves on Pentecost with the inquiry, "What must we do?" To them Peter replied, "Repent and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and you shall receive the Holy Ghost." Does not this language of Peter indicate, that Peter placed a good deal of reliance on the ceremony of baptism?

The apostle Paul, at his conversion, inquired: "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" The Lord replied: "Arise, go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do." When Ananias, the one sent of God, met the anxious penitent seeker, his address was, "Why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."

This again indicates reliance on ceremony,—on the legal enactment of baptism. When Christ came to Peter with a basin and towel, Peter sternly refused to have his feet washed, to which Christ replied, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." This reply clearly indicates that Christ placed no little reliance on the ceremony of feet-washing; hence, to place reliance on ceremony or legal enactment, is NOT an evidence of falling from grace.

The author quoted calls this "faith-alone" doctrine, a Pauline doctrine. I remark that the apostle Paul, nowhere in all his writings, gives sanction to such a theory: they prove something entirely different. James squarely teaches that we are saved "not by faith only."

If the reader will go with me to the "Methodist Discipline," I will show him the source of this "faith-alone" doctrine. On page 19, under article 9, "of the justification of man," we have the following: "We are accounted righteous before God only for the merit of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ by faith, and not for our own works or deservings. Wherefore that we are justified by faith only is a most wholesome doctrine, and very full of comfort."

The premises that there is no merit or deservings in our works is true, but the conclusion "that we are justified by faith only," is nowhere taught in all the Holy Record. Hence, instead of this faith-alone doctrine being a Pauline doctrine, it is an error, a doctrine of man, found in the "Methodist Discipline," and largely taught and asserted by their press and pulpit. I therefore pen the warning, Beware of "teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." Matt. 15: 9.

"THERE is nothing so silly, or in its own way so under-bred, as that fluid confidence which tells all its affairs on the slightest provocation—unless it be that want of delicacy which asks for what is not voluntarily given and what is not warranted by the terms of friendship."

"LIFE must be measured by action, not by time; for a man may die old at thirty, and young at eighty; nay, the one lives after death, and the other perished before he died."

Church Work in Washington.

HUSBAND and self have been living here nearly four years, and our observation teaches us that this would be a profitable field to do missionary work, if the right efforts were put forth. We would like to have some Brethren locate here. We think this part of the country a very desirable place to live, and would like very much to establish a church of the Brethren. Several faithful ministers should permanently locate here and in Oregon. They should come prepared to stay with the work, otherwise it will not prosper as it should.

I hope the day will speedily approach when we will again have church privileges, and a better opportunity to work in God's vineyard. I rejoice to learn of so many series of meetings being conducted all over the Brotherhood. May the good work continue, and the year 1891 be one of the most prosperous years in the history of the church.

If any of the Brethren desire more information about this country, they will please address me as below. ALICE S. CHRISTLIEB.

Centralia, Washington.

Among the Father's Children.

ON the morning of Dec. 17, 1890, husband, self, and daughter, Carrie, left home, traveling, by private conveyance, a distance of sixty or more miles, to visit the Brethren of the Stony Creek church, Hamilton Co., Ind., and attend a series of meetings. We arrived at the hospitable home of our esteemed brother in Christ,—Christian Heiny,—on the evening of the 18th, and, after rest and refreshments, went to the place of meeting, the Disciple (or Campbellite) church, a few miles from the Brethren's house of worship, where the Brethren's doctrine was not so well understood. The meetings were conducted by Eld. Levi Holsinger, of the Ladoga church, who is an able expounder of the teachings of the Word of God, and brings forth the most convincing arguments in defense of our faith and practice, using strongest arguments, clothed in mild words, accompanied with a kind and loving demeanor and winning smile. The meetings continued nearly two weeks, and although there was no ingathering of sheaves as an immediate result, we think the people were thoroughly convinced of their duty they owe to themselves and to God, but are procrastinating until a more "convenient season."

This church is under the oversight of Eld. John H. Caylor, who is assisted in the ministry by two promising young brethren,—Wm. Burcham and Moses Smeltzer,—who have recently been called into active service in the church. May the Stony Creek church stand by them, comfort them and pray for them, and encourage them in the performance of their duties, and, when they become discouraged, "hold up their hands as did Aaron and Hur," for Moses.

As we once lived in this congregation, our visit was like returning home after several years of absence and separation from those we had learned to love with more than a filial love. The renewing of old acquaintances and forming of new ones gave us a sweet foretaste of that grand and glorious reunion, and was unto us as the gate of heaven. During our stay among them, one dear sister, who is sorely afflicted, called for the elders of the church, as enjoined by the Apostle James. A goodly number of the dear brethren and sisters assembled at the home of Isaac Caylor, and sister Maria Caylor was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord." May the sustaining grace of God, the Father, be her strong tower in her declining years!

Jan. 4 was the regular appointment at our home church (Landessville). A young man applied for admission into the family of God by baptism, which was attended to on the morning of the 5th. Another young brother, who had strayed from the fold, returned home again, and was received back into the church. May the church, here and elsewhere, put forth every effort to nourish, cherish and keep the lambs of the flock, lead them gently along the rugged pathway of life, shield them from temptation, watch over them with loving care, and there will be far less danger of their being lured from the path of duty, to pluck a few flowers by the wayside, and, perhaps, become entangled in the thorns and snares of worldliness.

From Cartersville, Va.

IN GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 1, I inadvertently stated that Bro. Kauffman is now our elder. This I find is a mistake. Bro. B. F. Moomaw still has the oversight of the church, but, since Bro. Kauffman has come among us, Bro. Moomaw gave him the privilege of looking after the needs of the church.

We held our council-meeting Jan. 3. Bro. Ira Southall is our Treasurer and Bro. D. Myers, Secretary. Jan. 4, Bro. Kauffman preached for us. Our prayer-meeting was at sister Sheets' last night. The room was about filled with an attentive audience, and the interest seemed to be good. It is good to meet together to sing and pray,—to hear the Word read and to encourage each other on our journey home.

Let us be faithful, so that we can enjoy the rest that "remaineth for the people of God."

FLORIDA J. E. ETTER.

From the Donnel's Creek Church, Clarke Co., Ohio.

BRO. WILLIAM R. HARSHBARGER, of Ladoga, Indiana, came to us Dec. 11, and commenced a series of meetings in the old Donnel's Creek churchhouse. He continued until the evening of Dec. 21. While we had no immediate accessions to the church, we feel that the cause was built up.

Brethren Henry Gump and John H. Brumbaugh came to one of our outposts Nov. 22, and remained till the evening of Nov. 30. While I had not the privilege of being with them, I am glad to learn that they had an interesting meeting.

Dec. 20 Bro. William Bowser and I went to another point on the outskirts of our district, thirty-seven miles from the main body of the church, and commenced a series of meetings. I preached the first three sermons, when, on account of other arrangements, I had to leave. Bro. Bowser continued the meetings during the week, and we trust his efforts resulted in much good. Feb. 13 we expect Bro. Lewis W. Teeter, of Indiana, to commence meeting at New Carlisle. We hope it may awaken both saint and sinner. We also have another point in the district where we hope to be able to hold a series of meetings during the winter. I feel that these meetings are the means of doing much good, not only to induce sinners to flee the wrath to come, but to the strengthening of the members. The command is, "Feed my sheep and lambs,"—just as much as it is to go and preach the Gospel to all nations. Let us all labor to feed those already in the church, and do all in our power to induce others to come and help in the great work, and cleanse their own souls from all sin.

I left my home Dec. 31, for the Middle Fork church, Ind., where I am penning these lines at the home of Bro. Solomon Blickenstaff, one of the elders of this church. I commenced meetings on New Year's evening. The Brethren had one meeting before my arrival. Considering the different elements to contend with here, the interest is good. I preached ten sermons since my arrival at this place, and may, by God's permission, continue for some time yet. The Lord willing, I expect to commence a series of meetings in Burlington, Ohio, Jan. 17. May the Lord not only enable me, but all that are out in the field, to preach the Word as revealed in the Gospel! Let all dig down to the sure foundation which is Christ Jesus, and feel that the Word is sharper than a two-edged sword. Let us use it manfully, while it is ours to live! HENRY FRANTZ.

From Eads, Colo.

SOMETIME ago we sent for a dozen "Brethren's Almanacs." In looking over the ministerial list, we saw the name of Bro. J. J. Hoover, of Rocky Ford, Colo. We at once wrote him a letter, asking him to come and hold some meetings for us. We soon received an answer, stating that he would be much pleased to do so.

Dec. 18 we were made happy to meet him at our house. He stayed with us until the 24th. During his stay with us, he preached five sermons at what is known as the Black Lake school-house. The meetings were well attended. We appreciated the meetings and the visit of our brother perhaps more than those of our brethren and sisters can realize, who live in organized churches, and can meet for worship once a week with those of like faith. Many of the dear members who have been isolated, can readily sympathize with us.

The GOSPEL MESSENGER is still making its welcome visits to us. We feel that if all, who are isolated, would take the MESSENGER, they would many times receive fresh courage when almost ready to give up, or when they think we will never have the privilege of meeting again with those of like precious faith.

Just to-day we saw an account in the MESSENGER, given by Bro. Crosswhite, of a church with five elders. I once heard a brother say that there is such a thing as overdoing a thing, in religion as well as in any other subject. Will not somebody be called to account for not obeying the command, "Go ye?"

Many, in this western country, have not the privilege of hearing the Gospel preached in it's purity. Brethren, coming west, will always be welcomed, if they will make Eads one of their stopping places. We can get a house to preach in at any time, on short notice. We have distributed a number of tracts. The Almanac for 1891 is about as good a tract as can be sent out, as it sets forth the doctrine of the Brethren in such plain language that none can fail to understand. We ask an interest in the prayers of all the brethren and sisters, that some good may yet come of our isolated condition. LIZZIE SHOEMAKER.

Wayside Notes.

DEC. 18 I went to Olcott, Reno Co., Kans., where I held a meeting in the evening; also on the evening of the 19th and 20th. On Sunday, Dec. 21, I held two services,—morning and evening. This is a new place, on the D. M. & A. R. R., at the junction of the Iuka Branch with the main line. We had large congregations and very good attention. A number of persons said it was the first Dunkard meeting they ever attended. Any minister passing that way, will please stop and preach for the people.

With a proper effort I think there can be much good done at that place. The Mission Board ought to look after all such places. My oldest son lives in the town and will be glad to care for any of our ministering brethren who will stop with them. His address is, Daniel Wise, Olcott, Reno Co., Kans.

I returned home from the above place, Dec. 22, and found my wife in poor health, but improving some.

Dec. 27 I boarded the train for Eden Valley, where I arrived in the afternoon. Here I held meetings in the evening; also next day, at 11 A. M. I had good congregations, and was happy to find the young members here enjoying themselves pleasantly in the Master's service.

I was met here by brother M. and sister Bettie Keller, who conveyed me to the Walnut Valley church, Barton Co., Kans., where I had meeting in the evening, and continued each evening until Jan. 5, 1891. Then I was taken to Eden Valley by Bro. Peter Brubaker,—one of the deacons of the Walnut Valley church. At the meeting in the evening I met a good congregation. Next morning I was taken to the railroad station by Bro. Thomas Miller, son of Bro. James Miller. Bro. Thomas is one of the young members, recently baptized in this church.

I spent my time, during the day, in the Walnut Valley church, canvassing for the Old Persons and Infirm and Orphans' Home of the State of Kansas, and met with very good success. I will now spend most of my time, in the near future, canvassing and preaching. Congregations in Southern Kansas who wish me to hold meetings for them, will please write me at once. Those who have donations for the Home, will write me at Box 157, Conway Springs, Kans.

ELD. JOHN WISE.

Notes from the Shade Creek Church, Somerset Co., Pa.

THE above-named church met in quarterly council Oct. 7. The deacons, on their visit, found nothing but peace and harmony. Oh, how pleasant to meet on such occasions, when this is the case! Considerable business was transacted in the fear of the Lord.

Our love-feast was held Oct. 12. The weather was very disagreeable, rain falling about all day. In consequence of this, the attendance was not as large as usual, but a better feast I never attended. The order and attention were most excellent and the preaching was of the best. Ministers from other districts were brethren Josiah Berkley, David Hildebrand, Michael Claar, E. J. Blough, George Lowry, A. Claar, Theo. Heiple and Levi Rodgers. Eld. Berkley officiated. Brethren Lowry, Claar and Heiple preached several good sermons before and after the feast.

Oct. 25 and 26, Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh preached for us at Scalp Level. We also had the pleasure of attending the Sipesville and Johnstown love-feasts. At each of these places the attendance was large and over a dozen ministers were behind the table.

Nov. 17 Eld. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Somerset Co., Pa., commenced preaching in the Ridge meeting-house, and continued till the 23rd. He preached eight sermons in all. Eld. Joseph Berkey preached three sermons prior to Bro. Hoover's arrival. Four were baptized,—a mother, her son and two daughters. May they ever be true and shining lights, so that the husband and father may also be induced to come! I think, had the meetings continued longer, more would have accepted offered mercy. During these meetings we had favorable weather, good roads, and a large attendance.

Dec. 13 Bro. D. H. Walker, of Lull, Somerset Co., Pa., commenced a series of meetings in the Scalp Level meeting-house. He continued the meetings with increasing interest until the 22nd, when his health failed him and he had to leave us. Bro. Walker suffered with a severe cold all the time he was with us, yet he labored earnestly and effectively. Though he has been in the ministry only four and a half years, Bro. Walker is a workman who needeth not to be ashamed. He should be kept in the field. Two young sisters came out on the Lord's side and the membership was much revived. Many more were almost persuaded to come, but put it off. May God help them to come before it is too late! The home ministers continued the meetings until the 28th, but deep snow and inclement weather prevented the people from turning out. This makes nine additions by baptism since my last report.

Our Sunday-school closed Oct. 5. On Christmas we met again, for the purpose of giving presents to the scholars. The house was crowded with children and their parents. A suitable passage of Scripture was read by Eld. Holsopple, followed by appropriate remarks by him and Eld. Musselman and Daniel Holsopple. Between two and three hundred scholars were made glad by suitable gifts. The teachers and officers also received the present of a book.

On New Year's Day our quarterly council was held in the Greenland house for the purpose of electing the necessary officers for the year. There was a liberal attendance of members. On account of school and institute duties your correspondent could not attend the last two councils.

For the last several weeks we had the deepest snow we had for many years. J. E. BLOUGH.

Home Again.

WIFE and I left our home in Greene, Ia., Sept. 12, en route for the Oak Grove church, ten miles south of Iowa City. Upon our arrival we found a little band of brethren and sisters assembled for love-feast exercises, and we enjoyed our intercourse with them very much. Eld. J. L. Snyder, of Brooklyn, has the oversight of this congregation. Bro. L. C. Seibert has purchased a farm at this place, and will locate here in the spring.

The Brethren here insisted that we should remain with them for a while and hold some meetings, which we did, preaching in all seventeen sermons. As an immediate result seven dear souls were received by baptism.

We next went to the Deep River congregation, and attended their love-feast, which was also well attended. Bro. Snyder also has the oversight of this congregation, with Brethren Taylor, Hopwood and Barnhiser as home ministers. The Brethren insisted that we should remain and hold some meetings for them, which we did. Six dear souls were added to the church at this place by baptism.

We next went, by request, to the English River congregation, where I preached in the Brethren's new church at North English, which is a thriving little town. There were two additions by baptism. We then moved our meetings to the old church, five miles distant from the new one. Here our labors resulted in thirteen additions by baptism. Bro. S. Flory has the oversight of this church, and is assisted by one elder and two ministers in the second degree.

After closing our meetings, we turned our faces homeward with our hearts full of love to our dear Father. Twenty-eight dear souls were brought from darkness to light during our labors among the dear brethren and sisters of Southern Iowa. I thank all for their kindness shown us during our stay with them. WM. C. HIPES.

From Lordsburgh, Cal.

WIFE and I are still in California and enjoying our usual degree of health. The Lord willing, we will stay here till next April. The good people of Lordsburgh, Cal., offered to donate us a lot, if we would agree to build a house on the lot. We accepted the offer, and are now living in our own house. The weather is still very pleasant and warm. We had a good rain last night; the grass is growing nicely; the people are plowing and sowing wheat and barley. Oranges and lemons are getting ripe.

On Christmas Day we attended the meeting at Covina. After meeting we enjoyed the kind hospitality of brother and sister Samuel Overholser. Among the good things provided were strawberries and a very fine watermelon.

Eld. Philip A. Moore and wife, of Roanoke, Woodford Co., Ill., are here in Los Angeles. They rented room No. 8, at 330½ Spring Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Bro. S. G. Lehmer, of McPherson, and Bro. D. B. Heiney, of Nebraska, stayed with us last night. This morning they started for San Diego, Cal. They seem to like California. Last March, when wife and I left Lordsburgh, there were four members at this place. Now there are about thirty or forty, and still they come. JOHN METZGER.

Our Mission to Oklahoma Territory.

THURSDAY, Dec. 11, in company with Bro. J. H. Neher and D. Wolf, we boarded the train at McCune, Kans., for Mulhall, Oklahoma, where we were met next day by brethren Ananias and J. Neher, and taken to their pleasant homes by private conveyance, a distance of nine miles.

On Sunday, Dec. 14, we began meetings in their new school-house. Bro. J. H. Neher and the writer preached alternately, closing on the night of Dec. 21, preaching in all ten discourses. The congregations were large and the interest good. As a result of our labors, two were added to the church by baptism. Others said they were ready to come as soon as there would be an organized church. Still others were waiting on their companions. It has never been our lot to meet with a people that were so anxious to hear the Truth as they are at that place. I hope the Mission Board of Southern Kansas will look after the cause there. I believe a large church could be built up, if the proper steps would be taken. There are now nine members living there and six more will move there during the coming spring. There will be one minister in the first degree of that office, and two deacons. They need an elder in order to organize and have regular meetings. There is no elder living in the Territory as yet. We think they have a good country, well timbered, and plenty of good, soft water can easily be obtained. Any Brethren, desiring a home can do well there with small means. For further information of the country address Ananias Neher, Clarkson, Oklahoma Ty., not forgetting to enclose stamp.

We arrived home safely Dec. 23, well pleased with our visit to Oklahoma. JACOB APPLEMAN.

Star Valley, Kans.

History of the Marsh Creek Church, from its Organization to the Present Time.

THIS church was organized about 1810, by electing Bro. David Pfoutz to the ministry, and Bro. Jacob Sherfey to the deaconship. Probably twelve souls comprised the membership at that time. Bro. Michael Slothour came into the church as minister about 1813, and labored in this capacity till 1834, when he was called from labor to reward.

In September of 1830, Bro. David Ecker and Bro. John Pfoutz were called to labor in the ministry, and brethren Samuel Slothour and David Bosserman as deacons. August 28, 1836 Bro. David Bosserman was chosen to the ministry. Aug. 27, 1841, Bro. Daniel Benner was called to the ministry, and Bro. Joseph Kittinger was chosen deacon.

May 23, 1845, Henry Bucher was chosen to the ministry, and in December of the same year Bro. Michael Bushman was set apart for the same work.

Feb. 8, 1851, Bro. J. D. Trostle was called to the ministry. Oct. 4, 1851 brethren Joseph Sherfy and Jacob Diehl were elected deacons. May 29, 1853 Bro. Joseph Sherfy was called to the ministry, and Bro. Jeremiah Sheets was elected deacon.

Nov. 12, 1854, brethren H. G. Koser and Samuel Hoffe were chosen deacons. In 1857, Bro. Isaac Bucher, a deacon, moved into this church, and in the spring of 1861 Bro. David Blocher, another deacon, moved into the congregation.

May 14, 1863, Bro. David Blocher was called to the ministry, and November 12, 1863, brethren C. Lahman Pfoutz and John Trostle were chosen deacons.

Aug. 12, 1869, Bro. Ephraim Deardorff was elected deacon. Nov. 10, 1870, Bro. Isaac Pfoutz was chosen deacon. Sept. 21, 1872, Bro. C. Lahman Pfoutz was called to the ministry.

May 24, 1873, Bro. B. F. Kittinger was chosen deacon. May 11, 1878, Bro. John Trostle was chosen to the ministry, and in November 9, 1878, Bro. J. H. Bosserman was elected deacon.

Nov. 8, 1884, Cornelius Weaver was chosen deacon. Aug. 14, 1886, Bro. B. F. Kittinger was elected to the ministry, and brethren J. Oliver Blocher and J. D. W. Deardorff were chosen deacons. May 18, 1888, Uriah Stremmel was elected deacon.

From the best possible knowledge, David Pfoutz was ordained to the eldership in the fall of 1821. Bro. David Bosserman was ordained in 1848. Bro. Joseph Sherfy was ordained Nov. 8, 1884, and C. Lahman Pfoutz, Aug. 14, 1886, under whose care the church flourishes.

This church is located in Adams County, Pa. It is bounded on the east by the Upper Conawaga church, on the west by the Antietam and Falling Spring churches, on the north by Lower and Upper Cumberland churches, on the South by the Monocacy and Pine Creek churches. The present membership numbers about 175, of which sixty-five per cent are sisters.

In 1850 the territory was divided into six sub-districts. The boundaries of each are designated by public roads centring in Gettysburg. Each sub-district is visited annually by a deacon and sub-deacon. At this writing the official force consists of five ministers and six deacons. They have six regular appointments, yet only two meeting-houses. The first was built in 1830 on a site donated by elder David Pfoutz. This house was remodeled and enlarged in 1883. The second was built in 1852, on a lot donated by the Society of Friends. B. F. KITTINGER.

From Knoxville, Tenn.

AFTER having spent six weeks in this city, I find it in many respects a desirable place to live. Thus far I have found twelve members in the city, among them Bro. J. E. Klepper, a minister. I have also found a number of others, not members, who have a very warm feeling for the church, and seem very anxious for an opportunity to attend our services and learn more about our doctrine. We feel quite sure that if a minister of experience and ability were to locate here permanently, a strong church could be built up in the city. Not only is there great opportunity for doing much good in the city, but a minister, located here, would be in easy reach of several weak organizations and other localities, where preaching is very much desired and needed. Knoxville marks about the terminus, west and south, of the portion of East Tennessee that is settled by Brethren, hence it is a good point for church extension work.

We have not yet secured a suitable place in the city to hold services, but may be able to do so ere long. If any of the readers of the MESSENGER have knowledge of members or members' children, whom they would like to have us meet, they will please write us, giving their address.

Bro. Klepper, and myself and wife, visited the Choto church, twenty miles south-west of the city, Dec. 27. With Bro. Klepper's assistance we held three meetings with them. We found a little band of members with a good house of worship, but no resident minister. The cause has suffered there for want of ministerial help. The attention given us during the meetings was very marked, and every one seemed interested. What a pity that some one of the many of our ministering brethren who, surrounded by so many co-workers, has practically nothing to do, could not locate here, and do something for the cause where he is needed!

There are in this country a great many people who are not wealthy, but they don't need wealth. They live comfortably without it. There are no blizzards, no total failure of crops here. No one is freezing, and no one is starving. Tennessee is not calling for meat to sustain the body, but all over this great South there is a cry for the Bread and Water of Life. Come over, brethren, and help us! The prospect for building up a strong church at Choto is flattering, if they had proper ministerial help. The Lord willing, we will visit them again the fourth Sunday in January.

Brethren, pray for the cause in and about Knoxville! If any one can do more than pray, do more, for more is needed.

My correspondents will please address me as below. JAS. M. NEFF.

115 Broad St., Knoxville, Tenn.

[Bro. Neff's call should claim the attention of our Brethren. At the last meeting of the General Missionary Committee, help was given to assist in building a house of worship in Knox County, Tennessee, and Ashe County, N. C. Where are the ministers who will go into these new fields and labor for Christ? —ED.]

Explanation.

THIS certifies that Eli Rule, during the past year, was relieved from the ministry, for causes not necessary to state in this correspondence, at a council, held in the Washington church, Kans., of which church he was a member. At said council two elders were present, and also Eli Rule. When the decision of the church was made known to him, he stated before the church that he would not abide by the decision of the church, but would go on preaching, as usual. This he did ever since, mostly in Nebraska. He baptized one person, since he was silenced, as reported by him in MESSENGER, Vol. 28, No. 37. In the same correspondence he speaks of the "Opposing element trying to overthrow," etc., meaning the church that had befriended him, and bore patiently with him, and at last legally silenced him.

(In the publication of Rule's correspondence the editors of the MESSENGER are an innocent party, as they did not know of Rule's standing in the church at the time).

Recently he,—Eli Rule,—was notified to appear at a council-meeting, appointed in the Washington church, to answer to the charge of disobedience to the decision of said church. He disregarded the notice by refusing to appear in council. The action of the church was unanimous, to withdraw fellowship from him, hence he stands as an expelled member.

He still purposes to go on preaching, and may represent himself as a minister in good standing, and thus deceive some. Hence the Washington church considered it prudent to publish this notice in the MESSENGER, in order to protect the churches.

Done by authority of the Washington church.

Rejoice, all ye Saints!

THE Pipe Creek church, Ind., began a series of meetings, Dec 20, and continued until Jan. 4. Jan. 1, five brethren and one sister were baptized. Although the weather was unfavorable, a goodly number met for worship, and at the place where the solemn rite of baptism was performed. With the exception of one, all were young in years, proving how much easier it is to turn to the Lord before having wandered so far away from the Father s house. Most of the members received were members of our Sunday-school, and we are glad that the talents with which the Lord has blessed them, will be consecrated to his service. At the present time the church has a great need of brethren who are willing to use all the talents the Lord has given them in the cause of Christ; for the harvest is great and the laborers are few.

On Sunday, Jan. 4, one more sister was received. Let the prayers of the saints ascend in behalf of these lambs of the fold, that they may grow in grace and the knowledge of the Truth! While we feel to rejoice to see children of men born into the kingdom, we feel to rejoice in an increase of love and zeal among the members, as manifested in these meetings. I believe we all feel the presence of the Holy Spirit in our souls in a more perfect fullness than ever before.

Bro. Daniel Wysong conducted these meetings. He has always some food for the little children, who occupied the front benches. Some of these little children shed bitter tears when they bade Bro. Wysong good-by. They felt they had lost a friend, and some of them said they would unite with the church when they were old enough to understand more of the plan of salvation. May the good impressions received urge them to seek a higher life! MARY KINDELL DICKEY.

Peru, Ind.

From Ladoga, Ind.

DEC. 8, Bro. George Studebaker, of Shideler, Ind., came to us to conduct a series of meetings in the Raccoon Creek church.

Beginning the meetings at Bethel, north-west of Ladoga, he preached for us until Dec. 14. He was quite unexpectedly called home to preach the funeral of a young man, accidentally killed.

Dec. 17, bringing his family, he returned and continued meetings at Bethel until Dec. 20. They were then changed to the Mt. Pleasant church, east of Ladoga, and lasted until Jan. 4.

We had pleasant weather, good roads, and attentive congregations, most of the time during our meetings. The members were reminded of their duty and encouraged to prove faithful, while sinners were warned not to put off the salvation of their souls until it is too late.

As an immediate result of the meetings, thirteen were baptized, one wanderer returned, and there are three applicants for baptism.

We feel that there are others "almost persuaded." May they not delay until they are brought to the hour when they must say, "Too late, too late." Many hear that still, small Voice say, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden and I will give you rest," but refuse to obey. "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land: but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Isaiah 1: 19, 20.

CHARITY HIMES,

From Nashville, Kingman Co., Kans.

RECENTLY the GOSPEL MESSENGER found its way into our mail. It was a surprise to me. The little circular, accompanying the paper, urged the recipient to read the paper carefully, even though it did not agree with his sentiments. In reading the paper, however, my mind was carried to scenes of the past. I am quite sure that the "Dunkard" church is the one my father and mother belonged to when they were still living near Ankneytown, Ohio. I rejoice that the same old teachings are still promulgated, as I often heard them more than twenty-five years ago. Since then, I have not heard a brother preach until Eld. Enoch Eby preached for us recently at a school-house near by. I was much interested in the meetings, and hope that others will come and labor for us. God will bless the work and also the workers.

J. M. BAKER.

From the North Solomon Church, Kans.

IN the evening of Nov. 24, Bro. Charles Brown, of Thomas County, Kansas, commenced preaching for the Brethren in the Union meeting house, Smith County, Kansas,—the north branch of our congregation. He preached thirteen very interesting, instructive sermons, to a large and attentive audience. Serious impressions were made and many prayers go up that the seed sown may yet spring up and bring forth fruit. A very pleasant Thanksgiving sermon and services were held in the Union meeting-house. All present found, by "counting mercies," that we have much to be thankful for.

During November and December, our home ministers held about twelve or fourteen meetings in a school-house on Twin Creek, thirty-seven miles south of where the former meetings were held. Here the house was crowded to its utmost capacity with a thinking people, who seemed much affected with the Truth, as presented.

At this place a husband and wife, in the meridian of life, resolved to leave the world and follow Jesus. They were initiated into his church by baptism Dec. 27. Many others are convinced, yet halting on the threshold. God help them to resolve and act before it is too late.

Two Old Order brethren and their companions expressed a desire to come back ere long.

Dec. 27 our regular quarterly council was held at the usual place near Portis. A considerable amount of business was transacted. A spirit of love and Christian forbearance characterized the work. Our elder, B. B. Whitmer, presided. He remained and preached at this point seven heart-searching sermons. Bro. Wm. Himes, of Dorrance, was also with us, and assisted in these meetings. We were made to wonder, if such preaching fails to bring about the desired improvement, what means will God use next? O, that all eyes may be opened before the "candlestick is removed out of its place." We are truly living in trying times. If judgment begins at the house of God, where shall the ungodly and sinner appear? FANNY MORROW.

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized Organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

WE continue, according to our rule, to send the MESSENGER to all our subscribers, who have paid for the paper for the preceding year. If there are any who do not desire the paper sent to them, they will please drop us a postal card, notifying us of the fact, otherwise the paper will be sent for the year 1891. We have discontinued all who are in arrears for 1890. We hope they will pay up and renew their subscriptions for the new year.

We are anxious to retain all of the old subscribers, and to secure as many new ones as possible. The MESSENGER ought to go into every family in the Brotherhood. Every member ought to have access to the church paper. Members who do not read the MESSENGER, are not likely to know very much about our church work. The paper is filled with church news, with healthy religious essays, with information concerning our Mission and Tract Work. We all ought to know about the work of the church. Lack of knowledge often results in lack of interest, and the brethren or sisters who know but little about the church and her work, usually do not manifest a very deep interest in the church of their choice.

Some there are, who say they are not able to pay for the paper. In every case of this kind, when the application comes through our agents, or through an elder of the church, we try to furnish the paper free. We have a large list of names to whom the MESSENGER goes free. We also have a large list of names to whom we send the paper at $1.00 per year. This rate is made to churches that supply the paper to their poor, and to those who donate it to friends outside of the church.

As before stated, we want to get the paper into every family in the Brotherhood, and we feel safe in making the following proposition: If all who are able to subscribe and pay for the MESSENGER, will take it, we will see to it that those who are unable to pay shall get the paper free of charge.

We hope you do not feel like giving up the MESSENGER. We want your name on our list, and we are satisfied that you can not afford to do without your church paper. If you are not prepared to pay now, arrange to settle for it during the next six months, and we will gladly continue to send the MESSENGER to you for 1891.

BRO. EDMUND FORNEY is holding meetings in the Cherry Grove church, Carroll Co., Ill.

THE address of Bro. James Burd is Clyde, Cloud Co., Kans., instead of Missouri, as heretofore reported.

THE meetings at Lanark, Ill., where Bro. J. C. Murray, of Indiana, is laboring, continue with good interest.

BRO. DANIEL SHIVELY, of New Paris, Ind., is to hold meetings this week in the Lower Stillwater church, Ohio.

BRO. DAVID EBY, of the Yellow Creek church, Illinois, is holding a series of meetings at Franklin Grove, this State.

BRO. LEVI HOLSINGER, of Ladoga, Indiana, will conduct a series of meetings at New Enterprise, Pa., in the near future.

BRO. LEWIS W. TEETER, at last report, was holding meetings at North Manchester, Ind., with good interest. Three had been received by baptism.

BRO. S. W. HOOVER says: "The good work is steadily moving on in the West Dayton church. One brother was baptized on the 28th. May the Lord bless and keep him active and faithful! Our Sunday-school is doing well."

BROTHER AND SISTER HILLERY are now in Marshall Co., Indiana, where they will spend a short time visiting relatives. They then go to Northern Indiana, where they will spend the winter. Bro. Lemuel will labor among the churches, wherever his services are wanted. We are unable at this time to give his address.

BRO. I. D. PARKER closed a meeting at Covington, Ohio, on the 5th inst., with eleven additions by baptism.

A CORRECTION.—In No. 1 of GOSPEL MESSENGER, page 4, the treasurer's name for Old Folks' Home, Kansas, should be KEEDY instead of Ready.

BRO. J. GUMP was expected to begin a series of meetings in the north church near Jewell, Ohio, on the 10th inst. One was recently baptized, so reports Bro. Simon Long.

BRO. HENRY FRANTZ, of New Carlisle, Ohio, was on the 10th inst., engaged in holding a series of meetings at Edna Mills, Clinton Co., Ind. We hope to have a report of good meetings.

BRETHREN T. T. Myers and Wilbur Stover spent Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday, the 9th, 10th and 11 inst., with the church at Mt. Carroll, Ill.. The meetings held were full of interest. Three applicants for baptism, and others deeply impressed.

UP to this date nearly $2000.00 has been sent in from the churches in Northern Illinois, for the Western sufferers. We are glad to see this evidence of true Christian love manifested among our people, and others, who are assisting in alleviating human suffering.

BRO. ENOCH EBY is now at McPherson, Kansas. He delivers a series of sermons on the subject of Church Government in the Bible School, now in session at McPherson College. We are informed that a goodly number of Brethren are in attendance. We trust much good may result from the efforts of the Brethren to establish the truths of the Gospel.

BRO. AMICK spent Sunday and Monday, the 11th and 12th inst., in Chicago, preaching and assisting the church in their quarterly council. Bro. W. R. Miller was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. The outlook seems to be encouraging. One of the difficulties to meet just now, is to secure a lot on which to build a meeting-house. Land in Chicago is valuable. The committee have had a number of lots offered them, ranging in price from $2,000 upward. It will require considerable more money than is now on hand to purchase a lot and complete the building.

WE have completed arrangements with the Brown Folding Machine Company, to manufacture for us a machine to paste, trim and fold the MESSENGER. The new machine will cost $1150.00, but we are assured by the manufacturers, that it will do our work in good shape. It will require about thirty days to complete the folder, so that in about four weeks we expect to send the paper out neatly pasted and trimmed. We want to make our church paper equal to the best, and we are using a good deal of money to put the paper in a convenient form for our readers. We are glad to know that our efforts in this direction are appreciated, and that our agents are sending in good lists.

ONE of the interesting classes in the Bible School, now in session at this place, is Bro. James R. Gish's New Testament Class. Among the topics studied and freely discussed in the class, we note the following: Conversion, Faith, Repentance, Baptism, Non-conformity to the world a Gospel principle, the Best Means for carrying out the principle, Charity, Best Methods of holding Series of Meetings. These questions were considered from the Bible stand-point, and many excellent thoughts were brought out. All who had the privilege of attending the class were well pleased with the work, and we believe that much good will result from it.

In the historical sketch, published in the Messenger some time ago, and which also appears in the Almanac for 1891, a typographical error occurs which may be misleading. In referring to the delegated representation at our Annual Meeting, it is said that churches having more than 150 members, are entitled to two delegates. This should read, "Churches having 200 or more members." The error was entirely overlooked, until Bro. McClure very kindly called our attention to it.

Bro. D. E. Price, owing to the serious illness of his wife, has not been able to go West, as he intended, to take charge of the work of distributing the money contributed for the relief of the needy in Nebraska, Kansas and Dakota. The committee having the matter in hand, have been trying to find some one to take Bro. Price's place, but have been unable to do so. Excuses are made, and it seems that no one is willing to do the work. After considering the matter carefully, and looking at it from the stand-point of imperative duty, we have consented to take Bro. Price's place, and will, unless we can prevail on some one else to go, start West about the 20th inst. We can not well leave our work here, but the sufferers must be looked after. The action of the District Conference makes it necessary that some one must go. About $2,000 has been raised, and it is important that it is properly distributed. The plan of distribution will be to go into the destitute district, appoint responsible agents, and see that a receipt is given, with the post-office address of each individual or family assisted. In this way those who donate, may have the satisfaction of knowing that their money has gone directly into the hands of those who are needy.

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY.

During the Special Bible Term just now closing at this place, series of sermons were given on Church Government, on the Evidences of Christianity and on the Scriptural Doctrines, as held by the church, each series occupying a school week. The sermons on Church Government were preached by Bro J. G. Royer. We give our readers an outline of one of the lessons, with a very brief synopsis of what was said. It seems to us that it will be helpful to any who will give it a careful study.

I. THE DIVINE CALL.

1. Ministers in the New Testament are spoken of as being designated by God. Romans 12: 6, 7; Luke 10: 1, 2.

2. The ministry constitutes a special gift from Christ to the church. Eph. 4: 11, 12.

The gifts are bestowed by God, and the men chosen are sent forth by him in answer to the prayers of his people.

3. The nature of the office, as implied in the terms to designate it, requires a divine call.

Ministers are embassaders for Christ and stewards of God. Hence the ministry is not to be chosen as men choose a profession, consulting their own inclination, or their personal interest. It is above and beyond inclination and interest. The sacred and holy work is entered upon in obedience to a special call from God through the church.

4. Errors to be avoided.

One may conceive that he has been called to the ministry, when in reality it is nothing more than a preference for the work, induced by literary attainments or some unhallowed ambition. Literary attainments or education alone, can never fit a man for the holy calling of a minister.

The call is a divine act, so is regeneration, and in many respects they may be said to be similar. The call in regeneration is the work of the Spirit in the heart, and this will soon manifest itself in the life and conduct of the individual, and at once every working member of the church becomes interested for the welfare of the penitent. So if a brother is really called by the Lord to be an "ambassador," the distinguishing elements of such a call, will be manifested in the heart and life of the individual in such a manner, as to convince the church of the truth of the call, and in his providence God will open the way to the work to which he has called the brother. There may be neglect on the part of the church.

II. THE CALL OF THE CHURCH.

This is the expressed conviction of the church upon two facts, (a) that the harvest truly is great, and (b) that here is a brother, who is called to be "a laborer." The latter results from manifest evidences of his call. The call of the church is founded on these evidences in the life of the brother. Hence the church and not the individual, himself, is the proper judge of his possession of the necessary qualifications, and therefore the church becomes the medium through which he is called. God develops in those whom he calls qualifications as follows. Read 1 Tim. 3: 1–7.

1. Sound conversion.

This qualification is vital and central. A defect here is fatal; fatal to both minister and people. Think of a spiritually blind, godless minister, attempting to guide immortal souls in their pilgrimage from earth to heaven.

2. The minister must have piety of the highest order.

He is to be an example and a leader. An example to believers, a leader to the flock, an example in word, careful in spirit and in conversation. Here many ministers fail. They are careless as to what they say. The life must be pure. He must have charity, an abounding love to God, for the Brotherhood, and for all men. He must have strong faith in God, and be firm in his adherence to God and his Word, and this will be shown in his teaching, spirit and life. Literary or rhetorical qualifications can not atone for the absence of a pure and devotional life.

3. Sound in the faith.

He is to both hold fast the form of sound words, 2 Tim. 1: 13, and to "speak the things which become sound doctrine. Tit. 2: 1. A man who is unsettled in his convictions of religious truth, has no rightful place in the ministry of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

5. Adequate mental training and Scriptural knowledge.

He is to study to show himself approved unto God, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. As his chief work is public instruction, mental gifts and a careful discipline of the mind are very important aids to make his ministry instructive and effective.

5. Aptness to teach coupled with good judgment.

God's Word is to be committed only to "faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also!" Men who not only have ability to talk, but who are apt to teach; able to impart to others what they know and feel themselves. This qualification is all important, great learning alone will not suffice; there must be the gift of teaching.

6. A good report from those who are without.

A minister can not escape opposition. If faithful in reproving and rebuking sin, wherever found, he may experience bitter persecution; but, in the purity and integrity of personal character, he is to have a good report among those outside of the church. No suspicion of dishonesty or of untruthfulness must rest upon the minister.

III. OBLIGATIONS ASSUMED BY THE MINISTER.

1. He accepts, as Scriptural, the doctrines and practices of the church, and places himself under the most sacred obligations to defend them. If his convictions do not permit him to fully and unreservedly uphold the doctrine and practices of the church, he is untrue to himself and to the church in accepting the office. In this case mental reservation will not avail, for God knows the heart, and there is no escape from the charge of dishonesty resting upon the man who accepts the holy calling to the ministry, when he is not in sympathy with the faith and practices of the church that calls him.

2. Should his views materially change, he is under obligation to resign.

He is entitled to full freedom of personal conviction and action, but he has no right to continue to preach for a church, in whose doctrines he does not believe, and this, because the essential conditions upon which he was called, and upon which he accepted the call, (i. e.) that the doctrines and practices of the church are Scriptural, have, so far as he is concerned, ceased to exist, and every consideration of honor requires him to withdraw. Indeed, he can not be honest and pursue any other course. It is difficult to conceive of a more dishonorable position, than that a minister, who, having accepted the sacred office of a teacher of the doctrine and practices of the Gospel, as understood by the church, and afterward having changed his mind, still retains that office, only to subvert the doctrines he had placed himself under obligations to teach and defend.

3. He should stand by the church in adversity, as well as in prosperity.

This statement is self-evident, and will commend itself to all.

IV. HOW SHALL A MINISTER BE ENDUED WITH POWER TO MEET THESE SOLEMN OBLIGATIONS?

1. By habitually going to the Lord in secret prayer. By secret devotion, by close communion with God; this calls down from heaven the sacred fire, which alone can kindle the heart.

2. By applying to his own soul the truths he preaches to others. He thus opens his own heart to the power of the Gospel, and will be induced to practice what he preaches.

3. By self-surrender and entire consecration to Christ and his work.

Christ, in his conversation with Peter, when he asked him three times, "Lovest thou me?" taught for all ages that personal love to him is the primary condition for the sacred office. Without this consecration and personal love for the Master, the minister's life and work will be without spiritual power. With it his soul will be filled with love not only for God, but for all men.

4. By constantly looking to heaven for his reward.

The minister who looks to the church or to the world for his reward, has a low ideal. He must make sacrifices, and his reward is from above. With eyes lifted to heaven, the best of all books in his hands, the law of truth written on his lips, the world behind his back, he stands pleading with men, pointing them to Christ, a crown of gold hanging over his head, his everlasting reward for faithfulness in his holy calling.

MISSIONARY OUTLOOK.

BY GALEN B. ROYER.

WE become better ourselves when we help others to a higher and nobler life.

No man ever did any good to any one except by sacrificing self; it is the universal law of atonement. M. B. Anderson.

Some one whose address is Parnell City, Nodaway Co., Mo., has ordered a few of the Missionary Reports but forgot to put his name to the order. We are unable to fill the order until we hear from the person again.

Liberal giving sanctifies labor, and seems to lift us up from material to spiritual things. In giving money, men give to the good work the portion of their lives which has been spent in earning the money. -David Gregg.

When we reach the bar of God, it may be revealed to many that it is by far more difficult to use rightly the things we gain in this world, than to obtain them. Although too late, will it not be a sad revelation to those who had but consecrated it not?

The churches in California seem to be wide awake on home mission work. Recently we received an order for over 200 copies of the Mission Report for that District. It is the aim of the Mission Board of California to place one copy of the Report in the hands of each brother and sister. They mean to work up missionary sentiment, and they will do it. We feel sure it would do every brother and sister in the Brotherhood good to read the report.

I wonder how many of our dear brethren and sisters, who have good church privileges and do not seem to appreciate them, would remain as faithful to the cause as a sister who writes from some place in California. This is her letter: "Inclosed find an order for $5.00 for the Lord's treasury. From a sister who has not heard the Brethren preach for many years." If members, surrounded by every inducement to keep them close to Christ, forsake him, oh, what must be the faithfulness of that one who is denied all and yet manifests such interest in the work! Does she not put many of us to shame?

MISSIONS.

BY J. F. BRITTON.

IF a doctor should tell you that somebody in Africa, about whom you knew nothing, were sick and likely to die, it would scarcely affect you much; but if he should come and lay his fingers on your pulse, and tell you you were ill, and could only live a few hours, it would affect you very seriously.

If I were to tell you that there were families in your community that are ignorant of the Bible, who had never heard of Jesus and his love, some of you would go and tell them about him, and if they were in want, you would give liberally to relieve their necessities, but when I tell you of hundreds and thousands of souls, here in East Virginia, who have never heard the true Gospel in its primitive purity, who are starving for the Bread of Life, and are standing in their doors, ready to welcome the messengers of Jesus, you are not so anxious about them,—they are too far from home.

Distance seems to diminish our interest and lessen our zeal. Besides, missions cost something and they are objectionable on that ground. As soon as the subject is mentioned, many have gloomy visions of the collection basket. Many men flinch if you touch their pocket. Many are ever ready to give their sympathy and good will to every good work, but not their money, and, as missions cost something, many do not care to hear much about them. It is an unpopular subject.

Missionary work is certainly a duty that Christ has enjoined upon his church. Missionary work will always be necessary, as long as there shall remain on earth a human being who has not heard of a dying Savior's love.

Let us consider, then, the importance of missions and our duty regarding them. The importance is shown:

1. By the meaning of the word. Mission implies an act of sending or being sent. In the sense in which we use it, it means sending the Gospel to those who have not heard it. As the arteries receive the blood from the heart and convey it to every portion of the body, so missions are the great avenues through which the Gospel, receiving its first impulse from the heart of Jesus, flows to every country and to every creature.

2. The origin of missionary work proves its importance. Is this the work of God, or is it of men? The first missionary was John the Baptist, Mal. 3: 1. "Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me." For whom did John prepare the way? For the true and great missionary from heaven,—Jesus Christ, the Redeemer of the world,—for he says it himself. "For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved." Jesus sends forth the seventy, Luke 10: 1-3, and when the mission of Christ was ended, he goes back to his Father, but not until he has sent forth other missionaries with the great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Soon after this we find that all the church at Jerusalem were scattered abroad, preaching the Word. We find Philip preaching to the Ethiopian; Peter, to the Roman soldier and his household; and far down at Antioch, in Syria, three hundred miles from Jerusalem, somebody had been preaching, a church is established, and one day, while they were worshiping, they set apart two men, Paul and Barnabas, to go still further on into heathen lands and preach the Gospel. The work goes on, grandly and gloriously and mightily, as we find recorded by Luke in the history of missions, commonly known as the Acts of the Apostles.

The Bible is a missionary book, and the origin of missions ought to be sufficient guaranty of the importance of the work. It is the cause which Christ loved, and for which he lived, and labored, and died.

3. The progress of missions sets forth its importance. When two of the first missionaries, Peter and John, were arrested and brought to trial, a learned ruler said to the judges, "Ye men of Israel, refrain from these men and let them alone; if this work be of men it will come to naught, if it be of God ye can not overthrow it." As we have already seen that missions are the work of God, should we not be very assiduous in the glorious work of saving perishing souls?

4. Think of the vast multitudes of finite beings who have never heard a saving Gospel! Gross darkness hangs like a pall over the earth. The world's only hope is the light of the Gospel. Through mission work that light must go and can only go. Need I say more of the importance of missions? If a cause which originated in the mind of God, and for which his own Son gave his life; a cause in which its glorious march through the earth has scattered the blessings of peace, and joy, and love, all along its shining track, and through which perishing souls have been rescued from eternal doom, a cause which reaches forth its arms to bless and redeem the whole world, if such a cause as this is not of the greatest importance to man, then God has wasted his love upon the human race, and Jesus Christ has shed his blood in vain.

But what is our duty in this work of missions? It is our duty to support them.

1. The true spirit of religion is the spirit of missions. As soon as we have heard the word of peace and pardon, we want to tell it to somebody else. Don't you recollect the old song,

> "I'll tell to all the sinners round
> What a dear Savior I have found"?

You can't keep it, you must tell it, and as soon as you begin to tell it, you begin to be a missionary, whether you tell it here or in China. Christianity is unselfish; it is for everybody, for the world! "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

2. Again, we should support missions because it is a duty we owe to ourselves. It destroys selfishness, which is an enemy of Christianity. It enlarges the heart. Your soul feeds upon that precious truth, It is more blessed to give than to receive. You are lending to the Lord,—laying up treasures in heaven!

3. It is a duty to our fellow-men. None of us liveth to himself. The day of account will come after a while, and God will ask you, Where is thy brother? The blood of his soul crieth against thee. You had the Gospel; you knew he was perishing and you would not send it to him. Oh, for the voice that smote the soul of the murderer Cain, to wake up the churches and urge them to action in this great work!

"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" Another question comes up, Who is to do this sending, if it is not the church?

4. But, most of all, it is our duty to Christ. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." This is enough. Jesus established missions and lays it upon us to support them.

I have set before you the importance of missions and our duty to support them. May the Lord help every one to fall into line in the support of this important work! How shall this be done? We should preach the Gospel in our every-day lives. Perhaps God has already said to some young brethren and sisters what he said to Paul: "I have chosen you to send you far hence to the Gentiles." Make it a subject of serious thought and prayer, and then say with Paul, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" When Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord, "Whom shall I send?" he replied, "Here am I; send me." But if you can not carry the Gospel, you can send it. Some of you feel that you would like to tell the grand old story of the Cross to every sinner on the globe, but you can not go. Well, you can stay at home and work, and send supplies to the soldiers who are battling in the army of the Lord. You can teach missions in your Sunday-school, talk it in your prayer-meeting, and pray for it. Give freely of your means, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver.

To every one I make this solemn appeal, Do all you can to send the Gospel throughout the world. The Macedonian calls are coming from all parts of the country. The cry is heard from isolated churches and from wretched hearts and families, "Come and help us!" "Come, and bring us the Bread of Life!" Shall we sit with folded hands, and turn a deaf ear to these momentous calls?

Dalinsville, Va.

THE TRACT WORK AND ITS FRUIT.

BY LANDON WEST.

To some of our brethren and sisters the benefit of publications in tract form does not seem apparent, hence we try to call their thought to that subject in a brief address through the MESSENGER.

A tract is a brief address in written or printed form, in which the minds of its readers are called to the leading and most important points upon the one subject, and these having been obtained and set forth by the author, with such reflections as he may offer, will often do much to direct and influence the minds of others upon the subject presented. More plainly is this effect seen upon topics that are new or but partially investigated by the readers. Many who have given the subject no thought before, are thus led to think of it, and to consider the reasons and facts given in its favor. Others who have desired to investigate the subject, but whose circumstances did not allow them opportunity, can, in this way, obtain without cost and with no loss of time or labor, what would otherwise have taken both time and money to obtain, besides labor and time to acquire by study from books, what is given in tract form for nothing. This way is easy and its burden is light.

While the tract proves a benefit to its author in collecting and giving the facts and arguments presented, and with cost, time, and labor for only the one, the thoughts and facts given prove a benefit to scores of others who could have obtained it in no other way. The labor and time of the one, thus spent in study and presenting the thought in its abridged form, is thus made food without cost for thousands, and for years to come. In this form a work and its fruit may be given to all, that could be done by no other method.

Take, for example, the small tract, put forth some years ago, by our dearly beloved brother, Eld. James Quinter, late of Huntingdon, Pa., and entitled: "THE ORIGIN AND HISTORY OF SINGLE IMMERSION." The facts therein given, were obtained and presented by him for the benefit of the entire Brotherhood and for the benefit of all who will receive them. They have already changed the minds of not a few on that subject, and will continue so to work for ages to come, but these facts not many of us could have gotten, had we sought them hence would likely never have been known by us without the time and labor of Bro. Quinter, but now we can know them for the time it takes to read them.

Another benefit that tracts give us is this: The doctrines and commandments of the New Testament, all of which are loved so dearly by our Brotherhood, when collected and presented in tract form, are in this way given, one by one, to the masses and from these to others who would, in no other way, know the faith of the Brethren, and in no other way be led to read the Bible without these. Large books, in this day, are but little bought and but little read, even if given to us. In this day of daily papers and news from all the world, we can not induce the masses to study the doctrines of the Bible without first touching the people with a sharp point of truth, so as to lead them to read the Bible. This can be done by tracts and also by preaching.

"HERE AM I; SEND ME."—Isa. 6: 8.

BY SAMUEL PETRY.

WHAT was the primary cause, that Isaiah should express himself in the language of our text? Because one, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from the altar, touched the lips of the prophet, and said to him, "Thine iniquity is taken away and thy sin purged." Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord, saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" He said, "Here am I; send me."

Would to God that the church had many Isaiahs! Does not every local church hear the voice of the Lord through some of our Brethren on the frontiers and isolated places,—even across the Atlantic Ocean, -to send some brother with the glad tidings of great joy? I believe that we have many brethren who are qualified for the work as far as expounding or preaching is concerned, but who are financially unable to carry the burden.

"But," says a brother, "in the days of Christ the question was asked, 'Lacked ye anything?' and they said, 'No.'" My answer is, "The days of miracles are past. I do not believe the preacher's corn will grow any larger than his lay brother's, unless he plow it more."

Looking at the matter from a spiritual standpoint, I verily believe that nearly all our preachers in the United States are willing to confess that we stand in need of having our lips touched with a coal from the altar. It qualified the prophet Isaiah to exclaim, "Here am I; send me."

Last October I stayed all night with a deacon in Prince William County, Virginia, with whom I talked about our children being so slow about coming into the church. He thought that one great cause was, we do not have our conversation seasoned with salt. He said that his oldest son got very much disgusted in hearing two elders engage in jokes, foolishness, and lightmindedness.

Brethren, the above impressed my mind with the necessity of a reformation among at least some of us. I want to profit by those remarks and avoid unbecoming conversation. We are living epistles, known and read of all men. By the grace of God we can work up to the line and plummet, and then we can say, "Here am I; send me!"

I do not wish to be understood that I am aspiring to be sent out. I am past my threescore years, and physically and mentally am not the man. I propose that the old-time preachers watch the enemy about home, and that we send our young brethren who have proved themselves men of the Lord,—workmen that need not be ashamed. Let the church see to it that the minister is not neglected, but properly cared for by those who lay a heavy burden upon him!

Good's Mill, Va.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

FIVE SOLDIERS FOR CHRIST. The members at Wichita, Kans., had an interesting series of meetings from Dec. 14 to 28. Bro. Paul Wetzel was with us during the latter part of our meetings. Five precious souls were made to rejoice in the God of their salvation, and are now enrolled among the believers.—T. B. Young, Dec. 28.

FULFILLMENT OF PROPHECY. On page 774 in the last volume of MESSENGER, Bro. J. H. Moore asks for a prophecy concerning people traveling through the air. We would call the attention of all interested to Isa. 60: 8. Please notice the connection in which the prophet speaks of the restoration of Israel, and possibly Rev. 12: 14 may have reference to the coming air ship. Isaac Dell.

TWO ACCESSIONS. -Dec. 27, Bro. Abraham Wolf came to hold several meetings for us at the Black school-house, near Eldon, Wapello County, Iowa. The meetings were soul-cheering to all, and two precious souls resolved to turn to the Lord and acknowledge him in baptism. Ministers are invited to stop with us, in passing by. Those intending to come, will please address me as above, a few days prior to arrival, so that I may meet them at the depot.—A. B. Miller.

ENJOYABLE LOVE-FEAST.—The members at Nevada, Wyandot Co., Ohio, had a pleasant love-feast Oct. 23. Though we have no minister in this congregation, yet we had a good ministerial force on that occasion. Brethren J. C. McMullen, L. H. Dickey, S. B. Thomas, J. B. Light and S. M. Loose were with us and labored earnestly. The last-named brother is our elder. We expect to begin a series of meetings Jan. 17, and ask the prayers of all, that the Lord may bless our efforts. —Catharine Cook, Jan. 6.

FOUR ADDED TO THE FOLD.—A very pleasant series of meetings closed on New Year's evening in the Bethel church, Kosciusko Co. Ind., conducted by Bro. Davis Younce. During the meetings the church was much strengthened, three were baptized, one was restored, and there is one more applicant. Our quarterly council took place Jan. 3. The meeting was well attended, and, though there was considerable business before the meeting, all was disposed of in a Christian spirit. May God bless Zion every-where!—W. R. Deeter.

ONE ADDITION.—The members of the Locust Grove church, Linganore, Md., have just closed an interesting series of meetings, which commenced Dec. 13, and continued until the 28th. The meetings were conducted by elders L. Pfoutz and John Trostle, of Pennsylvania, and our home minister, S. H. Utz. As a result of their faithful labor, one dear lamb was added to the fold, and others almost persuaded. May the day hasten when others may come to Christ and be saved! The brethren and sisters were much encouraged and earnestly admonished to live faithful until death. May God's grace sustain us all, and keep us from the evils of the world!—M. E. Ecker, Dec. 29.

Good Opening for Preaching. The attention of our ministers, desiring to work for the Master at a new point, is called to Maysville, DeKalb Co., Mo. Our advantages here are excellent, and the prospects for building up a church are quite favorable. Who will be the first to be with us? —Ross Halterman, Jan. 4.

Sad Accident. -Dec. 13, when Mr. John Shafer and wife were returning home from Mishawaka, Ind., late at night, they were struck by the train, while crossing the Lake Shore R. R., and instantly killed. Thus, in a moment of time, two of our neighbors have been called away to the realities of an unseen world.—H. M. Schwalm.

Correction.—In the obituary column of Gospel Messenger, No 1 read "Joseph Overholser," instead of "Bro. Joseph Overholser." In the notice, referring to the death of Harvey Melvin Morningstar, the name of the congregation should be Yellow Creek congregation, Elkhart Co., Ind., instead of the place that was given. -Lizzie A. Miller.

Four Additions.—The members of the Owl Creek church, Knox Co., Ohio, enjoyed an interesting series of meetings by Bro. D. M. Irvin, of Orrville, Ohio. His faithful labors were continued from Nov. 22 to Dec. 15, and resulted in four additions to the church by baptism. The church is greatly strengthened, and our prayer is that the labors of our brother may result in lasting benefit to us all.—S. J. Workman.

Three Souls Brought to the Truth. The Lick Creek church, near Bryan, Ohio, had a pleasant series of meetings from Dec. 13 to 28. Bro. Isaiah Rairigh, of Woodland, Mich., did the preaching, and, by his earnest labors much good was accomplished. Three dear souls left the ranks of Satan, and others are seriously considering. Our quarterly council, Dec. 27, passed off pleasantly. A collection was taken for the Book and Tract Work.—M. J. Bosserman.

Eastward Bound. We have now reached Libertyville, Jefferson Co., Iowa, on our trip to the East. While enjoying good health, we are also having interesting meetings with our dear brethren and sisters. After visiting a few points in Iowa, we will reach Mount Morris in time to take in at least some of the Bible work. From Mount Morris we go to Cerro Gordo, Ill., then to Monticello, Ind., and adjoining churches, spending some time at each place.—John S. and Susan Snowberger.

In the Field.—During the Holidays I took a trip to the Round Mountain church, Washington Co., Ark. While with them, we had good meetings, with excellent attention and attendance. Bro. D. B. Cripe has left them for Oklahoma, and now they are somewhat lonely. There are about thirty members there. They have a commodious meeting-house, partly finished; their limited circumstances prevent them from completing the house. We may, perhaps, locate with those brethren in the near future. Samuel Weimer, Jan. 10.

New Field for Mission Work. -Nothing has ever been published in the Messenger from this, the country surrounding Cameron, Idaho. Climate and soil here are excellent and Brethren, seeking new locations, could benefit both themselves as well as the cause of our Blessed Master, by taking up their abode with us. There are three members here now, and others, no doubt, will come if the proper effort is put forth. Trains will soon be running from here to Kendrick, Idaho, which will give us good railroad facilities. We hope some one will come to gather the ripening harvest.—Enoch Faw, Dec. 22.

In Good Working Order. — The Wichita church, Kansas, is at work for the Lord. Meetings are held at Fairmont Hall, Wichita, on the east end of the street car line, on the second and fourth Sunday of each month. Ministering brethren, passing through the city, are invited to stop and preach. Wm. Johnson, Jan. 10.

A Pleasant Council. -The Little Traverse church, Emmet Co., Mich., assembled for church council Jan. 3. All business was disposed of pleasantly. Though we are few in number at this place, yet we feel encouraged to press our way onward, and meet bravely the battles of life, so that, when we have conquered the last foe, we may enter into our rest. At the above council one sister, who had walked with us for some time, concluded to remain with us no longer, preferring to return to the beggarly elements of the world.—L. B. Wilcox, Jan. 7.

Refreshing Meetings.—The good work is still progressing in the Belleville church, Kans. Bro. C. Brown, of Thomas County, came to us Sept. 21, and labored for us until the 30th. As the result of his efforts one soul was brought to the knowledge of the Truth. We also had a series of meetings near Republic City, in the bounds of this congregation, and shortly afterward another series of meetings, that caused great and earnest inquiry concerning the matter presented. Large crowds of people came out to hear the Truth. Bro. Brown's labors were very much appreciated at that place. There are only two families of the Brethren living near the place where the meetings were held. There were no accessions, but undoubtedly good was done.—Lizzie Hilary, Jan. 6.

The Brethren's and the Lancaster Hymn Books.

Bro. D. L. Miller, in his editorial correspondence, in No. 47 of Gospel Messenger, refers to the Eastern churches which use the Lancaster Hymn Book, and expresses a degree of satisfaction since the Brethren's Hymn Book is gaining favor.

It is truly to be regretted that the Brethren's Hymn Book was so objectionable, but it is more to be regretted that, instead of appealing to Annual Meeting for redress, an independent book was compiled and published, and is used by a number of Eastern churches.

The first appeal to the Eastern Pennsylvania District Meeting was made in 1873 in the following query:

"Could not the District Meeting get up a better Hymn Book, to supply the wants of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania? Many are not satisfied with the new edition (meaning the Brethren's Hymn Book) especially the German."

"Answer.—We think we can make no change through the District, but think that one or more churches may join together to get up a German Hymn Book, to supply any deficiency they may see, if they see proper, but as a private enterprise."

The writer must testify that one, at least, who gave his consent to that answer, had not as good forethoughts as he had afterthoughts. The thing grew. The great argument for this independent book all along, has been that Annual Meeting "does not respect our petition." Any brother or sister can readily see that this argument, if it may be called such, was always premature, for no appeal to Annual Meeting has ever been made. This is written in love to stir up the pure minds.

The Tulpehocken church, in which the writer has his membership, never accepted the Lancaster Book. The churches all around us have it. This put us in a rather unfavorable and unenviable dilemma at our love-feasts. The ministering brethren around us, come to our feast and do not in the least respect this church nor the Brethren's Hymn Book,—though ignorantly, I presume. Probably half of our members have the Brethren's Hymn Book, and then, when a hymn is announced from another book, which is not acknowledged by the Brotherhood,—how is this?

The Brethren's Hymn Book is objectionable, but so is the Lancaster Book. The Lancaster Book had a revision already, and an appeal was made for another. Revisions of the Brethren's Hymn Book are as readily at hand as they are of the Lancaster Book. In conclusion I will say that Tulpehocken has prospered with the Brethren's Hymn Book, numerically and spiritually, and if every other thing were proportionately as good, we would have prospered more.

Geo. Bucher.

Kleinfeldersville, Pa.

From Osceola, Iowa.

Dec. 20, Bro. J. D. Haughtelin began a series of meetings at, what is known as, the Bonney school-house in the south-east corner of Madison County, four and one-half miles from the writer's home. The weather was fine, the roads good and the house crowded.

Dec. 24, our dear elder, Bro. L. M. Kob and wife came to us, and that evening two precious souls came forward and announced their willingness to walk in the way of the Lord. Bro. Haughtelin remained and preached until the evening of Dec. 28, when he returned home, bearing with him the well wishes of the entire community. After another discourse by Bro. Kob, we thought best to close the meeting, feeling that we were greatly comforted and blessed by the brethren's efforts. Our little band is in love and union. One was baptized in October and one, who had stepped aside, confessed her fault and was fully restored during our Brethren's stay with us.

One strange feature at this place was, although services had been held for years within two miles of this place, there were some who never heard the Brethren preach until last spring, when the writer began preaching once each month for them. There are, in this vicinity, several good citizens who manifest considerable sympathy for the cause and we trust that, ere long, they may become fully persuaded to walk in the "narrow way."

One important factor in awakening such an interest at this point was an interesting Sunday-school, superintended by Bro. Jacob Keffer, which closed Dec. 28, with the expectation of opening again next spring. We are alone in the ministry and greatly need help. Ministering brethren, passing over the C. B. & Q. road will please remember us and, by notifying the writer, will be gladly met at Osceola. Those passing over the D. M. K. road, by informing Bro. Jacob Keffer, New Virginia, Iowa, will be met there or at Truro. We solicit the prayers of God's children in behalf of the cause here. W. W. Folger.

McPherson Notes.

The year 1890 closed like a calm midsummer day, or a benediction after prayer. The balmy days of autumn lingered long in the lap of winter, and we, here in sunny Kansas, could not realize the severity of the storms in Oklahoma or the snow three feet deep in Virginia. In the school everything moved along like clock-work. Days, weeks, and months, seemed very short until the Holidays were upon us, and we were called on to stop a week from our usual labors. So quietly had the work been done in the church service, in the Sunday school, in the prayer-meeting, and at the school family altar, in the morning and evening, that none of us fully knew the workings of the Spirit. "Thou canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth."

Some thought we had made a great mistake in not having a series of meetings, and we had about made up our minds that we should see no fruits this year, but the Lord ordered otherwise. Dec. 21 an invitation was given after morning services and eight dear young souls came over to the Lord's side. Two o'clock was appointed for the examination and instruction of the candidates for heaven, and when we met, the number was eleven, who were buried with Christ and arose in newness of life. At the evening services two more came forth, and Dec. 23 three were received into fellowship, making fourteen in all, who had been drinking from the fountain of life.

Jan. 3, we had our council-meeting, when one who had wandered from the fold, came back and was received. Two old members, who had lived away from the Brethren for twenty-six years, and have carried their church letter with them, were, after due examination, received into fellowship with us. About twenty old members have now made McPherson their home, and others are looking forward to the time when they can cast their lot with us.

The Bible Normal is now in session; the attendance is very good, so near the beginning. All are deeply interested in the work of each day and the sermon each night. This evening the subject of the discourse was, "The qualification of the missionaries." The first qualification named was love. Paul, Peter and John were called up as witnesses to prove this point. A heart, filled with love to God and man, can endure what Paul did. Knowledge of God's Word was also mentioned, and a stirring appeal was made in behalf of missionary work. We wish every member in our whole Brotherhood could have heard it. Eld. Daniel Vaniman has this part of our work in charge.

Vacation Notes.

WE were permitted to spend Holiday vacation at home,—West Dayton, Ohio. It was the most pleasant one of our life, probably because home becomes dearer the longer we are away from it.

We enjoyed the regular services in the new church. The band of workers there is active, realizing that there is a great ripe field around them, ready for the harvest, but the reapers are few.

The important question with them is, What means can they employ to advance the true principles of the Gospel most rapidly? As one of these, they have an evergreen Sunday-school. From the organization,—about seventeen months ago,—it has gradually increased, and is wide-awake in every department. Bro. Elson, the Superintendent, takes hold of the work with vigor. Much depends upon the Superintendent of a city school which has few church members; but, judging from its prosperity, Bro. Elson is the right man for his position. He is assisted by Bro. Womboldt, and able teachers, among whom are the four deacons and two wives. Not many churches have all their deacons for teachers.

They also have an interesting teachers' meeting, which every school ought to have. The teacher is but half prepared who has not attended some such meeting.

We mention the Sunday-school particularly because, through this medium, much good may be done. Many children of parents, strangers to our doctrine, are interested in the school. We want to encourage all the workers to strive faithfully to plant the purest seed of the Gospel in their young hearts.

Space will not allow us to write of other important features of the church's work in that big city.

As all the churches, especially in the cities, need encouragement, West Dayton asks for the prayers of the Brotherhood in her behalf. A heavy burden rests on her two ministers. Hold up their hands to God in your prayers!

DANIEL R. PRICE, Treasurer.

Oregon, Ill., Jan. 9.

A Voice from the East.

DURING the latter part of last year, I was permitted to see the Pacific Coast, and meet with many of like precious faith. Upon my return home, I found plenty of work to do for the Master. I spent some time in holding meetings, and such as were willing to accept the whole counsel of God, were baptized.

I had intended to go to West Virginia in church work by Dec. 25, but the deep snow that blockaded the road, prevented me from going, so that I had to defer my trip for the present.

On New Year's Day we had our council. The weather being unpleasant, there was a small attendance, but we did what we could. We had an appeal for help from Bro. D. Wampler, of Idaho, to which we responded.

The churches in Virginia have a great many poor to care for, of which many churches know nothing. We have been trying, for the last ten years, to get a home for the needy ones, which, I think, is a timely move. We were surprised to find the many objections to such an enterprise, but we, at last, succeeded in getting the consent of District Meeting to appoint three brethren to formulate a plan. My prayer is that the work may succeed!

I am sometimes made to wonder how any brother or sister could oppose such a work. It would afford a good opportunity for all to lay up treasure in heaven. Such a work would stand and do good when we are gone. I hope the Brethren of the Second District of Virginia will give this a prayerful thought till District Meeting, so we might all work to get a home for the homeless.

The old Flat Rock church in Virginia is holding its own. Perhaps we, as ministers, might have done more, and I hope we may, in this new year, try to improve in this direction. There are many places in Virginia where help is needed, and we have brethren to do the work, but our mission work is somewhat deficient. I hope we may, in the future, work together for good, so that the borders of Zion may be enlarged.

SAMUEL H. MYERS.

Timberville, Va., Jan. 8.

From the Nocona Church, Texas.

OUR quarterly council, Jan. 3, passed off pleasantly. There was not much business before the meeting, but all was disposed of, we hope, in a satisfactory manner. Part of the business was to appoint a correspondent for the MESSENGER, which duty was placed upon the writer.

On Sunday, Jan. 4, at 11 A. M., Eld. A. Molsbee delivered a good sermon, from the words: "But this I say, brethren, the time is short." 1 Cor. 7: 29. He also preached again at 7 P. M. At the close of the meeting one precious soul came forward for admission into church fellowship by baptism, which will be attended to in the future. May others soon be constrained to forsake the ranks of Satan, and join the army of the Lord, is our prayer!

A. J. WINE.

From the Mingona Church, Kans.

BRO. S. BOWSER, from Kingman, Kansas, preached for us at the Social Plain school-house on the evening of Nov. 22. On the forenoon of the next day he preached at the Liberty school-house, in the north-west part of our congregation. He preached six sermons in all at the last-named place, and one at the Clark school-house.

Dec. 14, our home ministers commenced a series of meetings at the Term school-house. Bro. Jesse Shamberger, from the southern part of our congregation, was with us a few evenings. We continued our meetings until the evening of Dec. 28. The weather was fine, and the attendance and attention very good. We have had no additions so far, but hope that the members have been much strengthened and built up in that most holy faith. Much good seed has been sown, which we hope, will ripen in due time, so as to be gathered before it is forever too late!

J. H. MILLER.

From Ludington, Wis.

IN compliance with a call by the brethren and sisters, living in Clark County, Wis., and a demand of the Mission Board, I left my home Oct. 30, and arrived the same day at Neilsville,—a distance of, perhaps, sixty miles from home. Here I was met by brethren T. D. VanBuren and Bullard and after a chilly, but pleasant ride of ten miles, I arrived at Bro. VanBuren's home. I was glad to meet with this pleasant family, and, after a good night's rest, was ready to resume my journey, ten miles west, where I commenced my labors Oct. 31. I continued meetings at this point until Nov. 6, with a growing interest to the close. One dear sister expressed a desire to walk with God's people.

From here I returned to Bro. VanBuren's, where I preached to a large and attentive house on the evening of Nov. 11. I closed my labors in Clark County,—eighteen meetings in all,—Nov. 12. Bro. VanBuren then conveyed me, a distance of fifty miles, to Bro. A. Mock's, in the Maple Grove church. During my stay here, one more dear sister came out on the Lord's side. I am glad that our dear Bro. VanBuren expects to locate here in the near future. His labors are very much needed here. We expect to build a house of worship at that point next summer, and are preparing part of the material this winter. May the prayers of God's people ascend in our behalf!

Literary Notes.

The Treasury for Pastor and People commences the year with a noble number in every respect. Its frontispiece is an excellent likeness of the Rev. Dr. T. A. Noble, of Chicago, who sermonizes the introduction in the magazine. It is followed by three other excellent sermons by eminent preachers in three several denominations. A view of Union Park Congregational Church is also given with a sketch of Dr. Noble's life. No one should fail to read the article on Modern Criticism of the Pentateuch, by Prof. Leitch of Belfast College, Ireland. There are seven sermons in the Leading Thoughts all of which are exceedingly suggestive. Dr. Cuyler, who is engaged to give monthly Pen Pictures of Eminent Preachers, gives his first in this number, his subject being Dr. Joseph Addison Alexander, of whom there is also a portrait. President Orr's article on Christianity not a Failure, is worthy of attentive perusal. Other notes on Singing with the Spirit, by Rev. C. S. Plummer, Whither are we Drifting, Rev. B. W. Williams, Exalt the Word, Bishop Foss, and Personal Responsibility, by Rev. A. J. Reynolds. Many other articles are full of timely and important thoughts. Dr. Monnets treatment of the Sunday school Lessons is fresh, suggestive and clear. The editorials are on Utilizing the Steeples, Dark Lantern Christians and the Secret of Social Salvation. Yearly, $2.50. Clergymen, $2; Single copies, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 5 Cooper Union, New York.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

HISEY.—In the Bethel church, Ind., Oct. 2, of typhoid fever, Bro. Sylvanus Hisey, aged 34 years, 4 months and 13 days.

He left a wife, three children, a brother, and other relatives and friends to mourn their loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope. He died as he lived,—a consistent brother in Christ.

Funeral services to a large concourse of friends by the undersigned.

W. R. Deeter.

SNYDER.—Near Curryville, Blair Co., Pa., Dec. 31, 1890, sister Elizabeth L. Snyder, wife of Bro. Simon Snyder, a deacon in the Woodbury church, Bedford Co., Pa., aged 63 years, 10 months and 5 days.

She leaves a husband and seven children to mourn their loss. Sister Snyder was a daughter of Rhinehart Replogle, deceased. In her death the Woodbury church has lost a faithful mother in Israel. The esteem in which she was held, was shown by the large concourse of people that assembled at her funeral on Jan. 2, 1891, at the Replogle meeting-house, near Woodbury. Funeral services were conducted by Eld. James Sell, assisted by brethren J. K. Brown and Brice Sell, from the words, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." May God's choicest blessings rest upon the bereft family, is our prayer!

D. S. Replogle.

RINEHART.—At Waynesborough, Pa., Dec. 22, sister Susan Rinehart, aged about 56 years.

Deceased was a sister-in-law of Bro. Benjamin E. Price of our town. Our departed sister united with the church in her youth. She never was married. She was a very consistent member of the Brethren church, and much devoted to the church of her choice. She loved to be in her place in the house of the Lord. She was of a quiet disposition. Her father and mother preceded her but a few years to the spirit world. She was afflicted over two years with that dread disease, cancer, internally, which worked its way till death ensued. We hope those of her brothers still out of the church, and away from the Lord, will lay it to heart and come to Christ and live. Funeral services by Bro. Jacob Snider, D. M. Baker and Tobias Imler, to a large congregation of sorrowing friends.

J. F. Oller.

MOORE.—Within the bounds of the Greene church, Iowa, Dec. 16, Frances Leroi, son of Bro. Riley and sister Susanna Moore, and grandson of the writer, aged 5 months and sixteen days.

After a few days' suffering, the spirit left the body and went to God, who gave it. Services were improved by Eld. G. W. Cripe, of Cerro Gordo, Ill.

J. F. Eikenberry.

FEES.—At her home, near Mt. Etna, Iowa, Dec. 27, 1890, Adaline M. J. Fees, wife of Bro. Samuel Fees, aged 69 years, 1 month and 29 days.

Deceased was born in Cincinnati, Ohio. She removed with her parents to LaPorte, Ind., where she was married April 10, 1842. From there she moved with her husband to St. Joe Co., Ind., and then to Burlington, Iowa, the same year. From the latter place she came to Adams County, Iowa, where she resided till the time of her death. She united with the Brethren church at Mt. Etna, in February, 1866, and remained a faithful and consistent member. She was ever kind and ready to care for others, and always forgetful of self. She was sick for over a year and only able to be up a little part of the time. Oct. 18 she attended the Communion services, though suffering and very weak. Oct. 25 she was anointed by brethren Bechtelheimer and Myers. She was taken worse Nov. 22, and failed rapidly. Her intense suffering was borne with Christian fortitude and patience. She leaves a husband, who has been afflicted for fifteen years. She was the mother of three sons and two daughters. The eldest son died July 12, 1864. The maiden name of the deceased was Bias. Funeral services Dec. 29 from Rev. 14: 13 by Eld. Barto, who spoke words of comfort and consolation to the mourning ones.

Annie M. W. Fees.

BOWMAN.—In the Knob Creek church, Tenn., Dec. 25, 1890, Bro. D. B. Bowman, aged 68 years, 9 months and 14 days.

Deceased, after lighting the lamps at the church, sat down quietly in his seat. Soon after he struggled for breath, and in a few minutes he was dead. He leaves a wife and eleven children to mourn their loss. The church has lost a faithful brother, but we hope that our loss is his great gain. He was a member for about fifty years, and a faithful deacon for a number of years. He was buried Dec. 27. The services were improved by brethren C. H. Diehl, W. A. Sherfy and George C. Bowman from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, 8.

MYERS.—In the Baugo church, Elkhart Co., Ind., Sept. 6, 1890, Bro. Enos Myers, aged 69 years, 6 months and 13 days.

Bro. Myers was born in Bucks County, Pa., Feb. 23, 1821.

Funeral services by Bro. Alex. Miller to a large concourse of neighbors and friends.

H. M. Schwalm.

STEWARD.—At Waynesborough, Pa., Dec. 26, 1890, sister Sadie Steward, aged 18 years, 4 months and 11 days.

The subject of this notice was a daughter of sister Anna Steward, of Waynesborough, Pa. She united with the church in her fifteenth year. She was active in all church work, and taught a class in Sunday-school up to within two weeks of her death. Her bright example will long be remembered.

It has pleased the Lord to transport our much loved sister Sadie to the beautiful beyond. When the summons came last Friday morning, she fell asleep without a struggle. Blessed be the name of him who gave the bereaved mother sustaining grace to bear up under the cloud of sorrow and affliction! Sister Sadie brightened and blessed the home by her Christian life and song of praise, but her departure leaves a great void, which only blessed memory and Christian hope can fill here. This Christian mother, with her children, could sit and talk of the love of God, but now the family is broken for the first time. Though Sadie's voice is now hushed in silence, here below, yet she mingles her sweet voice up yonder with the blood-washed throng to sing of Moses and the Lamb. The Word of God dispels the gloom of death, and the light of glory, which streams across the grave, leaves no place for shadows. By and by all that knew and loved her shall meet her again. Then we shall know what we confidently believe, that "God doeth all things well." She bore her affliction with Christian resignation, and expressed an undoubted hope of her acceptance with her Blessed Lord. Deceased was a niece of elders David E. and Benjamin E. Price.

Funeral services by the writer, assisted by Bro. Jacob Snider, from Philipp. 1: 23 to a very large congregation of sympathizing friends. Services in the town church. J. F. Oller.

HANNEKE.—At her home, in Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 19, 1890, sister Katie Hanneke (nee Saylor), aged 49 years, 2 months and 29 days.

Deceased was born in Somerset Co., Pa., Sept 20, 1841.

She leaves seven brothers, two sisters, a mother and step-daughter to mourn their loss. She was a great sufferer almost all her lifetime; but was always cheerful and hopeful. She bore her affliction with Christian fortitude, and patiently waited for the hour of dissolution, which was calm and peaceful. She said her work was done, and that she was glad to go.

Funeral services improved by brethren L. R. Peifer and B. F. Miller from 1 Thess. 4: 13 to a large congregation. Cenie Peifer.

ERWIN.—In the Yellow Creek church, Stephenson Co., Ill., Bro. David Erwin, aged 82 years, 6 months and 16 days.

The subject of this sketch was born in Lancaster County, Pa., April 25, 1808. In early life he united with the Brethren's church, and remained true and faithful until death.

He served the church as deacon for many years, and filled the duties, obligatory to that office, in a Christian-like manner.

His seat was seldom vacant at church services, and he was also a regular attendant at Sunday-school. A few weeks before his death he called for the elders of the church, and was anointed in the name of the Lord, after which he expressed his desire to be absent from the body, and present with the Lord. Oh! that we all could die with the bright anticipation of the future world, as did our dear aged brother.

Thus the saintly widow has lost a loving companion, the children a kind father, the church a faithful brother, and the community a respected citizen. His remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of people. Funeral services by Eld. D. B. Eby. L. E. Keltner.

DINSMORE.—At Nevada, Story Co., Iowa, Dec. 14, 1890, Lyman M. Dinsmore, son of sister Eliza Dinsmore, aged 42 years, 7 months and 2 days.

The funeral took place at the M. E. church, of Nevada, Dec. 16, and the remains were laid to rest in the Nevada cemetery. Deceased has been a resident of this place for over twenty-one years, and was highly esteemed for his sterling qualities, and will be missed greatly.

Lyman M. Dinsmore was a native of North Georgetown, Ohio, and was born May 12, 1848. He came, with his mother and family, to Nevada in the spring of 1869, since which time he has resided on the home farm, just south of Nevada. The illness of which he died was rheumatism, from which he suffered for over eight long years. He was a great but patient sufferer. He was unmarried and leaves a mother, two brothers, and four sisters to mourn their loss.

He will be greatly missed by the home circle, of which he was a leading member, and by his neighbors and acquaintances.

Sarah Weidner.

GUY.—In Tuscarawas County, Ohio, Dec. 31, 1890, Anna Angel Guy, aged 67 years, 4 months and 29 days.

Out of a family of sixteen there remain but two,—George and David Angel. When she was only six years old, her parents removed to Montgomery Co., Ohio; thence to Elkhart County, Ind., and thence to Kosciusko County, Ind., three miles south of Syracuse, remaining in that vicinity until her death.

She was united in marriage to James H. Guy, May 27, 1847. Two children were born to them,—Perry and Anderson. Father and both sons preceded her to the spirit world.

She was left a widow, Dec. 17, 1875. In every sense of the word she was a pioneer woman. Born in Eastern Ohio, when that was a comparatively new country, she came to Northern Indiana when the Indians outnumbered the whites ten to one. Her parents had but little of this world's goods, so she knew what it was to be poor. In her later years she had a sufficiency, and gave to the church of her choice,—the Brethren,—of which she was a member for thirty-six years, a donation of $300. We will miss her, but do not mourn as those who have no hope.

Funeral services were conducted by Bro. Davis Younce, assisted by the undersigned.

W. R Deeter.

DONLAP.—At Glendora, Cal., Dec. 10, infant son of brother and sister Donlap, aged 13 months and 14 days. Funeral services by the writer from Matt. 18: 3, 4.

John Metzger.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY

This little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising "—GEO B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.

"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music "—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Respected Friend:

If an agent comes to your house and asks your wife to buy a Singer Sewing Machine "made exactly like the Singer was made thirty years ago," do you think she would want it? The chances are that she would prefer an improved light-running Singer machine such as they make at the present day.

If you are a farmer, and an agent would ask you to buy a McCormick reaper and mower, made exactly like the McCormick machine was made forty years ago, would you take the heavy, clumsy, horse-killing reaper when you can get the improved, light-running modern machine of the same name for less money? Then, do you suppose that a medicine made exactly as it was made a hundred years ago is as desirable as an improved medicine adapted to the diseases of to-day? There are now a number of diseases that were unknown to our forefathers; — it has been less than forty years since Diphtheria made its appearance in this country; Gastritis, Diabetis, Bright's Disease are modern complaints, caused undoubtedly by Baking Powder and unwholesome cooking. HERBICURA is intended to cure all diseases known in olden times, as well as the diseases of the present day; — Pepsine and Stillingia are modern remedies intended for the cure of modern diseases,— these curative agents were discovered in recent years and were unknown one hundred years ago. A proper combination forms HERBICURA.

We guarantee that HERBICURA will do good in more cases than Sarsaparilla, or any other blood medicine, so artfully advertised. When you have tried other medicines to no purpose, then do not be discouraged, for HERBICURA may be just what you want.

HERBICURA is sold at a low price to introduce it more readily where it is not yet known.

HERBICURA is not an experimont.

HERBICURA is perfectly harmless.

THERE are a number of protracted meetings being held in the Middle District of Pennsylvania, with encouraging prospects. The weather, the greater part of the time, has been favorable, which adds more or less to the success of the meetings.

WE received a note from Eld. J. W. Brumbaugh, of Clover Creek, stating that he intended to be with us during our Bible Session, but was detained at home on account of sickness. We were sorry to learn of his illness, and also that he could not be with us.

SEND for our illustrated catalogue of Bibles. We are prepared to send out Bibles of all kinds, and at prices as cheap as the cheapest. Commentaries, Bible Dictionaries and all other Bible helps and good books,—such as are safe to be placed in Christian families,—can be ordered through us.

MANY tell us that the MESSENGER is the only preacher they have, and that its pages, because of this, are especially appreciated. We are sorry that such can not have the living epistle to feed them, but as they have not, we are glad they can have this much. In our talks through the paper it would be well for us to feel that we are not writing to fill the pages, or to exhibit our smartness, but to feed the hungry with the Bread of Life. In all of our writing, let us feel that we are saying that which will bring peace and encouragement to the hearts of those who read after us.

THREE-FOURTHS of the world to-day can not tell what they are living for outside of eating, drinking and wearing clothes. To many, these things seem to be the sum and substance of life. These are all essential in their place, but are given us that we may live to reach after and receive the higher good for which we have been created, purchased and redeemed.

IN our study of the propagation of the Gospel, we have given the deacon question a very thorough investigation, and may, in the near future, give some of the conclusions arrived at. A superficial examination of this subject should not be satisfactory to the church and those who will try to settle the question without thoroughly examining all the evidences, will deny the trust imposed in them.

WE are frequently asked advice as to buying commentaries, "Whose do you recommend," etc. Some are hard to please, as the following example shows: "I want a commentary,—one that will explain every sentence in both books, especially in the New Testament,—and such a work do I want that will explain it truthfully—not in favor of any creed or sectarianism. I want the Truth, the whole Truth, and nothing but the Truth. I want it so plain that any child can understand it without going to a lot or other works to consult them to obtain a sufficient knowledge of what you want to read. Can you get me such a work, — subject to my approval, and permitting me, if not suitable, to return it?" No, we know of no such book,—except the Bible; —all human productions are more or less faulty.

THE BARREN FIG-TREE.

ABOUT this tree, in connection with the Christ, much has been said and written, and yet very few, if any, clear and satisfactory interpretations have been given. After so many being given, it may seem useless to attempt to give still another, and yet we will do so. The friends of Jesus lived across the Mount of Olives, from Jerusalem, in the town of Bethany. After his day's teaching was done, for the night, it was his custom to resort to this home of kindred spirits. Early one morning, as he was wending his way towards the city, in company with his disciples, his mind no doubt filled with the work before him, and the character of the people with whom he would come in contact, he saw in the distance a fig-tree full of leaves.

Though "the time of figs was not yet," he saw, on the tree, the indications of fruit, and because of the signs he expected to find the fruit. Had there been no leaves on the tree, he would not have expected fruit, and no curse would have followed, especially as it was not in the fig season. But here was a tree full of leaves, and as we are told that, on the fig-tree, the fruit appears before the leaves, and by the time that the leaves are in full growth, the fruit is ready to be plucked and eaten, —so this special tree said to the Master and his company, in appearance, "I have fruit; come and eat!" On this appearance he went to the tree, expecting to get what it said it had, and was disappointed, finding "nothing but leaves."

Why this tree was out of season, we can not tell. It was, no doubt, one of the strange freaks which nature sometimes plays,—and men often do it,—and it afforded the Master an excellent opportunity of teaching and impressing a lesson that was timely and much needed for the disciples, and to show them the true status of the people to whom he was going, with a burdened heart, to teach.

Deception and hypocrisy were sins that God always hated, and the Son never lost an occasion to teach against them. They were on their way to the temple, to teach, and his subjects would be Jews. This people, as a nation, had grown beyond the time of fruitage, and but little was expected of them until their time for fruit would again come, but, strange to say, they were persistent in their pretensions, and made a display of their goodness, but when Christ came to them, what did he find? "Nothing but leaves." Without they were pure and clean, but within they were ravening wolves,—whited sepulchers without; within, full of dead men's bones.

Here was a fig-tree that had borne fruit in season but had become fruitless, because it was cut off from the fruit-bearing stock, —until the fulness of the Gentiles would come in, —and no more forever, as far as that tree was concerned, could there be any fruit. The poor Jew had passed by his opportunity, and henceforth his bearing can be leaves only, —and now comes the curse. The old law is dead, and its leaves have withered away.

This lesson, severe as it was, went beyond the Jew in its application. We are made fruitful only by being grafted into the True Vine, and as long as we remain there, our fruit and leaves will come in season. But when this connection is lost and our religion becomes only a pretension, then will it be said of us, too, —nothing but leaves. Let not our religion be show only, that those, who come to us, because of our appearance, will find leaves only. First, as in the fig-tree, let the fruit appear, and let the leaves follow as an indication that the fruit is there.

There never was a time when the lesson, taught by the barren fruit-tree, is needed worse than now. There is so much hollow, empty profession. Let us pause here for a moment and look at our own lives—what have they been? Have we been bearing fruit? Have those who came to us hungering, gone away filled, or do they say, as they go, "only leaves,—nothing but leaves?"

The application of the lesson, we fear, and sober thought, will come home to many of us. If so, let it sink deep into our hearts and lives, and cause us to weigh carefully the importance of the fruit rather than the leaves.

There is so much in the Christian church to-day that is hollow and a sham, that a general stirring up is needful for us all. Fruit,—yes, fruit is what hungering and starving souls are needing. Let them have it through us.

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

GROWING OLD.

They call it "going down the hill" when we are growing old,
And speak with mournful accents when our tale is nearly told;
They sigh when talking of the past, the days that used to be,
As if the future were not bright with immortality

But it is not going down, 'tis climbing high and higher,
Until we almost see the mountain that our souls desire:
For if the natural eye grows dim, it is but dim to earth;
While the eye of faith grows keener to discern the Savior's worth

Who would exchange for shooting blade, the waving, golden grain;
Or when the corn is fully ripe, would wish it green again?
And who would wish the hoary head, found in the way of truth,
To be again encircled with the sunny locks of youth?

For though in truth, the outward man must perish and decay,
The inward man shall be renewed by grace from day to day;
Those who are planted by the Lord, unshaken in their root,
Shall in their old age flourish, and bring forth their choicest fruit.

It is not years that make men old: the spirit may be young
Though fully threescore years and ten, the wheels of life have run
God has him-self recorded in his blessed Word of Truth,
That they who wait upon the Lord, they shall e'en renew their youth.

And when the eye, now dim, shall open to behold the King,
And ears, now dull with age, shall hear the harps of heaven ring,
And on the head now hoary, shall be placed the crown of gold,
Then shall be known the everlasting joy of never growing old.

WOMAN'S WORK.

BY SARAH M. SAUNDERS.

No. 3. "Deaconesses."

In the continuation of our investigations upon the subject of woman's work in and for the church of the Living God, we are reminded of the many women who are spoken of in the Bible, and who are, no doubt, mentioned to enable the church to continue their recognition as "hand-maids" and servants of God. Although woman is called the "weaker vessel," yet she possesses a greater attribute in the power of endurance, than does the sterner sex. In the Old Testament we have honorable mention of Sarah, Rebecca, Rachel, Leah, Huldah, Esther, Ruth, and many others whose words and deeds are left on record for our instruction.

Coming down to the women of the New Testament, in studying the life of Christ, we can not but be impressed with the large number of ministering women mentioned. Who does not remember Joanna and the Mary's,—"the Mary blessed above all other women," "his mother;" "Mary of Magdala;" "Mary, the wife of Cleopas;" "Mary and Martha of Bethany." In the books of apostolic church history we find Dorcas, Lydia, Priscilla, and Philip's four daughters.

In connection with Paul's work, the activity of women is constantly recognized. Phebe and Mary, Junia, Triphena and Triphosa, "who labored in the Lord," and even Rahab, the tavern-keeper, is mentioned as having done a noble and praiseworthy work. We are told that "the deaconesses of the post-apostolic church were an important order of women. Whatever doubt there may be in regard to the order existing in the apostles' time, there can be none as to its existence shortly afterward." They are constantly mentioned by the writers of the church, and occasionally by the profane authors. "Pliny, the Younger, Governor of Bithynia, in his celebrated letter to the Emperor Trajan, concerning the Christians, speaks of two 'handmaids,' whom he calls ministrae, whom he felt obliged to torture,—this cultured and elegant gentleman,—in the persecution which raged in Asia Minor in his time." Pliny wrote in the year 107. John, the Apostle, had hardly been dead a dozen years.

In reading this letter, we feel that we are going back to the very time and institutions of the Apostles. "Tertullian, Origen, Basil, Chrysostom, and many others frequently mention 'deaconesses,' calling them often by this very name, diakonos, using later the feminine form, diakonissa. Chrysostom, the silver-tongued, lived in the last half of the fourth century." Among his writings are seventeen letters, addressed to Olympias, a lady of wealth and rank, who, for many years, was a deaconess in Constantinople. (Schaff's Apostolic and Church History contains satisfactory information on deaconesses.)

We might follow the history of the church on down through past ages, and we find that the Lutherans, and perhaps several other denominations in modern Europe, had their societies, called Deaconesses, and provided "homes" for those women who voluntarily left all and followed the example of the Savior by going about doing good to the poor and needy, visiting, nursing, and caring for the sick, regardless of their name or nationality.

We learn that the Methodist Episcopal church in America have organizations for the benefit and encouragement of their self-sacrificing women who desire to lay up treasures in heaven, and demonstrate to the world the "pure and undefiled religion," Jas. 1: 27, which the apostle so highly commends and which the Savior assured his disciples would insure a rich reward to those to whom it shall be said, "I was a hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me." Then shall they say unto him, "Lord, when saw we thee a hungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?" And he shall answer them, "Verily I say unto, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matt. 25: 35-40.

I am personally acquainted with women living in the City of Indianapolis, who practically fulfill at least a part of those good works enumerated above, and regularly, on Sabbath morning, wend their way to the jail or city work-house, and, in their good, motherly way, exhort, comfort, and pray for the men, boys and even women incarcerated behind those prison walls, often receiving and carrying messages from some poor boy to his heart-broken mother; comforting and consoling the unfortunate; inspiring the wayward with resolves to live better lives in the future, thus manifesting a spirit worthy of imitation.

In Chicago there is an institution or "Home" for such willing workers and Christian women who desire to consecrate their lives, and services, and means to the work of the Lord, thus loaning themselves and their substance to him, who has promised to repay with interest. At this place they can have the assistance, instruction and encouragement of those whose hearts are in the work, and thus a home and training school is provided for female nurses and physicians, who care for the needy and poor,—those whose forlorn condition is never thought of by the many who dress in royal robes, and "fare sumptuously every day."

A very remarkable feature of the order of Deaconesses is, that they have adopted a plain costume or uniform, so that they are known and recognized as Christian women and they can, by their simplicity of apparel, not only have the approval of Holy Writ, but can more readily gain the confidence of the poor and sick.

On page 737, No. 47, of the Messenger, I see an item in the Editorial department which shows that some of our warm-hearted, devoted sisters are offering themselves to do service for the Master. Shall such self-sacrificing women be compelled to abandon their noble ideas, of leaving home and friends, and devoting their lives to Christ's service, for lack of proper encouragement from those who are in authority?

Let it not be said that ye are lukewarm in the great work of doing good in this life, but let us lose no opportunity to prove to the world that we have been with Jesus and learned of him, and strive to make "our calling and election sure." 2 Pet. 1: 10.

WHAT SHALL WOMEN READ?

BY MARY BUCHER BEAHM.

It would be impossible to state just what the individual woman should read, for each has her special needs and inclinations. There are good books and papers innumerable that might be read with profit.

But there is one special kind of reading matter that is often entirely neglected, and which ranks in importance next to Holy Writ. This is concerning our bodies. "Study me; I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

The majority of young women, and old ones too, know so little of God's most wonderful piece of workmanship, that, without one thought as to results, they deform the body by improper modes of dress, thereby thinking to improve it.

Could they be made to realize the harm done, they would surely hesitate in their work. There are very few women that do not know some of the evils resulting from improper dressing, but the influence of fashion is too strong, and they do not possess the will-power to go against custom.

Let such read the works of writers like Dio Lewis, Cutter, Alice B. Stockham, Mrs. E. R. Shepherd, and others. Let them examine the catalogues and circulars issued by the dress reform stores of our larger cities, and they will find that women can be neatly, and, at the same time, healthfully dressed. Let them know that the majority of our most famous women dress just that way, and I believe there will be a decided change for the better.

Not in regard to dress alone is the education of our women neglected. How many mothers know what is best for the stomachs of their boys and girls? Instead of so much white flour, meat, pickles and sweets, they need the entire wheat foods, oatmeal and fruits, to grow up strong, healthy men and women. Had our women a better knowledge of the needs of these bodies of ours, sickness and drug medication would be greatly reduced. Proper dress, exercise, bathing, diet and ventilation would keep the system in a condition to ward off disease, and many a physician would be obliged to take in his shingle, and seek other employment.

PERSONAL HABITS OF PARENTS, A FACTOR IN THE TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

BY OLIVE M. BULLA.

THE formation of habits is, after all, the great object of education. This is the work of parents. They are called upon, by the position they hold, to train immortal souls for the enjoyment and service of God forever. Every appliance for the work is theirs,—in the natural affection of the parent for the child, and the child for the parent. Every facility is given for it in the free and constant steps and words of home life. Children naturally look to their parents for instruction and example, and of all influences to which they are subject, save that of the Almighty Spirit of God, that which parents exert upon them is the deepest and most lasting.

In seeking to fulfill this duty, we must remember, as has already been said, that personal or parental habits are of the first importance. So completely are the habits of the child affected by the habits of the parents, that parents should be very careful in their habits before children, both in word and in deed. What is called natural disposition, as distinct from disposition modified by training, has its root here. A good temper,—kindly, cheerful, buoyant and generous, or a bad one,—one that is morose, sulky, or passionate,—may be thus derived. But without training, the good disposition will speedily find some evil development under the influence of the corrupt will.

The knowledge of ourselves and the fact that tendencies are, to a great extent, hereditary, will help us in our work. But just as this knowledge does not diminish our personal responsibility, but increases it, making the task of self-government more possible to us, so the knowledge that our children are likely to resemble us in disposition, may help us in training them. We know our own weak points, and we may thus more easily detect theirs. We know the direction of our own evil tendencies, and we may thus learn more effectually to watch over them, and adapt our government to their need.

A child's susceptibility to external impressions commences at the very dawn of life, and to the mother is intrusted the task of moulding it then for good or evil, to a great extent. With her hand, her voice, her manner, the infant becomes earliest familiar, and with that familiarity commences its moral training. Its pain is soothed, its cries are hushed, its wants are supplied by her. A tender habit of mutual interest is thus established, which grows with the child's rapidly growing intelligence, and which gives her an incalculable power in the formation of its habits.

The father has, as the child advances in self-consciousness, an equally important share in this duty. He is the head of the family, its highest authority,—the ultimate appeal in all points connected with its order and government. It is his to rule the household, and have his children in subjection. 1 Tim. 3: 4. Love to the mother, and reverence for the father are the earliest emotions of which the child is conscious or capable. What a mighty power for good is thus put into the parents' hands!

How watchful and prayerful ought parents to be, that nothing in us interferes with its right use, from our lips, our looks, our actions, all of which the child deems perfect, all of which it thinks it has a right to adopt as its own! The child thinks that all its father or mother does is right. Let us be very careful and impress right habits upon our children,—habits that will make deep impressions on their young and tender minds! Go and take them to Sunday-school and church every Sunday, and teach them the things pertaining to the Lord!

OUR HYMNAL.

BY HIRAM S. GARST.

CONSIDERING the different views, presented at last Annual Meeting and also those of some writers, I believe the object and aim of a revision of the Hymnal is not clearly understood by many Brethren. The query originated in the North-eastern District of Kansas, and I think is there more fully understood, so that a hearing from that District would be in place. The object is not to put away the compilation of our old brethren and to get up something entirely different, but it is to make needed changes in order to improve the Hymnal and to make it cheaper.

First, there are quite a number of hymns seldom, if ever, used. See numbers 1, 223, 268, 647, 728, 765, 790, 800, 801, 818. By leaving them out, paper, ink, compositors' work, purchase money, and bulk,—all valuable items,—would be saved.

Second, those who are posted know that appropriate hymns for the use of children are scarce in our collection. The spiritual welfare of children should not be neglected. It is praiseworthy that their wants are supplied in many places by means of Sunday-schools and children's meetings, and we should have more appropriate hymns in our collection to be used on those occasions.

Third, — and in this I hope the compilers of our Hymnal will pardon the criticism, – we want those 167 duplicate tunes left out of the Hymnal, and put in other good tunes, used already for generations, and such as will be continued in use, such as Bealoth, Idumea, Webster, Augusta, Condescension, Pisgah, Sessions, Bozrah, Invocation, Jubilee, etc. We ought, by all means, to have the music of all the good, old, familiar tunes in our collection; and we want the music as "originally written." Changing the music of old tunes is not likely to make an improvement. See numbers 727, 784, 786 in the Hymnal. Also compare the same tunes on pages 20 and 91; and on 154 and 262.

I do not make these references for criticism, but to show in part why we need a revision.

We do not want rudiments of music put in the Hymnal, and make a singing-school music book of it, nor a book filled with new tunes and choruses, nor made larger. The primary object of that query is to make the Hymn Book smaller and cheaper by leaving out about 300 hymns that are seldom or never used,—to make it better by adding fifty to one hundred other good hymns, of which some will be adapted to the wants of children; to improve the Hymnal by leaving out all duplicates, and adding, as nearly as possible, all the old church music, used throughout the Brotherhood, and to have only plain, substantial binding. If some good copyright music could be added without incurring too great expense, it would make the book all the better. Our membership is increasing fast; we sing more and need a greater variety of music than our present Hymnal contains. The tendency will be sure to use other books like Gospel Hymns, unless our own can be revised and improved to supply the present deficiency.

GLAD TIDINGS.

BY ROSIE S. MYERS.

"Glory to the infant stranger,
Lowly laid in Bethlehem's manger,
Peace on earth, good will to mortals,
Paradise unbars its portals."

ALMOST nineteen hundred years have elapsed since the advent of our Savior into this world. In his coming, the prophecies of ages were fulfilled. Although his birth was attended with lowly surroundings, yet never before did such dignity and honor mark the ushering into existence of any earthly monarch. It was meet that such an important event should be published with a view to impress the mind with reverence and awe. Hence an angel was dispatched from heaven to announce the good news of the new-born King.

But this message was not carried to the princes and the nobles of the land. Some poor, humble shepherds who were guarding their flocks on the hills of Judea, were first favored with the joyful intelligence. And as they were "keeping watch over their flocks by night," they were overcome with great fear at the approach of the angel and the manifest presence of the "glory of the Lord," which surrounded them. And as their consternation was visible, they were encouraged not to be afraid, for, said the angel, "I bring you good tidings of great joy." "For unto you is born this day in the City of David, a Savior which is Christ the Lord."

This glorious, new-born Prince, the promised Messiah, could surely be found by the sign that was given to them, for perhaps no other infant could be found in all that city, in such an humble situation.

No sooner had the angel performed his mission to the shepherds than he was joined by "a multitude of the heavenly host," which gave audible expression of their love and praise by singing, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace; good will towards men." Never did the earth resound with such praise as when these soft, sweet strains fell from the lips of the angel band. Although generations have come and gone, yet the echoes of that song still reverberate over the land.

The information that was conveyed of Emmanuel's birth, was not only to gladden the hearts of the Bethlehem shepherds. "I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to ALL people." This message never grows old by repetition. It has served as a beacon light to guide many a sin-tossed mariner over life's rough sea to the haven of eternal rest. Many of us can, no doubt, recall to our minds when the old, old story of Bethlehem's babe sounded as new in our ears as when it was first uttered by the white-robed herald, "For he shall save his people from their sins" was a healing balm to our sin-sick souls. May we, then, continue so to live that we can have the full assurance that, when the turmoils of life are over, we will be permitted to join the angelic choir, in singing the sweet songs of redeeming love.

And you, dear friends, who have never as yet made any public manifestation that the tidings of this new-born Prince has afforded any joy to your souls, can you pass by each returning anniversary of his birth, without reflecting on the incidents connected with this interesting event?

The shepherds of Judea were not content to remain at their occupation after receiving the message of the angel. Their flocks were now a matter of minor importance; they left them to the mercy of ravenous beasts and "said to one another, 'Let us now go over unto Bethlehem and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord has made known unto us.'" And the result was that they returned, glorifying and praising God for what they had seen and heard. Can we not learn a practical lesson from the example of these men? The story of the infant Jesus should be the topic of greatest interest to us all. It gives us comfort in this life and when death comes, it will be the only theme on which we can base our hopes of heaven.

LIFE AND IMMORTALITY.

J. S. Mohler,

Dear Brother:—

In your article in the Messenger on "Life and Immortality," I can not agree with you. I fail to find that the apostle has any reference to the death of the body. In the first place, Christ did not abolish the death of the body through the Gospel. In the second place, the enemy, —Death, —reigns over us. We are under the power of death. The same apostle, in 1 Cor. 15: 37, says, "And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be." In verse 44 he says, "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body, and also, in Matt. 16: 26, "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul." Also in Mark 8: 36, 37, "Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Luke 9: 25, "For what is a man advantaged if he gain the whole world and lose himself?" Luke 12: 4, 5, "I say unto you, my friends, be not afraid of them that kill the body, but I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear. Fear him which, after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell." Matt. 10: 28, "But rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

Please give your mind on the above and let me hear from you. Samuel T. Harnes.

REMARKS.

S. T. Harnes,

My Dear Brother in Christ:—

Your kind, Christian letter has been received and considered. I discover that you fail to get the right idea of my letter, as well as the true meaning of Paul in Heb. 2: 14.

You say that you fail to find that the apostle has any reference to the death of the body. Let us quote Paul again in Heb. 2: 14. "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same, that through death he might destroy him that had power over death, that is the devil."

The phrase, "flesh and blood," in the above quotation, means Christ's humanity, i. e., Christ's humanity was like our humanity. His body on his human side, was like our bodies, in that he hungered and thirsted, and became weary, was tempted, suffered in the flesh pain and death.

Christ came to destroy him that had power over death,—the devil. This he virtually accomplished by his resurrection from the dead. Had Christ not come in the flesh, and died and triumphed over death, by his resurrection, then death would forever hold its victims within its iron grasp, and the dark prison house of the dead would remain eternally closed. But Christ broke the iron bands of the monster, when he walked forth from the darkness of the grave, in the power and glory of the resurrection.

The death, here referred to, is undoubtedly the death of the body. The phrase, "flesh and blood" clearly indicates that. The apostle Peter makes this point clear, in his first epistle, 3: 18,—"Being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit."

As we stated in our former article, "All that is now wanting is the application of the power and efficacy of Christ's resurrection to the dead, and all the dead will be raised." John puts on record the words of Christ on this point, in 5: 28,—"For the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth."

The Revelator also says, in writing of the immortal victory, gained by Christ over the darkness of the grave, "I am he that liveth and was dead: and, behold, I am alive forevermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death." 1: 18.

Christ will use the "key," and unlock all the chambers of the dead, whether on sea or land, and forever abolish the sting of death and the victory of the grave. In this prospective sense, death is abolished. In the course of time it will become a present, veritable fact. Then will be fulfilled the saying, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

In your letter I find also these words, "In the first place, Christ did not abolish the death of the body through the Gospel." I think if you will examine carefully my former article, you will discover that I did not say that death was abolished through the Gospel; but I did say that Christ brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel. Paul says the same in 2 Tim. 1: 10.

The German language is clearer on this point than the English. It says, "Der dem Tode die Macht hat genommen." Translated this reads, "He has taken from death its power," i. e., the power of Christ's resurrection is far greater than the power of death. Hence he will snatch from the power of death and the grave, every one holden by them.

We think it is clear that the death of the body is what the apostle meant; even if death does reign over the body, as it always has, it will not always reign. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." 1 Cor. 15: 26. Paul speaks of death being abolished, prospectively, though the language reads in the present tense. In 1 Cor. 15: 26, he speaks of death being destroyed, as a present and an accomplished fact.

To write of things in the future, as though the things written of were then transpiring, is a Bible method of presenting important facts. Isaiah, in writing of the great event of Christ coming into the world to redeem us, speaks in the present tense, by saying, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given." 9: 6. Here the facts referred to seem present because the language is used in the present tense, but the fact itself was yet in the future, over seven hundred years. So when Paul wrote of death being abolished, he means that Christ became the first fruits of them that slept, and the power of death was broken, and that the total banishment of death, though yet in the future, was nevertheless an established fact. OBJECT LESSONS.

BY FANNY MORROW.

Presenting an object or picture before the eye of a pupil in our modern schools has become both a sucessful and popular method of imparting knowledge. A fact thus presented to the mind, is comprehended quicker and retained in the memory longer than by any other known method. However, by looking over the past in history, we see that this is not a new way of instruction. Ages ago the inspired King David turned the eyes of the people unto a most grand and lofty "object lesson" when he uttered the following eloquent language: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handiwork." "Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge." Can any intelligent being look upon the star-gemmed sky and full-orbed moon and not learn a lesson of the Glory of God, and of his handiwork, far, far exceeding the handiwork of man?

"Day unto day uttereth speech,"—every new morning is a voice from God. Sweet light of day, how could we exist, much less perform our necessary labor, without thee?

"Night unto night showeth knowledge." How favorable to the comfort of rest in sleep are the shades of night, how complete the goodness and knowledge of God concerning the wants of man, yea, of all his creatures! When God's ancient people turned away from him and worshiped idols, when they refused to keep his law and he sent his Prophet Ezekiel to warn them, he was instructed to present the warning by many striking illustrations. In the fifth chapter of the Book of Ezekiel we read that he was instructed how he should remove the hair from his head and the beard from his face, and divide it into three parts by weight.

In the midst of the City of Jerusalem he was to burn one-third of it, one-third he should smite about with a knife, and the other third he should scatter in the wind, and God would draw out a sword after them, and when the people looked on in astonishment, the lesson is riveted upon their minds by the following words: "A third part of thee shall die with the pestilence and with famine shall they be consumed in the midst of thee; and a third part shall fall by the sword round about thee; and I will scatter a third part into all the winds, and I will draw out a sword after them." Can we think those unfortunate Jews ever forgot that object lesson?

After Jesus had lived in this world long enough to learn something of the loneliness, the sorrow and heartache incident to mortal life, he points to the sparrow upon the housetop, to the fowls of the air, and says: "Behold the birds of the heavens; they sow not neither do they gather into barns, yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Are not ye of much more value than they?"

When anxious care crept into the hearts of his followers, beginning to choke the good seed, the beautiful lily, exceeding by far, in grace and loveliness, all the rich glory of King Solomon's domain, he pointed it out as an object to look upon, as a means to increase their faith. For if God so cared for his works that so soon perish and pass away, how much more will he care and provide for his children who possess an immortal nature!

Can a child of God ever look upon the birds of heaven, or upon the frail, beautiful flowers of earth, without a brightening faith and increasing joy?

Surely not, if we remember how they were used by this Matchless Teacher as an object lesson.

Osborne, Kans.

"When the apostle tells us of his faith in the Son of God, who had loved him and given himself for him, he is letting us into the grand secret of his life. He moved onward under the constraining power of a love that had redeeemed him from this present evil world. Hence he forgot the things that were behind, and pressed forward with an eye fixed on meeting the Lord in glory. Why should not we follow in the same track? To rest in the things of this world, is to sit down in Satan's enchanted bowers. Jesus found no resting place on earth. Let us, then, not loiter on the race. 'Onward' is the word. Let us be in earnest as we never were before. Our time here is very short, let us not lose it in looking back. Time enough for that hereafter. In such a high, and holy, and heavenly calling as ours, how diligent we should be! We live in peculiar days, when Jesus is much dishonored by his own people because they are neither hot nor cold. We are afraid of being thorough Christians. The church needs pressure to arouse it. She needs a great tug to shake her out of the lap of the world. Let us be true to our calling, making the Lord's service our delight; as in the days of Ezra, building the walls of Zion with one hand, whilst holding a weapon in the other."

"Nothing is more amiable than true modesty, and nothing is more contemptible than the false. The one guards virtue, the other betrays it."

From Garrison, Iowa.

I HEAR considerable said about formulating plans in order that the Western sufferers may be relieved. Since our Brethren in Northern Illinois have a plan which I do not think can be improved, I would therefore suggest that all the churches send their contributions to the MESSENGER office for distribution. We have waited until the winter is half gone. Now, brethren, let us make a move. I have been traveling in Middle Iowa considerably, and I think I am safe in saying that there will be no plan gotten up here. I think it is not necessary, since we can make use of the one above referred to.

I would urge upon the dear brethren and sisters, especially of our own district, to come forth at once and do our duty, and God will bless us in this good work. Just think how much he has loaned to us! Will we not return a part to him, by relieving the needy? I herewith send $20, not to boast of what I am doing, but feeling to encourage all to make a general move. Now is the time to let our Christian light shine, that the name of the Lord may be glorified. At my earliest convenience I will see what the Garrison church will do. STEPHEN JOHNSON.

From Dayton, Columbia Co., Wash.

I LEFT my home at Russell, Kans., Nov. 8, for Portland, Oregon, where I arrived on the 12th. The same day I started for Lebanon, Linn Co., Ore., and crossed Lake Tobish a few hours before the occurrence of the disaster, resulting in the wrecking of the passenger train that went through the trestle work. I arrived safely in Lebanon and found the members all well, excepting our dear old sister Peebler. She is quite feeble. Both she and her husband are upwards of eighty years of age, but strong in the faith.

I met our aged brother, David Brower, from the Koos Valley. He is suffering from the infirmities of old age. I visited most of the members in Linn County; then went to Marion County, east of Salem, to Bro. David Early's, visiting members in that church, and preaching. They have only one minister there,—Bro. Joseph Early. Bro. M. M. Bashor is their elder. There are only four ministers in these two churches and the members are much scattered. The harvest is ripe but the laborers are few. I preached twenty-five sermons while in Oregon and had meeting at nine different places. I left the Willamette Valley, Dec. 8, for Portland, where I spent the day. Portland is a beautiful city, and a great thoroughfare. At 9 P. M. I left for Umatillo County, North-eastern Oregon. I stopped at Milton and visited sister Sarah E. Renner, formerly from Kansas. She is the only member I know of in this part of the State. Dec. 10 I went to Dayton, Washington, and stopped with my son. I looked up the isolated members, and found that there were three on the Assotin, four at Pomeroy, two of which I baptized on the 6th, while there; two at Pataha; eight at Dayton (one I baptized the 11th); one at Huntsville; two at Waitsburg, Wash. These members are all in a radius of about fifty miles, and south of Snake River, except sister Renner, who lives at Milton, Ore. There is no minister residing at Dayton, and they had no preaching here for years. The prospect, however, is good for building up a church here if they were organized and had a minister. I do hope the General Mission Board will see that Bro. Sidney Hodgden visits them at least once a month, and in the spring, when seeding is over, fully organize them.

Further correspondence regarding these matters may be had by addressing: Solomon Livengood, Dayton, Wash.; Adam J. Troyer, Pataha, Wash.; Elizabeth Hunt, Pomeroy, Wash.; Sarah E. Renner, Milton, Ore.; William F. Burnett, Starkey, Union Co., Ore.

The last one named lives about twenty miles east of Hilgard station, down Grand Round River. I understand there are about six members there, who should also be looked after. The Mission Board of Oregon is too weak to see to all these wants, and the distance is too great to reach them. The members here pay my expenses. I expect to leave for home Jan. 26. JOHN HOLLINGER.

Russell, Kans., Jan. 12.

From the Sunny South.

I LEFT home Dec. 15 for the South. After five days' travel, I reached my destination in safety,—Evangeline or Esterly,—where sister Funk lives. Her husband keeps a general stock of merchandise. The town consists of one store and post-office, boarding house, two hay barns, steam hay press and school-house. I met Bro. Sutter's children and soon found myself with them, going to their home, where I met brother and sister Sutter for the first time. I will always remember their kindness to me. I met several other brethren and sisters who were friendly and kind to me.

I find Louisiana a most beautiful country, very healthy and fertile. Any one that is industrious can have vegetables all the year. At Bro. William Funk's I saw peas, strawberries and early peaches in bloom. We also had fresh lettuce and cabbage to eat. I have lived in the West over twenty years, and my advice to home-seekers is to go to Louisiana while land is cheap. It is time to stop going West; it is only a matter of time, until you will have to leave. Any brother wishing to know something of Louisiana and not able to go, should write to Bro. Sutter, Esterly, and Bro. Wm. Funk, Jennings. They are good brethren, and will give you full information. They are interested to have good brethren and sisters locate with them, and would like to organize a church. There is a large field of labor in Louisiana. Who will be the first one to work for the Master? The South needs the Gospel as well as the North.

I am now at home again and under the blessing of God found my dear family well.

From the Mahoning Church, Mahoning Co., Ohio.

BRO. JOHN F. KAHLER, of Stark County, commenced meetings in this church Dec. 20. He held two meetings at the Zion Hill house, and continued at the Bethel house, where he closed Dec. 29, with three additions by baptism. May the good work continue, and many be brought into the fold, to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

In giving a sketch of the work in the Mahoning church during the year 1890, we notice that Bro. Reuben Shroyer held a series of meetings at Zion Hill last January, which resulted in five starting for heaven, and entering into the kingdom. Again, in the spring, four persons were baptized, after some meetings by Bro. Shroyer. Brethren N. Longanecker and Sam. Sprankle labored very acceptably to the church by preaching, as well as in council and at our Communion. Brethren Stuckey, Pollard and John Kahler, were also at our Communion last spring. One was baptized at our love-feast last fall. During last year we had thirteen additions, all young in years. May they continue faithful until death, and receive a crown of life! JACOB H. KURTZ.

Gleanings.

BRO. JOHN SNOWBERGER and wife came to us Jan. 13. Bro. Snowberger held four meetings for us, and gave us many good admonitions. Although we could see no visible results of his labors at the time, eternity will tell the good that was done.

Dec. 14th six dear souls were buried beneath the chilly waves with Christ in baptism. This made fifteen additions while Bro. Wm. Hipes was with us. Although our number has been swelled by these additions, yet the "Reaper of Time" has been among us and gathered the sheaves that were ripe for the harvest.

Jan. 15 we laid to rest our dear brother John Thomas. He has left a place vacant in the home and church that this world can never fill. He suffered for a long time, but is now at rest. Thus we see God is no respecter of persons. In the last year the old soldiers of the cross, the middle-aged, the blooming youth, and the babe from its mother's arms have been called away to try the realities of another world, whether they were prepared or not. Many warnings have been given, yet people go on, careless and unconcerned!

The church seems to be in love and union now. The clouds have passed away, and the sunshine of God's eternal love is showered upon us. We crave an interest in the prayers of God's dear children every-where! ALICE GARBER.

For the Western Sufferers.

THE Brethren, named at the close of the article subjoined below, met in council to consider the propriety of calling a special District Meeting, but concluded that the expenses, incurred in holding such a meeting, might be used as a direct investment for the relief of the sufferers, deeming that an appeal to the generosity of the Brethren would be sufficient to arouse them to a sense of their duty.

SAMUEL M. MILLER,
Clerk of Dist. Meeting.

To the Churches composing the Northern District of Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota, Greeting:—

Inasmuch as there is more or less suffering (even some extreme cases) among those living in the drouth-stricken regions of the West, and other Districts have called Special District Meetings to provide means for the relief of our members and their neighbors, living in those places, we the undersigned met in council and concluded to make a call on all members, living in the above District, to contribute freely towards the relief of said sufferers. All money is to be sent to U. S. Blough, Waterloo, Iowa, who will send it to Bro. D. L. Miller for distribution and all those wishing to give clothing, grain, etc., will please send it to Bro. L. R. Peifer, who will forward it for distribution wherever needed.

If anything is sent to the brethren named, by railroad or otherwise, see that charges are prepaid.

To the Sisters of the Church.

If you, dear sisters, have any friends in the West, do help them. If you have not the money, open your wardrobes and see if you can find some laid-by clothing for those poor mothers and children. I know some people do not believe in this, but I do. I never tear up anything, that I think some poor mother might make over for her children. I have never offered such things and been refused.

I have a niece in the West, who wrote to me and said, "We have nothing. My children can not go barefoot in the winter, and I can not see them starve."

I have helped them by sending a nice box of clothing (not all new). Here is what the needy one wrote back to me: "If you could have seen the four pair of little eyes, watching that box opened, you would have been paid for your trouble. As for myself, after I had examined its contents, I fell down on my knees and prayed the Lord to give you peace and prosperity through life."

Dear sisters, do you doubt for one moment, that the Lord hears the prayers of those mothers? I plead with you to deny yourselves of something and send it to the needy. It will be a long time before they can raise anything to eat. Many sisters in the church are asking for something to do in the Lord's vineyard. Nothing is more noble than to collect money and clothing for the needy. I did without any Christmas expenditures myself, in order to send ten dollars to that poor family. I know I feel better than if I had spent it for myself.

TACY L. SMITH.

From the Belleville Church, Kans.

Last Saturday, Jan. 3, we met for our regular church council. Eld. B. B. Whitmer, of Quinter, Kans., had charge of the meeting, and labored with us to the satisfaction of all present. A goodly number of the members were there and all the business passed off pleasantly. Bro. Daniel Smith, from the east arm of this church, was also present and gave us kind words of encouragement. How good it is to see brethren and sisters "stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for the faith of the Gospel," and working together in unity!

Bro. Whitmer preached three sermons while with us. We are sorry that he could not remain with us longer. One united with the church this fall during Bro. Brown's meetings.

Our Sunday-school closed last fall. During the summer we had a class of five little girls, who committed to memory 1,163 verses. May we all grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ!

LOUISA J. WILLIAMS.

Belleville, Kans., Jan. 5.

From the Yellow Creek Church, Ill.

Nov. 22 Bro. Simon Yundt, of Mt. Morris, Ill., came to us and began a series of meetings at Miller's school-house, near Freeport, and continued until Nov. 30. Bro. Yundt, during his sermons, did not fail to declare the Gospel in its primitive purity. Though there were no immediate accessions, yet we believe good impressions were made.

From the above point the meetings were moved to the Yellow Creek church, and we continued meetings here and at the Central church, from Nov. 30 to Dec. 9. Twelve sermons were delivered by our brother at this place. The brother had very eager listeners. The best attention was given to the preached Word, and many were almost persuaded to turn in with the offers of mercy and become Christians.

The meetings were then discontinued at the above place, and began at Claywell's school-house, below Loran. The meetings continued to grow in interest until Christmas Day, when three dear souls came out and confessed Christ.

On Sunday following our hearts were again made to rejoice, when three more precious souls were buried with Christ in baptism.

The meetings continued until Dec. 31, when our brother took his leave for home. During his stay with us six dear souls were initiated into the body of Christ. May they so live as to be shining lights in the church, so that others may see their good works, and turn and glorify their God.

While there were others that were almost persuaded, yet they were not ready to decide. May the Lord give them strength soon to turn, before it is forever too late!

To God be the praise for the good work that has been done! May his goodness sustain us all, keep us from all the evils of this world, and finally give us all a home in heaven!

Jan. 12.

The Brethren Church in Texas.

An article as to the condition of the Brethren church, here in Texas, will, no doubt, prove interesting to many.

There have been flattering reports of the work here, especially in the Pan Handle portion of the State. I was there only once, and for my part I could not see much that was encouraging. There is a most excellent house of worship at Lipscomb City, but no minister.

At Farwell, where there was a house built, the work is said to be a failure.

There is one organized church in the Pan Handle, with a small membership. There are a few members in Wheeler County, one minister and a deacon, but, as I hear, not much preaching is done. The unsettled condition of the people was the cause of the work being a failure, as we think.

The Williams Creek church, Cook County, is the oldest church in the State. She has had her dark days, and her membership is not large. Of late several have moved away, which has reduced her number still more. She has about twenty-two members, one minister (not permanently located) and two deacons.

The Pleasant Valley church, in Clay County, has a membership of twenty-three members. They have, all things considered, a good meeting-house, and are in a prosperous condition, although they have lost several by emigration during the last two years or so. They have one minister (not permanently located) and four deacons.

The Live Oak church, in Parker County, has a membership of ten,—two ministers,—one in the second degree and one in the first, and one deacon. They are zealous in the cause of their Master, and, by some aid in their ministerial work, their future prospects are good.

Our church (Nocona) is in Montague County, and has a membership of twenty-five. We have lost some by emigration and five were attached to the church in the Indian Territory. We have received several by baptism. We have two ministers (elders), two deacons, and feel very hopeful for the future. We have been here only about two years.

In August of last year a church was organized in the Chickasaw Nation, with about twenty members, one minister and one deacon.

There are six members in Erath County,—zealous workers and faithful in the cause they have espoused.

There are six or eight members in Hunt County. Since Bro. W. Wyland left there, they have no minister, but they are zealous,—especially Dr. Long.

There are a few other scattered members in the State, with whom we have not met.

We have given the condition of the church as we see it, and we believe that there can and will be large churches built up here. It will not be in a day or so, but will take time. We need emigration, here as well as elsewhere, to build up the cause, and consecrated ministers for the great work. All will receive a hearty welcome, but all should come, not thinking they know it all, but desiring to live like brethren.

We have a pleasant climate, and people who will work can make a comfortable living.

Any of the above-named churches or members will gladly receive all faithful members willing to be governed by the Gospel, as understood and practiced by the Brethren. Let all, who wish to locate among us, come!

Nocona, Tex.

To the Dear Brethren in Europe.

I feel to-day to write you about the common salvation. You have the Mission Board and your brethren Olsson and Hansen, who are able to correspond for you, so I will not refer to any queries or wishes, or wants of yours, coming under that head, because my private view, if different from theirs, would do you no good. Neither will I tell you anything about temporal affairs,—the ups and downs of local church matters,—because all we can do for one another in this is on our knees,—in supplication to Him who has truthfully promised, "Everything shall work together for good to them that love the Lord."

This is the key-note to all success, "Love the Lord." If God is love, his heart yearns for love,—this is God's only want. Obedience by angels,—admiration or awe, is well enough, but love is better than all this. He sent out of love his only begotten Son, as our Sin-bearer, Sacrifice and Atonement. He keeps him at his right hand as our Advocate and High-priest, daily, hourly, yes, every moment, to defend, reconcile, and appear in his Father's presence in our behalf. For all this the Spirit was sent to us, whispering, "Do you love me more than these? If you love me keep my commandments."

The dangerous times for individuals, churches, and our Brotherhood are these, When our love waxes cold to him, when the bride, swallowed up by zeal of good works or care for this world in eating, drinking, clothing, and gratification of the lust of the eye, the flesh, and the pride of life, forgets the preference of him who stands at the door of every heart, knocking and begging to be admitted to our heart's affection, our love. Your salvation and your success in Europe, my dear Brethren, all hang on love,—love to him who loved you first!

"If you love me," is that the all-pervading question every day, for all your actions, all your words, prayer and song? If it is, happy are you. If not, remember, all your sacrifices have lost their power, all, absolutely all, is vain,—worth nothing. Truly the apostle said, "This is love to God, that we keep his commandments."

Is this also an evidence for us? May we not of fear, or for gain, share with Ananias and his wife, or Simon the sorcerer? Do not the many twistings and propositions of liberality prove now as then that the heart is not right before God? Are you aware of the difference that God makes between gross criminals and those characters? They are dead, and a divine curse falls on the "twisters" who disregard their promises, even though in matters where we had no "Thus saith the Lord."

While expulsion for salvation is administered to the immoral brother, he, though he has fallen in the snares of the old man, still has some life left, or else his restoration would be impossible. God makes this difference, -he pities the one,—not the other. He wants his children to do so too,—to comfort and restore the one, and bear the others out for burial.

"If ye love me, keep my commandments." Are you doing that now in Europe? Do you remember that he that is unfaithful in the least, is unfaithful also in much, that any promise, made to the church or him, he surely will require of your hands? Do you remember the Rechabites, their promise, and God's blessing on them, up to to the present day, though the Bible is silent as to the necessity of their vows? Brethren, keep the church pure of truebreakers, and you will do much towards presenting Christ with a clean virgin.

Do you remember old days, our tears, and seasons of communion? If you do, you remember that, if we love him, we love one another. When love is lost for the Brethren, the love towards God also passes away. The question comes by the Holy Spirit, "How can you love him we do not see?" -as much as to say, we can not. Christ says, "If you love me, . . love one another as I have loved you."

Another thing, my dear Brethren, before I close. Remember Heb. 13: 17, and such things as refer to that, if you want to grow in grace. But if you want to ruin the church, God's temple,—even though you be destroyed by God, be stronghead-ed, backbiters, false accusers, slanderers, etc., and it will soon be all over, especially if you select those for your work of malice, whom God has set to give you food for your soul in due season. If you grumble over the food, and criticise what is set before you, Satan will select you, as a fit tool, to tear and slay the shepherds, and scatter the sheep to the four winds of the earth.

My dear Brethren, there is plenty of room for all. If you, though a lay-member, have a fat morsel to give, give it humbly, in proper season. By so doing, you pave your way, soon to be in the lead.

More churches have had trouble with men of the spirit of Korah and Dathan than from most other causes combined, and many are the ones buried alive during such commotions. "Touch not the Lord's saints, do his prophets no harm,"—is worth heeding by all true Christians to-day, even in Europe.

Do not be discouraged, my dear Brethren, because you are few, and because all work against you. What of it, if you are true? You are only for a witness till Christ comes.

Fear not if you suffer. Dread not to die for his cause, whether daily or by the sword; you shall be resurrected and appear in due time in power and great glory. A double portion of everlasting joy shall be yours, in return for all privations.

Think not, however, that you are alone in trials. Every one who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution, is as true here as there. While Satan slays one in Europe, he slays scores here. America has its starving districts, more than old Denmark. Pride and a desire for riches are more general here than there. Blasted expectation wrecks many souls, and, if fulfilled, kills nearly every time.

Nearly all those who immigrated from Europe, long for our home churches and the sweet hours we had together, across the briny waters. I write this for your comfort, to encourage you and to show you, home is sweet and no place on earth is like it. To go to foreign countries is generally a loss for the soul, and often disappointment for the body, for those of mature years.

I must close. We pray for you always, think of you daily, and hope you do the same. May God bless you evermore, and finally save us all in his second appearing. Amen. Our united love to you all. CHR. HOPE.

From Ryerson Station Church, W. Va.

WE have been trying to preach for the people of this place twice a month for the last year, at Nauvoo school-house. The main part of the work rests on the writer. Our elder, Adam Wise, is in his eighty-third year and is too feeble to preach much. He fully realizes that his work is almost done.

We feel encouraged that our weak efforts here, have not been in vain, for on Sunday, Jan. 4, two young women in their teens came to the house of the writer and requested admittance into the Kingdom. We took them the same hour and baptized them according to the divine pattern. One is a niece to the writer, the other a member of a family, of which none are members of church save herself. We pray that she may prove faithful and be able to win the rest of the family to Christ. We think if some good evangelist could come and help us, much good might be done, but we are too poor to procure such help. If any of our ministers, traveling over the B. & O. R. R., will stop off at Glen Easton, W. Va., they will be kindly cared for, and they could help to advance Christ's kingdom. ANDREW CHAMBERS.

From Nocona, Texas.

To-day, Jan. 4, was our regular appointment at Nocona. We have fair congregations, and good attention to the Word preached. At the close of the evening meeting one came forward, wishing to cast her lot with the people of God. May many more follow ere the year closes.

Yesterday was our regular quarterly meeting, held at the house of Bro. Henry Brubaker. We had a very pleasant meeting, filled with the spirit of love and of Christ.

The business passed off pleasantly and, we hope, profitably to the church. It was resolved that we choose a regular correspondent, and also a regular solicitor and agent for our paper and books. Bro. A. J. Wine was chosen correspondent, and Bro. David Berkman, solicitor and agent. The mission work received encouragement as it has in all the councils I have attended, here in Texas. As for the members in Texas I must say they are as liberal as any I have ever met, taking into consideration that nearly all have but limited means. ABE MOLSBEE.

From Middletown, Ind.

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER commenced a series of meetings in the Upper Fall Creek church, Ind., Nov. 25, preaching the Word with great power and simplicity. Nov. 30, after the forenoon services, Bro. Rosenberger went to the Orphans' and Aged Persons' Home of the Southern District of Indiana and preached to the inmates. The aged sisters rejoiced to hear the Gospel preached to them by our dear brother.

Bro. Rosenberger returned to Middletown for evening services, and preached night and day with fair congregations and good interest. In the afternoon of Dec. 7th he gave a lecture, establishing by the Gospel that the Lord's Supper should be a full meal. A very large congregation was present upon this occasion, and great interest was manifested.

On the night of Dec. 15 we closed our meetings. While eight persons were made to feel the need of a Savior, and decided to choose that good part, many more were made to feel the importance of a proper choice.

Let us, as brethren and sisters, not neglect the babes in Christ. If we see them make mistakes, time after time, and walking in forbidden paths, we should speak words of encouragement to them, and not be so ready to tell their faults to some one else. Let us put forth a greater effort and more energy to teach them the principles and the doctrines of Christ! HENRY L. FADELY.

THIS church has just closed one of the most enjoyable series of meetings ever held here. Dec. 19 Bro. Isaac Miller, of North Manchester, came to us and preached for us until Monday evening, when Bro. John Stafford, of DeKalb County, came to our assistance and preached the Word with power. Our congregations were not, at all times, as large as at some former meetings, but the order was good As an immediate result of our meetings one was baptized and two reclaimed. We believe the brethren and sisters were strengthened in the faith and more closely united in love. Our meetings closed on the evening of Jan. 1, with a good interest among all. May our Heavenly Father work in the hearts of his people, so that a mighty work may be done, to the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom! SAMUEL E. BURKET.

From Eglon, W. Va.

WE began a series of meetings at this place on New Year's evening, 1891, and closed Jan. 11. Brethren Jonas and Tobias Fike did the preaching. They gave us good instructions. As a result of their labor four were baptized and one reclaimed. The brethren and sisters were much built up in their faith. It was joy to us to see so many come to Christ.

Nothing scarcely affords Christians more joy than to see men and women flocking into the fold of God. Why is it that many tarry so long? There are numbers, we believe, whose intention it is, at some time or other, to join in with the people of God and render unto him their services. The resolution would be a good one if it were not put off. Why not come now? In order to bring our will into subjection to what we know to be a duty, we must make use of violent means. Christ tells us that the kingdom of heaven "suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." Matt. 11: 12. We infer from this text that we must do violence to the corrupt nature within us, in bringing our will in subjection to the will of God, and thus take the kingdom of heaven by force.

Hudson Happenings.

OUR little congregation at Hudson, Ill., enjoyed a series of meetings, -commencing on Christmas Day,—by Bro. C. S. Holsinger. His first sermon was on the forenoon of that day, upon the nativity of Christ. While we have heard, at all the Christmas meetings, we have ever attended, the same "Glad Tidings," we never tire of the repetition. After preaching seventeen sermons in all, we closed our meetings Jan. 7. Two of the sermons were preached by Bro. B. F. Masterson, who dropped in while on his way from Chenoa, where he had been preaching. We had no accessions to the church, but we trust that seeds have been sown, that will result in a bountiful harvest in the future. Our meetings, owing to sickness in the neighborhood, were not as largely attended as we would have liked to see, yet we were encouraged by the presence of brother and sister Zuck, and sister Forney, of Chenoa, Ill. Sister Mattie A. Lear, who consented to talk to us on the last evening of her sojourn with us, but rain, and sickness on her part, put an end to our anticipations. THOS. D. LYON.

The Gospel Messenger

Is the regularly organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and believes and teaches the truth as it is in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the Old Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and believes that the Lord God, Repentance from dead works, Faith toward God, Baptism by Trine Immersion for the remission of sins, and the Laying on of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the first principles of the doctrine of Christ, and the only door of entrance into the household of God,—the Church of Christ.

It believes and teaches that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and precept, and as practiced by the Lord and the early Christians, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, as taught by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That Women should be, in dress, obedience, etc., subject to the rules laid down in the New Testament, and should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also declares that the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, to the end that the Lord's cause may be spread and the Gospel for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it stands for the obedience of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined, and opposes and denounces the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to the point on ground that all must concede to be infinitely safe.

BRO. H. S. CLAYPOOL, of Lewis County, West Virginia, reports one added to the church by baptism.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON is holding meetings at Litchfield, Illinois. Seven applicants for baptism, and the meetings continue with increasing interest.

IF you are in need of good books we can furnish you at publishers' prices, and on some publications can give you a reduction from regular prices. Write us for rates.

THE meetings, held in the College Chapel, last week, were very largely attended. Standing room was not to be had part of the time. Our present chapel is much too small, and we are looking forward to the time when we shall be able to occupy the new chapel, which will be sometime during the early part of the coming summer.

BRO. J. C. MURRAY, after closing the series of meetings at Lanark, Ill., will commence work at the Silver Creek church, near this place, and continue several weeks.

BRO. J. E. KELLER, of Hope, Kans., informs us that he has a large number of old issues of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, which he will gladly send to any person desiring them. Write to Bro. Keller as above.

BRO. ABE MOLSBEE, of Texas, says: "There was one applicant for baptism at our last meeting, on the 4th inst. We hope more will soon come. We are having some cold weather just now, with snow on the ground."

FRIEND E. C. MORRIS, of Windsor, Shelby Co., Ill., writes that his wife is a member of the church, but that they have not heard the Brethren preach for fifteen years. Here is an opening for the Mission Board of Southern Illinois.

BRO. JAS. R. GISH preached in the Chapel at this place on Sunday, the 18th inst. Subject, The Lord's Supper. He gave us a plain, practical talk, full of strong points. In the evening Bro. Seibert, of Iowa, preached a good sermon; subject, "Overcoming the World."

BRO. R. H. MILLER has so far recovered his health as to be able to preach occasionally, and to do some work on his book. He is not able to travel or hold series of meetings, but we are glad that he has improved so far that he is able to resume work on the new edition of the "Doctrine of the Brethren Defended."

BRO. JAMES R. GISH goes from Mt. Morris to his home at Roanoke, Ill., where he will remain a few weeks, and then return again to his field of labor in Arkansas. He has spent several years at Stuttgart, and feels that it is his duty to look after the work there. May the Lord bless the efforts of our brother as he goes out on the frontier to labor for the salvation of souls.

The Southern Californian, published at Lordsburg, Cal., by Bro. T. J. Nair & Co., comes to us this week much improved in appearance. The paper is devoted to the interests of Southern California, and is full of fresh, interesting items concerning the land of sunshine and flowers. We congratulate the proprietors on the improved appearance of their paper, and wish them success in their enterprise.

DEATH severs the dearest ties that bind human hearts together. No home, however happy, however peaceful and pleasant, is exempt from the visits of this destroyer of earthly hopes. We are forcibly reminded of this in the sad news, just received, of the death of sister Frantz, wife of Bro. Isaac Frantz, of Pleasant Hill, O. We extend to our dear Bro. Isaac and his bereaved children our warmest sympathy in their sad affliction. May God comfort them!

BRO. GEO. W. CRIPE informs us that he has just closed a series of meetings with the Brethren of the Dry Creek church, Linn Co., Iowa. He is now laboring with the Brethren at Clarence, Cedar Co., Iowa, where, we hope the Lord will continue to bless his labors.

THE Brethren of the Garrison church, Benton Co., Iowa, commenced, as Bro. Peter Forney informs us,—an interesting series of meetings Jan. 16. Bro. J. A. Murray, of Waterloo, is doing the preaching. A special song service is being conducted in connection with the meetings, by Bro. Sam. Fike, of the South Waterloo church, Iowa.

WE have a clipping from an Eastern paper sent us by Bro. O. H. Elliot, of Ohio, in which the correspondent, whoever he may be, draws very largely on an active imagination in describing the new church building at Coventry, Pa. Under the facile pen of the correspondent the bronzed iron trimmings on the seats, which are made so that they can be conveniently used on love-feast occasions, become "illuminated with gold." The neat arrangement for lighting the church grows into "a grand central chandelier, which flashes forth a hundred lights at the evening service." Then the comfortable seats are said to be "covered with rich plush cushions," and the floor overlaid with "a handsome Brussels carpet." We attended services in the Coventry church, and while we were impressed with the fact that the brethren had gone to some needless expense, we know that the clipping above referred to greatly misrepresents the brethren and their new church. We were so well pleased with the seating arrangement that we asked the chairman of the Building Committee to send us a model of the castings used, with a view of having them used in our new chapel at this place. It might have been as well to have let this misrepresentation pass without notice, as hundreds of others have gone; but we refer to it, not that we have any hopes that the correspondent will make a correction, but that the minds of our Brethren, who have read the clipping, may to some extent be relieved.

DR. WAYLAND, of Philadelphia, thus pictures the prevalent notion of success and failure so common among us to-day. He says: "Our standards of success and failure are material. We say, 'Did you hear of the great misfortune that has come to our friend Brown?' 'Why, no; what is the matter?' 'Why, he has lost everything he had in the world!' 'What! has he lost his character? Has he lost his conscience? Has he lost his health? Has he lost his wife and children?' 'Oh no; but he has lost his money; he has not a cent left after paying his debts. And do you know of the great success gained by our friend Smith?' 'No, I am glad to hear of it. Has he conquered that habit of lying that he had? Has he left off drinking and swearing, and has he become an honest, clean man?' Oh, no! but he has been elected to Congress.' And the mind stands before the vision of great possibilities." How true to life are these words! Material success, money, political and social advancement are held to be the greatest good, and character, integrity and honesty are relegated to a secondary place. And are we not constantly falling into the same line of judging of success and failure in life, when we place so much store on financial success and visit, on those who fail, our censure? The worst thing that happens to some men is that they have made much money, and the best thing that comes to others is the loss of wealth. Too much money has ruined many souls, and so long as we overestimate wealth the destruction will continue.

Our brother, Dr. A. W. Reese writes, under date of Jan. 14, as follows: "I was to see Bro. S. S. Mohler lately, and find him still quite feeble, but think he is mending slowly. He has had a long hard siege of it. The Brethren should remember him in their prayers."

The New York Independent publishes letters from one hundred and nineteen senators and representatives of the United States Congress on the question of opening the Columbian Exposition, which is to be held in Chicago in 1893, on Sunday. Of this number only twenty-four are unqualifiedly in favor of violating the Lord's Day by keeping the Exposition open. The great majority favor closing on Sunday. The reasons assigned by the statesmen who responded to the Independent's letter of inquiry, make an interesting chapter. We give the opinion of Mr. Morse, of Massachusetts. He says: "I get my opinion on the subject of opening the Columbian Exposition on the Lord's Day from an old law book that antedates any United States law book, that reads as follows: 'Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt not do any work,' etc. And I say further, we profess to be a Christian nation, and we can not afford to set such an example to the nations of the world. I firmly believe that the prosperity of an individual, a family, a state or a nation may be measured by its regard for the Sabbath Day, and God forbid that we should be numbered among and share the fate of the nations that forget God!" These are words fitly spoken, and we trust the Christian sentiment of this country will prevail, and that we shall not have a national desecration of the Lord's Day in 1893.

"A man may make a million dollars and be—a man. For a man who has got a million dollars, you know, is a man—in New York, and I suppose, in Boston. Everybody takes his hat off to Mr. Million Dollars. He is conciliated, he is respected, and if there is any prospect that the dew will be shaken off his branches he is invited everywhere. If a man has a million dollars he is a man; but he dies, and his million dollars is cut into four quarters, and four persons carry it off their several ways. Mr. Million Dollars, after an appropriate funeral, is buried, and there he lies; and in a few years nobody talks about him, nobody thinks about him, nobody hears about him. In fifty years the shrewdest man might go and read his gravestone and find, 'Mr. Million Dollars.' 'Who was he and where is his money?' And it would puzzle an antiquary to tell what those four heirs did do with it. It puzzled them after a few years to tell where it had gone to. He made his money; it gave him power and influence; he distributed it among his heirs; yes, he distributed it, and they squandered it; he died and went to dust, and that was the last of him, so far as this world is concerned; I don't know what became of him beyond. But suppose that instead of that he had made himself his own executor, and had put fifty thousand dollars behind a printing press, and said, 'As long as interest lasts on that fifty thousand dollars, work, press, work!' Suppose he had taken some treatise written for liberty, based upon the Bible, and carrying out the vital power of the Gospel, and had taken another fifty thousand dollars and put it into the hands of the Tract Society, saying, 'I consecrate to the printing of that book this fifty thousand dollars; work with that money as long as it can bear interest.' Suppose he had taken five hundred thousand dollars and appointed them his sentinels — stationing fifty thousand dollars there, and there, and there—they would go on working until the last trump sounds; and when a hundred years had passed over his grave, his name, through that society, would still be fresh, and his influence potent for good. Every tract would bear his name upon its imprint, and a million tombstones could not make it so illustrious."

SEVENTY-SIX THOUSAND.

We have recently printed for the Book and Tract Committee, seventy-six thousand Tracts to be used in the spread of the Gospel. Among others we note the following:

"Salvation: or, The Glad Tidings," by Bro. B. C. Moomaw. The subject of salvation is presented under the following heads:

1. Man's Ruin.
2. Christ's Sacrifice.
3. Man's Redemption.

Bro. Moomaw treats the subject at some length in his well-known, crisp and forcible style. The tract contains fourteen pages, and should have an extended circulation.

"The Origin of Single Immersion," by Bro. James Quinter, with an appendix by Bro. J. H. Moore, has gone through a large number of editions. It is one of the best tracts we have for general circulation. It was first printed a number of years before the Tract Work was fully established, and has had a wide circulation. It ranks among the very best doctrinal tracts that we have on our tract list. It ought to be extensively circulated among single immersionists. It contains eight pages, and is sold at $1.50 per hundred.

"Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion," by Bro. I. M. Gibson, is also an excellent tract. The reasons given are logical and conclusive, and those who are investigating the subject will find this tract very helpful.

"Intemperance and its Evils," is ably treated in a four-page tract by Bro. John Rife, and a one page leaflet by Sarah M. Saunders. The evils of intemperance are apparent to every observer, and we ought to use all our endeavors to rid our country of this great evil.

"A Personal Appeal," and "Christ and War," by Daniel Vaniman, "The Whole Gospel Must be Obeyed," by A. Flory, and "Gold and Costly Array," "Why Am I Not a Christian?" "Saving Words," "Pause and Think," by Bro. S. W. Hoover, are one-page tracts or leaflets, the titles of which fully indicate the subjects treated. "Faith," by Bro. B. C. Moomaw, and "Life and Death," by sister Fanny Morrow, complete the present issue of tracts.

In looking over the list we find a number of excellent doctrinal works, and we especially commend these to the notice of our readers. While the tracts are all good, and can be circulated with profit, yet we need especially to send out tracts, setting forth, in clear and forcible language, the doctrines of the church. Essays on Morality, on Christian Duty, on Inviting Sinners to Christ, on Intemperance. The use of tobacco and kindred topics have their place and are useful, but until the doctrines of the Gospel, as accepted and practiced by our church, are more widely disseminated, and our people are better and more generally known, doctrinal tracts should take the lead, and we should double our zeal in distributing them. We are glad to know that the Tract Committee are with us as to the necessity of sending out doctrinal tracts.

Seventy-six thousand tracts! Who can tell what good, under the blessing of God, these messengers may accomplish in the world. If but one soul is brought to Christ, they will have accomplished a grand mission. If one soul is brought nearer the Truth, the money expended in sending them out will have been well spent. Who can tell? God alone knows, and eternity only will disclose the good these white-winged messengers may accomplish.

And what lot and part have you, brother, sister, in this work? Do these tracts go out because of some help, be it ever so little, that you have given to the work? Are you doing your duty toward this important church work? Are you giving as the Lord has prospered you? If not, do not expect to have any part or lot in the blessings that fall by the way in this work. If souls are brought to Christ through the influence of the Tract Work, and you are not helping, can you expect an added star to your crown? Nay, verily! Give as God prospers you, and the blessings will be upon you!

The Tract Work needs funds to push the work of sending out tracts. Without money the work can not go on. Let us see to it that all that is needed is placed in the hands of the committee, so that the good work be not hindered.

QUALIFICATIONS OF A MINISTER.

BY ENOCH EBY.

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2: 15.

READING an editorial in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 25, volume 28, under the above caption, my mind was somewhat exercised, on a point of interest to religious bodies, more or less, in reference to the Scriptural qualifications of ministers.

As to the question, whether a classical education is an essential qualification, this is no longer doubted by most of the popular churches of this age. Indeed, a man would have no showing without it, even if his natural ability and Christian character were all that could be desired.

This popular sentiment is rapidly growing in our beloved Brotherhood, as is seen by some of the articles in our church paper, and the frequent letters we received from young ministers on that point, and the number of our ministers leaving the field and going to school. It is getting to be a question in our mind, however, whether there is not too much stress put on that one supposed qualification.

If a classical education is such an important factor in preaching the Gospel understandingly and impressively, as some suppose, it should receive the encouragement of all God's people, and the committee made a mistake in not noticing it as a prominent qualification. Doubtless they, with many others, could not see much in a classical course, as given in our schools (outside of the Bible class), that would be of any special benefit to a Gospel preacher.

Thousands to-day are weeping over a ministry that is a mere sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal: studying to show themselves approved unto men, instead of God, as our text requires. The form seems to be retained, but the power is lost. Religion, through the ministry, is a work too much of the head, and not enough of the heart.

Judging by the zeal manifested by some, our remarks might be considered erroneous, but zeal is not a true test of the Gospel work of the heart. We hope better things of our brethren, though we thus speak. History may repeat itself, hence let us watch and guard. Jer. 5: 31, 32 is living yet, and daily repeated.

The Savior doubtless meets the point in question when we remember that he selected the illiterate for his apostles. We are told, however, that they went to school to Christ for three years. That is true. What were their studies? They are all recorded in the Bible, and three years' close, hard study of those lessons, will qualify a man better to save himself and them that hear him (2 Tim. 4: 16), than seven years in a college without them.

It was said of the Savior that he did not know his letters; or had never learned. See John 7: 15. All this teaches something, and that is, that the Gospel can be understood and taught by illiterate men, and successfully too.

Many of our ministers are becoming discouraged by sentiment, strongly advanced in favor of an educated ministry, and they being uneducated, and not having means sufficient to obtain it, write for advice. To such I say, for their encouragement, The Lord requires no impossibilities. He will give you grace to perform all he asks of you, even though you can not compete with your brother who may possess superior talents, and have the means to obtain an education. Go to work with what you have. If you have but one talent, you only have one to gain, while he that hath ten must gain ten.

If you have no Bible, perhaps the brethren will help you buy one. Yes, I am sure, if a brother lives and labors with his hands as Paul did, and economizes as he should, that the brethren will help to buy what I think is necessary,—a Bible, a Bible Dictionary, a Dictionary to learn the meaning of words, etc., Cruden's or Brown's Complete Concordance. Then go to work, as many before you have done, and were considered successful preachers.

First "take heed to thyself," preach by action, rule your spirit, deal honestly in the sight of all men. In short, try and live so that you have the best influence over those who are the best acquainted with you. If your neighbors like you, they will listen to you if you have but little to say. Never talk to put in time. Always try and say something when you speak. Say it trembling. If your heart beats with fear of man, and your responsibilities, do not be alarmed. Press on! If the tears dim your eyes so you can not see well to read, wipe them off, and you will see tears of sympathy in the congregation. You will get courage, and all will be edified,—not because there was an eloquent sermon preached, but because it came from the heart and touched the heart and good was done.

But you say you have "no time to study your sermons." You do not need that, particularly. Spurgeon says half an hour is enough for him. Be sure, however, that you study the Scriptures, so you get a general knowlege of them,—and that you can do by putting a small Testament in your pocket, and at noon, or in the evening, you can hunt up the references. Then don't wait till Sunday to preach; you can preach any time if there is no one present. Preach to the horses when in the stable or while ploughing, preach to the trees when in the forest, preach to yourself in the field, and it will do you much more good, than to stand before the glass, like the theological student, to watch his gestures and correct them.

You may say, "I would be ashamed to have any one know that I thus preached with no one present but myself." Let me give you an instance to explain, so you need not be ashamed. I knew a brother in Pennsylvania, about thirty-five years ago, who, riding across the mountains, twenty miles after meeting and being alone, had a good time for meditation. He committed two chapters to memory, and in his meditations unconsciously began to preach on horseback, and beating the air with his hands. Two unsuspecting neighbors who were sitting a short distance in the field, herding cattle, were made to inquire whether the brother was drunk that evening, when he came home. A brother need not be ashamed of being accused for drinking too much wine under such circumstances.

Preaching should be done in a spirit more like this: When your neighbor's house is on fire, you do not study long how you would awaken him, or what kind of language you would employ, but you would use every effort to inform the inmates of their danger. Your zeal and earnestness would produce the effect more than the means employed. In saving souls it would be better for us ministers to keep our eyes on the crowd that is rushing down the broad road to destruction. Think of the value of one soul, and what it cost to save that soul, and get the feeling worked up in your own heart. Then preaching will go comparatively easy. God bless the ministry!

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY, AS APPLIED TO THE CHURCH.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

Number Three.

Now we shall notice the charge given to the overseers, as given by Paul, and his reasons for so doing. He saith to the shepherds, "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood. For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them." Acts 20: 28–31.

Here you can see why Paul gave the strict charge, which he did, to the watchman, and you will further notice, that he was declaring what should take place in the church after he was gone. Hence he was prophesying, and his prophecy has certainly come true, even in these days. For he said,—"Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them."

It seems that some men have a desire to be leaders, and have followers,—somebody to look up to them, and follow after them. Paul says, these characters shall be found in the church—and he is telling what shall take place in the church of Christ. Reader, have you any place to make the application? The outlook is not very flattering for such leaders, when we notice the history of such characters in the past. We will here refer to a case or two, as follows: "For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought."

Here, you can see what became of Theudas and his followers. They were "scattered and brought to naught." And the case is continued by saying, "After this man rose up Judas of Galilee in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished, and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed." Acts 5: 36–39. And it would not be amiss, for all who have been engaged, or contemplate working, in the business of proselyting, and trying to draw away disciples from the church,—to take a view of the ground over which their ancestors have traveled, and view the final landing. For the condition of Theudas and Judas is but the natural end of such a course, no difference who follows it.

Here we call attention to the conclusion and wise counsel of Gamaliel, as follows: "And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone; for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: But if it be of God, ye can not overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God." Acts 5: 38, 39.

This counsel and admonition are certainly well-timed, and ought to be heeded by us all, for the principles, as incorporated by Christ for the government of his church are eternal in their nature and character, and therefore can not be destroyed.

Now, we introduce one more case, as follows, "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." 2 Pet. 3: 3, 4.

Here it is claimed that there is no evidence of any change, indicating the coming of Christ, for it is said that "all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." We will cite one case only, and this case came in the line of the writer's own work. We had delivered a discourse on the evidences of the near approach of the time when the dispensation would change, and a new phase of things would be ushered in. We were met the next day by a man who made no small pretensions to Christianity. He introduced the case by saying, that he wanted me to prove that the apostles were divinely inspired, before I would call on the people to receive their testimony on that subject. He said, "Can you do it?" Upon this he appealed to fixed laws that governed in the universe, saying, "Why, just view the planetary system, every star, sun and moon, and earth, too, all move in their proper orbits. Now," said he, in the spirit of triumph, "where is the evidence of any such change as you allude to?—for all things continue as they were from the beginning." I then answered, "I am at no loss now, for the proof that the apostle Peter was inspired. I make use of you, as my witness. You have now said just what Peter said hundreds of years ago, that men would say, in the last days."

So our friend left the matter without any further proof. The signs of the times indicate that the change of the dispensation must soon come. For the present I close on this subject. May the Lord help us to understand his Word!

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

ADDITIONS DURING 1891. The Brethren of Mathias, Hardy Co., W. Va., during last year, received seventeen additions to their number by baptism. The church is in peace L. D. Caldwell.

PLEASANT COUNCIL.—Dec. 31, 1890, we had a very pleasant council-meeting in the Edna Mills church, Ind., at which brethren Solomon Blickenstaff and Aaron C. Metzger were elected delegates to District Meeting.—John E. Metzger.

THE WORK IN THE SOUTH.—Why do not some of the ministering Brethren preach the Gospel to the people of the South? The people here at Carlisle, Ark., would gladly receive our doctrine, and good results would follow.—J. M. Martin.

WORK FOR ALL.—Let each sister, young and old, spend an hour each week in talking, reading, or praying with the sick and poor,—black and white, good and bad,—and if God's name is not glorified by new tongues, let the work stop. Let us all wake up for the harvest day!—Landon West.

TWO BAPTIZED.—The Brethren at Cherry Grove, Carroll Co., Ill., are now in the midst of a good meeting. Bro. Edmund Forney, of the Pine Creek church, is doing the preaching. One was baptized yesterday; also one baptized who belongs to the Lanark church. Bro. Murray is holding meetings each evening with increased interest. We need your prayers. J. H. Larkins.

FOUR SOLDIERS FOR CHRIST.—The Upper Conawago church, Latimore, Pa., has just enjoyed a most interesting series of meetings which commenced Jan. 3. Bro. Albert Hollinger, of Huntsdale, Cumberland Co., Pa., did the preaching, delivering in all eleven sermons. By his earnest labors, saints were encouraged and sinners warned. Four made the good confession. May the Lord keep them faithful until death! Our meetings closed with good interest.—J. M. Raffensberger, Jan. 13.

REFRESHING MEETINGS.—Eld. Henry Frantz, of Clarke County, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings in the Middle Fork church, Clinton Co., Ind., Jan. 1, 1891, and closed Jan. 13. The meetings were interesting throughout, and while there were no additions to the church, we know that some were almost persuaded, and, I believe, if the meetings had continued a while longer, some would have united with us. Our members were much encouraged by our dear brother's preaching and we feel to press forward in the great work of the church.—John E. Metzger, Jan. 15.

TWO ACCESSIONS.—The series of meetings in the Pleasant Hill church, Ill., closed Jan. 11, with two accessions. The attendance was not very large, owing to sickness in the vicinity, yet the interest was maintained throughout, and it is hoped much good was accomplished through the labors of our evangelist.—Michael Flory. The church here endorses the instructions of Annual Meeting, in having a protracted effort in each congregation at least once a year, to gather precious souls into the fold, and improve the membership in faith and spirituality. May God bless his children throughout our beloved Zion!—James Wirt, Jan. 18.

MINISTERIAL LABOR WANTED.—As stated before, there is a good opening for the upbuilding of the cause at Maysville, DeKalb Co., Mo. I can get the use of the Disciple church, and will freely care for the brother who may favor us with a series of meetings. There are, besides myself, only two other members, sisters, who have not heard any preaching by the Brethren for ten years. If the proper effort is made, I think a great work may be accomplished at this place. —Ross Hallcman.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—Eld. John Wise, of Conway Springs, Kans., came to the Walnut Valley church, Dec. 28, and remained until Jan. 5. During this time he held forth the Word with power and earnestness, so that all became interested in the meetings. Jan. 6, Bro. R. F. McCune commenced holding forth the Word. Although the weather is cold and inclement, yet we are having interesting meetings and hope, ere we close, that some may unite with the people of God.—Michael Keller, Jan. 12.

EIGHT SOULS FOR CHRIST.—The members of the Meadow Branch church, Granger Co., Tenn., were made glad by the labors of Bro. S. A. Sanger, of Rockingham County, Va. He preached in all seventeen sermons, and as a result of his efforts, eight precious souls came out on the side of the Lord. Seven were baptized, and there is one more applicant. The church was much revived. We have had to pass through some sore trials. Some that were with us have gone back to the world. We crave an interest in the prayers of God's children in our behalf!—D. Isenberg.

TWO ADDITIONS BY BAPTISM.—Our quarterly council at Covina, Cal., occurred Jan. 3. A good attendance of members was present, and everything passed off seemingly in a good spirit. We had thirteen additions by letter at this meeting. Eld. P. S. Myers, assisted by Bro. Megie, of Los Angeles, held a series of meetings at Anaheim, or vicinity, and reports two additions by baptism. Eld. P. A. Moore, of Roanoke, Ill., and Eld. W. W. Horning, of South Dakota, are at present holding a series of meetings at this place. May the good work go on, and many be brought into the fold!—J. S. Flory.

THREE ADDITIONS.—The members of the Burr Oak church, Kansas, have just enjoyed a most interesting series of meetings, commencing Dec. 17. Bro. Albion Daggett did the preaching. The Christmas meeting for the children will long be remembered. We also enjoyed a pleasant little meeting at the home of sister Hilleth, who has been under the hand of affliction. Our meetings continued until Dec. 31. Three young men made the wise choice during the labors of our dear brother. Jan. 4. Bro. Daggett commenced some meetings at another point in our congregation, but, on account of the extremely cold and unpleasant weather, he had to close after preaching four sermons.—Emma Hachenberg.

IN PEACE AND HARMONY. The quarterly council of the Jeffersonville church, Ill., occurred Dec. 27. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the members were not all present. There was not much business before the council, and all passed off in peace and harmony. We thank God that our little band is in good working order and willing to work for the order of the church. Our meeting-house is now enclosed and will soon be ready for worship. We would like to have brethren come and locate with us. Land here is cheap, and any one wishing to engage in fruit culture, would do well here. We need ministerial help as we have but one minister, and he is called to other churches a great part of his time.—John Mauck, Jan. 10.

MEETINGS IN TEXAS.—In reply to inquiries I would state that the time for meetings in this country is not during the winter, as the roads then are almost impassable. July and August is the most favorable time, as may be seen from the fact that all the other denominations are then holding their arbor meetings. At present I shall do most of my work by distributing tracts, and thus prepare the soil for next season's work. When the time for work comes, I intend to travel with a tent, and hold meetings from place to place. Who will help me in the work?—A. W. Austin, Jan. 9.

GOOD MEETINGS.—The brethren and sisters of the French Broad church, Jefferson Co., Tenn., commenced a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. S. A. Sanger, of Meyerhoeffer's Store, Va., Dec. 20. Bro. Sanger delivered eighteen sermons in all. While there were no additions to the church during these meetings, we hope that the words that were spoken will do us all good, and bring sinners to join in with the people of God. Our meetings closed on the evening of Jan. 4. Bro. Sanger goes from here to the Meadow Branch church, Granger County, Tenn., where he expects to hold a series of meetings.—Isaac Rodeffer.

A NOTICE TO ALL CONCERNED.—As I had made arrangements to visit and preach for a number of isolated members this winter, I take this means of informing all why I have not complied with my promise. About two months ago I contracted a very severe cold, but nevertheless visited several of the above points, and tried to labor for the cause, as best I could. On account of my health, I was obliged to return home just at the time when the meetings should have continued. At present I am confined to the house, hoping that I may soon recover, if it is the Lord's will. I was at Beach Corner, Miami County, Ind., one year ago. Soon after, they arranged for weekly prayer-meetings and have kept them up ever since. It is remarkable to see the improvement they have made in so short a time in their meetings, especially in singing.—Aaron Moss, Ridgeway, Ind., Jan. 12.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, County and State. Be brief. Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Wayside Notes.

WHEN we were in Northern Kansas, last winter, a proposal was made to send us a quantity of corn to Dakota, as we had scarcely anything to live on, and no money to buy coal. Our crops were almost a failure. Some one wrote to us that $40 was raised to aid us, etc. The money was used to buy grain, pay freight, etc. It was sent to brethren Wm. Horning and Mansfield, with instructions to give it to the sufferers of Dakota. The brethren, it seems, acted strictly according to instructions and it turned out that we were misinformed about the money. It was raised for the sufferers of Dakota and distributed accordingly. We have been requested by the two brethren in Dakota to make the above rectification, and we cheerfully do it.

We would further say to all who aided us last winter with their means, that we feel a debt of gratitude to them and hope that as there are plenty of sufferers in Nebraska and Dakota, they will still continue to remember the poor. We are glad to learn through the MESSENGER that the cries of the suffering are entering into the hearts of the Brethren and that so much is being done for the needy.

I have read, with deep interest, Bro. D. C. Moomaw's "Open Letter to the Lambs of Lunenburg, Va.," and of the success that attended his preaching. We feel interested in Lunenburg. Wife and self were the first baptized by the Brethren there. We hope to meet them in the better land.

Many brethren, whose acquaintance we have formed during the year that is past, will wonder why we have not written to them, and some of the readers of the GOSPEL MESSENGER will ask why we have been so long silent. To all such we would say that our health is completely broken. We are confined to our bed a great part of our time, and hardly ever see a well day. We are incapable of any work whatever, - either mental or physical. Our last work was in Cowley County, where we held a week's meeting and returned quite broken down. Our trouble is biliousness and dyspepsia. We are using medical aid but are, at present, far from well. We are resigned to the will of God and if this sickness is necessary for our good, we thankfully accept it; but if it is unto death, and our work here is ended, then we bow to the will of God, who gives and takes away.

We have been during the last three months in Elk County, Kans., near Moline. There are a few members here, under the care of Eld. Geo. Studebaker, of Fredonia. We are going to Oklahoma, if the Lord will, in about two weeks. My family left Dakota last August and came here in wagons. Our crops were total failures. We left our grain uncut, blasted with hot winds and drouth. We are seeking a home in Oklahoma, near the Cimmarron River. There will be three members there besides ourselves, and four about fifteen miles from us. What our future post-office will be we can not say until we get there. In the mean-time our address will be Moline, Elk Co., Kans. Brethren, remember us in your prayers!

JAMES EVANS.

Moline, Elk Co., Kans., Jan. 9.

From the East Chippewa Church, Wayne Co., Ohio.

ACCORDING to arrangements, Bro. Reuben Shroyer came to us Dec. 27. Sunday, Dec. 28, was the time appointed for the dedication services. Bro. Shroyer conducted the meeting. The house was filled to overflowing. This church-house, situated in the southern part of the Chippewa congregation is plain and substantially built, and reflects credit upon the building committee. It stands upon a beautiful elevation, and certainly will prove to be a desirable place of worship.

Bro. Shroyer continued the meetings until the evening of Jan. 11. Considering his physical weakness, Bro. Shroyer preaches the Word with great power and earnestness. As the result of his labors twelve precious souls expressed themselves willing to follow Christ. Bro. Shroyer's labors were much appreciated, and we hope that the blessings of the Lord will attend his ministry every-where! M. C. LICHTENWALTER.

Smithville, Ohio.

From Mt. Carroll, Ill.

WE have just passed through, and enjoyed a season of very encouraging meetings. Bro. T. T. Meyers, of Mt. Morris, came to us on the evening of Dec. 24, and remained with us until Jan. 5.

Our meetings were well attended, and the interest increased as the meetings progressed. Two precious souls were taken into the fold of Christ, and were baptized Jan. 4.

Our home brethren conducted the meetings from the above date until the evening of the 9th, when Bro. Myers came and again wielded the sword with power and effectiveness, concluding his efforts Sunday evening, Jan. 11, and this Lord's Day two more confessed faith in the Blessed Jesus and were received also into fellowship by baptism. At this time we also have one more applicant. Thank the Lord for his great mercy to us and in the salvation of precious souls. We had a season of refreshment from the presence of the Lord, that I hope will remain with us.

Bro. W. B. Stover was also with us and led us in the song service, which added much to the interest and spiritual life of the meetings.

I trust the Lord will reward those dear brethren abundantly for their labor of love and encouragement! JOHN J. EMMERT.

Jan. 12.

Among the Churches.

ON the evening of Dec. 19, I took the train for Dorrance, Russell Co., Kans., a distance of one hundred miles. I was met at the depot and conveyed to the home of Eld. John Newcomer. After enjoying their kind hospitality, we met for worship next day at 11 A. M. and 7: 30 P. M., and also on Sunday, Dec. 21, in the forenoon and evening. On the evening of Dec. 22 we closed our meetings with good interest.

Dec. 23 I was conveyed by Bro. Wm. Himes to Twin Creek, in the south arm of the North Solomon church, a distance of thirty-five miles. Here I found brethren Lewis and Isaac Larew engaged in a series of meetings, and, by request, the writer addressed the congregation that night on the subject of Christian feet-washing. The very best of attention pervaded the audience, while I tried to give a reason of the hope within us.

Next day, Dec. 24, I started, in company with brethren L. and I. Larew to the main part of the North Solomon church and by noon reached the home of our esteemed brother Joseph and sister Fanny Morrow, of Osborne City, and after a short but pleasant interview, we again proceeded on our journey. Night found us at the home of Bro. Isaac Larew, near the place appointed for evening services. The weather being a little inclement, we had a small congregation but marked attention the first night. The next day being Christmas, we had two meetings. We continued here, until Saturday, Dec. 27, when we met for council, with a good representation. Much unanimity and self-sacrifice were manifested, and we believe all present felt it was good to be there. Bro. Lewis Larew was chosen as foreman, to act during the absence of the writer who, at present, has charge of this church, and feels much encouraged by the zeal manifested on the part of all the members. Two were baptized on the day of the council. They came about thirty miles to attend council and to be received into fellowship.

Next day, Jan. 4th, I preached two more sermons. By this time I had a crowded house of very attentive listeners, but my time had again come to close and go to other fields of labor.

This church passed through a severe ordeal, when the division took place. Each of the three elements claimed about one-third of the property, and the ground was closely contested. Since then many have come back, and others are looking towards the fold.

On Monday, Jan. 5th, I was conveyed by Bro. Lewis Larew to Bro. John Wagoner's, who took me to Smith Center, a distance of twelve miles, on the same day. I here took the train for the Belleville church, Republic County. As the weather was very inclement, we had no preaching until Saturday night. Saturday having been set for council-meeting, we had a general attendance of nearly all the members. Bro. Daniel Smith, a minister in the East Belleville church, was present and aided us with his good counsel. At this council four were disowned upon their own request. They were young in years.

We were reminded on this occasion of the great necessity of forbearance, one with another, in order to facilitate church work. Considerable business came before the council, but we think that all passed off satisfactorily.

This church is at present without a shepherd and desires that some one move into their midst to take charge of the flock. I had my home in this church for nearly two years when I first came to Western Kansas, and any one desiring the charge of a zealous and lively membership can find such at the above church. The present ministerial force consists of brethren Charles Hillery and A. C. Daggett.

Next day I preached three sermons for them and then left for Phillips County, where I had arranged to meet Eld. John Ikenberry, of the Quinter church. I reached the home of Bro. J. W. Jarboe at 2 o'clock on the 6th, and had preaching the same night. Just at the close of the meeting Eld. Ikenberry arrived in time to invoke a closing blessing. We continued meetings until Jan. 7th, when we met for church council, and after devotional exercises we transacted the following:

1. An explanation was given of the Gospel order of our faith and practice, as defined by Annual Meeting.

2. The above order being unanimously accepted by all, they agreed to labor to carry out and maintain the same.

3. All present being in peace and union, and united in the desire to be organized into a church capacity, they then were thus set apart as a body of workers in the Master's vineyard. Their membership comprises about sixteen souls, with Bro. J. W. Jarboe as their minister, and Bro. Samuel M. Shuck as their deacon. Bro. Daniel Ream was then chosen clerk and Bro. Sylvester Workman, Treasurer. The Phillips County line is their boundary.

Thus one more vine has been planted in the Master's vineyard. May it be nurtured by the gentle and inspiring moisture of heaven. May this little band become a nucleus around which many may cluster and thus become a formidable barrier against sin.

Bro. Jarboe moved here lately from the Maple Grove church, Norton Co., and as a result of his labors their number has been increased about one-half.

At the close of my labors, I started for home. I had a tedious trip. I arrived home on the morning of Jan. 10, and found all well, thanks to the Great Giver of all good. To the dear ones who administered to my wants, I return heartfelt thanks. B. B. WHITMER.

"THERE are, in the truest sense, no great things and no little things in the sphere of duty. Whatever is to be done, is the one thing in the world to be done by him who ought to do it; and however unimportant that thing may seem in itself, it has its relations to every other thing, done by every other person throughout God's universe. Of itself it is, at the best, but a trifle. In its linkings, its value is incalculable. All that any one of us has to do in this world is his simple duty. And an archangel could not do more than just that to advantage."

"THE promise that in due time you shall reap if you faint not goes beyond the depth of the unthinking. The sowing of many years may be partially or wholly lost because in the critical reaping-time you gave up your efforts. Consider here."

Literary Notes.

Bible Hand Book and Studies for Sunday and Bible Schools, by J. F. B. Tinling, B. A., author of "Hidden Lessons from the Repetitions and Variations of the New Testament," "The Promise of Life," "The Poppy Pages," etc. 12mo, 471 pp., cloth, $2.00. New York: Funk & Wagnalls.

This is one of the many admirable ministerial helps published by this well-known and enterprising firm. A handy volume, in good type and good binding, with incidents and portraits on almost every conceivable subject well indexed, so that what is wanted can be promptly found; will be appreciated by thousands of busy pastors. A good, timely illustration is, in fact, an argument, and often more forcible than if stated in argumentative form. The illustrations are the most remembered part of a sermon. For the preacher, too, an apt illustration always suggests new ranges of thought, so that the usefulness of such a book is almost unlimited.

These illustrations are seldom a page in length, often but a few lines. They are from all manner of sources, ancient history and modern newspapers, from philosophy, science and general literature, from eminent divines and noted infidels, each throwing light on some great truth. It will be found a most useful book for the minister's study table.

Are you acquainted with The Literary Digest? It is the prince of the weeklies! A weekly summary of the current thought of the world.

You might expend $1,000 a year for American and foreign periodicals and devote eight hours a day to reading them, and then not keep yourself as well abreast of the thought and discussion of the world as you can now do by investing $3.00 a year in The Literary Digest, and spending three hours a week reading it.

It is a weekly periodical, of 32 quarto pages, in which are presented careful condensations of all the noteworthy articles appearing in the magazines, reviews and important journals of America, England, France, Germany, Spain, Austria, Italy, Russia, and other continental countries. [The condensations from foreign languages are, of course, made in English.]

The Book Digests are not reviews, "book notices," nor critiques, but faithful Digests, letting a book tell its own story.

It gives a weekly Index of Periodical Literature, and of books, alphabetically arranged by titles, and so classified as to make reference easy.

It also gives each week, a Cosmopolitan Chronicle of Current Events. Subscription price, $3 per year; single copies, 10 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, Publishers, 18 and 20 Astor Place, New York.

BRUBAKER.—At Longmont, Colo., Jan. 1, 1891, sister Annie Brubaker, aged 23 years, 1 month and 2 days.

Sister Annie was an examplary member of the church for years, and she will be greatly missed, as her seat was never vacant at church, Sunday school or social meeting. To know her was to love her. She died in the faith of Jesus. Services by the Brethren. G. W. FLESHER.

MOSER.—In the bounds of the Chippewa Valley church, Wis., Dec. 30, 1890, of a complication of diseases, sister Ella Moser, aged 24 years and 16 days.

Deceased had been afflicted for many years, but during the last eight months she had suffered intensely. About three months ago, feeling that her days were almost numbered, she called for the elders of the church, and desired to be baptized. Being too ill to ride to the water, a tank was made, in which she was buried with Christ in baptism.

Deceased leaves father, mother, two sisters and one brother to mourn their loss. Funeral services by Eld. H. C. Baker to a sympathizing congregation from 1 Thess. 4: 13. KATIE JOYCE.

CUSTER.—In the Brush Creek congregation, Adams Co., Ohio, Nov. 15, 1890, Bro. Isaiah Custer, aged 74 years, 11 months and 19 days.

Bro. Custer was born in Fayette Co., Pa. He joined the church at the age of 27 years, moved to Ohio at the age of 42 years, at which time he was a minister.

He was an untiring worker in the Master's cause, and an earnest advocate of the doctrines of the church. He was instrumental in building a meeting-house in his own neighborhood, called Marble Furnace church. He did not forget to leave other means behind, to work for the Master, after he had gone to rest. He left $1,000 in the hands of the Mission Board of the Southern District of Ohio. The interest of said sum is to be expended annually for the spread of the Gospel in Adams County, Ohio.

Thus, after an active and zealous life, he quietly fell asleep. The funeral was preached from 1 Kings 2: 2, which passage we thought to be the sentiment of our deceased brother. W. Q. CALVERT.

HAID.—In Youngstown, Ohio, Dec. 8, 1890, sister Salome Haid, aged 67 years.

About thirty years ago she was received into church fellowship by baptism in Tuscarawas County, Ohio. Some years after she, with the family, moved to Youngstown, where she was lost to the church for a number of years. Her husband and children belong to the Lutheran church. Several years ago wife and I ascertained the place of her residence, and visited the sister and family. She seemed to be very glad to see us, and several times she had purposed to come to Communion services, but on account of sickness (asthma), and other circumstances, she could not come. We received a message of her sickness Dec. 7, requesting us to visit her as soon as possible. Wife and I did so, and we found her in misery, lamenting her neglect. We tried to comfort her by telling her that God does not require any impossibilities, and that by an humble confession and prayer, God would pardon our sins. After a season of prayer she seemed resigned, saying, "Thy will be done." We believe that she died in the triumph of faith. She leaves ten children to mourn her departure; six of them married. Funeral services by Rev. Tope and the writer, from John 14: 12, and 1 Cor. 15: 26. J. H. KURTZ.

CUBISON.—In the Burr Oak church, Jewell Co., Kans., Dec. 22, 1890, Bro. Joseph N. Cubison, aged 22 years, 8 months and 3 days.

Funeral services conducted by the Brethren in the Burr Oak meeting-house from John 11: 25. ALBION C. DAGGETT.

MARTIN.—At Beatrice, Nebr., Jan. 8, 1891, sister Lucy, wife of Bro. Edwin L. Martin, aged 36 years, 9 months and 9 days.

Deceased was a consistent and devoted member. She was anointed a few days before her death, and in her last hours she earnestly entreated those around her to prepare to meet her on the other shore. She leaves a husband and two small children to mourn their loss. Funeral services by the Brethren from 2 Cor. 5, first part of chapter. H. C. MARTIN.

LEIB.—In the Lower Cumberland church, near Boiling Springs, Cumberland Co., Pa., Dec. 30, 1890, Bro. John Leib, aged 69 years, 5 months and 22 days.

The deceased leaves a wife, one son and one daughter to mourn their loss. We trust that the loss of such a kind and loving father may be the means (by the help of God) of bringing those of the surviving family, who are yet out of Christ, to a speedy resolve to "go to Jesus." Funeral services at his late residence by Levi S. Mohler and the writer, from Rom. 6: 23. Interment at the Keeny Cemetery. HENRY BEELMAN.

MERKEY.—At his home in Fauquier Co., Va., Dec. 27, 1890, Bro. Moses Merkey, son of William and Catharine Merkey, aged 23 years, 8 months and 12 days.

In his home he was dearly loved, honored and respected. The warmth of his heart, the sunshine of his disposition, his wise council and manly thought won the affection of all who knew him. Truth and justice were the cardinal virtues of his character. In his beautiful character were phases, which the world may well strive to emulate. Such an end of mortality is ennobling, is inspiring. Endeared with qualities, capable to accomplish much good for the world, God, in his infinite wisdom, placed him in a higher sphere of usefulness. But in our grief it is a comfort to believe that our loss is his eternal gain, and that his noble spirit has fled to seek a sweeter abode for its aspirations within the veil.

His death was caused by a disease of the throat and lungs. He was not able to speak audibly for eight months previous to his death. Services were held at the Midland church, conducted by Bro. Jacob Hedrick from the words, "Blessed are they that have part in the first resurrection." ANNA HEDRICK.

PHRUSK.—Jan. 2, 1891, Catharine, wife of Joseph Phrusk, aged 87 years, 3 months and 20 days. The deceased leaves four children to mourn their loss. ANDREW BRANDT.

HARDMAN.—At North Star, Ohio, Jan. 4, 1891, infant son of Alonzo and Flora Hardman, aged one month.

These parents have been bereft of two little ones in less than one year. EMMA GROFF.

CLAPPER.—In the Hopewell church, Yellow Creek, Pa., Dec. 26, 1890, of typhoid fever, Bro. Jacob Clapper, aged 38 years, 5 months and 11 days.

Deceased leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss. His wife and oldest daughter are members of the church.

Funeral services by Bro. William Richey from Heb. 9: 27.

GOLDEN.—In the same community, Jan. 2, 1890, Miss Jennie May Golden, of Hopewell, daughter of John Golden, aged 9 years, 4 months and 9 days. Disease, pneumonia. Services by Eld. D. S. Clapper from Job. 1: 21.

HOMLEN.—In the Hopewell church, Yellow Creek, Pa., Jan. 5, 1891, William Martin Homlen, son of Mr. Harris Homlen, aged 3 months and 25 days.

Services by Eld. D. S. Clapper from Luke 18: 16. His remains were interred at Clearville, Bedford Co., Pa. J. H. CLAPPER.

SHANK.—At Abbottstown, Pa., Elizabeth Shank, daughter of Bro. Andrew Brown, of Hampton, Adams Co., Pa., aged 31 years, 10 months and 2 days.

She leaves a husband and four little children,—the youngest an infant, four weeks old. Burial, Jan. 7. Services in the Brethren's house by Rev. I. C. Weidler, assisted by the undersigned. J. A. LONG.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

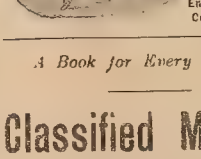
"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same. Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising."—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.



"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music."—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

Price per single copy, 30 cts.; per dozen by mail, $3 00; by express, $2 60. Lots of more than a dozen must be sent by express.

ANOTHER LETTER.

Just about this time people are writing to us, seemingly in ecstasy over what they call a "Drugless System of Treatment." At the same time they seem to condole with medicine makers, believing that their means of living will now be at an end.

The writer was born with large inquisitiveness, and has ascertained what this mysterious system of treating human ailments might be, or rather what it is.

Yes, the wonderful discovery has been made, while indeed it is drugless, it is by no means HARMLESS. Some may think, that taking a bath is harmless, but indeed, many people have lost their lives through reckless bathing.

This new "system," as it is called, is internal bathing, not bathing, which might be in itself harmless, but it is inflating the bowels with warm water by hydraulic pressure. The danger is in causing pockets to form in the intestines or bowels. Such a calamity could not be overcome even by a surgical operation. If you want to test the power of a syringe, then fill a hogshead, the strongest one made, fill it full of water, bung it very tightly, then make a gimlet hole through the stave, just large enough to insert a syringe, then force water into the interior, and in a short time there will be an explosion. Thus having witnessed the force of hydraulic pressure will you substitute your own body for the hogshead, and speak of it as a drugless system?

How foolish of a person to risk his life applying this drugless system, when ten cents worth of HERBICURA would do the work, and which is positively harmless.

PASSING away is the edict of God written everywhere, and is especially noticeable of human life. The news came to us yesterday that Bro. Michael Myers, an aged father of the Aughwick church, has made the change that lies before us all,—death. Of his exact age we are not informed, but it must be far up in the eighties, so that it may be said of him: His days on the earth were many, and in them he no doubt had his share of the ills to which sin has made us all heirs. But to the good, it is a blessed thought to know that this is its last stroke. Here his hand is forever stayed. Beyond this he cannot go.

ELD. JOHN STUDABAKER, of Troy, Ohio, father of sister Quinter, of this place, has been for some time suffering under bodily afflictions. His trouble has been growing worse, so that he could no more write with the pen, and being desirous to continue his correspondence, he got himself a type-writer, which he has learned to manipulate, and the other day we received the following note from him:

Dear Brother: Will you please publish in the MESSENGER that I am sorely afflicted with shaking palsy? My tongue is paralyzed, so that I can scarcely talk, and in a short time I expect to close my life. But I am glad to write you that as I am nearing my end, my prospects for heaven are growing brighter. Very Truly Yours,
JOHN STUDABAKER.

With pleasure we send forth this encouraging message. Yes, we too are glad. We all rejoice that we can have something to throw sunshine on our pathway, as the shades of the evening fall upon us. It is the rest promised in the evening that strengthens and encourages us to bear and endure the toils of the day. God be with the dear brother as the curtains of night gently draw around. May your going to sleep be peaceful, and your awakening glorious! Many have gone before you. Many more will soon follow,—and the meeting of the redeemed will surely be a joyful one. Be strong to the end!

COLD winter is still keeping the earth locked in her icy fetters and those who delight in skipping over the snowy cover, are having their good share of this kind of enjoyment. Yet, winter and snow affords more than this to the earth and they that dwell thereon. The fruitfulness of our summers depends much on the character of the winters that precede. God is a chemist on a large scale, and understands essential application much better than research and science has or ever will reveal unto us. So we can well say, "Not our will, but thine be done." While these pen slips may be applicable to us who are half hibernating in the Northern section of the country, we do not want our Southern readers to shrug their shoulders and shiver in pity. These changes bring with them joys, and, because of the contrast, we enjoy them the more. As the storms of winter bring warmth and sunshine in their track, so the winter of life brings after it the Eden of rest. And how could we appreciate this summer of rest, had we not passed through the winter of toil? Yes, winter, we enjoy thee for the sake of the summer that will follow!

QUERY ANSWERED.

A BROTHER asks: "Will you please inform us through the MESSENGER, where the negro sprang from?"

We have never given the race question as much careful study as we have some other subjects, but in this case, as a general answer, we would say: "From Adam." And for a later lineage we name Cush, the son of Ham. There has been much discussion and speculation about the negro, but no very satisfactory conclusion has been reached. The Cushites are named as being residents of Asia, Arabia and Africa. While it is supposed that the bulk of them went south, by crossing the Mediterranean Sea into Africa, some remained and retained the name. But Africa, in the early history of the world, seems to have been the home of the Cushites and, eight or nine hundred years before Christ, constituted a powerful nation.

But while it is admitted that the Cushites and the Africans were the same people, some historians take the position that the Africans and negroes are different classes of people, as well as of a different lineage, and that the names should not be used as synonymous terms. Whether or not such is the case, we shall not try to decide, but that the Ethiopian was a colored man, scarcely admits of a doubt.

It is thought by many that Zipporah, wife of Moses, was a colored woman and that this was the cause of his sister's objection to her. The latter idea, however, is more speculation, and gives no right to the argument that she was a colored woman. But there are other circumstantial evidences that point in that direction. The Queen of Sheba came from the same country and was a colored woman, on the same grounds. If our negroes are not in this line, they can not surely be very far away. And we, for want of better evidence, might as well lump the whole South land, and call the inhabitant, in his purest condition, a degenerated Ethiopian or African, if you please.

EXPLANATION.

BRO. CHAS. B. GIBBLE asks: "Please explain, with Scripture reference, the following passage found in 1 Peter 4: 18, which reads: 'And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?'"

Dr. Dodridge paraphrases the text in this way: "And if the righteous himself be saved with difficulty, how miserable must the ungodly and the sinner be?" This rendering seems to give the thought rather clearly. Temptations and persecutions were intended as tests to the Christian character, and could only be withstood by those who had the "sufficiency of grace" that is promised to the believing and trusting. If such were scarcely able to withstand and overcome those fiery trials, the question would most naturally arise: "What shall become of those who do not have this help,—such as the ungodly and the open sinner?" In the judgment, what shall become of them? Is there any hope for them? If these things come to the good,—and it is with difficulty that they can overcome them and be saved,—there does not seem to be much encouragement left for the sinner, or those who do not have the grace of God in their heart. It is put in this interrogative way that all may be induced to undertake the solution of the great problem.

It seems to us about in the same way as: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?" Again, God says to the sinner, "Come let us reason together." By a rational process of reasoning, it will be seen that though our sins be as red as blood, there is a remedy; there is a way of escape. God has so provided. This can be reasoned out because of the sacrifice made. But now he wants us to reason from another standpoint. And that is, if we refuse to accept the provision made; if we will not apply the remedy,—is there still a way? To both of these questions there can be but one rational conclusion,—"there can be no way of escape, and everlasting ruin must follow."

It is a soul-searching question, and it will be well for us all to study it carefully. It should spur us to action and cause us to put forth every exertion, that we may be able to withstand the foe, and thus be made conquerors through him who has called us and given us the possibilities of victory.

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

JESUS WEPT.

Dark and dreary was the garden;
Deep into the silent West,
The great Orb of Day had sunken;
Nature had withdrawn to rest.
Mournful wails of smothered anguish,
Out upon the breezes swept;—
Battling with some deep emotion,
'Neath the olives, Jesus wept!

Jesus wept! Yet not in triumph
Did those tears so sacred fall;
They were shed in pain and sorrow
For the souls in sin's dark thrall
With despair he mutely wrestled;
Broken-hearted, anguish-tossed,
Sad, distressed, alone, he kneeling
Wept for his beloved lost!

Jesus wept! Majestic mountains
Tremble in your lofty power!
Holy angels, veil your faces
With the darkness of that hour!
Saints, draw near from every nation,
Wheresoever foot hath trod,—
Bow before the mighty sorrow
Of the blessed Son of God!

Jesus wept! High Heaven shouted:
"Lo, the vigil that he keeps!
Let the whole creation hearken,
For the Lord of Glory weeps.
Sinners vile in heart, and guilty,
While the Savior's grief appears,
Bring your scarlet sins and drown them
In this fount of holy tears."

Jesus wept—yet tears were fruitless!
Silent grew his trembling breath;
And the heart so sore and heavy,
Saddened even unto death.
Deep, still deeper grew the anguish;
Blood gushed forth from every pore;
Bitter was the wail he uttered:
"My beloved—mine no more!"

O, was ever sadder music
O'er celestial harpstrings swept,
Tuned to trembling voice of angels,
Than the low chant: "Jesus wept!"
Heaven veils itself in silence
At the sad and mournful strain.
Precious must have been the tears, which
Jesus wept for earth in vain!

EPISTOLARY.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

EDWARD M. COBB,

Dear Brother:—

YOUR frank and beautiful letter of Dec. 23, is here. It is pulsating all through with the love that passeth knowledge. I heartily reciprocate your expressions of Christian affection. For the stamps I return special thanks. Such tokens of Calvary I accept as precious Godsends, not only because they are needed, but as evidences of that Divine self-sacrifice which finds it more blessed to give than to receive. Acts 20: 35. I do not ask or claim a single stamp from any one; if there are souls throughout the Brotherhood to whom my pen-ministry is of any help, and who are constrained by the impulse of Christ within to maintain my humble efforts by their contributions, I recognize therein the Divine approval of my labors. If He gives me His thoughts for the edification of His saints, and gives to my audience, material blessings to exchange for spiritual, it is only in accordance with the arrangement of all His higher dispensations. 1 Cor. 9: 9, 10, 11, 14.

Yours is an honorable and solemn vocation. Pedagogy is a Divine function, preluding all that is included in the sacred ministry. You have souls to deal with, and eternal destinies are involved in your daily school-room duties. You are not only imparting specific forms of knowledge, but you are developing and shaping immortal powers. Mental arithmetic, and physical geography, and physiology and hygiene have a high and eternal application, and every new evolution of mental capacity is so much added soul-treasure for the ages of the ages.

There will be a new Heaven and a new earth, and a celestial geography and astronomy will be requisite in the upper seminary. We will have a spiritual body, fashioned like the glorious body of the Risen Godman, and a corresponding anatomy and physiology. The perfect life and blessedness of Emmanuel will be the hygiene of the redeemed. The curriculum of our mortal career is only the Freshman training of our endless studies in "the manifold wisdom of God." Eph. 3: 10. Death, instead of being the end, is only the entrance of the forever unexplorable fields of wonder and glory. Col. 2: 3. As long as Jehovah exists, and the saints are His pupils, Eph. 1: 17-21 will not be exhausted.

Here we know very little. The wisest among the saints on earth are only abecedarians. But Eternity will be an ever-unfolding apocalypse of "all the fulness of God." The Infinite will be ever more and more revealed to the finite. The wondrous outshining of the Divine Glory in the face of Jesus Christ will have everlasting fulfillment. 2 Cor. 4: 6. The high-calling of God is in Christ Jesus. Philpp. 3: 14. "Emmanuel is God with us." "In Him dwelleth ALL the FULLNESS of the GODHEAD BODILY." Col. 2: 9. And in Him we are complete. Verse 10. He dwells in our hearts by faith. Eph. 3: 17. Christ IN US is our hope of Glory. Col. 1: 27. "Of God is He made unto us wisdom. 1 Cor. 1: 30.

Your school-room, if occupied according to the Divine Idea of Pedagogy, is the very vestibule of Heaven. We have no right to separate one moment of life from "the Eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus." Eph. 3: 11.

Our first breath came direct out of the very Spirit lungs of Deity; and one breath apart from His will and glory is sin. Gen. 2: 7. We must come back to "Know nothing but JESUS CHRIST, and Him crucified." To die in sin is easy; but to die unto sin means Gethsemane and Golgotha.

I am glad that God and the Bible and Eternal Life are so largely blended with your method of teaching. Jesus claims to be Alpha and Omega, in the home, the synagogue and the sanctuary. Your celebration of Christmas is novel, but just what every anniversary of the Incarnation ought to be. Let horrid old Santa Claus be pitched into limbo, and a photograph of "the one altogether lovely" be held up in radiant features to the contemplation of the little ones. You need much "effectual and fervent prayer" for light and wisdom direct from between the Cherubim on the Mercy Seat. The lamplight between the two veils is only a symbol of true Shekinah in the Holy of Holies.

Soul-wisdom often puffs up, but Spirit-wisdom is the illumination of the Holy Ghost, and has all the Divine characteristics of James 3: 17. Let your pedagogy have this seal: "We know that thou art a teacher COME FROM GOD." John 3: 2. Baptize your alphabet and multiplication table in the Blood of the Lamb, so that every letter and figure may be translated into the Sophomore and Junior and Senior classes of the pedagogy of Father, Son and Holy Ghost in "the house not made with hands."

"I cease not to give thanks since I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love unto all the saints." May the Jehovah-Angel keep you and your wife and your sister as the apple of His eye, and forever let you know the joy of 2 Pet. 1: 11.

As to your question of priority respecting the prohibition in Eden, I have only the inspired record to guide me. Gen. 2: 16, 17. The Lord God commanded the man, saying, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it. What was said to him in his individuality, was also said to Eve, while yet identified with his individual consciousness.

This is the Divine order of revelation and responsibility from Adam to the last soul born on earth. The offspring is bound up in the life of the parent, and on the latter is laid the solemn responsibility of teaching the newly-begotten life the will of God, and training it for eternal glory. This awful fact shows how fearfully even the church has forgotten the sacredness of generation and infantile culture.

GOING SECURITY.

BY ENOCH EBY.

"He that is surety for a stranger shall smart for it: and he that hateth suretiship is sure."—Prov. 11: 15.

"My son, if thou be surety for thy friend, if thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger, thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth. Do this now, my son, and deliver thyself, when thou art come into the hand of thy friend; go, humble thyself, and make sure thy friend. Give not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber to thine eyelids Deliver thyself as a roe from the hand of the hunter, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler."—Prov. 6: 1-5.

MY experience, as well as that of thousands of others proves the words of Solomon to be true: "He that is surety for a stranger shall smart for it." His advice to get out of it is a good one, if it can be done.

Looking at the principle of going security, I inquire, "Is it right for me to do so, as it is generally done,—I mean with no intention of being obliged to pay?

"How do you know that people do not intend to pay that which they are securing by their name?"—says one.

Answer.—Why is it that a dishonest man can not get a signer? It is because the signer knows he will have to pay it. Why is it that honest, wealthy men have no trouble to get signers? It is because the signer has no idea he will have to pay it. (He does not think that a change of hands, often caused by death, will compel him to pay it, or he would be more reluctant in putting his name to the note.) That is not all. When a person puts his name on a note, as security, without any intention of paying, what does he do? Excuse me for saying it,—he tells a lie. He violates Eph. 4: 25, "Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor."

The plausible side is, that the endorsing of the note on your part helps your poor neighbor. Is that true? In one case out of fifty it may help him, even though you do not pay the money; but in the other forty-nine cases, persons may venture into debt beyond their means, because they can get the article in question by furnishing security. Such as need and ask for security, most generally have a hopeful future, yet all the time they may be on a descending scale. Therefore let all live within their means, and if that does not reach, we can donate. This will afford more pleasure than to pay when we did not intend or expect to do so.

Let us look at the other side of this question. "Is it right for me to ask security?" I emphatically say, "No," for the following reasons: I ask him either to tell the untruth, as above stated, or obligate himself to pay for that for which he received no value. In either case it would be violating the Scripture, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Matt. 7: 12.

This may be considered a new subject for a church paper. "Better write something about religion," says one. If religion were not stigmatized to such a fearful extent by financial wrecks, whereby comparatively poor people are often made to suffer, by rich men failing with their pockets full, we would not say a word. Much of this is brought about by giving and taking security.

More might and should be said, but we will forbear for the present, hoping that this will put some to thinking, if not to acting. The religion of Jesus is made up of what we do, not of what we feel or think.

BE KIND.

BY SOLOMON SCHUBERT.

PERHAPS there are no two words in all our language whose meaning is more universally neglected than that of the two short words,—"Be kind." If we would but remember that, after all, it is the little things of life that tell in the long run, we would more often forget to be unkind.

The help given, the kind words spoken at the right moment, the sympathy quickly expressed, and the cordial greeting that "maketh glad the heart of the passing stranger,"—all these may seem insignificant to some of us, but have we not seen the helpfulness of them demonstrated in our own lives? Have we not, at some time, been sent into the depths of despair, by the withholding of a kind, encouraging word? Have we not been rescued from bitterest distress by an act of disinterested kindness?

We sometimes forget that by persistent doing of the little things we are laying the stepping-stones to spheres of greater usefulness.

In teaching ourselves habits of kindness, we are surely following in the footsteps of him, whose entire life was one act of continual attention to, and consideration for, the feelings and happiness of others. Let us not forget that in the humblest walks of life, as well as in the highest, there are many opportunities for acts of kindness, for strengthening words to some of earth's weary ones.

In using with the utmost diligence this mightiest of influences, our own natures shall deepen and expand beneath the warm rays of the sun of kindness.

LIGHT IN DARKNESS.

BY J. N. DAVIS.

"Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness."—Ps. 112: 4.

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me."—Ps 23: 4.

EVERY Christian must, at times, pass through the valley of tribulation. Mental anxiety, sickness, loss of friends, poverty, persecution, death—with many other things—make the materials of the valley of tribulation.

The Blessed Savior has said that all who live godly must pass through this valley. John 16: 33. And again, "Through much tribulation ye must enter into the kingdom of God." Acts 14: 22. John, the beloved, looking with wonder at the glory of some who were seen before the throne of God, was informed by the angel, that they were those who had come out of great tribulation. Rev. 7: 14. But Christ is the light of the world, the Sun of Righteousness, the source from which all intellectual and spiritual light is derived. John 1: 9, 10; Mal. 4: 2. Wherefore God, our Heavenly Father, says to us: "Awake, thou that sleepest; arouse from the dead, thou that dwellest among the tombs, and Christ shall give thee light." Eph. 5: 14. But to the Christian, passing through the dark valley of trouble, he says: "Arise, shine! Thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen on thee." Isaiah 60: 1.

To the disciple of Jesus this light indeed belongs, and much he needs it in his pilgrimage. To him it is given by promise. John 8: 12. "To the upright there ariseth light in darkness; light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart." Ps. 97: 11. The light of knowledge, the light of consolation, the light of holiness, and the light of eternal glory are the Christian's inheritance, in and through Christ Jesus. Without Christ all is darkness, wretchedness and death. With him all is light, life, love and peace.

"In darkest shades, if he appear,
My dawning is begun;
He is my soul's sweet morning star,
And he my rising sun.

The opening heavens around me shine
With beams of sacred bliss,
While Jesus shows his heart is mine,
And whispers, 'I am his!'

My soul would leave this heavy clay
At that transporting word,
Run up with joy the shining way,
To embrace my dearest Lord."

OUR CHURCH NAME.

BY P. R. WRIGHTSMAN.

As our church name is so indefinite, and so often misunderstood by strangers as well as misleading in its signification, why can we not, at our next Annual Meeting, make a change that will more properly apply to us as a body of Christian Believers? We now have a congregation in our County, called "German Baptist," of a different faith and order from us. This fact has already caused us some trouble in a deed to our church house.

Now, in order that we might really and truly be called what we are in fact, we designate ourselves as we truly are, "Triune Baptists." We are in the strictest sense of the word, "Triune Baptists." This is a true name,— a significant name.

I have known some appointment to be made in the city for preaching by the "German Baptists," when a great many English people did not go, supposing that if we are German Baptists, of course the preaching would be in the German language.

So you see the term is misleading and should be changed for a better one. The facts are, many of our members cannot speak nor understand German and why should they be called German Baptists or French Baptists, or any other term, not significant. But when I tell a stranger that I am a Triune Baptist, I tell him the truth and he understands at once that I believe in the Holy Trinity, and also that I believe in a threefold baptism. I need not tell him a half dozen other names to explain to him who I am.

I have had some conscientious scruples, in telling people I am a German Baptist when I cannot read German nor understand German preaching. But if I tell him I am a Triune Baptist, I am sure I tell him the truth. Moreover, the term, "Triune Baptists," certainly carries with it a good share of our church doctrine and is truly expressive and significant.

I therefore ask, that this question be considered by all our council-meetings, and carried up to Annual Meeting from the various churches and District Meetings.

Let us have the name of "Triune Baptists," and then we will have no more trouble about titles and deeds to property, or church-houses, or from bequests.

If a brother, in making his will, bequeathes five thousand dollars to the Triune Baptist church, it at once is settled who gets it if that be our church title.

"SUPPER BEING ENDED."

BY ELD. MARTIN NEHER.

ONE of the difficulties in this subject is to find out when the devil put it into the heart of Judas to betray Christ. Certainly it was when he made the contract with the Chief Priests. See Luke 22: 3. "And supper being ended. John 13: 2, "the devil having ('already' in L. H. Anderson's translation) put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot to betray Christ." When did that occur? Right after the supper at Bethany. Please read the records of Matthew, Mark and Luke, and you will find that the contract was made right after the supper at Bethany. The records show that from that supper at Bethany, Judas sought opportunity to do that work till the supper at Jerusalem. We can not make the supper at Jerusalem ended till after it was eaten. The German translation says, "Und nach dem Abendessen." You can not make people believe it is after supper until they have eaten the meal.

John, in giving his history of the supper at Bethany in the twelfth chapter, brings it in also in the second verse of the thirteenth chapter. Matthew says, when the contract was made, and when it was decided how he,—Judas, was to accomplish it, "Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, and said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver. And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him." Matt. 26: 14, 15, 16.

You see this took place right after the supper at Bethany was ended. John puts it in the past tense,—"supper being ended." The devil had already put it into the heart of Judas to betray him at Bethany, but it was not accomplished until at the paschal supper at Jerusalem. Mark 14: 10, 11; Luke 22: 3-6. It looks very clear that the supper at Jerusalem had not ended when it was not eaten yet.

"THE 'voice of the Lord' is the guide of the Lord's people. The Scriptures say much of the importance and the benefit of heeding the Lord's voice. A part of the blessing connected with this command is, however, lost when we restrict the province of that Voice, and limit its guidance to purely religious concerns. The voice of the Lord is to be listened for, not only in the sanctuary and in relation to our spiritual interests, but equally on the most practical occasions of life. It instructed the disciples in so small a matter as on which side of the ship to cast their net in order to catch fish. It should direct all the business plans and all the social visits of to-day. "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" ought to be the Christian's constantly recurring question. The least duty providentially indicated, secular as truly as sacred, is the Divine call to action; and a prompt obedience is the only allowable response. Thus living, we shall have the fulfillment of God's promise to those who 'do his commandments,' 'good success,'—as God estimates success."

"DIGNITY does not consist in possessing honors, but in deserving them."

BEHOLD THE MAN!

BY MATTIE A. LEAR.

THE above is the exclamation used by Pilate when he first brought the blessed Christ out of the Pretorium after the scourging, and presented him to the people.

The life of Jesus, as recorded by the four evangelists is a biography of absorbing interest. Other biographies of great and good men and women have been written, whose virtues and accomplishments we greatly admire, but none are presented to us without a blemish. All have some weakness, some imperfection. Jesus is the only altogether lovely one. Cant. 5: 16. All the writers of the Old Testament, from Moses to Malachi point to him, saying, "Behold the man!"

But deeply interesting as is the whole history of Jesus of Nazareth, the last few hours of his life are especially so,—those few hours when the great plan of human redemption was being consummated,—those few hours when the Son of God trod the wine-press of the wrath of God alone,—when his spotless soul was made an offering for sin,—when the fierce legions of hell were marshalled against him,—when human hate stirred to its utmost depths by the fell powers of darkness, was arrayed in all its fiendish bitterness against their great Benefactor.

As the awful cloud of sin was gathering, and settling down over his pure soul, behold him in the solitude of the garden with his chosen three! Hear his exclamation, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death!" How long the shadows had been gathering who can tell? As the dark pall of sin was settling down over him, who can conceive what the Son of God endured? With profoundest reverence we will follow him, until in the words, "It is finished," he uttered his last words from the cross.

The long-gathering gloom, the pent-up agony of his soul found expression in prayer to his Father. Behold the man, weighed down with a world's sins. "His visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men." Isa. 52: 14. Oh, the unutterable agony! We read of the bloody sweat, that he was sore amazed, and very heavy, that he offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears, but oh! who can understand the bitter ingredients in that awful cup that he was accepting from his Father's hands?

At length the victory is gained, the hosts of hell are vanquished, and he goes from the scene of his spiritual conflict calm and self-possessed to meet the fierce assaults of human agencies, whom Satan, in his baffled rage, uses to insult and torture the Holy One to the utmost extent. But how impotent is their rage! God will work out his benevolent purpose, for man's redemption, in spite of devils or wicked men. "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his Anointed, saying, "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision." Ps. 2: 2-4.

From the Garden of Gethsemane the blessed Christ was led before the high priest Caiaphas. Here after a mock trial and an accusation of blasphemy, sentence of condemnation was passed on him by the chief pontiff. This trial probably closed about three o'clock on Friday morning. Nearly three hours must elapse before this sentence could be formally ratified by the Sanhedrim, which body could not lawfully meet and pass sentence at night.

Meanwhile Jesus was left in charge of the rough temple police, while his judges separated, probably to seek a few hours' repose. There was nothing now to restrain the coarse natures to whom the condemned prisoners had been consigned, and they vented their cruelty on him with the coarsest brutality. "And the men that held Jesus mocked him, and smote him. And when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophesy, who is it that smote thee?" As soon as day-light approaches, their prisoner is taken from his tormentors and led before the Sanhedrim. The sentence of Caiaphas there being ratified, he is taken before Pilate, the Roman Governor, but he, failing to find any cause of condemnation in the accused, and wishing to rid himself of the whole affair, being convinced of the innocency of his prisoner, and yet lacking courage to brave the displeasure of the Jews, by releasing him, sent him to Herod Antipas, Governor of Galilee, who was then at Jerusalem.

To the many questions put to him by this frivolous and besotted monarch, Jesus maintained a dignified silence. Irritated by the seeming contempt in which he was held by his prisoner, Herod threw off all restraint, and gave vent to his low, fierce nature, by joining with his men of war in heaping insults and cruelties on his defenseless prisoner. This shameful treatment being over, he was again led to Pilate, who, after three ineffectual attempts, to convince the Jews of the innocency of his prisoner, condemned one whom he knew, and whom he had repeatedly declared innocent, to the awful death of crucifixion. It being the Roman custom to scourge those who were condemned to the cross, Jesus was, by Pilate's orders, subjected to this frightful torture.

Under the fury of the countless stripes the wretched victims sometimes sank, amidst screams, convulsive leaps, and distortions into a senseless heap; sometimes died on the spot. Those doomed to this punishment were stripped to the waist, then tied by the hands in a stooping posture to a low post, and beaten with knots of rope or plaited leather, armed at the ends with bits of lead or sharp-pointed bones. In many cases not only was the back of the person scourged, cut open in all directions, but even the eyes, the face, and the breast were torn and cut, and the teeth frequently knocked out.

The scourging of Jesus was doubtless of the severest, for the soldiers employed as lictors, were only too glad to vent on any Jew the hatred they bore the nation. Oh, what he must have suffered! "But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." Isa. 53: 5.

But the scourging failed to satisfy the cruelty of his tormentors. From the whipping post they led him into the hall allotted to the common soldiers, where, for the third time, he is mocked and treated with every indignity which the most abandoned natures could invent. They clothe his torn and bleeding form with a cast-off garment of royalty. They place upon his sacred head a crown of thorns; they place a reed in his hand, for a sceptre, they spit in his face, they smite him with the reed; they pluck off his beard. "I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair: I hid not my face from shame and spitting." Isa. 50: 6.

Amid all this cruelty and injustice, no word of complaint escapes his lips. With a God-like dignity he bore himself, and with a sublime patience endured it all. "He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth." Isa. 53: 7.

Pilate, perhaps thinking that what he had now suffered would satisfy the hatred of the Jews, determined to make one more effort to save his life. Taking him by the hand, he once more led him to the pavement in front of the palace, and pointing to the Stricken One exclaims, "Behold the man." If Pilate thought the sight of all this agony and shame would soften his relentless adversaries, he was mistaken, for no sooner did they behold him, than they all cried out, "Crucify him, crucify him." They would not be appeased so long as any life remained in him.

But what do we see in that bent form, in that pallid countenance? Ah, I see in that mangled form the awful deserts of sin; for if they do these things in a green tree, what will be done in the dry? I see the love of God that passeth knowledge and all understanding; that love which gave his only begotten Son, "that whosoever believeth on him shall not perish but have everlasting life."

When I suffer, when deep sorrows threaten to overwhelm me, oh, may I behold him who endured such a contradiction of sinners against himself, lest I be weary and faint in my mind. With Paul may it ever be my prayer to know him in the power of his resurrection, in the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death.

Sellars, Ill.

"IT is not the length or the shortness of our earthly life which gives its greatest significance to the thought that 'time is short.' It is the consideration of that which is beyond—the state of existence which awaits every soul beyond the grave—that is what impresses us with a sense of time's shortness and its mighty importance, as fixing that future. The end of the year brought this home to us; for, short as our appointed time originally was, it is now shorter on earth by a whole year. By as much as we have advanced in life's journey, by so much are we nearer its end; and how near we may be, we know not. During the year we have occupied ourselves with a thousand interests—we have passed through days of happiness or sorrow, of ease or of suffering—each of us has had our own history. Each 'heart knoweth its own bitterness." Probably no two have been alike; yet all are alike in this, that they are a year nearer their close—time is for each a year shorter, eternity a year nearer at hand. This is a solemn, but it need not be a sad thought, except where time is the soul's only possession. If you, my reader, have any cause to fear that such is your condition, the thought of the shortness of time may well fill you with anxiety: and surely it ought to urge you to seek with all diligence after that salvation and those eternal hopes so freely offered to you in the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Let not the years call to you in vain—or rather let not the voice of the Savior, who is ever calling to you to come to him, be disregarded by you. Those who are his people have a better hope than any that time can offer or this world bestow. Not only things present, but things to come are theirs; and whatever may be the blessings with which they are surrounded, or the trials with which they are visited during the present life, they can look forward, through the grace of God, to an inheritance so infinitely blessed and glorious, that nothing on earth is worthy to be compared with it. Their great desire is that their souls may be prepared for it, and that they may be enabled to walk worthy of God, who has called them to his kingdom and glory, during what remains of their time in this world, whether long or short."

"NEVER be discouraged because good things get on so slowly here; and never fail to do daily that which lies next to your hand. Do not be in a hurry, but be diligent. Enter into the sublime patience of the Lord."

From the Field.

By request of the brethren and sisters of the Sugar Creek church, Ohio, I commenced a series of meetings at Ragersville, on the evening of Dec. 13, and continued until Dec. 23. The weather was quite favorable and the attendance good. The house was often filled to its utmost capacity, and the attention was as good as I ever met with. Preaching was a pleasant work under such circumstances. I preached, in all, fourteen sermons for them. Although none were added to the church, yet we are convinced that some were almost persuaded to join in with the people of God, but, like one of old, they postponed the matter, thinking a more convenient season would be granted them. I can not help but mention one more pleasant feature of said meeting. They have excellent singing, and take great interest in that part of the worship. I only wish the Brethren every-where would cultivate this important part of the work, —the song service. May God bless the dear brethren for their zeal, and ever keep them faithful, so that, at last, they may receive a crown of glory.

I also commenced a meeting with the Brethren of the Chippewa church, Wayne Co., Ohio. The Brethren there have built a new church house during the past summer. Said house is located about four miles north-west of Orville, at the south-eastern end of their district, —a point where the Brethren have thought good could be done by continued efforts. The writer was requested to deliver the dedication sermon Dec. 28, and continued the meetings for two weeks afterwards. The meetings throughout were well attended and the best of attention was given to the Word preached. I preached in all twenty-three sermons, including one funeral discourse. As an immediate result of the meetings eleven precious souls were added to the church by baptism. There is one more applicant, whose baptism has been postponed to a future date. I wish to express my thanks to the dear brethren for their kindness, shown me while among them. Everything was done to make me comfortable. May the Good Lord bless them all, and may they live faithful, so that, if we never meet again on earth, we may meet in heaven, where all is peace and joy! Reuben Shroyer.

Bro. Quinter Calvert came to us on the evening of Dec. 15, and preached two weeks to large and interesting as well as interested congregations. Many good impressions were made. His sermons on the resurrection and baptism were logical and convincing. On baptism he made a new departure from the usual way of treating this subject. He confined himself to the Scriptures. He said we could find the truth therein, and need not appeal to grammar, history, or anything else. In a brief manner he discussed the perpetuity, essentiality, design, subject and mode of baptism. He cautioned his audience not to seek further, after they had found the truth, for all who did so were likely to find error.

After disposing of the subject in this way, he said that it was a great satisfaction to say that the Truth, as in the Holy Scriptures, on this subject is acquiesced in by history, grammar, reformers, and the united voice of all Christendom, through the centuries of the Christian era.

As the result of the meeting three were baptized. One was an aged and blind man. We feel to make a note of it for the encouragement of our ministers, and as a warning to the unconverted. Three years before he heard Bro. Calvert speak from the text, "Thy Will be done," and he felt he ought to help to have that will carried out. He delayed, however, until Bro. Calvert came again, when the former lesson came forcibly to his mind and, though blind for eight years, and too feeble to attend meeting, he sent for our brother and desired to attend to the one thing needful. Bro. Calvert thought that the sermon alluded to was the weakest effort of his life.

Too feeble to walk alone, several of his neighbors led him into the church at the conclusion of a meeting, Dec. 17, and, amidst tears and much manifest sympathy on the part of the audience he declared his agreement with the church and the principles of the Gospel.

The ice being removed, he was led by two of the brethren to the place where Eld. Jacob Garber baptized him in the names of the Holy Trinity. It was an impressive scene, not soon to be forgotten. The aged veteran of the Cross, who had spent a life-time in the service of his Master, and baptized a dozen invalids with no inconvenience nor regrets on their part, excepting this that they had not given all their life to God's service; the other feeble and tottering, blind and helpless, at the eleventh hour coming home to Christ.

A week later he enjoyed a Communion service at his house. Patient and resigned Matthias Shank sank to rest, and was buried five weeks after he had found peace in the Savior. The solemn occasion was improved by brethren Jacob Garber and Samuel Horning, from Rev. 14: 13, 14. His age was sixty-five years, one month and sixteen days. He left three children.

In Memoriam.

Our dear and much beloved brother, Daniel Fry, of Falls City, Nebr., peacefully and quietly passed away Dec. 12, 1890, aged fifty-seven years, four months and twenty days.

His seat in the sanctuary, which was seldom vacant while he was yet with us, is now unoccupied. He was born in Lancaster County, Pa., July 22, 1833, and baptized in 1857 by Eld Daniel Fry. He was married to sister Mary Hahn, by Eld. Enoch Eby, June 2, 1849. Eight children were born to them. The oldest,—Hiram Fry,—departed this life Oct. 25, 1866. An affectionate wife and seven loving children, a mother, brothers and sisters are left to mourn their loss, with many other sympathizing friends. But we mourn not as those who have no hope. Bro. Fry served the church in the ministry for twenty-six years,—ever willing to do all he could. He was an every-day preacher. His loudest preaching was his daily life. Two of his children were not at home during his late sickness which was caused by a cut in the foot last spring, and finally caused blood poisoning which resulted in his death. The oldest daughter, sister Rhoda Smith, with her husband and little daughter, live in Western Kansas, and could not, at once, be reached by telegram, so that she did not reach home until one day after the funeral. Emory, the oldest son, who was attending school at McPherson, Kans., was sent for and came home the day before his death. Two of the children are members of the Brethren church, and we hope they will all follow their good father's example and meet him in a better place, where parting is no more.

May the dear bereaved family take comfort in God's word, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Great is your loss, but still greater is the husband and father's gain. Nancy Myers.

Notes from the Second District of West Virginia.

Dec. 20, our dear brother, D. J. Miller, from the Buckhannon congregation, W. Va., came to our place, near Thornton, and preached for us the same evening. On Sunday, the 21st, he preached the funeral of one of our neighbor's little daughters,—Lucy May Ball, aged about seven years. Many good thoughts were advanced from the words: "Thy sun shall no more go down." Isaiah 60: 20. The meetings were closed by the writer.

Dec. 22, Bro. Miller went to Nuzums,— about fifteen miles distant to hold a series of meetings. He began the same evening and staid until Jan. 4. Wife, sister Arble and I, started to attend the meetings Dec. 24. The writer having some matters to see after in Grafton, was detained until next morning. My stay over night was a pleasant one. I stayed with brother and sister Judkins, who live two miles from town and are isolated from the church. Bro. Miller preached twenty sermons at this place to attentive listeners, and we think the church was much revived. Sinners were made to think and weep. One dear soul was added to the church and more were "almost persuaded," to give Christ their heart. Oh! what a pity, they were not only "almost" but altogether persuaded!

Jan. 5, Bro. Miller and I returned home to hold several meetings. Bro. Miller preached eight sermons and then closed. He handled the "Word" in its primitive purity, and in such a way that no one could dislike him or his manner of preaching. The cause was built up, we think; and the future will only tell what amount of good was done. One soul made application for membership and will be baptized next Sunday, if the Lord will; our meetings closed too soon, but our brother had been away from home for some time, and seemed anxious to return.

I often wonder why we are so reluctant about leaving this tenement of clay and going to our heavenly home. Let us be ready, for the call may come when we least expect it. "Be ye ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." "What I say unto one, I say unto all, Watch."

The Old Folks' Home.

This is a move in the right direction, for Jesus says, "The poor ye have always with you, and ye may do them good whenever you will." Those who are financially poor are not the only ones who are poor. There are those who are physically poor and weak, and their circumstances may be such that they need to be cared for. Then there are those who are partially demented and yet are able to perform an average amount of manual labor, but realize little benefit therefrom, because of mental incapabilities. Such might be of advantage, both to themselves and to the above-named institution. There are two brethren in the Burr Oak church,—a father and son,—who are in good health, yet not able to care for themselves. They have a good farm of one hundred and sixty acres, and for a year or more have been patiently waiting for the establishment of our Old Folks' Home in Kansas, intending to donate the farm, or the proceeds therefrom, to the Home. The land is worth two thousand dollars, but has an encumbrance to the amount of four hundred dollars resting upon it. Now, if the Board of Arrangement for the Home could exchange this land for land at Booth, that could be used in the Home, it would be in accordance with the wish of the owner of the land. Then these brethren wish to go there, and enjoy the benefits of the Home while they live, and leave the farm to be a perpetual benefit to others.

A heavy cloud has been hanging over this church for a long time, but, thanks be to God, the cloud has disappeared and the sun is shining once more. We held our quarterly council Jan. 10. All business was adjusted in the fear of God. The members decided to hold a prayer-meeting on Thursday evening of each week.

At present we are in need of ministerial help, as there is but one minister here, who is young in the work. Eld. Samuel Weimer, formerly of Michigan, was with us recently. He commenced meetings Dec. 27, and continued until Jan. 2. He preached seven discourses to crowded houses. Good attention and order prevailed. While there were no additions to the church, yet we hope that good results will follow. Bro. Weimer has bought a place here, and will locate at this place, in Februrary.

I receive many letters from brethren, asking about this country and will say to all those who contemplate locating in a mild climate, that here they can raise all kinds of fruit, as well as corn, wheat oats, etc.

Land is cheap here. Well-improved farms are worth from $4.00 to $5.00 per acre. There is a farm here of 130 acres, 93 acres in cultivation, set with 300 fruit trees, which, including a log house and barn and good fences, can be bought for $1,600.

Further information will be furnished by addressing me as below. Melvan Dawson.

Bridgewater College Notes.

The school is progressing finely. "Onward and upward" is the motto. Bro. S. N. McCann, after spending four years in the mission field, seems to be in his proper element in the class-room.

Two of the Committee, appointed by last Annual Meeting, gave us an official visit in the early part of the session. A visit from them will be welcome at any time.

We have just closed a series of meetings in the College Chapel, conducted by Bro. H. C. Early. While the meeting was in progress, sister Hester Early suddenly departed this life, at her home in our town. She was Bro. H. C. Early's aunt. Several meetings were conducted by the local ministry during Bro. Early's absence. The efforts of the meetings were mainly doctrinal, and were adapted to our needs. As an immediate result two precious souls have made the wise choice. Others are near the kingdom. May Zion prosper, Christ's name be glorified and peace reign universal!

Bro. G. W. Cripe, who came to us Jan. 1, closed his labors here to-day. The dear brother worked hard and faithfully while here, declaring God's Word with power and earnestness. While there were no accessions to the church, we feel that an impression for good was made. We are all truly glad that Bro. Cripe did visit us, and our prayers in his behalf will follow him in the new field in which he goes to labor. May God abundantly bless and prosper his work.

On Friday, Jan. 16, the church met in special council, to secure more ministerial help. Elders Cripe and Zuck had charge of the election. We were admonished by both brethren in regard to our duties as a church in this matter. The choice fell upon two young brethren,—in fact the choice was so evenly divided that the elders did not feel like deciding the matter, and it was left to the church to say whether we should install both brethren or one only. I am glad that both were accepted and, as a church, we were made to rejoice this morning, when Bro. David W. Miller and Bro. Jacob Kurtz Miller were set apart for this special work. Bro. David is one of our substantial farmers, and Bro. Jacob a trusted employee of a large mercantile firm in this city. Both brethren are loved by all,—both for their personal sterling worth, and for their devotion to God's church and work. May the Lord, whom they serve abundantly, bless and strengthen them, and fit them for this great work! May they realize the obligations laid upon them by the church, and may God help us, as a church, to know the responsibility we have placed upon them, and help us, at all times, to bear them up! The prayers of God's people every-where are asked in behalf of us all.

Our series of meetings closed Dec. 16. On Sunday, Dec. 14, six precious young souls were baptized into the fold, making fifteen in all during the meeting. Many of them were young in years and have been faithful in attending church and Sunday-school. We have every reason to believe that they will be faithful in the Master's vineyard.

Throughout the meeting was one of deep interest, and good attendance. The membership is much revived and built up in the most holy faith, and many are near the kingdom.

Bro. and sister Hipes are faithful workers and have gained many warm friends in this community. May we so care for the tender lambs of the fold, that they may grow and become strong in the work, and finally receive an inheritance with the sanctified, is my prayer!

Unexpected Event.

Jan. 15 is a most beautiful day, and as I sit at my window and notice the birds actively moving from place to place, singing their morning songs, and muse upon the scene, the expression of David was brought to my mind, where he said, "Oh that I had wings like a dove." He thought then he would fly away. I feel like flying away from these splints, fastened so tightly upon my arm, placed there to heal a fracture, caused by falling from a load of hay. I feel like throwing them off, but the doctor says, "No; I put them there to stay until an appointed time." As it has been my motto in life to "make the best" of what may be called ill fate, I'll make the best of this.

I realize I can not haul hay or cut wood to-day, hence the enquiry, What can I do? Sit here, and fret, and lament? No, that I will not do. What next? I can pen a few lines for the Messenger, —thoughts drawn from the following words: "We know not what a day may bring forth." There are times when these words may be uttered with some indifference, but they appear to me just now as deeply significant. I thought as little on the 13th that I would record in my diary: "Fell from a load of hay, and fractured arm," as I did of taking dove's wings and flying away, and it proved, as accidents do,—very unexpected.

As I think on what has, and what might have, happened, — falling with a fork in hand, I feel to say, "Thank the Lord that it was no worse, and that, while I am in this dependent condition, and wife afflicted, I have a ministering angel sent to me about twenty years ago, who has been untiring in making the rough ways of my life smooth."

When we think of the thousands, hurled into eternity by accident, could we hear them speak, they, perhaps, would all say, "My death was very unexpected to me. Far was I from expecting that on the morrow I would be brought down to death." But what have I learned in this event? I answer, "Much." Again have I been most deeply impressed with the words of Jesus, "Be ye also ready."

This is one of the all-important things, and to this end we should all more earnestly labor, that, whether called hence suddenly, by accident, or by the slow process of disease, we can say, "I have glorified thy name here upon the earth. I have finished the work thou gavest me to do."

Another thought. While reading in the MESSENGER of the many pleasant and profitable meetings enjoyed by God's children during the last few months, it occurs to me, had I, in obedience to the many urgent calls to labor in the vineyard, torn loose from the hay-stacks and barn-yards, and labored more especially in the calling of my Master, my arm would not this morning be so tightly pinioned between the two pieces of boards as it is.

QUERY.—How far distant is the time when the church will enter into a more full realization of the necessity of protection and encouragement to her ministers? To the words, "God speed the time when this shall be," my heart responds a hearty "Amen." D. F. STOUFFER.

In Memoriam.

THE town of Woodbury, Bedford County, Pa., mourns the loss of two of her citizens. Sister Susan Bulger died Jan. 7, 1891, of heart trouble. Her death was so sudden that but few of the family were present when she took her departure. Her husband, Abram Bulger, was very sick at the same time, of pneumonia and heart trouble, and died about seventeen hours afterwards. Thus double sorrow was caused to the family. Abram Bulger's age was sixty two years, eleven months and twenty-seven days. Susan Bulger was a daughter of Daniel Zook,[X] and died at the age of sixty-three years, ten months and nine days. Five sons are left to mourn the loss of father and mother, and the community at large deeply sympathizes in their bereavement.

Both of the departed ones were buried at the same time,—an occurrence never before seen in this locality. The funeral took place at the Replogle meeting-house, and it was the largest one ever held in Morrison's Cove. The services were conducted by Bro. Brice Sell, assisted by Rev. J. W. Wagoner, of the Church of God, from 1 Cor. 15: 25, 26. D. S. REPLOGLE.

From Timberville, Cal.

THE Brethren of the Conejo church have a live and interesting Sunday-school with Bro. Wm. Strohm as Superintendent, and a full corps of officers and teachers. Both old and young take part in the exercises. We have a good country here. People, seeking homes in Southern California would do well to look at this part before settling elsewhere. Land is not as high here yet as in other parts, which gives people in limited circumstances, who desire to live in the Sunny South, a chance to get a home. Ministers, who are willing to work for the Master, would find plenty of chances on this coast, and their labors would certainly be much needed.

The thought ofttimes arises, "Why do we, as a church, not have more missionaries in the field? Is it for the lack of money, or is it because we have no brethren in our Fraternity who are strong enough to go out and fight the battles of life, to fulfill the command, "Go ye and preach the Gospel to every creature?" There are many excuses offered, but we should think well on these things. Will excuses justify us in neglecting our duties here, when we are called to give an account of our life's work? Many are the calls for the Bread of Life. Will we pass them by, time after time, unheeded? We are not doing all we can in the work of spreading the Gospel, and if we neglect this great command, can we expect to gain the approval of our Blessed Master?

"Oh ye saints, arouse, be earnest!
Up and work while yet 'tis day!
Ere the night of death o'ertakes thee,
Strive for souls while still you may."

Now is the time to begin this work! Let us not put it off until next year. Delay may cause us to regret that we were not more earnest, while we had the opportunity, when, alas, it is too late! Let us, as a church, see how many missionaries we may have stationed till the end of the year 1891.

May our Heavenly Father help us all to be earnest and faithful until death!

The Sufferers of the West.

AT our council-meeting, held Jan. 17, the church donated $45.58 for the sufferers of North-western Kansas. I see that people are responding to the calls in some localities, and I do hope that the different churches of Northern Indiana will at once call special meetings and help the needy. In Northern Indiana the Lord has blessed us, so we can lend a helping hand. "If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates in thy land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thy heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother." Deut. 15: 7. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord." Prov. 19: 17. J. H. MILLER.

From the Claar Church, Pa.

BRO. JOHN B. FLUCK commenced a series of meetings with us Dec. 26, and continued until Jan. 8. The interest and attendance were good, and we believe good impressions were made on all present. As an immediate result one dear brother came out on the Lord's side and was baptized. May the Lord ever help him to walk in newness of life! Bro. Fluck's sermons were practical and to the point, and we feel that a debt of gratitude is due to our dear brother for his earnest labors while with us. The way has been made more clear, dark clouds are passing by, and sunshine is beginning to brighten the church again. May we all let our light so shine that the world may see our good works, and glorify our Father in heaven, is my prayer!

A Visit to Eastern Pennsylvania.

I LEFT my home Dec. 18, 1890, to visit the Upper Codorus congregation, York County, Pa., and to labor with them for a few weeks in the vineyard of the Lord. When I arrived at the Alleghany Mountain, I found that the road was blockaded with snow, and we were detained for about twenty hours. I arrived at Black Rock about noon, Dec. 20, and found the brethren and sisters earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints. I preached twenty sermons for them, which they divided among six different places. They can not see the way clear to continue the meetings at one place for a week or two. It seems they have fears that by so doing some might be induced to unite with the church without fully counting the cost.

At this meeting, I had the satisfaction of meeting Bro. Adam J. Shope, from the neighborhood of Harrisburgh. He was also there on a visit, and we were together at several appointments, which enabled us to form an acquaintance, which will not soon be forgotten. The meetings, with a few exceptions, were well attended, and good attention was given to the preaching. We had sufficient evidence to convince us that some were deeply impressed with the necessity of coming out on the Lord's side, and we hope that the good impressions made will not be lost. On my way home, I stopped off at Hagerstown, Md.,—the place selected for holding next Annual Meeting,—and preached for them Sunday morning and evening. I also had the satisfaction of taking a view of of the place where the Annual Meeting will be held. In my judgment, the location is a very good one. It is on a slight elevation and commands a grand view of the surrounding country. I arrived home Jan. 5. Many thanks to the brethren and sisters for their kindness.

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God, the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, as a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and arms, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

JEREMY TAYLOR has truthfully said: "The preacher's life is his best sermon."

THE addresses of the following brethren are changed as here given: J. L. Snavely from Greenwood, Nebr., to Ashland, same State; Jasper N. Perry, from Quinter, Kans., to Seward, same State.

BRO. JOHN S. SNOWBERGER and wife, of Holyoke, Colo., who are now on their way to the East, stopped a few days with us, recently. Bro. John preached for us on Sunday, Jan. 25, both morning and evening. May the Lord's blessing accompany our dear brother and sister on their journey Eastward, as well as in their future labors!

THE meetings, conducted by Bro. J. C. Murray at the Silver Creek meeting-house, are fairly attended, and excellent interest is given to the Word preached. Our dear brother is laboring earnestly, and may we not hope that, by the blessing of God, and the united prayers of all, many may be brought to the knowledge of the Truth?

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

The Prayer Covering.—Women Preaching.—Parties.—Holding Office.—Shall the Saints be Judged at the General Judgment?—Elders' Rule. Judging Angels.

1. Was there a time in the history of our church when the sisters did not wear the prayer covering? Were any of our sisters ever allowed to preach? Please answer through the MESSENGER.

ADA S. DELP.

ANS. 1. We have no grounds for supposing that our sisters have not worn the prayer covering, ever since the church was founded in America as well as in Europe. The cap now so generally worn by our sisters was worn by the women in all the churches. We have in our possession portraits of Bro. Peter Keyser and his wife, sister Hannah Keyser. Sister Hannah Keyser has her head covered with the usual prayer covering. Bro. Peter Keyser succeeded Alexander Mack as elder of the church at Germantown, Pa. The following extract from the diary of Alexander Mack now in the possession of Bro. A. H. Cassel, of Harleysville, Pa., an exact copy of which we have before us, gives the date of Bro. and sister Keyser's baptism. "In dem Monate Octob'r 1769 sind 8 Personen getauft worden, namlich Peter Keyser and sein Weib, Hannah Keyser, Heinrich Sharpneck und sein Weib, Sarah Sharpneck, Johannes Schlingluff, Conrad Stamm, Elizabeth Kolb, und die Schwester Fendin." In English we would read that in the month of October 1769 eight persons were baptized, namely Peter Keyser and his wife, Hannah Keyser, etc., etc. The evidence here given shows that our sisters wore the prayer covering in Alexander Mack's time.

2. Sister Sarah Major preached for many years among the Brethren, and her labors were much appreciated, and were blessed of the Lord to the edification of the church and the conversion of sinners. The church does not install sisters in the ministerial office but where they manifest the ability to prophesy, using the latter word with its modified meaning, to speak to the edification and comfort of the church, they are not prohibited from using the gift that is in them. We have sometimes felt that our sisters might do more work in this direction than they are now doing.

2. Is it consistent with the rules of the Brethren church for an elder to prepare a supper for a Grand Army lodge or a masquerade party? Please answer through the MESSENGER.

B.

ANS.—The query can only have one answer, and that is an emphatic no. We feel that it is really unnecessary to give much space to a query of this kind. The Gospel is strongly against all such practices, and the church has always ruled against them. We are hardly ready to believe that an elder of the church should so far forget his holy calling as to engage in the worldly practices named in the query.

3. Will you please instruct us through the MESSENGER how we can escape serving as officers at political elections, where we must be with those that are cursing and swearing, and the intoxicated, from sunrise till midnight. The law says: "If one that can read and write, refuses to serve without a lawful excuse, he shall pay a fine of five hundred dollars, or serve his time in jail at one dollar per day. Please give advice and oblige the Conejo church, Cal.

ANS.—In many of our States the law provides that those who make serving on juries, or filling a public office a matter of conscience, may be excused. And we are of the opinion, that if our brethren of the Conejo church, California, are conscientious in this matter, and so state it to the judge, that they may be relieved from such service. Of course those who have no conscientious scruples on the subject could not consistently enter such a plea. But the position, always taken by the church, has been against the members holding political offices. Indeed it has been made a test of church privilege. Those who held offices in which they were compelled to violate any of the principles of the Gospel, either in taking or in administering a legal oath, or in other ways, were asked to give up such office, and if they refused, then they were denied the privilege of the Communion, and if they continued in disobedience, they were disfellowshiped. These facts brought to the notice of the judge having jurisdiction over a case of refusal, to serve as a judge of election, would doubtless be accepted as a lawful excuse. If not, and the brethren feel that they can not conscientiously serve, then rather suffer for Christ's sake than to violate a principle of our holy religion. In this we would only emulate the example of the apostles, and, in these days, of our Brethren in Sweden, where two are now in prison because they refuse to go into the army.

4. Do the Scriptures teach that the saints are to be judged in the Day of Judgment, after they have had a part in the first resurrection, and having reigned on the earth one thousand years with Christ? Let us have the true rendering.

LANDON WEST.

ANS.—Those who are found worthy to have a part in the first resurrection, with all those who are alive at Christ's second coming, and who are to be changed and caught up to dwell with Christ, will not stand before the judgment seat of Christ in the same relation to it as will those who come forth at the final resurrection. To suppose that those who have reigned with Christ a thousand years shall then be judged, is not in accordance with the teaching of the New Testament.

Paul says, Romans 14: 10, "For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ;" and again, in 2 Cor. 5: 10, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that everyone may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." These Scriptures would seem to indicate that all must appear at the judgment seat; but when we examine the Scriptures carefully we find that they teach that the judgment may be made in this world, "For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." 1 Cor. 11: 31. This Scripture would seem to show that we judge ourselves. This we may do by taking God's Word and judging our lives and our actions by it. The Master once said, "I judge no man, but the words which I have spoken, they shall judge you in the last day."

But an examination of the following Scriptures will, we think, show that the saints, while they will appear at the judgment seat of Christ, will not stand there as do those who have not had a part in the first resurrection. "And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Matt. 19: 28. "Do you not know that the saints shall judge the world?" 1 Cor. 6: 2. "Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more things pertaining to this life." 1 Cor. 6: 3. The Scriptures show plainly the position that the saints shall occupy, at the great judgment throne of Christ. It seems to us that the conclusion is a plain one, that those who have part in the first resurrection will not be judged at the final day of accounts. "And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of those that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark in their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev. 20: 4–6. Shall these be judged? We think not.

5. The River Brethren having an equal right in a church-house with the Brethren, would it be right for the elder of the Brethren church to extend the liberty and cause a third denomination to hold meetings in said house every four weeks in direct opposition to the wishes of the River Brethren, and also the Brethren? If not right what should be required of an elder pursuing such a course? A BROTHER.

ANS.—If an elder should pursue a course, such as is marked out in the above query, it would show a very great lack of judgment. Certainly he could not expect that such a course would result in good. All parties interested in the ownership of the house should be consulted, and no attempt to force them to admit others into their house of worship should be made. The elder who would do so would be violating a principle of right,—so far as the River Brethren would be concerned, and would be clearly lording it over God's heritage in relation to his own church, and should be called to account and set right by the adjoining elders.

Dear Editor:—

6. Please give through the MESSENGER the meaning of the word charity, according to the Scriptures. What are we to practice among ourselves as directed in 1 Peter 4: 8? JOHN JONES.

The word translated charity in 1 Cor. 13, and in the Scripture above referred to, means love. When the Authorized or King James' Translation was made, the word charity meant love, but its meaning has been considerably changed, and we now think of giving to the poor when the word is used. The Revised Version uses the word love instead of charity, and we have the following translation of 1 Pet. 4: 8: "Above all things being fervent in your love among yourselves; for love covereth a multitude of sins." As brethren of one common faith, we are to love each other fervently. A careful reading of the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians, with a desire on our part to have the kind of love there set forth will be helpful to us. There is not a grander theme in the New Testament than that of love. Oh that we all had more of it in our hearts.

7. How shall we judge angels, and who are the angels we shall judge? See 1 Cor. 6: 3. Please explain through the MESSENGER. A. NELSON GRAYBILL.

ANS.—The Scripture upon which an explanation is desired, reads as follows: "Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life."

We read of fallen angels, and it is doubtless those to whom reference is made. Holy angels certainly will not be judged. They are innocent, and are God's messengers. As to how we shall judge angels is not so clear, or, rather, Paul does not explain how. He calls our attention to a fact, and draws an argument from it in favor of Christians settling their difficulties among themselves. Some commentators hold that "Christians will be qualified to see the justice of even the sentence which is pronounced on fallen angels. They will be able so to embrace and comprehend the nature of the law, and the interests of justice, as to see the propriety of their condemnation." It seems to us that, as the "saints shall judge the world," the fallen angels will be included in that judgment, and that those who have part in the first resurrection will also take part in the judgment.

OUT WEST.

Comfortable Railroading.—Suffering in the West. Tract Boxes.

WHAT marvelous improvements the close of the nineteenth century is developing in railroad travel! Ten years ago we traveled via the Union Pacific to Salt Lake City, Utah. Then the railroad eating-house, with twenty minutes for dinner, at $1.00 a meal was the order of the day, and what a rush there was for a place at the table, and then, what bolting down of half-masticated food. No wonder so many people were afflicted with dyspepsia. We remember, too, the stories told of how the conductor was supposed to be in league with the man who furnished the meals, and how, by the time you were comfortably seated and had only fairly begun appeasing your hunger, the sounding of the bell and the cry of "All aboard," startled the hungry traveler from the tables, leaving a part of the meals to be served to the hungry crowd that was sure to come that way on the next train. Now this is all changed. From Chicago to San Francisco, via Union Pacific, you may travel and have your meals served regularly on the magnificent Pullman dining cars. A bill of fare is presented equal to any first-class hotel. You can take an hour to eat your dinner, if you like, and pay seventy-five cents for the meal. There is no rush, no hurry, and while you eat you are gliding along toward the setting sun at the rate of forty miles an hour. Combine this with the comfortable chair-cars and the Pullman sleepers, and it seems that we have reached the climax of comfort in railroading.

"But won't riding in an air-ship be better," says some one whose organ of hope is largely developed. Well, we don't know. The Mt. Carmel air ship man has not yet succeeded in bringing about promised results, and, after all, this attempt to navigate the air may only add another to the thousand and one failures on record, beginning with Mr. Green's flying machine and ending with the recent failure of the two sanguine young Frenchmen, who constructed an air ship with which they expected to reach the North Pole. Those who are engaged in searching the Scripture to find passages to fit air-ships, will doubtless become better acquainted with the Bible in that way, but we are of the opinion that it will be sometime before they can apply the Scripture to a successful flying machine. We propose to stand by the railways.

Our first objective point on this trip was Beatrice, Nebr., the home of Bro. J. E. Young. Bro. John had made a trip to the Western Counties, where people are in a suffering condition, and from him we learned much of the true condition of affairs. In one County the clerk reports three hundred families that need help, and in the entire drought-stricken district, more than fifteen hundred families must be helped, or they will suffer. We arranged with Bro. Young to go to Hitchcock, Dundy and Chase Counties, and look after the needy there. While at Beatrice a card from Bro. John Brooke, of Warrensburgh, Mo., was received, stating that they had a car load of provision ready to ship, and asking where to send it. Bro. Young gave instruction to have it sent to the County-seat of Dundy County. Bro. G. E. Whisler, of Ashland, Nebr., who has been appointed by the State District Meeting of Nebraska as general solicitor for the sufferers, will assist Bro. Young in the good work. The plan of distribution is to see that the money and provisions go into the hands of those who have need, and each recipient of money will give a receipt. In this way, when the report is made of this charitable work, the donors will know of a certainty that the money they gave has gone to alleviate human suffering. The business men and the daily press speak approvingly of this plan of distribution. The editor of the Beatrice Daily Express commended the charitable work of the church very strongly in an editorial notice. He remarked to us that the money the church was contributing for the sufferers, would do more good than twenty thousand dollars worth of old clothing, upon which a high estimate was placed to swell the amount of donations. "Your method of work," said he, "is what I call practical charity. You put your hands into your pockets, take out your dollars, and see that they go into the hands of the needy."

Passing through Lincoln, Nebr., on our way to Cheyenne County, where we were informed some help was needed, we stopped over night with Bro. L. H. Eby, who is engaged in the Mission and Tract Work at this place. Here the Brethren are making an effort to build a house of worship, and they need it very much. At present Bro. Eby is holding meetings in his own hired house. We enjoyed a season of worship with the Brethren in Bro. Eby's house. A few planks were carried in and laid upon chairs, and thus seats were provided for the little band of worshipers. Here we experienced, as we have often done before this, that God blesses the few as well as the multitude. We enjoyed the meeting very much, and felt it was good to be there.

In several of the depots at Lincoln are to be found neat wooden boxes hanging against the wall, filled with reading matter. On the boxes we read this inscription: "BRETHREN'S TRACTS,—FREE." We rejoice in this good work, and are glad to know that the Tract Committee is moving in this direction. Let the good work go on until boxes of this kind, well filled with tracts, setting forth the true doctrines of the Gospel, may be found all over our land. Travelers, waiting for a train, will often take a tract and read it, when at other times they would lay it aside. The railway depot is an excellent place for these little boxes. An invitation to take a tract might be added to the inscription on the boxes with advantage.

From Lincoln our course is westward to the Colorado line, thence south into Western Kansas, where it is said there are many needy ones. We close this letter after a twenty-six mile ride across the country, visiting those who have not raised a crop for three years. The work looms up. There is much to be done, for these people surely need help.

AN UNBALANCED WHEEL.

BY LANDON WEST.

IN reading the many letters and thoughts presented in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 49, I was much impressed with the brief notice of the first love-feast meeting held near Linnell, Becker Co., Minn., as given by sister Barbara Moore, one of the few isolated members in that part of the great vineyard. She says: "We have not heard the Brethren preach since about a year ago."

What a statement! Only one meeting and sermon in a year, and, yet it is expected that the lambs and the flock are to grow with such a feeding as this! That, too, when there is not a man or a beast on the earth, in any place, age, or condition, that can live one-fourth of that time with but one feeding.

While I am fully aware that this is not the only case of the kind, and that such a state is not always the fault of those so placed, or of those who may once in a year visit and feed the scattered and starving sheep of the Lord's flock, I am also aware that there are scores of churches in the Brotherhood, where there are too many speakers for the good, either of the church or the speakers, or for the glory of God's name. Not infrequently the great abundance of ministers behind the table serves to hide much useful talent. Much harm may result, and there is a tendency to divide and weaken the flock already gathered.

In our present situation we have sheep scattered far and wide, with but few shepherds, if any, to feed them, and then only one meal in a year. A growth in grace and knowledge may be made even under such circumstances, nevertheless, is this not to come up through great tribulations, as we read in Rev. 7: 17? While they are starving, others are fed with too much food for either health or growth, day after day upon the same dish, until the food that was once sweet to them is now stale and sour. Is not such a condition likely to produce lukewarmness in both members and churches, and to be neither cold nor hot? Rev. 3: 15, 18?

My experience shows that the places where the most speakers are seen, or where the most preaching is done are not always the strongest in the faith. Lukewarmness evidently has its cause, like all other effects, and I see nothing so well calculated to produce lukewarmness in the members of a church as over-feeding, or too much food of the same kind. The Bible is a volume of variety from beginning to end, and faithfully to preach the Word to all people, would afford an endless variety to all hearers, and of good things, both new and old.

While viewing the situation, as now presented to us, both East and West, I can think of nothing to illustrate the condition of the spiritual house or family, better than by the heading, chosen for this article, viz., a wheel, with its rim and tire, spread wide and far enough that much service may be done, and great fruit be grown on the ground covered, but as the wheel is very weak, there is but little service done for the Master, all because the spokes on the one side of the wheel are too near together, while on the other they are few and far between.

The older and smaller districts, or congregations, often have an over-supply of speakers with many fine plants choked out, while the new and largest fields have but few speakers, and, in some places, none, and meetings, perhaps, but once a year. Hence our circle, or wheel, although full and complete, so far as plan and principles are concerned, is far from being perfect and effectual in bearing much weight or fruit, and must ever remain so, until it is completely balanced, and has a spokesman at every point in the circle, so that, when there, he may feed the flock,—both lambs and sheep,—not merely once in a year, but WEEKLY, and that, too, with the sincere milk of the Word, and things both new and old.

If possible, the minister should visit his members and feed them daily with the word of God's Grace. Nourishment should be given not only to the sheep, but to the young, even to the babes in Christ, that all "may grow in grace, and in the knowledge." 2 Pet. 3: 18. See also Acts 20: 28, 31. Then may the body or wheel "be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." James 1: 4.

THE CHILDREN'S MISSION.

BY MARY M. GIBSON.

Dear Children:—

IT is now past Christmas, and the time has come for me to send in my report. I have succeeded in raising more than $100 during the past year. I truly feel to thank all, as well as the All-wise Creator for the blessing he has bestowed upon me, for he has put it into the hearts of his dear children, in many ways, to be mindful of him, in working for him in his blessed cause. Dear children, let us do all we can for him, for we only have a short time to manifest our love in his behalf, in working to improve our time and talents to his own glory. God has ever been mindful of us, from the earliest dawn of our existence in this world. He tells us that he is mindful of the little sparrow and the lily of the field. Yea, the very hairs of our head are all numbered. He counts the soul of man of more value than the wealth of the whole world.

It is very important, then, that we look to the ways of our going in this life, that we may pattern after the Holy Child Jesus, and follow in his footsteps. He has atoned for the sins of the whole world.

I am made to wonder why our work does not increase more abundantly, with the wealth and talent we have in our Fraternity. Is it as some have said: "Many among us do not know there is a children's mission established?" When, for the past four years and nine months, we have been at work, can it be that there are some that do not? I am only working diligently in that line, as God may direct, to his own glory and renown. What would it profit me if I should work otherwise? If faithful I expect my reward in the eternal world, where sorrows are not known, where the weary are at rest, and where everything good will be revealed to us, that we may fully understand the mysteries that are awaiting all the faithful laborers in his service, while here below.

I fear when called away, many of us will say, "Oh! how little we have done for our dear Lord, who gave his life for us!" Let us ask ourselves daily, "Are we ready and willing to do all we can, where and whenever the opportunity affords?

In order to accomplish this we are to put self and selfish ways aside and give God the praise and honor. Jesus came to do the will of his Father who sent him. Are we all ready to do the will of Jesus who has redeemed us from our sins? Oh! if only divine love were dwelling richly in our hearts, we would be better prepared to do that which he has given us to do.

Sometimes I am made to ask myself the question, "What am I?" God says, "What art thou, that I am mindful of thee?" Then I can see myself as I am,—a mere worm of the dust! "Dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return." And yet there is a soul within us that lives beyond the grave. When we sacrifice our will to his Divine Will, he will reward us openly in due time.

Many times trials, temptations and oppositions present themselves to me, but when I realize that it is the Lord's work in which I am engaged, I am ashamed to have been shaken, and so nearly overcome. May God grant that I hold this work very sacred! May he open up many more hearts to join me in the work, so that my next report, in June, will exceed that of any time, heretofore, in that month. With this report I will have sent in $408.00 during the time the good Lord has trusted the work to my care. The Lord has thus blessed me through my labors of love in his behalf, and will crown us in the eternal home with bright-shining stars, that will be radiant far beyond any description, if ever faithful to the end. God has blessed the amount to his own glory, for it is he who knoweth what good can come out of that which has been done in and through his name. God will be praised and hallowed be his name for his loving-kindness toward his wandering children. May we learn to do more for his blessed cause, in securing to many starving souls the Bread of Life. Dear children, we entreat you to still continue in your good work for the Lord, and never get weary in well doing.

"The only way to do any one duty rightly, is to do every duty rightly in its turn. The composition of one's life is like the composition of a picture. Every color, every form, every tone, gains or loses value according to the adjustment of every other form and color and tone. The same tint may repesent light or shade, according as other tints in the picture are lighter or darker, warmer or colder. The foreground throws the distance back, the distance brings the foreground forward. The artist can not do his full duty to any part of his picture without doing his full duty to the whole picture."

"If you want knowledge you must toil for it; if food, you must toil for it; and if pleasure you must toil for it. Toil is the law. Pleasure comes through toil, and not by self-indulgence and indolence. When one gets to love work, his life is a happy one."

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

Additions During 1890.—Noting each week the number of additions reported in the Messenger, I find the total to be 3,150 during last year.—Kate Johnson, Somerset, Pa., Jan. 19.

Commendable.—The Brethren and friends in the vicinity of South English, Iowa, collected twenty-seven barrels of second-hand clothing, which they sent to the sufferers of South Dakota. May others do likewise!—Jacob Etter, Jan. 1.

Glorious Work.—Who would not want to help a kingdom to come? Let us all not only pray for it, but work for it. Surely a king from Heaven would not overlook or forget one in this world who is working for his own kingdom! Good pay ahead!—Landon West.

Four Accessions.—Bro. Albert Hollinger commenced a series of meetings for the Cumberland church, Pa., Jan. 3, at the Latimore meeting-house. He continued until Jan. 11, with fair attendance and good order. Four dear souls were brought to a knowledge of the Truth.—George Winand, Jan. 16.

At Work for the Lord.—Bro. Lemuel Hillery is at present holding a series of meetings in the Solomon's Creek church, Ind. After the close of the meetings at that place, he will labor for the Pleasant Valley church, Ind. His address, until further notice, will be, Middleburg, Elkhart Co., Ind.

Twenty-two added to the Church.—Bro. A. J. Heistand commenced meetings in the Verdigris church, Kans., Dec. 23, and continued until Jan. 6, preaching sixteen sermons in all. Twelve dear souls were baptized, five were reclaimed, and we have five more applicants.—J. M. Quakenbush.

A Pleasant Council.—The Cedar Creek church, Anderson Co., Kansas, met in quarterly council Jan. 17. Considerable business came before the meeting, all of which was adjusted with the best of feeling. How good it is when brethren can meet in council and all is peace!—Lafayette Watkins.

Twenty-one Additions.—Bro. Peter Stuckman is holding a series of meetings in the southern part of the Cedar Lake church, Dekalb Co., Ind. We are enjoying a refreshing meeting. Up to the present time twenty-one souls have come out on the Lord's side. Four came forward last night, and others will come, it is hoped, before the close of the meetings. May God revive his work in the hearts of his children!—J. H. Elson, Jan. 21.

Mild Climate.—Cartersville, Va., would be an excellent place for some of our Brethren who are in delicate health, and who are living where the winters are so long and cold. We are few in number, and need laborers here to help us in the great work. I have been distributing tracts and the Gospel Messenger, trusting that good may result from them. I hope the Brethren will continue to send me tracts for that purpose.—Florida J. E. Etter, Jan. 18.

Four Souls Added.—The members of the Salem church, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Jan. 10. Bro. B. F. Honeyman, of the Oakland church, is preaching for us. We are having good attendance, and good attention is given to the Word preached. As an immediate result four precious souls were received into the church by baptism, and more are deeply impressed. Our brother will remain with us a few more days, after which he will go to other fields. Pray for us, that much good may be done in the Lord.—Jesse K. Brumbaugh, Jan. 19.

Minister Elected.—The members of the Iowa River church, Iowa, held their quarterly council Jan. 10. There was considerable business before the meeting, but everything passed off with the best of feeling. We received two members by letter, and expect several more members to move among us in the spring. Bro. F. M. Wheeler was elected to the ministry and installed on Sunday after the forenoon services. Tears were seen to flow from many eyes. May the Lord bless him in his high and holy calling! Elders Stephen Johnson and A. M. Dickey were with us and gave us fatherly counsel.—Fetter Hall.

A Special Request.—Sister Catherine Brumbaugh, a widowed sister, living in Arroyo Granda, San Luis Obispo Co., Cal., wishes that some of the ministering brethren, traveling through that part of the State, would call and preach in that town. Sister Brumbaugh is the only member living there, as far as known. They have preaching in that country, but not to suit the people, and many have become disgusted, and wish to hear the good, old-fashioned Gospel preached. If Bro. John Metzger, who is in Southren California, or any other minister, would find time to go up north and look up this place, he surely would find a welcome.—J. H. Miller.

The Western Sufferers.—A letter from the Nebraska Relief Commission, this morning, and several from County Clerks of the Western Counties of the State, show that the homesteaders are still much in need. In Dundy County alone over three hundred families are in want, and it is estimated that 40,000 pounds of provisions of various kinds are needed. The merchants there agree to furnish provisions at cost. We have received over $200 from various places in the Brotherhood for the poor. As soon as Bro. D. L. Miller comes with his large donation from Northern Illinois, we will visit the destitute. Northern Illinois made a good move. Who will follow? As Paul wrote to the church at Philippi: "I desire fruit that may abound to your account." This is the way they added to their account. Do not the churches every-where want more to their "account"? Let us trust the Lord!—J. E. Young, Beatrice, Nebr., Jan. 19.

Good Meetings. Dec. 27 Bro. John Kurtz came to the Bunker Hill church, Ohio, and preached eleven soul-stirring sermons. Though we had no immediate results in the way of accessions, yet we know that saints were encouraged and sinners warned to flee the wrath to come.—Sarah Middaugh, Jan. 21.

Good Meetings. — Since the last writing we had more good meetings. Three more were added to our little band at Mount Carroll, causing much rejoicing. We had good attention and full houses. Last evening, Jan. 25, we had the best wine kept for the last. Sister Beery led the song service, and Bro. T. T. Meyers did the preaching. May the Lord bless them.—J. J. Emmert, Jan. 26.

Twelve Baptized. We are in the midst of one of the most interesting series of meetings we ever enjoyed, at Roann, Ind. Bro. D. Wysong commenced a series of meetings on the evening of Jan. 10, and has been preaching to crowded houses of attentive listeners. Up to this writing twelve have been baptized and two more applied for membership at the meeting last night. Pray for us that our meetings may prove a blessing to God's cause!—B. Neff, Jan. 23.

A Pleasant Council. The brethren and sisters of the Monitor church, Kans., met in council Jan. 17. Our beloved elder, J. D. Trostle, was with us. All business was disposed of satisfactorily. Our pleasure was marred only by the report that one of our sisters desired to walk with us no more. Brethren Archy VanDyke and C. T. Heckman were also with us and gave us good admonition. They also preached for us next day. We have an evergreen Sunday-school with good interest and attendance.—S. E. Lantz, Jan. 21.

Harmonious Council-Meeting.—The Brethren at Lordsburgh, Cal., met in council on Saturday, Jan. 17. All the business was done in two hours. Two members were chosen to represent this church at the District Meeting. A committee of three was elected to prepare and report a plan of raising money to defray church expenses. Deacons were authorized to secure a suitable place in which to hold meetings. Ministers from other congregations were J. F. Neher, D. B. Heiny and A. F. Deeter. Love and harmony characterized the meeting.—M. M. Eshelman.

Sunday-School Report. — I hereby give a full and correct report of the Sunday-school at Oronoco, Amherst Co., Va., beginning with the second Sunday of May and ending with the second Sunday of October. The school was ably superintended by brethren S. D. Gilbert and W. Taylor. The average attendance was fifty-one. The school was divided into four classes, each one taught by a teacher worthy of the trust imposed upon him. Our neighborhood seems to rejoice and thank God for the blessings conferred upon all by the school.—C. D. Gilbert.

Five Baptized. — Dec. 28, 1890, the Brethren commenced a series of meetings at Strait Creek Valley church, one mile south of Sinking Springs, Highland Co., Ohio. Brethren Santford Settey and W. M. Calvert assisted us until Jan. 3, after which brethren Landon West and George Wilkins came to our assistance. We had many blessings showered upon us during these meetings. Good attendance and attention characterized the meeting. The church was much built up and the members strengthened. Five dear souls were buried in baptism, and we have four more applicants. May they be bright and shining lights, that others may be constrained to follow their good example! At our council, Jan. 8, all business was transacted in harmony and love. Bro. F. Settey was elected deacon.—Eliza J. Weaver.

To the Churches of the North-Western District of Ohio.

The different local churches of the North-western District of Ohio are hereby notified that there will be a special District Meeting held in the Sugar Creek church, Allen County, Ohio, Feb. 5, commencing at 10 A. M. The object of said meeting is for the purpose of devising some plan, whereby aid may be sent to the Western sufferers.

Each local church is expected to be represented at said meeting by one or more delegates. Brethren will be met at Lima, Ohio, on the P. F. W. & C. R. R., Feb. 4 and 5. A. J. Baughman,
District Clerk.

Notes of Travel.

By order of the Mission Board of Middle Iowa, we boarded the train for Lost Nation, Iowa, to inquire into the condition of the church at that place. Elder Joshua Shultz is the only minister here. The outlook is not very encouraging. Emigration has reduced their number from one hundred to about twenty. We met good warm-hearted brethren and sisters, but some of them are quite old and are living very much scattered, consequently they do not get to meeting often. We learn by examining the record that they are likely to lose their church. The title is such that if they do not use it for worship, they can not hold it, and as the Brethren have moved away, it does not seem practicable to hold meetings there. Another detriment is that land is high and that there are no inducements to get cheap homes. Consequently the tide of emigration will not go in that direction.

Bro. Schultz has four points for preaching. He seems willing to do all he can. Think of it, brethren, how often it occurs that, in some places, three or four are behind the stand at once! Their church is one-half mile from town, but they can not get a congregation there. We preached five sermons while here, once thirteen miles out in the country, and four times in town, closing with a very good interest.

Our brethren and sisters here certainly should have our sympathy, but the great question is, how to meet their wants. We returned home from the above place just before the close of the old year.

On Friday morning, Jan. 2, we boarded the train for Grundy Center, Iowa. Here we met Eld. S. H. Miller, of South Waterloo, Iowa. Their quarterly council occurred Jan. 3. Much business came before the meeting, but all was adjusted very pleasantly. The church decided to call more laborers into the vineyard. Bro. L. E. Miller was chosen to the ministry and Bro. C. Messer to the deacon's office. Both were duly installed into their respective offices. May the Lord bless them and their companions, that they may be shining lights in his church! The church here seems to be in a good working condition. May the Lord bless them in the humble efforts that are being put forth, that the cause may prosper!

From here we went to the State Center church, where we met Brethren from different parts in a business meeting, pertaining to the Brethren's Insurance Company. As we are receiving letters relative to the above, suffice it to say, in this connection, that the Brethren have concluded to disorganize the company.

From here we went to the Iowa River church, where we met Eld. A. M. Dickey, of State Center. Here we held five meetings, during which time their quarterly council occurred. The business was all disposed of in a very satisfactory manner. They also decided to have an election for a minister. The lot fell on Bro. F. M. Wheeler, who was installed into his office. May the Lord bless both him and his companion that they may humbly discharge their duties. The Sunday-school and prayer-meeting are kept up here the year round. The church seems to be in a fair working order, and my prayer is that they may continue to watch and pray.

We arrived home Jan. 12, and found all well. We thank the Lord for his protection.

From Olax, Custer Co., Nebr.

The Missionary Board of Nebraska sent Eld. Geo. W. Stambaugh, of McCool Junction, to hold some meetings at this place. While here he preached twelve sermons. Eight dear souls were added to the church by baptism. Six applicants who for some reason were not quite ready, will be baptized in the future. Two were reclaimed and others were near the kingdom.

At the close of our meetings we had a love-feast. All the newly-baptized members were privileged to meet around the table of the Lord.

We next commenced a series of meetings in the Baptist church at Lomax. Here we had six meetings, after which our Baptist friends desired the use of the house for their own services.

We then moved our meetings about six miles up the valley, to a school-house near Olax, where we had Sunday-school last summer. The meetings at this point were well attended, and a good interest was manifested. It was the first effort ever made in Custer County, and we look for an ingathering in the future. This point is thirty-five miles from the nearest settlement of our Brethren, and fifty miles from the nearest preacher (Eld. S. M. Forney). Brethren that have time and means to travel, will please come and help us to build up the cause.

We are not organized here, as yet, this being only a mission post. There are some Danes, Swedes and Norwegians here. J. W. Gripe.

New Testament Study.

During the Bible Term at Mt. Morris, a meeting composed of ministers present, was called for the purpose of getting things in proper shape for our next Bible Term.

The meeting was called to order, and duly organized by appointing Bro. James R. Gish, chairman and Bro. D. E. Brubaker, Sec'y. The object of the meeting was then briefly stated by the Chairman, who emphasized the importance of arranging a program of New Testament study for our next winter's Bible Term.

After considerable discussion, exchange of views, and suggestions, it was decided by vote to appoint a committee of three, to arrange a program on New Testament study.

On motion and ballot the three following brethren were chosen as said committee: D. E. Price, D. E. Brubaker and Edmund Forney.

Said committee was authorized to fill any vacancy that might occur from any cause in the committee. On motion it was carried that the committee send out a printed program, prior to next Bible Term. On motion it was carried that the proceedings of the meeting be published in the Gospel Messenger. James R. Gish,
Chairman.
D. E. Brubaker,
Secretary.

From North Manchester, Ind.

Bro. Lewis W. Teeter, of Hagerstown, Ind., commenced a series of meetings in the City of North Manchester on the evening of Dec. 26, 1890. Deep interest was manifested from the beginning. People came night after night, and a deep solemnity pervaded the greater part of the congregation. Marked attention was given to the Word preached. Prayer after prayer was sent to the Throne of Grace. Sermon after sermon was preached, and in a way and manner that none could fail to understand. Saints were encouraged on their way, and sinners were made to realize their condition. While all seemed deeply concerned, there was nothing in way of excitement. The preaching was sound Gospel doctrine which could not be gainsaid. As a result wanderers came flocking home until we had ten applicants for baptism. The latter ordinance was administered before the close of the meetings,—Jan. 14, 1891. On that day one dear sister who had been disowned, applied to be reclaimed. Next day, the 15th, one more dear sister, who had fallen, asked to be reinstated. The desire of both sisters was unanimously granted.

Thus closed our meeting,—a little too soon, as we believe from the interest taken. There were many good impressions made upon the audience. May many be constrained to forsake Satan, and join the army of the Lord! To God be the praise for the work done! May his grace sustain us all, keep us from the evils of the world, and finally give us a home in heaven.

In Memoriam.

The subject of this brief memoriam, sister Lizzie Frantz, the daughter of Joseph and Catharine Miller, was born near Dayton, Montgomery Co., Ohio, Jan. 8, 1850.

Jan. 4, 1872, she was united in matrimony to Bro. Isaac Frantz, then of West Charleston, Ohio. This union,—a blessed and happy one,—continued until terminated by her death, which, after an illness of several months, occurred at their home, near Pleasant Hill, Ohio, at the going down of the sun, Jan. 13, 1891. Her age was 41 years and 5 days.

Dec. 14, 1873, sister Lizzie gave her heart to God, to be occupied and overruled by his Spirit, and to his glory and her great joy, was united to the church. She knew the peace of soul breathed from the great Divine, who constantly freshens, deepens, sweetens, renews and fits it for his eternal spirit, holiness and indwelling.

Her devotedness, companionable and high moral and social qualities and true Christian energy, kindness and spirit, won for her the friendship and esteem of all good people, old and young. A truly good, noble and generous-hearted Christian woman and mother has passed away. Her life was full of good works, and she loved to make others happy. But now she has gone, and has left earthly home, family and friends, to join, by divine appointment, the family of angels in that heavenly home, where all the righteous go. "How precious in the sight of the Lord, is the death of his saints." One by one he is gathering them home.

A kind and devoted husband, one daughter of fourteen, whose young and tender heart is with Christ, and two bright little sons remain of the now sorrowing and motherless family. She patiently and prayerfully yielded her soul to the stroke, and, in the full assurance of a living faith, passed calmly and sweetly to the spirit world. "The righteous hath hope in his death," and their hope is Christ. How we all loved her, and now, that she is gone, how much we shall miss her.

The immediate cause of death was rheumatism of the heart and brain.

Funeral services, prior to interment, were held in both the Brethren's and Christian churches in Pleasant Hill, conducted by ministers, Q. Calvert and the writer, in the former, and W. H. Boggs and Furnace in the latter, from the words, "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them." Rev. 14: 13.

The body was laid away in the Hopewell Cemetery where it will await the resurrection of the good.

How we May All Aid the Sufferers.

In reading Messenger No. 2, I saw there was great suffering out West. The question came to my mind, What can I do? I am making no money now; my crop was short and there is nothing to sell; but I want to do something, for I know what hard times are. I will sell a bag of oats and send the proceeds, though it will be but little. Can I do more? My wife is a member of Park church. Wednesdays the ladies meet in a sewing circle and make various articles to send to the needy. I will ask my wife to take the Messenger there and have it read, so that they may have an opportunity to give a penny with me. My daughter attends the Elmira School of Commerce. I will have her show the paper there also. I will ask my neighbors if they want to give a penny for the cause, and also call upon our business men. I got the following so far:

Park church Sewing Circle,	$1 80
School of Commerce, Elmira, N. Y.,	1 00
Neighbors,	50
John T. Lewis, proceeds of his bag of oats,	1 65
Scharnstheimer & Stampp,	26
Total, less 10 cents for postage, etc.,	$5 11

The writer is a colored brother, formerly of Pipe Creek congregation, Md. I am very glad that I have been permitted to do a little, at least, for the sufferers.

John T. Lewis.

An Appeal in Behalf of South-Western Iowa.

The ministering brethren of the western portion of the Southern District of Iowa have more calls for preaching than they can fill and do justice to themselves and the great theme they promulgate. A number of these churches have but one speaker. While such a one feels the responsibility of his calling, he also feels a peculiar delicacy in urging neighbors and friends to attend meeting (to hear him preach). If he goes away from home, he is expected to preach, so to him it is nearly all labor and he hears but little preaching. From experience, we know how to sympathize with such. My dear yoke-fellows,—those who contemplate passing through this part of the vineyard,—arrange to stop off and encourage these weak churches; and your labors will be appreciated by the hearers, and blessed by our Father. If you go over the C. B. & Q. R. R, write to W. W. Folger, Osceola, Clark County, or Isaac Barto, Stanton, Montgomery County, or David Markley, Mt. Etna, Adams County, or if you go over the C. R. I. & P. R. R. to M. Hermon, Adair, Adair Co.; especially do we plead for the Irish Grove church. Bro. Folger is alone in the ministry here, and has labored hard under a dark, over-hanging cloud, but the silver linings and golden edges are appearing, thereby showing that there is bright sunlight beyond.

If you go south from Des Moines on the D. M. & K. C. R. R., at 4:10 P. M., you will be met at Truro, at 6: 10 and taken to place of meeting by writing to Bro. Jacob Keffer, New Virginia, Warren County. It seems easy for strong and wealthy churches to get ministerial help but, dear brethren, let us be careful that we are not like the class alluded to in the latter clause of Isaiah 56: 14.

J. D. Haughtelin.

Panora, Iowa, Jan. 22.

From Markleysburgh, Pa.

I left my home in Garrett County, Md., Jan. 2, for the purpose of holding a series of meetings for the Brethren at Scullton, Pa. Upon arrival at the place of meeting, I held meetings each evening and on Sunday mornings, until the evening of Jan. 11. As an immediate result, two young sisters made the good confession. The interest of our meetings increased from beginning to the end, and a more kind, generous and attentive people, I think would be hard to find. May the Lord bless them! On Monday morning, Jan. 12, I turned my face homeward, where I arrived on the evening of the same day and found all well.

When we were within about three miles of home, the sad news reached us that Bro. Sylvanus Thomas' boy was accidentally shot and instantly killed, during a serenade in the village of Gibbon's Glade, Pa., where Bro. Thomas resides. The entire community sympathizes with brother and sister Thomas in their bereavement. May all take warning, and stay from places which, to say the least, are of no benefit to the Christian.

Jasper Barnthouse.

From the Salem Church, Ohio.

Our meeting closed last night. As stated in a former report, Bro. B. F. Honeyman, of Gettysburg, Ohio, did the preaching. He preached nineteen sermons for us. Saints were encouraged, and sinners were brought to a realization of their condition. Some were induced to leave the ranks of Satan, and join in with the people of God. Three souls were baptized into Christ, since our last report. Of the seven souls received into the church during the meetings, two are the daughters of the writer. Many more, we believe, are "almost persuaded."

Bro. Honeyman goes from here to the Hickory Grove church. May the Lord bless him in his labors.

According to present arrangements, Bro. Henry Frantz, of New Carlisle, Ohio, will commence meetings for us at Georgetown in our joint house about Feb. 5.

Jesse K. Brumbaugh.

Union, Ohio, Jan. 22.

From Cartersville, Va.

When in the midst of life all seems bright before us, then are we cut down by the hand of death, and we are in the midst of gloom and dark despair. The shepherd of our little fold has been taken from us, and we are left to wander to and fro in the great mountains, wild and bare. Bro. J. N. Kauffman was called away suddenly Jan. 19. We feel at a great loss, for he had set his house in order, and the prospect of our future welfare was bright. We shall miss him greatly. Our social intercourse was sweet together. Never shall we forget him. He now rests from his labors and his works do follow him. He was seventy-two years old. His remains were taken to his home in Ohio for interment. His companion will miss him sorely. May God be her refuge! They were only married a week and one day. May they meet in heaven where they shall never part again!

We trust some minister will sympathize with the condition of the little flock here, and help us to labor for the cause of our Blessed Master. Pray for us, for we need the prayers of all God's people.

Florida J. Etter.

Gone to His Reward.

WITH sadness I chronicle the death of our highly-esteemed elder, John Thomas, of Washington County, Iowa, who passed from death unto life on the evening of Jan. 13. The funeral services, were held in the home church, near his residence, by our aged brother, Jacob Brower, of South English, Iowa, who addressed a large audience from I Thess. 4: 14. Bro. Snowberger, of Colorado, also made a few remarks, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Brethren's cemetery, near South English. His age was sixty-four years, eleven months and thirteen days.

In the death of our brother we have lost a noble and useful man, who will not only be missed by his relatives, but by the church and the entire community. As a minister he labored very earnestly, never shrinking from duty, but ever being about the Master's business. Even when his health failed, he labored zealously. He was one of those large-hearted, whole-souled Christians, largely possessed of that wonderful love, of which the Apostle John speaks in his writings. In the Sunday-school Bro. Thomas was a most noble and excellent worker, believing it to be one of the best means of bringing up children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

The Sunday-school was near and dear to him. On several occasions, when I stopped in to see him as I went to Sunday-school, he exclaimed, "Oh how I wish I could go with you!" Last summer it was my pleasure to work with him in the Sunday-school, when I learned to love and respect him, who is now taken from our midst. We miss him, but the Lord's ways are not our ways. Isa. 55: 8. S. CORRELL.

"THE grand and, indeed, the only character of the truth, is its capability of enduring the test of universal experience, and coming unchanged out of every possible form of fair discussion."

"ALL our murmurings are so many arrows shot at God Himself, and they will return upon our hearts; they reach not Him but they will hit us; they hurt not Him, but they will wound us; therefore it is better to be mute than to murmur; it is dangerous to provoke a consuming fire."

Literary Notes.

Rev. George D. Herron's remarkable paper on "The Message of Jesus to Men of Wealth," which recently appeared in The Christian Union, is bringing the author laudatory letters from all parts of the country, East, West, North and South (from preachers, business men, college professors and others), and requesting its publication in a form suitable for distribution. Mr. Herron has revised the address and it will be issued at once in form somewhat similar to Prof. Drummond's popular booklets by the Fleming H. Revell Company, New York and Chicago.

He moved to Wayne County, Ohio, in 1829, where he resided until April 1, 1853, when he moved to Williams County, Ohio, where he resided until death. Sept. 10, 1848, he was united in marriage to Sarah Ann Roderick, who departed this life May 17, 1889. Four sons and one daughter survive, to mourn their loss. He was a zealous worker in the church and Sunday-school. The latter he also ably superintended for several years. He was a member of the church for about thirty-nine years, and died in the triumphs of a living faith. We trust he has entered into that rest which remains for all God's people Funeral services from 2 Tim. 4: 6-8, by Bro. A. Rinehart, assisted by the Brethren, to a very large and sympathizing audience. W. B. DAILEY.

CRIPE—At Osceola, Mo., Nov. 20, 1890, of pneumonia, sister Catharine Cripe, wife of Christian Cripe (deceased), aged 64 years, 4 months and 1 day.

She united with the church at about twenty years of age, and lived a faithful Christian life, until God called her to a home in heaven. She lived five years after her loving companion was called home. She leaves five dear children to mourn their loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. She suffered very much, while sick. Previous to her departure she called for the elders of the church and was anointed, and so fulfilled the last command of the Master. After that she seemed to be at perfect ease and passed over the river of death without a struggle. Funeral services by brethren J. L. Jordan and J. A. Yost. T. J. SIMMONS.

SNYDER.—In the Woodbury church, Pa., Dec. 31, 1890, sister Elizabeth L. Snyder, wife of Bro. Simon Snyder, aged 63 years, 10 months and 5 days.

As the old year gave place to the new, her life closed here, to begin in heaven. Through her life she had learned well how to bear affliction, showing by her patience and trust that she could suffer and be strong. Her patience and resignation shone conspicuously in all her words and in her whole deportment. She was convinced of her frailty, but knew in whom she had believed, and was fully persuaded that he was able to keep that which she had committed to him.

In her death the church has lost a safe counselor and faithful member. She remembered the needy ones, and many, like in the days of Dorcas, mourn her departure. But while the church and the community miss her, she will be missed most sadly in the home. Upon Bro. Snyder and the family falls the heavy burden of sorrow. Four daughters mourn their loss. Three sons, living in different parts of the Far West, could not be present at the funeral, and when they return to the old home, they will miss most of all their mother. God can raise up some one to fill her place in the church, but who can fill a mother's place in the home?

Funeral services by Bro. James A. Sell from Num. 23: 10 in presence of a large concourse of people. J. K. BROWN.

KILLINGER.—Within the bounds of the West Nimishillen church, Stark Co., Ohio, Jan. 5, 1891, Jacob Killinger, aged 78 years, 3 months and 13 days.

Deceased was born in Franklin Co., Pa., Sept. 22, 1812. He was married to Rebecca Braucher May 15, 1836, who departed this life in March, 1870. This union was blessed with eight children, four of whom preceded him to the spirit world. One son and three daughters remain to mourn the loss of a dear father. He was a citizen of Jackson township, Stark Co., Ohio, for over fifty-seven years. The large congregation which convened on the occasion of his funeral, attested the high esteem in which he was held as a neighbor, friend and church member. Philpp. 1: 21 was the text used at the funeral services, which were conducted by the writer, assisted by Eld. Noah Longanecker. E. LOOMIS.

WHERLEY. — Near Philipsburgh, in the Sugar Creek congregation, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio, Dec. 11, 1890, Bro. Henry Wherley, aged 62 years, 1 month and 21 days.

He was the father of eleven children, of whom six are yet living. Funeral services by the writer to a large congregation in the Lutheran church at Philipsburgh.

KERCH.—In the same place, at the residence of Bro. Charles Kelsey, Jan. 9, 1891, two little twin boys of friend Nicholas Kerch and wife, aged fourteen and fifteen days.

Funeral services by the writer at the house. These two little ones were laid side by side in one coffin. M. H. SHUTT.

YOUNGER. — In the Panther church, Woodford, Co., Ill., Jan. 3, 1891, sister Sarah Younger, aged 52 years, 10 months and 9 days. THOS. KEISER.

EARLY. — In Bridgewater, Va., Jan. 11, 1891, of heart disease, sister Hester Early, aged 66 years, 2 months and 28 days.

Sister Early became seriously ill on New Year's Day. She called for the elders and was anointed, after which she improved so far that she was enabled to go about in the house. Last Sunday she seemed quite cheerful and ate her supper with a relish. While other members of the family were arranging to go to church, she was seen to sink in her chair, where she died without a word or struggle,—in a few minutes. Her husband,—Bro. Jos. Early, — preceded her to the spirit world twenty-six years ago, thereby leaving all the burdens of rearing the family on his surviving companion. She had the great satisfaction of seeing all but one of her children enter the church. The children have lost an excellent mother, the church a model sister, and our town a most worthy citizen, but we sorrow not as others who have no hope. Funeral services from Psalms 116: 15. S. F. SANGER.

HESS.—At the home of her son, S. J. Hess, in Duck Creek Township, Wilson Co., Kansas, Jan. 13, 1891, sister Catharine Hess, relict of the late J. F. Hess, aged 60 years and 13 days.

Funeral services at the Brethren church, in Fredonia, by Eld. G. W. Studebaker, assisted by J. R. France, from Heb. 3: 9, 10. ELIZABETH STUDEBAKER.

Farm for Sale.

I offer for sale my entire farm, as I am not able to run it myself. It is situated in the South-eastern part of Kosciusko County, Ind., and contains 160 acres, 130 acres under a high state of cultivation, the remainder in good timber, such as poplar, ash, oak, hickory, sugar beech, elm and black walnut. The farm is well adapted for the raising of either grain or stock, having an abundance of good spring water on farm, with good buildings,—a two-story brick dwelling-house, built in 1884, at a cost of nearly $4,000. A good-bearing orchard contains many choice varieties of fruit. The farm is situated within one and one-half miles of Sidney, a station, on the Nickel Plate R. R., and ten miles of North Manchester, in a well-organized church of the Brethren (the Spring Creek church), not far from a good church house. Terms Liberal. For further particulars, as to price and terms, address the owner as below.

ANOTHER LETTER.

JUST about this time people are writing to us, seemingly in ecstasy over what they call a "Drugless System of Treatment." At the same time they seem to condole with medicine makers, believing that their means of living will now be at an end.

The writer was born with large inquisitiveness, and has ascertained what this mysterious system of treating human ailments might be, or rather what it is.

Yes, the wonderful discovery has been made, while indeed it is drugless, it is by no means HARMLESS. Some may think, that taking a bath is harmless, but indeed, many people have lost their lives through reckless bathing.

This new "system," as it is called, is internal bathing, not bathing, which might be in itself harmless, but it is inflating the bowels with warm water by hydraulic pressure. The danger is in causing pockets to form in the intestines or bowels. Such a calamity could not be overcome even by a surgical operation. If you want to test the power of a syringe, then fill a hogshead, the strongest one made, fill it full of water, bung it very tightly, then make a gimlet hole through the stave, just large enough to insert a syringe, then force water into the interior, and in a short time there will be an explosion. Thus having witnessed the force of hydraulic pressure will you substitute your own body for the hogshead, and speak of it as a drugless system?

How foolish of a person to risk his life applying this drugless system, when ten cents worth of HERBICURA would do the work, and which is positively harmless.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY.

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same. Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising."—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.

"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music."—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

Price per single copy, 30 cts.; per dozen by mail, $3.00; by express, $2.60. Lots of more than a dozen must be sent by express.

IF you wish to make the acquaintance of a great man, read the life of St. Paul. By the time we get through with it, we will feel acquainted with, at least, one that is not great.

IF any of our readers have full sets of the Christian Family Companion for the years 1874 and 1875, that they are willing to sell, and will inform us of the price, we will be obliged.

THE Brethren of the Newry, Pa., church are holding a series of meetings in the McKee's church house, near the home of Eld. Jas. A. Sell. Eld. John S. Holsinger is doing the preaching.

BRO. J. B. FLUKE preached a series of sermons for the Woodbury, Pa., Brethren, which, we were told, were sound and logical. Certainly they would be so. Bro. John could not preach otherwise.

DURING our Bible Session we had evening talks on the following subjects: "The Bible and How to Study It," "The Introduction of Christianity," "Great Men and their Uses," "God's Means of Saving Souls," and "The Importance of Christian Baptism."

FEW of our brethren, who have not tried it, are aware of the advantages of a systematic and consecutive study of the Bible. It is in this way we get the connection, the relation and the completeness of the Divine Record. The Bible contains a chain of precious truths that can not be grasped by taking hold of links at random. It is by going from link to link that we see the beauty and strength of the whole chain.

WE, to-day, received the sad intelligence of the death of Bro. N. S. Replogle. He was a graduate of the Normal, a young man of promise, with bright prospects before him—but so soon the Master says, "Enough," and he is called over to the other shore to meet and be reunited with a young wife gone before. We deeply sympathize with those who mourn, and pray God that this dispensation of Providence may be accepted, as it was sent,—in love. "He doeth all things well."

SUCCESS,—WHAT IS IT?

THIS is a world of successes and failures. Some succeed while others fail. An investigation as to the causes of these different results in the lives of men, would make an interesting theme. Accepting as truth the old and well-founded conclusion that for every effect there is a cause, we must conclude that there are causes in all cases. Now, if we can determine these causes and so direct them that the results would be what they ought to be, to give the highest good to all, a great end will be accomplished. How desirable this would be, especially to those who are made to say sometimes, "All these things are against me."

May we not suggest a few thoughts as to how we may make our work more successful? There are things within our own possibilities, as given to us by our Heavenly Father, that tend to success and it should be our concern, not only to know these things, but also how we may do them to our good.

It is important for us to know what success means. Unless we know this, it is impossible for us to attain unto it. Anything that can not command God's blessing upon it, can never be a success to us, no matter how fully it may meet our present wishes and desires. That which satisfies the soul when our work is done, when the race is finished, when life is ended, is the ultima of all good. It is the thing, above all others, that we want,—that we need and must have if our life work is to be a success.

Having determined what this thing is, the next thing to do is to bend all of our energies in that direction, and leave no effort unmade until we are sure that the end will be the fulfillment of our desires.

Men who make the different callings in life a success, do it by making the necessary preparation to accomplish the end. It becomes to them the central thought of their life. They become so full of it, that it becomes a part of them. They think it, talk it, and live it, so that every effort that they make, adds power to their purpose, and every step one nearer the end for which they are laboring. Like a gun loaded,—they are charged so that when the occasion comes they go off with power and effectiveness.

This charging is the great secret of effective shooting. An empty gun will not shoot or kill. Neither will an empty man do good work. We, as ministers, are often made to feel this. We are hopelessly empty at the very time we should be pressingly full, and, as a result, we can do nothing more than make a noise, and then we are sometimes foolish enough to wonder why our preaching is not a success. There is no wonder about it, as success can not come out of emptiness. We can not give to others unless we first get ourselves. Our speaking should be the overflow of our fullness, and this can only be when we are full, with a pressing reserve back of it. When a man's heart is full and bursting with sorrow, we know it by the overflow. It is no task—no labor for him to tell of his sorrows—it is a relief, a solace, a natural overflow of the fullness within. So should we be filled with one great purpose in life. We should be so full of it that the overflow would be voluntary.

Is this our experience? We have the overflow; we all have this to a greater or less extent, but what is it? It is the same as that with which our hearts are filled. Hence the importance of the filling. What the heart thinketh, the mouth speaketh. The disciples and early converts to Christianity were striking illustrations of men charged and filled with the religion of Jesus.

When Peter and John were commanded not to speak at all, nor teach in the name of Jesus, the answer was: "We can not but speak the things which we have seen and heard." They had become so full of it that it had become their life, their language. They were so charged with it that when they opened their mouths to speak, they could not give expression to anything but Christ and him crucified. So it was with their converts. Wherever they went, it meant to preach Christ. Their souls were so filled with that which they desired, that it became their language, and herein God made the wrath of men to praise him.

The opposers of Christianity never made a greater mistake than when they dispersed these men by persecution. It was like casting firebrands up in the wind to scatter and fall in fields of stubble. They were so filled with the fire of God's love that wherever they went they started a blaze. Thus was the religion of salvation carried to the ends of the earth. This is what God's ministry needs to-day,—men so filled with the love of Jesus, that, wherever they go, a blaze will be started. We must have our weapons of warfare charged with the ammunition of salvation, so that every discharge will be an effective shot against sin and for Christ.

How is it, dear soldier of Jesus? Are you charged with this fullness? Examine your words, your thoughts, and your actions. What is your life doing for the salvation of souls? On your knees, before God, ask yourself these questions, and you will then learn with what your heart and soul is filled and whether or not in the end success will be thy crown.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE VERDICT OF DEATH.

How does Death speak of our beloved
When it has laid them low;
When it has set its hallowing touch
On speechless lip and brow?

It clothes their every gift and grace
With radiance from the holiest place,
With light as from an angel's face;

Recalling with resistless force,
And tracing to their hidden source
Deeds scarcely noticed in their course.

This little loving fond device,
That daily act of sacrifice,
Of which too late we learn the price.

Opening our weeping eyes to trace
Simple, unnoticed kindnesses,
Forgotten notes of tenderness,

Which evermore to us must be
Sacred as hymns in infancy,
Learned listening at a mother's knee.

Thus does Death speak of our beloved
When it has laid them low;
Then let Love antedate the work of Death
And do this now!

How does Death speak of our beloved
When it has laid them low;
When it has set its hallowing touch
On speechless lip and brow?

It sweeps their faults with heavy hand,
As sweeps the sea the trampled sand,
Till scarce the faintest print is scanned.

It shows how such a vexing deed
Was but the generous nature's weed,
Or some choice virtue run to seed;

How that small fretting fretfulness
Was but love's over-anxiousness,
Which had not been, had love been less.

This failing, at which we repined,
But the dim shade of day declined,
Which should have made us doubly kind.

Thus does Death speak of our beloved
When it has laid them low;
Then let Love antedate the work of Death,
And do this now!

How does Death speak of our beloved
When it has laid them low;
When it has set its hallowing touch
On speechless lip and brow?

It takes each failing on our part,
And brands it in upon the heart
With caustic power and cruel art.

The small neglect that may have pained,
A giant stature will have gained
When it can never be explained;

The little service which had proved
How tenderly we watched and loved,
And these mute lips to glad smiles moved;

The little gifts from out our store,
Which might have cheered some cheerless hour,
When they with earth's poor needs were poor,
But never will be needed more!

It shows our faults like fires at night;
It sweeps their failings out of sight;
It clothes their good in heavenly light.

O Christ, our life, foredate the work of Death,
And do this now!
Thou who art love, thus hallow our beloved!
Not Death, but thou!

"COVETOUSNESS WHICH IS IDOLATRY."

BY DAVID E. CRIPE.

COVETOUSNESS is an intense desire to possess that which belongs to another, which can not be obtained in a lawful way. Back of this desire to possess, deep down in the heart, is an inordinate love of the perishable things of earth, which are not to be loved, and it is this love that constitutes the idolatry of covetousness.

Thus covetousness resolves itself into an avaricious love of riches, of money, a love of money for its own sake,—not valuing it only as a means for accomplishing good. Closely connected with this love of money is the delight which some people take in accumulating and hoarding it, for no better purpose than to keep it away from those who need it more.

Whatever occupies the chief position in the heart's affections, is the idol of that heart, and that is what it worships. Man must worship something, and can worship but one thing at a time. If he does not worship God, he is an idolater. Man becomes like that which he worships. This is a law in nature, ordained by God himself, and is as inevitable as the law of growth and development. It could not be otherwise. When the mind continually ponders a subject or an idea, it becomes so saturated with that which it contemplates, that it can hardly remember its original state.

Those who worship God become God-like. Enoch walked with God until he became so like him he worshiped that he was holy enough to be taken to heaven. The prophets and martyrs of old became so God-like that the world was not worthy of them. Those who worshiped the child-devouring Moloch, though but a heathen idol, became so like him that they were willing to have their own children destroyed. Those whose god is the unrighteous mammon,—the modern phase of worshiping the golden calf,—become cold, soulless and unfeeling.

The religion of Jesus Christ sets aside everything pertaining to the nature of idolatry, including covetousness. Those who were converted under the early preaching of the apostles, sold all their possessions and laid the money they received therefrom at the apostles' feet, and it was divided for the benefit of all. This principle of sacrifice still remains in the nature of a complete conversion, though it is applied in a different manner. We have not now apostles at whose feet we can lay our earthly goods, neither do we think it best that we should do so. That would be shirking our responsibility, for, after we had given all we had, we would expect to be supported. Now, when a man is thoroughly converted, he lays all that he is, and all that he has, at his Master's feet, and consecrates everything to his Master's service. Any conversion short of this complete surrendering of everything, is not a real Gospel conversion.

The Lord accepts what a man gives him, but does not take it away; he leaves it in the man's possession, entrusting it to him as to a steward. In this way we become stewards to the Lord. It now becomes the man's duty to use to the best advantage all his talent, all his strength, all his means to accumulate something for his Master. Out of the proceeds of this labor and property he is first to provide for his own family, supplying every real want. The balance shall go to alleviate the wants and woes of the poor, and to carry on the work in the Lord's house. This leaves him nothing to purchase unnecessary luxuries for wearing, eating, or drinking, or for satisfying a depraved appetite. If he squanders money unnecessarily, he becomes, to that extent, an unjust steward. If he cheats or defrauds any one, so as to make more money for the Lord, he will find that such ill-gotten gains are no more acceptable than were the Amalekite sheep and oxen which King Saul had saved, contrary to his instructions, and brought home to sacrifice unto his God. 1 Sam. 15. This disobedience cost Saul his kingdom, and he who will defraud his fellow-men, even if it be to give to the Lord, may find himself debarred from a better kingdom than the one over which Saul reigned.

The Lord is not a harsh Master; his yoke is easy and his burden is light. If a man believes that he can best provide for his family and bring up his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord by obtaining a home for himself, we believe it is right and well pleasing in the sight of God that he should use his means and his labor to purchase such a home. Good, simple Christian homes are among the best safeguards we can throw around the virtue and morality of the young. In such circumstances it will be necessary that all the cost of living should be reduced to the simple necessities, so that something may still be left to give to the Lord's work.

It is when a man tears down his barn to build greater, in order to have room to store away,—hoard,—that which God's blessing permits him to gather, that the Lord's patience is exhausted, and he will say, "This man can be steward no longer, and his soul shall be required of him."

If the gospel doctrine of conversion were more fully and clearly taught as meaning a complete change, a thorough sacrifice of every selfish interest and feeling, an entire surrendering to the Lord of soul and body, mind and strength, house and lands,—in short such a conversion as the apostles preached, which brought converts with all that they had to their feet by thousands, then the primitive strength and vigor of the church might be restored. There would then be no difficulty in raising all the funds needed to care for the poor and preaching the Gospel far and wide. If all would live up to this, none would be accused of covetousness. There would then be no necessity for adopting the business methods of the sinful world for wrenching the paltry mite from unwilling givers.

THE LAW AND REIGN OF JESUS CHRIST.

BY LANDON WEST.

WAR, in all its phases, has not, in any case brought peace to the nations. Peace may have succeeded war, and been enjoyed by those who were engaged in bloodshed, not as a result of war, but because men grew tired of waste and bloodshed, and could support the costly remedy no longer, and, to stop ruin and loss of both life and property, peace was made, to save treasure and to get rest.

Fighting in riots, or as individuals does not make peace; it never has, and never will. Peace may follow the fight or riot, but it is because one party is overcome, or feels that he can not prevail; and, to save himself or what he has, he submits to peace, because compelled to it by force of circumstances.

Going to law to maintain our rights, has brought peace in no case, but the contests have ceased because money failed, or the cause and claim were too weak, to give hope for success.

Quarrelling has not brought peace on any topic or in any place, but may have ceased, and been followed with peace, because neither party could be convinced, or because one or both became ashamed of themselves and their folly.

All bitterness, hatred, strife, contention and oppression has in no case brought peace or good feeling, and never will, because these can satisfy neither party, and to bring peace and good feeling all parties must be satisfied.

Peace shows good feeling, and this should satisfy all men. But how different from war and contention is the effect of the law and teachings of Jesus Christ! His law, which enjoins upon men to be servants one of another, has brought peace in every case. It gives peace to the individual, to the family, to the neighborhood, to the church, to the states, the nations, and the world, and, beyond all these, makes peace between earth and Heaven, —the creature and his Creator. It brings peace not for time alone, but for both time and eternity. No wonder that angels did sing for the first time, "Peace on Earth," in their new and glorious song to the shepherds of Bethlehem, because of the birth of Jesus, for it was the dawning of a new era, the giving of a new law, and the coming of a New Kingdom, when, instead of strife and bloodshed, with all their horrid effects, the aims and wishes of all should now be gained by love for one another, and by serving each other.

This one commandment, to be servants one of another, would, if fully carried out, bring peace on earth and good will to all men. Gal. 5: 13, 14. When this law shall prevail on the earth, then shall all wrath, malice, anger, bitterness and strife be done away with, and then shall peace flow as a river. Eph. 4: 31; Isa. 48: 18.

The coming of that kingdom for which all the followers of Jesus Christ are taught to watch, work and pray, is to bring peace on the earth as it now reigns in heaven. Surely there is no petition to our Heavenly Father, upon which all the followers of Jesus Christ can more readily agree than upon this one,—the first and greatest in the Lord's Prayer and the greatest for his people. Our world will be the place for this kingdom to come; our race will be the people to inhabit it; the word of Jesus Christ will be its law and all we now lack of the Kingdom, is the coming of earth's King and the enforcement of his law. For this we can all labor and pray, and his coming is sure.

SUBSOILING.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

ELDER J. H. MOORE,
Keuka, Florida,

Dear Servant of Jesus Christ: -

"LET us love one another, for love is of God!" Yea, "God is Love, and he that dwelleth in Love, dwelleth in God, and God in him." This is a sign which all the world understands. John 13: 35. And the opposite is no less easily interpreted, in heaven, on earth and in hell. The Name which is above every name, flaming on our foreheads, is misread by none. The very "devils believe and tremble." The scoffing, persecuting world can not withhold its verdict: "Behold how he loved him!" John 11: 36. And the insight of love is always superior to reason. Mark 14: 8. The "herein" of 1 John 4: 17, is not only wonderful, but it is natural.

The very first principle of Godlikeness is self-forgetful and spontaneous self-sacrifice for the good of others, even unto death. This makes the heroes, the missionaries, and the martyrs. This gives songs at midnight, in the inner dungeon, with the feet fast in the stocks. "Every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." 1 John 4: 7.

In one of the most solemn parables of Christ on record, occur these words: They had NO DEEPNESS of earth; because they HAD NO ROOT, they withered away. Matt. 13: 5, 6. If love and righteousness are not synonyms, they are, in the divine nature and government, never separated. Grace must reign through righteousness unto Eternal Life by Jesus Christ our Lord. Rom. 5: 21. As God forgives us, so we are to forgive one another. Eph. 4: 32. To learn of Christ, is to learn Christ. We not only copy, but we assimilate. It is not only receiving from without, but unfolding from within. Christ for us is law fulfilled and righteousness offered. Christ in us is God incarnate, the "hope of glory." Without this inbeing the deepest is shallow; with "Christ our life," the most shallow has "deepness" of soil, and is "rooted and grounded" in the abysm of very Godhead. Eph. 3: 17, 18, 19.

A genuine repentance invariably involves the acceptance and expression of the divine love and righteousness. The original word for repentance stops not short of absolute identification with the "Mind of Christ" in its inflexible and eternal adherence to righteousness. This is the necessary starting point of the life everlasting, the embryo of all that grace and faith develop through time and eternity. Repentance has nothing of the burden and sorrow of sin in it, but is that radical spiritual Passover which seals us with the Blood of the Lamb, and sets the Pillar of Fire between Israel and Egypt. There is a faith that leads to this, and a faith that is its essential concomitant. The faith that introduces or precedes repentance can never, at that stage, bring peace or save the soul. It is a psychological impossibility to appropriate the results of the atonement by faith prior to that radical, absolute severance from sin and commitment to God signified by the word METANOIA. "The faith which was once delivered unto the saints," means not primarily the things which it expresses, but the spiritual apprehension of the Divine Object whence proceeds Life and all its possibilities and manifestations.

Repentance and sin can not co-exist; neither can faith and doubt and unrest. Godly sorrow is not necessarily repentance, but naturally leads to that profound reversion and facing-about which was meant by the searching, soul-sifting pioneer term of Christ's ministry – Metanoia. Sorrow for sin is an essential antecedent of repentance; but repentance itself is an altogether joyful, God-and-soul-wedding experience.

In Christ's vicarious functions we discover for the first time "The exceeding sinfulness of sin," no less than the incomprehensible love and superabounding grace of God. Pre-christian bloodshedding could only dimly adumbrate these tremendous realities. It is only when we see and accept by faith as our own, all that Christ has endured and achieved as our Substitute, and offers as our risen and enthroned Mediator and King, that Metanoia is consummated.

The elements of human nature are not given at the time of our introduction into the family, but in our genesis. The incoming of life carries with it all the essential constituents of being. Israel was redeemed and sheltered by the Passover Blood before they crossed the Red Sea. Between Pi-hahiroth and the Song of Moses we have the grand, symbolical representation of what was inaugurated in the land of bondage. We carry nothing through the Jordan that we did not seminally take through the Red Sea. Caleb and Joshua were not born at Mount Sinai, but received there a formal statement of the grandeur and vastness of what was promised by the blood on the door-posts and lintels of their exodus.

It is a stupendous thing that God has done in the flesh in the Person of Christ; and it is the very same thing, as regards character that he accomplishes in us by the Holy Spirit! The true confession of the Incarnation is the very consciousness and testimony indicated by Metanoia. 1 John 4: 2. To be "made free by the Truth," "the glorious liberty of the children of God," is at the very point of transition, when "old things pass away, and all things become new."

It was at the moment of the infusion of Deity into the Virgin, that the "great mystery of Godliness" transpired. And the same mystery is repeated in us, when, like the Virgin, we say to God with all the volume and emphasis of the soul—"be it unto me." Luke 1: 38.

The whole Christ found lodgment in human nature when "that Holy Thing" was conceived. After that all was development in the various stages in which flesh inshrined Divinity to meet all the liabilities of our bankrupt state; where Jehovah Jesus began his human career, there we also begin our ascent into "all the fulness of God."

It is the perfect coalescence of two wills that effects the conjunction in which the righteousness of God becomes ours. This remains with us, and is the "seed" out of which all externalization of the indwelling Christ springs. 1 John 3: 9. No one can have the righteousness of God imputed by faith who has not broken with sin as thoroughly and abidingly as the true meaning of Metanoia requires. No objective model, even God himself, constantly placed before the soul for imitation, can effect this change. It is God in us; the very Life of our life, that is needed for our redemption.

Oh, what glorious, peculiar people are the God-born! How Christ possessed, how Heaven-reflecting, how world-surmounting, how holy, wise, loving are those who are really "partakers of the Divine Nature." "Which thing is true in him and in you;" 1 John 2: 8. Oh that the whole church of God would lie prostrate before the Mercy Seat, and wrestle with the very earnestness of the blood-sweating Emmanuel for the realization of John 17: 21, 22, 23, 24; Philpp. 3: 8, 9, 10; Col. 1: 9, 10, 11, and Eph. 1: 17–21. Then will Jesus see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied. Isa. 53: 11.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

IN the investigation of this subject we shall notice what we conceive to be an error, and an error, too, which we think is misleading and calculated to confuse the mind of the student, and make the case seem mysterious and confused. There are three comings spoken of, and the error consists in blending these three comings into one. The first coming is, when Jesus came riding triumphantly into Jerusalem, on a colt,—as it had been prophesied that he should come. Jesus said before this when he was about leaving the city, that "Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Matt. 23: 39.

Then, when he returned to Jerusalem, riding upon the young ass, the people went out to meet him, and some of them had armed themselves with branches of palm-trees. Others threw their garments in the way that the humble beast, upon which he was riding, might pass over them. They said, "Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord." John 12: 13. Luke says, "And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen; saying, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest." Luke 19: 37, 38.

Here we have his first coming fully set up, and the prophecy, concerning his triumphant entrance into Jerusalem, amidst the loud hosannas of the multitude, fully verified. We are, therefore, done with that coming. Next we shall notice his coming in the clouds of heaven. That will be when he comes to reign. When Jesus was arraigned before the high-priest, Caiaphas desired

Jesus to tell him plainly if he were "the Christ, the Son of God." "Jesus said unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Matt. 26: 63, 64. So it seems that, when Christ was here, to suffer, die, rise and organize his his church, etc., that he made choice of Mount Olivet, as the place from which he would take his leave of his disciples. As he went up, a cloud received him out of their sight. Christ shall come again in like manner, as ye have seen him go into heaven. When he comes in the clouds of heaven, he will bring his saints with him. "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17.

Here it is easy to see, that he is gathering his saints together, and as the living saints shall be changed in a moment, at that time, from mortality to immortality, and caught up with the resurrected bodies of those whose spirits come with Jesus, and so all shall meet him in the air, it is again easy to see that what Paul, and Zechariah state, is true. Paul tells us something of what shall be "at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints." 1 Thess. 3: 13. Zechariah says, "And the Lord, my God, shall come, and all the saints with them." Zech. 14: 5. These are amply sufficient to show that he is now coming to gather his saints together, to reign with them, and they with him. As to the place where he will make his landing, we quote the following: "And his feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives which is before Jerusalem on the East, and the Mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley." Zech. 14: 4. Here is where the camp of the saints will be.

Now, we will notice the third coming. This is when he comes to judge the world at large. The first Scripture to which we call attention reads thus, "And to you who are troubled, rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven, with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." 2 Thess. 1: 7, 8. In this case you will notice, that he is not coming to Jerusalem, riding upon a colt, neither in a cloud, but in flaming fire, and that to judge those who have not obeyed the Gospel. Again we cite you to what is said in Rev. 20: 9. "And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them." This is the time spoken of by the prophet Malachi, 4: 1 3. In looking at these several Scriptures, and thus dividing them, we are in no danger of becoming confused by the seeming contradiction, as seen when trying to apply them to one and the same coming, and in presenting the several comings, as we have here briefly tried to do, we get harmony out of what would otherwise be confusion. Hoping we are understood, we submit the case to the reader, for investigation.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

BY JACOB RIFE.

We have, several weeks ago, crossed the limits of 1890. Its account is closed, and whatever the balance sheet may show as to our standing, it is too late to change the entries. Their impress is indelible, and must remain. We have entered the year 1891 with a clean, white sheet, on which we will record our acts, whether good or bad, and are now pursuing our way to the untried scenes of another year. What shall be its experiences? Who can tell? Who would desire to know?

Eager, as we sometimes are, to pry into the hidden realities of the future, yet who would dare to lift the curtain that separates the future from the present? Who would not shrink from such a revelation as we might behold, even for the short time of a single year? It would be too much for us. What important questions,—religious, social, moral or of business, are to be settled this year, perhaps including not only our present but our future well-being? What of its religious or social life, joy or sorrow, or of its business character? Shall it be a success or a failure? Who can answer? We wait in silence,—gathering and learning as we go. If we are honest in doing our whole duty to God and man, we need have no remorse and no real unhappiness. If we have done the best we could, nothing more than that is expected of any one.

Life is made up of storms and sunshine, and the wise man accepts it as it comes, and makes the best of it he can. He feels that it is better than he deserves because of his ungratefulness to his Heavenly Father.

Outside influences have much to do with our lives, especially our Christian life, but he who permits them to turn him away from the simplicity of the Gospel, has not learned the grand secret of a happy life. It is not given to us to penetrate the future of this life. We gain preparation for the future by improving the present life. The past lingers only in the memory of things gone by, never to return to us again in this world. The things of this year will be revealed as we pass along, and each day will bring its joy or sorrow to us. Let us, who have Christ as our Leader, be prepared to meet all things bravely. It is said in God's Word, that in the sweat of his face man shall eat his bread. But, then, life is not for bread alone, but it reaches beyond, to that life which will never end. It can only be obtained by living by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. This world has been wisely adapted to our good by our Creator, and as faithful stewards let us improve the time, by taking heed to God's eternal Word. The Scriptures are reasonable. Let us seek to understand them aright and obey them, and we shall be happy indeed.

MUSINGS ON STORMS AND SUNSHINE.

BY MARY M. COX.

This has been a rainy, dreary day, and, while listening to the patter of the rain upon the roof, my thoughts have wandered far away to that fair land where there are no storms. While in this world we must have clouds and rain as well as sunshine, or vegetation would soon cease and our earth become a barren place.

So also our earthly life must have shades as well as sunshine if we would grow in grace. Were there no storm clouds of persecution, no dark days of sorrow, and no gloomy days of mourning, we would soon forget our dependence on the almighty arm of Omnipotence.

Many of the commandments of our Savior could not be obeyed if there were no sorrows, no sickness and no death. If we had no trials of our own, we could not sympathize with others in their misfortunes.

It sometimes takes storms of sorrow to develop a Christian life. Some of the noblest Christians the world ever knew were those who had passed through fiery trials of persecution. Our Savior drank life's bitterest cup to the dregs, and the disciples followed closely in his footsteps. We are so constituted that it takes both storms and sunshine to form in us a true Christian character. Were there no cross there would be no crown.

Trials and chastisements are not easy to be borne but, they will, after a while, yield the peaceable fruits of righteousness, if we bear them patiently. It will not be long—if we are faithful to him that called us until the storms will all be over and we will hear the welcome words, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Then we will know as we are known, and will see why we had so many stormy days.

In that fair land of perpetual brightness, we will greet the loved ones who have gone before and with them will bow before the great white throne, and thank our Heavenly Father for both the storms and the sunshine.

From the Far West.

I just returned from Dayton, Washington, 132 miles by rail. I went upon the earnest solicitation of Bro. Hollinger, whom I found engaged in a very interesting series of meetings, seven miles from Dayton, in a new locality where the Brethren had never preached before. Bro. Hollinger left soon after my arrival. I continued the meetings over Sunday. The people were very much interested; they had never heard the Brethren preach before. I was obliged to close the meetings on account of ill health, but left with a promise of returning soon. About twenty-one members live in and around Dayton, and a more promising field of labor I have not found in all my labors. The field is white, ready to harvest. Bro. Hollinger had meetings at several places and baptized three.

Before we went to the above place, we thought that their desire was to organize, but we found that, on account of the members living somewhat scattered and the weather being unfavorable, we would have to defer an organization for the present. As far as we could learn, an organization would be desirable. We are beginning to learn the magnitude of the mission work in this country, and fear we shall have so many points to visit, as to scatter our work too much to make it a success, but we shall stay at each point as long as our time will admit. Oh, how much to do, and how short the time to work, while precious souls are starving for the Bread of Life! Brethren, give your prayers to the work! We want active work all along the line! Sidney Hodgden.

Moscow, Idaho, Jan. 26.

From the Dallas Centre Church, Iowa.

We have just closed a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. W. Wyland. He commenced Jan. 10, five miles north-east of Grand Junction, Iowa, where there are about fifteen members who belong to this church. Bro. Aaron Julius went up to assist in the meetings. Jan. 17, Bro. Wyland preached for us at our meeting-house, and Bro. Julius remained over Sunday with the Brethren at Grand Junction. Bro. Wyland continued the meetings until Friday night, after which he went to the Panther Creek church, where he is now laboring.

While there were no additions to the church during our meetings, we feel that good has been done by the labors of our brother. He gave us wholesome instruction and tried to impress upon our minds the importance of obeying all the commandments. May the Lord bless him in his efforts, is our prayer.

We are having an interesting social meeting this winter. We meet every Sunday evening. We consider these social meetings of great benefit to the church, especially the young members.

Notes and Jottings.

On Saturday, Dec. 13, according to promise, Bro. I. D. Parker, of Ashland, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings in our house at Covington, under encouraging prospects, in the way of attendance. He held services both morning and evening.

The writer was detained at a series of meetings that he was holding with the Brethren in Middletown, Ind. I did not reach home until Jan 16, and was pleased to find such an interest at the very beginning of the meeting. Bro. Parker's matter and manner seemed edifying to all, both in and out of the church.

The meetings closed Jan. 12, with eleven additions to the church by baptism. We felt that the meetings did much toward encouraging the membership, and moulding sentiment in our town and community, favorable to the cause we love so much. Our growth has not been rapid, but gradual, for some time. A commendable feeling of peace and harmony reigns in our camp.

Our aged and endeared elder, Samuel Mohler, is in very fair health. He was in attendance at the meeting most of the time.

We are feeling despondent. The doctor's wife (my wife's sister), is prostrated, weak, helpless and low. Upon the dark cloud, hovering over us, I look through my tears again and again, but see no silver lining to the threatening cloud. Beyond the dark cloud, by faith, I distinctly see a light on the distant shore. Surely, "if we had only the hope in this life, we would be of all men most miserable." Verily, how true is the inquiry, "What will it profit a man though he gain the whole world and yet lose his own soul, or what can a man give in exchange for his soul?"

I. J. Rosenberger.

A Suggestion to the Churches of the Southern District of Indiana.

Since the District Meeting for the Southern District of Indiana occurs on March 25, which is so soon that it is not likely we could have a very good representation at a called (or special) District Meeting in behalf of the Western Sufferers, hence, in order to forward the work of securing means sooner than the regular time of District Meeting, we the undersigned officers of said District Meeting do advise that the officers of the several congregations, composing the said District take immediate steps to have a solicitation made in behalf of the sufferers of the West, and forward their contributions to the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill., for distribution. Some of those churches have already done so, and no church should fail to make such an effort. Now is the time of their distress. Let us do good unto all men, "bear each other's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sometime we, too, may need their assistance. We shall be blessed in making an effort to assist them, even if we never need any assistance on their part. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts 20: 35.

From the Back Creek Church, Pa.

We began a series of meetings on the evening of Jan. 10. Bro. David Bonsack, of Westminster, Md., preached for us. Although not in good health when he came, he held forth the Word of Life with power and zeal. Our meetings were well attended. Good order prevailed and many seemed to take great interest in the way our brother held forth the Gospel. On the evening of Jan. 16 he met with us for the last time, as next day he returned home. May the good Lord bless him for his labor of love!

On Friday evening, Bro. William Anthony commenced to preach for us. By his assistance, we continued our meeting until Sunday, and closed with good interest. As a result, one was added to the church by baptism. We think that if we could have continued our meetings a little longer, there might have been much good done.

Among the Needy of the West.

By request of Bro. D. L. Miller, I am at Goodland, Sherman Co., Kans., looking after the wants of the destitute. I find nearly all in want, but have, so far, found none in an absolutely suffering condition, as there seems to be a disposition on the part of all to share to the last. This is a most commendable feature in the hearts of this noble-spirited people. But this can not last until another crop is raised, and many that now lend and divide what they have, will themselves need aid. My means at hand is limited, and I can only be governed by what is at my disposal. I had the best counsel I can get here, as a basis to work upon, and have relieved the present wants of about twenty-five families to the amount of from $5 to $15. Two days ago I was in Thomas County and did the same there, but these two localities cover but a small area of this great West. My distributions were to all the needy in and out of the church alike, and in this work I was aided by the judgment and counsel of good brethren. O! the glad hearts that even this little mite will make!

While I am penning these lines with tears, I am made to rejoice that the condition of the people is no worse, and that there are so many of our dear brethren and others, blessed with this world's goods, whose hearts are drawn out toward their destitute brethren of the West. I still hope that other State Districts will follow the noble example of the District of Northern Illinois, from whose bounties I am now supplying the needy and making glad hearts. Many here have been compelled to mortgage the last horse or cow they had, to meet the necessities of life. Such are at the mercies of their creditors, who, in many cases, I am glad to say, manifest a disposition of leniency and forbearance that is worthy of praise. The State furnishes coal to the sufferers.

This church is in good working order, with a membership of twenty-six. We have been in great need of a meeting-house, and, by the aid of the Building Committee of Southern Illinois, we now have a house ready for the seats. It is 26 by 36 feet in size, and I think that we can now work to better advantage than we could by having meetings in the school-houses. By good, honest work, and the help of the Good Lord, a good work will, no doubt, be accomplished.

I can say a hearty "Amen" to Bro. Enoch Eby's article in Gospel Messenger of Jan. 27. It would be well if more of our dear old soldiers of the cross would write such articles. There would be more love and strength in the Brotherhood! We would see more heart religion and not so much merely of the head. B. F. Stephens.

An Appeal to the Sisters.

My heart is filled with sadness this morning. I have before me a letter from Bro. J. E. Young, telling of the great suffering in the West and North. Now, what can be done? Will we all sit still and do nothing and say, "We have nothing to give?"—or will we be aroused to a sense of our duty and put forth an effort toward relieving the suffering? I know there have been efforts put forth in many places of the Brotherhood, but in many others nothing is being done. I felt pressed this morning, dear sisters, to appeal to you, to go to work in this good cause. Think of the little children that are crying for bread.

I will give you the account of my day's labor yesterday, and then some of you may take courage to go to work. I started out to solicit aid for the sufferers, and as you know the days are short now, I only got to seven houses, but I brought back quite a box of goods, and $6.00 in money. I felt that the Lord had blessed my labors and I feel to go on in this good work. Every one that I met seemed willing to do something in that direction.

Now, dear sisters, pray God to help you in this good work, and I know your labors will be blessed. Deprive yourselves of the luxuries of this life, that you may be able to give to the needy ones. May the Lord help you all to lend a helping hand!

LIZZIE HILARY.

From the Rock River Church, Ill.

THE above-named church began a series of meetings Jan. 2, conducted by the home ministry. Jan. 9 Bro. Joseph Trostle, of Woodbury County, Iowa, came, and preached in the evening. Jan. 10 Bro. David Eby, from Lena, Ill., took charge of the meetings, assisted part of the time by Bro. Trostle. The brethren continued until the evening of the 25th. As a result of their labors two were received by baptism and another made application to be baptized.

Bro. Eby preached a number of practical sermons. He has the cause of Christ and the purity of the church at heart, and presents the Word of Truth in its simple, plain and tangible form.

The Rock River church, by her generosity to mission work, and other enterprises and by sustaining, besides her regular appointments series of meetings, Sunday-school and social meetings, is experiencing a higher state of spiritual life. May the Lord help us all to live the life of Christ, that we may be nourished in that most holy faith once delivered to the saints.

J. L. MILLER.

Jan. 27.

Echoes from the Highway.

BRO. P. A. MOORE came to our place Jan. 10, and commenced a series of meetings, continuing until the 15th. Bro. Horning preached two sermons during the time. Then came Bro. G. S. Lehmer and continued the meetings a week longer. There was a full attendance at all the meetings and much interest was manifested. Apart from the Brethren, the Holiness people, so-called, are in the majority. It is needless to say their emotional theology was badly wrecked in the minds of many. In fact, the strong Bible doctrine, put forth so forcibly by those brethren, made those of popular views to tremble and quake, when they saw their pet theories crumble before the power of Gospel Truth. It is evident that "faith-alone," and "sinless-perfection" doctrine will not soon revive in this locality. Quite a number of the people are persuaded that it is a delusion to claim the promises of God, such as the gift of the Holy Spirit, holiness, sanctification, remission of sins, justification, or eternal life, without a legal title to them, and legality of title is dependent upon a living faith, that leads to the acceptance of all the commandments of God. Having come in by the door and done the will of God from the heart, then and then only can the child claim the blessings with the assurance that they will be his to enjoy,—here and hereafter.

Those meetings were a source of much joy to our members, confirming their faith, and, it is hoped, perfecting them in love. Two were added to the number by baptism and several others expressed their intention to come into the fold in the near future. Sisters Moore, Ida Frantz, Light, and Megie were also with us during the meetings, ever ready to assist by their effective private ministry of the Word and doctrine. We speak the sentiment of all our members when we say that our thanks are due those brethren and sisters for their earnest labors of love for the cause here. May God graciously bless them!

A Trip to Chicago.

I ACCOMPANIED my daughter, Leah E. Hopsay, and grandchild to Normal Park, Chicago, in September, where they now live.

I had long desired to meet with the little band of members at Chicago. On Sunday morning son-in-law and I took the street-cars for the place of meeting. Bro. Royer, of Mount Morris, preached a good sermon for us. Their Sunday-school, also, is quite interesting. We were pleased to meet Bro. W. R. Miller, the resident minister, and the many earnest members. Two dear souls were received into the church that day.

It is true, the congregations were not as large as they should be, in the city. What they need most, is a house of worship of their own, and I hope the time will come, and that before long, when they will be able to thus assemble.

Let me suggest to our brethren and sisters, that, when visiting Chicago, they do not fail to attend church services with our Brethren. It is encouraging to the members there and the Lord will bless you for it. The place of meeting is on the corner of Oakley Avenue and Jackson streets. Sunday-school at 2: 30 P. M., preaching at 3: 30 P. M.

ELIZABETH WITWER.

To Mary Bucher Beahm.

My Dear Daughter:—

You are now engrafted into the True Vine by baptism. This is at once the noblest and most important step that can be taken by a fallen being for whom God's only Son bled and died on Calvary. My prayer to God is that your baptism be accompanied by that inward offering, so beautifully expressed by David in Psalm 51: "The sacrifices of God are a broken heart; a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise." They who are so changed will also pray the Father: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," and "purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

Right here, in the beginning of one's religious life, there is great danger of self-deception. "Let no man man deceive himself." 1 Cor. 4: 18.

The great and important question with those who wish to be saved is, "What must I do to be saved?" and it is of great importance that the question is made without any mental reservation whatever. In the case of Naaman, who went to Elisha to be cleansed of his leprosy, we find that he had it all arranged in his mind as to how the cleansing should be done, before he applied for a cure. After Elisha had sent a messenger unto him, saying, "Go and wash in Jordan seven times," etc.; he became angry and said. "Behold, I thought he will surely come to me and stand and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place and recover the leper."

What Elisha, the man of God, bade him do was too little for him, for his servants came near and spake unto him, and said, "My Father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it?"—etc. And this is not to be wondered at, since he "was a great man with his master, and honorable," and "also a mighty man in valor." 2 Kings 5.

So, also, in the case of the lawyer, who came to the Savior, tempting him, saying, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Luke 10: 25. Now, lawyers are a peculiar class of men, but, I fear, not in the sense in which the people of God are peculiar. This one, no doubt, was an average one, and it seems to me he put the question something like this, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" As much as to say, some of the things you teach will do for common people, but we are of a higher class, "What shall I do?"

The question in German is, "What must I do?" and I rather like it better. So the self-loving, pleasure-loving, and high-minded (see 2 Tim. 3) lawyer likely emphasized the question thus: "What must I do?" as much as to say, "Some of the things you teach can not be binding; they can not be mandatory, but only advisory, and I ask you to tell what things I must do. These are a few of the sources from which the departures in the church spring. And such as are tinged with them, do not select for ensamples the humblest, most pious, and most self-denying members. Always the reverse! More anon!

IN GOSPEL MESSENGER of Jan. 13, I have just read the call for "help for the sufferers in the West," in response to which my feelings say, "God bless the poor."

We, as a church, have done nothing for them yet, in the Lebanon congregation, but as we are to meet next Saturday in a special, social council, something may then be done in the matter of contributions.

While in Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas some are hungry and cold, yet loving and trusting our Master, we, in Oregon, are enjoying "his benefits" in an unusually mild and pleasant winter up to date, and in food, fuel, and clothing "enough and to spare." And while we are few in number, we are struggling hard, and sometimes almost unsuccessfully, against the tendencies of 1 John 2: 15, 16.

In our social meeting next Saturday we will work for the return of full fellowship and an increase of love and holiness. And may we each and all pray as in Psalm 19: 14, "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

Notes from the La Porte Church, Ind.

JAN. 10, a sister, aged about twenty-six years, was buried "in the likeness of Christ's death," by the writer. Her husband also renewed the covenant, broken by neglect some years ago, and is cited to next church council for an adjustment of his case.

The sister mentioned in the note above had given her hand at a revival, conducted by a minister of one of the popular denominations, but as he was quite liberal in his views, he granted time to those who desired immersion until May, meanwhile baptizing (?) by sprinkling, which would be just as good." She, with her husband, concluded to "search the Scripture, and see if these things be so," resulting as noted, in urging her to arise and "walk in newness of life." May many others "go and do likewise!"

A NEW POINT.—On Saturday evening and Sunday morning, Jan. 10 and 11 I preached to full houses in the Baptist church on Rolling Prairie, seven miles east of La Porte. These were the first sermons in the house, after having been remodeled and almost entirely renovated. It is a new point for the Brethren and the outlook is favorable. I left appointments for preaching again on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, Jan. 24 and 25. From that time on every four weeks on Sunday, at 10:30 A. M.

THURSTON MILLER.

The Mission Field of Southern Illinois and Elsewhere.

As the demand for laborers in the mission field becomes greater, the question arises, "How shall we get the laborers?"

It seems that the laborers are sufficient in number, but too many want to enjoy, and be benefited and rewarded by, the labors of others. When we go to the harvest field, each one is expected to perform the labors of his station, in order to receive the promised reward, but when we look at the mission field we see, in this part of God's heritage, at least, from six to twelve ministers on the same station, and a visitor performing the labors.

We, as a Missionary Committee, say, "Here, Brethren, we have a station some twenty miles away, which you can reach by rail. Your expenses, etc., will be paid. Will you go and occupy?"

They answer like this: "We are having such good meetings, I believe I would rather stay at home." The visitor gets the reward of his labors, but how can the rest expect to get the reward of their labors, when they do nothing? When they should be dealing out the Bread of Life to others, they are at home, feasting. G. W. GIBSON,

From Nettle Creek, Indiana.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Bro. George L. Studebaker came here and held a series of meetings at the White Branch meeting-house, commencing Jan. 10, and continuing until the evening of the 25th—preaching, in all, twenty-six sermons. Surely the spirit of the Lord was with us! Fathers, mothers and friends were made to weep for joy, to see their children and neighbors returning home to Jesus.

As an immediate result of the meetings there were thirty-two baptized, and two precious ones, that had wandered from the fold, returned home again. May God bless them all, and enable them all to prove faithful! Everybody that attended these meetings seemed much interested. We had large congregations and the best of order. May God bless Bro. Studebaker and all his faithful servants who are thus laboring for the extension of the cause! ABRAHAM BOWMAN.

From Centre View, Mo.

Two dear ones were recently added to this church by baptism. They were wrought upon during our late series of meetings, but could not fully surrender until later. Thus the good work goes on! We feel to thank God and take courage.

We have re-organized our Sunday-school for the winter. We like to see an evergreen Sunday-school and to that end have sent for "Gospel Chimes," to help us along. We have also organized a singing-class, to meet once a week, to practice in the "Chimes" and in the Brethren's Hymnal.

We are glad to see in the GOSPEL MESSENGER that the good work of aiding the sufferers in the West is progressing. Yes, the sisters can do a great deal in this direction. The sisters of this church solicited second-hand clothing in their neighborhoods and sent it to the sufferers. A little effort on our part may gladden many a heart. We solicited from all denominations, and all gave cheerfully. The distribution will be to all needy alike. There is no trouble to get second-hand clothing in this vicinity. It only requires a little effort on our part. If we knew where more would be needed, we could send more.

A Special Notice.

I WOULD suggest the following to the Committees, appointed by Annual Meeting of 1890, to consolidate the interests and work of General Mission and the Tract Work, and also the Examining Committee on Manuscripts, that, if agreeable to all concerned, the Committee to examine Manuscripts meet at the place of Annual Meeting of 1891, on Tuesday before Conference (May 26), at 8 A. M. The "Committee on Consolidation" to meet at the same place on Wednesday morning, May 27, with the understanding that they commence their work when the former committee is through, or as may be agreed upon by both committees. Objections to the above arrangements must be prompt, otherwise the above plan will be in force. Furthermore, we hope all the members of both Committees will be present, if possible.

We also wish that all Manuscripts be legibly written, and that they be as comprehensive and condensed as possible. Manuscripts should be sent to the undersigned either at Booth, Reno Co., Kansas, or to Hagerstown, Md., Annual Meeting Box, so as to reach Hagerstown before May 25, 1891. ENOCH EBY.

"HELPING another may be the best possible method of helping ourselves. Selfishness will often prompt us to desire help from others; but it is not selfishness that impels us to give help to others. Therefore it is that we may be losers through the gratifying of our selfish desires, when we would be gainers through the exercise of our unselfish endeavors."

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5. 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Feb. 10, 1891.

SINCE Dec. 1, 1890, eighteen have been received into the church at McPherson by baptism. With few exceptions, these were students of McPherson College.

THE family of Bro. Thomas Watkins have been, and still are, afflicted with scarlet fever. They desire the prayers of the brethren and sisters in their behalf.

THE Bible Term at McPherson was largely attended, and all were well pleased with the character of the work done. At the close of the term the class gave a substantial evidence of its appreciation of the services of Bro. S. Z. Sharp and Bro. A. W. Vaniman, the teachers, in the shape of a handsome sum of money. We are glad to note the interest taken in our Bible Schools, and we hope it will largely increase. Our old brethren, who have attended these Special Bible Terms, express themselves as highly pleased with the excellent advantages thus afforded to gain a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures.

"Two more were received by baptism at McPherson College Feb. 1." So reports Bro. S. Z. Sharp.

BRO. JOSEPH TROSTLE, of Kingsley, Iowa, in company with our Bro. Levi Trostle, of the Rock River church, Ill., paid us a short visit last week. We are sorry they could not remain with us longer.

A DEEP snow has fallen in the North-west. At some places it is reported to be two feet deep. In this locality there has been but little snow fall, and last week we had the first real cold weather for this winter.

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN is in Eastern Kansas holding meetings, and working up the school interest. We hope he will be successful. Our school enterprises need not only the sympathy, but the financial aid of our Brethren.

BY the time this issue of the MESSENGER reaches our readers, we hope to be at our post again in the MESSENGER office. We made the trip West under protest, because we did not feel that we had time to spare from our office duties, but, after all, we are glad that we went. Many needy people in the West are being relieved, and one can not but feel gratified that they have the privilege of assisting in the good work.

THE following extract, clipped from the Denver (Colo.) Republican, shows that another State is about to place a law on its statute book against the sale of tobacco to minors. Those who favor the use of tobacco will do well to note the fact, that, in order to protect our young people from the evils following the tobacco habit, many of our State Legislatures,—sixteen in all, we believe,—have passed laws prohibiting its sale to children: "In committee of the whole in the Senate yesterday, Senator Whitely's bill to prevent the gift or sale of tobacco to children under sixteen years of age was ordered to a third reading and final passage. The bill is a very proper one, only it ought to be amended so as to include all minors. As it now stands the age of children will be stretched, and but few convictions will be had under it. Make it all minors and let the bill become a law."

EDITORIAL WANDERINGS.

SOME of our correspondents find plenty of time to write "on the wing," but as for us we confess that we prefer the comparative quiet of the sanctum, when we have writing to do; but as this trip is one that keeps us constantly moving from place to place, we must write as opportunity offers; here a little and there a little. This plan does not tend to give continuity of thought, hence our editorials for a few weeks will be broken into fragments.

"Westward the course of empire takes its way," said the poet, but long before expression was given to the thought, the movement of population had been tending toward the setting sun. The restless activity of the American people has carried them Westward with wonderful rapidity. Within the memory of those who have but reached the zenith of life, the western plains of Kansas and Nebraska were given over wholly to the Indian and the buffalo. The railways drove both these away, the buffalo to extinction, and the Indian to government reservations, and the cattle ranger and the cow-boy occupied the land. Then came the rush of emigration. The hardy homesteader put up his sod-house, or made his "dug out," and went to work to eke out a scanty living until he could "prove up" and secure a title to 160 acres of land. These hardy pioneers, with their families, took up claims far out on the dry plains. The railroads put their land on the market. The land agent came to the front, and the country was advertised, in many cases far above its just deserving. Hundreds were induced to purchase, some in hope of bettering themselves financially, and becoming land-owners, others in pursuit of both health and wealth, and the country rapidly filled up. Towns grew and farm houses dotted the prairies.

But this was all an experiment. Would there come to these western plains sufficient rainfall to mature crops? No one could answer the question, for no one had tried the experiment. The future alone would reveal whether prosperity would attend the efforts of the settlers or not. The ground was broken, seed was sown, and a scanty crop was the result. This led the settlers to hope for a better return in the future, and they sowed in hope, but the harvest came not. The much hoped for rain did not come, and for three seasons, in some places at least, total crop failures are recorded, and at last hundreds of families find themselves stranded on these plains without money to take them East, and without food, clothing or fuel to keep cold and hunger from their doors. These are some of the causes that have led up to the present condition of suffering in the West, which the charitably-disposed people of the East are making such noble efforts to alleviate. Hundreds who had money have gone East, and scores of empty houses are to be seen. Others would follow if they had the means. Some, with hope largely developed, are looking for better times. All the means they have in the world is invested here, and it is hard to leave it all. Some of the homesteaders must remain a year longer, until they can "prove up" and get a title to their land. When they get a deed from "Uncle Sam," they will go East unless times get better here.

Who is to blame? We put this question to a number of settlers, and we liked best of all the answer given by a brother in Western Kansas. He said: "If any one is to blame, I am the man; I came West with my eyes open. I looked over the country and decided to try it. If we had plenty of rain this would be one of the best farming districts in the West. The rain hasn't come, and hence we have had failures. I was not willing to accept the verdict of the old settlers who came here first, and abandoned their claims. Now it is not fair for me to blame others for the situation. No! if any one is to blame it is myself.

But what of the future of these plains? Are they to be deserted, and all the money that has been invested on them lost? Let the settlers learn wisdom from the conditions that existed here before they came. Millions of buffalo roamed over the land, growing fat, both summer and winter on the nutritious buffalo grass, with which nature has so bountifully covered all the plains. Agriculture is a failure. Without irrigation crops can not be grown, and surface water can not be had for irrigation. Let those who remain here, and are able to do so, go into stock raising. Sheep and cattle will do well, if properly cared for. Millet and fodder sufficient may be grown to feed them for the short time that the ground is covered with snow. In this way the land may become valuable. Those who want to engage in farming must go East and South, or cross the Rockies and try the fertile valleys of Washington and Oregon, or California.

Is there actual suffering among the people? asks some one. Yes! but we are glad to say that the wants of the needy are being well supplied. Were it not for the help received from the East, many would suffer greatly.

At one place we were directed to the home of a family in need. Knocking at the door a feeble voice said, "Come in." Opening the door we entered a poorly-furnished room, the only one in the shanty. In one corner stood a bedstead on which a sick man lay. He was entirely alone. About the room were evidences of pinching poverty. Not even the bare necessities of life were to be seen. We spoke to the sick man. He had seen better days, but adversity had fallen upon his home. Sickness came and poverty increased, the wife and mother died, leaving his home desolate. His own sickness prevented him from working, and he was left destitute. The only child, a boy, was out, trying to get something to eat. We said to him: "You must suffer a great deal. "Yes," was the reply, "but the Lord knows it all. It may be for my good. I still trust in Christ." If those who gave could have seen that home, and then witnessed the gratitude, and seen the joy manifested, when the common necessities of life were provided, they would have felt in their hearts the truth of the words of Holy Writ: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

On our Western trip we stopped for a short time at Sidney, Nebr. Here we met Bro. O. D. Lyon, at one time mailing clerk in our office at Mt. Morris. Two miles south of Sidney is the Grand Prairie church. There are about forty members living here, with brethren Lyon and Brower as ministers. After getting out of the valley, in which Sidney is built, there is a fine-looking country. Indeed, the lay of the land and the quality of the soil would lead any one to believe, that with a sufficient quantity of rainfall, this would be a rich agricultural district, but the rain don't come. Three continuous crop failures have left many of the homesteaders and purchasers of railroad land in straitened circumstances, and some must have help or they will suffer. We held two meetings in the Grand Prairie church in their comfortable house of worship, and enjoyed meeting a number of brethren and sisters whom we had known in the East. At the conclusion of the morning service the church appointed brethren O. D. Lyon, Silas Harter and J. D. Brubaker to take charge of, and distribute, the funds to those who are in need. Some are encouraged by the heavy snowfall here this winter, to hope for a good crop next year, but they must be supplied with corn, oats and wheat for seed. The brethren will use the money judiciously. Those having immediate necessity will be supplied as far as possible, and seed-grain will be purchased and distributed among those who are not able to purchase it.

From Sidney our best route to reach Western Kansas was via Cheyenne in Wyoming, and Denver, Colorado. We spent a day in Denver, waiting for a train to take us into Kansas. The city has had a wonderful growth since our first visit here in 1877. Being so near our Brethren at Longmont, Colo., we had a strong desire to visit them, but the work in hand seemed pressing and urgent, and we had to forego the pleasure.

On the train, in Western Nebraska, we fell into conversation with a very pleasant, elderly gentleman. He was a Norwegian by birth, but had lived many years in this country. The conversation was turned upon Christianity. He was a communicant of the State Church of Norway (Lutheran). In our talk we gave him, in answer to a very courteous inquiry, a brief outline of the faith and practice of the Brethren church. He gave very marked attention to all we had to say on the subject, and then said in substance: I like your doctrine; it is Scriptural. Your baptism is all right, but we think sprinkling will do, and that the Lord will accept it as valid baptism. Feet-washing was evidently practiced by Christ, and he told his disciples that they ought to wash one another's feet, but we think that if we have the spirit of humility it will be accepted, whether we wash feet or not. We replied that this might be so, but in the position taken there was an element of doubt. We prefer to stand on sure ground, by following the example and the commandments of our Master. We felt, that to do as he commanded us was absolutely safe, while to pursue the other course left us in doubt, as to our acceptance with him. But if we, from the heart, obey the form of doctrine to which we have been delivered, we shall be safe. Here the conversation closed.

Reflecting on what had been said, afterward, we wondered why it is that so many people are willing to take chances as to obeying God's Word. A plain command is given, and they say, "Yes Christ said that we should do that, but then we think he will not require us to answer if we do not obey it." They seem to be honest, too, in their opinions. The query with us is, "If the Lord didn't want his followers to do these things, why did he leave them on record?" We believe he wants us to obey him in all things, and in that line only there is absolute safety.

Quinter, Kansas, via Cheyenne, Wyoming and Denver, Colo., was our next stopping place. Here we met a number of our members, and the following committee was appointed to take charge of and distribute funds: Eld. John Eikenberry, Eld. B. B. Whitmer and Bro. J. B. Spurgeon. Help is needed in Thomas, Sherman, Philipps, Norton and Cheyenne Counties. In each of these Counties there are organized churches of the Brethren, and distribution will be made through these organizations. Bro. B. B. Whitmer started at once for the destitute localities, and brethren Eikenberry and Spurgeon will look after the needy ones nearer home. The plan of appointing responsible brethren to take charge of the work of distributing the funds, meets with very general approval. These brethren go into the districts that are reported to be in need, and see to it that the money is properly used.

At McPherson, Kansas, we were fortunate enough to find representatives from some fourteen churches attending the Bible School in session at that place. A meeting of the brethren was called, and Eld. Enoch Eby, and brethren W. A. Rose and A. F. Miller, all of Booth, Kansas, were appointed to take charge of, and see to, the distribution of money in South-western Kansas. This closed our work, so far as Nebraska and Kansas is concerned. The matter of distribution in Dakota will be arranged as soon as it is possible to attend to it. On our trip we traveled about 3,000 miles. We arranged with the various railroads by advertising for them in the MESSENGER, so that we paid out no money for railway fare, except from McPherson to Hutchinson, a distance of twenty-eight miles. Thus the money donated has been placed in the hands of responsible brethren with but little expense, and these brethren will see to it that it goes into the hands of the needy.

EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY.

WE are constantly in receipt of letters inquiring as to the best works on the Evidences of Christianity. These inquiries grew out of the fact that we are compelled to meet infidelity to-day on almost every hand, and the fact that inquiries of this kind are being made by many of our ministers, shows that they are anxious to inform themselves fully on the grounds of Christian Evidences so that they may be amply prepared to meet the objections urged by unbelievers against the Bible.

Recently, in connection with the Bible Term at this place, we gave the subject a careful research, and examined a number of books, which we found to be very helpful in our work. We herewith submit a list of these works for the benefit of those who desire to prepare themselves fully on this important subject. We give the books in the order in which they appear to us to be the most valuable for the use of our ministers.

1. Paley's Evidences of Christianity, new edition,..... $1 25
2. Nelson on Infidelity,..... 75
3. Manual of Christian Evidences,..... 75
4. Many Infallible Proofs,..... 1 25
5. Divine Demonstration,..... 1 50
6. The Bible in the Nineteenth Century,.... 40
7. Grounds of Theistic and Christian Belief, 2 50

The last book named in the list is, in some respects, the best in the list, and those, who have had advantages of considerable study, will find it invaluable. For those who have not given the subject much attention, the books as they occur in the list, will be found to be most helpful. The figures attached are the publishers' prices, and they can be supplied from this office, postage prepaid, at the above-named cost. Special terms will be made to ministers, who desire to secure the entire list of books. Write for special terms.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

AT a meeting at McPherson, Kansas, there were present elders and members representing thirteen churches in Kansas. By their unanimous voice Eld. Enoch Eby, brethren W. A. Rose and A. F. Miller, all of Booth, Kans., were chosen a relief committee, into whose care Bro. D. L. Miller (who is, by the Northern District of Illinois, sent West to distribute relief to Western sufferers) committed some means for distribution to the needy in South-western Kansas. It was also the unanimous sentiment of the above meeting, that any money, raised for the above-named purpose, should be sent to Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., and distributed through the systematized arrangement, set on foot by the Northern District of Illinois.

MISSIONARY OUTLOOK.

BY GALEN B. ROYER.

DEAR brethren and sisters, let our motto for this year be, "One cent or more laid by every week for the Lord's work."

* * *

To my mind, one of the strongest arguments in favor of missionary work is, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should have everlasting life."

* * *

We are glad to note the improvement made in the Brethren's Almanac for 1891. Outside of it being a good almanac, and having, as near as possible, a complete list of our ministers, the article, headed "The Brethren or 'Dunkards,'" is worth many times the cost of the book. This is so, because it sets forth, in clear and simple language, both a brief history of the Church of the Brethren and an explanation of her doctrines. From this stand-point it serves as a tract setting forth that which, if I am correctly informed, is not found in any other of our church publications.

The Almanac for 1891, issued by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, is one full of interesting facts and valuable information. Besides giving general information about all the mission fields of the world and the different Home and Foreign Missionary Societies, it gives many good illustrations of Bible Lands, and startling facts concerning heathen countries. In the table giving statistics of Foreign Missionary Societies of the United States for 1889-90, the Brethren's church finds a place. By comparison, we find that she has given the least amount of money for foreign work, but comes up in the list when we look at the number of foreign members, and the number added to the church by baptism, during the year.

Oh, that we were more zealous in carrying the Words of Life to heathen lands, and to those who have not heard it in its purity; not to make a better show in a missionary almanac, but for the sake of souls and a better showing in God's book of accounts!

When burdened with the cares of this life, or over anxious for gain in this world, we too often forget, "Are we living a life that will make us happy when we die?" Sir Walter Scott has well said, "When the hour of trouble comes to the mind or the body, or when the hour of death comes, that comes to high and low, then it is not what we have done for ourselves, but what we have done for others, that we think on most pleasantly."

How true! How little the things we labored for and hoarded up in this world, concern us when death is near, and with what a degree of joy we dwell upon our good deeds! Only one regret, "Had I just done more of them," is heard.

We sometimes hear missionary enthusiasts lament because the church is so indifferent to missionary work—is so loath to give of her means to the spreading of the Gospel. Yet when we look at it properly, there is a reason for it. As the minister preaches, in a large measure will his congregation act. He is the shepherd: the sheep know his voice and follow him. If he says nothing about the duty and importance of helping to spread the Gospel—few, if any of his flock, will help. If he teaches that the "earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," and then is one of the most liberal to give, the individual members of the congregation will be interested and active in mission work. While through the medium of the press, many may be led to see their duty in this direction, there will not be that concert of action that many desire to see all over the Brotherhood, until our ministers teach and preach and give example that we are only stewards and not sole owners of what we possess; that the great business of each Christian in this world is not to sit down and selfishly enjoy Christ, (if that be possible) but to carry him to those who know him not; and that we must obey all of Christ's commands, the last one, "Go ye into all the world," etc., as well as the first ones that came to us, "Believe, repent, and be baptized." When a due portion of such preaching is proclaimed from every one of our pulpits, the Mission Board will have consecrated laborers and means enough to prosecute this great work properly. Let us take thought of this, my brother minister, and do our duty in this direction, is my earnest prayer.

A WORK FOR THE CHURCH.

BY SAMUEL T. HARNES.

"I know thy works."—Rev. 3: 8.

IN every epistle the Lord Jesus says, "I know thy works." That repeated expression is very striking. The Lord Jesus says to one, "I know thy labor and patience;" to another, "Thy tribulation and poverty;" to a third, "Thy charity and service and faith," but to all he uses the words, "I know thy works." It is not, "I know thy profession, thy desires, thy resolutions," but "I know thy works."

Reader, the works of a professed Christian are of great importance. They can not save our souls, they can not justify us, they can not wipe out our sins, they can not deliver us from the wrath of God, but still they are of importance. The man who thinks he can be saved by works alone is fearfully deceived, and yet, on general principles, a man's works are the evidence of his faith. If we call ourselves Christians, we must show it by our daily walk and works. The faith of Abraham was proved by his works. Was he not justified by works when he was willing to offer Isaac, his son, upon the altar? James 2: 21. Remember, it avails you and me nothing to profess we know God, if, in our works, we deny. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus: "Every tree is known by its fruit." Luke 6: 44.

Again Christ said, "Go therefore and teach all nations." You and I may say, "We are not able." Remember the two mites cast into the treasury. Should not we put our mites together and send the good news far and near? Whatever the works of a professing Christian may be, Jesus says, "I know them." His eyes are in every place, beholding the evil and the good. We never spoke a word no, not even a whisper, but Jesus heard it. We never wrote a letter, even to our dearest friend, but Jesus read it. Even the most secret thought is familiar to him. All things are open and manifest before him. He says to every one, "I know thy works."

If this be true, we should be very careful how we use our talents and the goods that are entrusted to us,—the gold and silver. The Lord Jesus knows the works of all. They are not forgotten in heaven, though they may be upon earth. When the great white throne is set and the books are opened, the dead will be judged according to their works. The Lord Jesus knows the works of his own people and weighs them. He knows the why and wherefore of the deeds of all believers; he sees their motives in every step they take.

Ah, reader not a few things are done by believers which seem very good to you and me, but are rated very low by Christ! The Lord Jesus knows the works of all his own people and will one day reward them. He never overlooks a kind word or a kind deed done in his name. He will own the least act of faith and declare it before the world in the day of his appearing.

Reader, if you love the Lord Jesus and follow him, you may be sure that your work and labors shall not be in vain in the Lord. The works of those that die in the Lord shall follow them, because they are done in love. "He that loveth God, loveth his brother also," and will show him that he loves him by letting his light so shine before him, and presenting him with the Truth, as it is in Jesus, in the form of tracts or the Bible itself.

Remember that, as it is stated in the parable of the pounds, every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor. Jesus said, "I know thy works." What a solemn warning!

Our Heavenly Father finds pleasure in our poor, feeble efforts. He approves of our efforts in publishing periodicals, books and Bibles, and of our preaching and teaching the Gospel. Let all believers take comfort in the promises of the Lord, and while we realize that the Lord knows all our works, let us look within and calmly consider which objects chiefly occupy our thoughts and engage our desires. Are they things of earth or things of heaven and the salvation of men? What do we most value? Think of it, Jesus says, "I know thy works."

LECTURES ON MISSION WORK.

Delivered in McPherson College Chapel, by Eld. Daniel Vaniman, and synoptically reported by Eld. John Forney.

THIS interesting and important subject was treated under the seven following heads:

1. Authority for Missionary Work.—It was shown that missionary work for the propagation of the Christian religion is not only authorized, but required by the Highest Authority known to man.

The authority is direct from him who has all authority in heaven and in earth. It is sustained by the power of him who is the Creator and upholder of all things, by him for whom are all things, and in whom all things consist. The words, "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature, teach all nations," etc., contain the Master's orders for his entire army, for all time to come, accompanied by the never-failing promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

2. The History of Missionary Work.—Under this head it was shown that the history of missionary work may be traced farther than the confines of earth. The first missionary society was organized in heaven. It is composed of FATHER, SON AND HOLY GHOST. One of their number was sent as a missionary. He laid his plans broad and deep. The place, to begin operations, having been determined, he chose his own helpers, kept them with him for three and one-half years, under his own immediate instruction. After this three and a half years' term of training, he left the work in their care, returned to the Father, and sent the Holy Spirit to the field, to comfort and help carry forward the work through all coming time.

3. The Missionaries of the Past.—A missionary is one sent to propagate religion. The first and greatest of all missionaries for the propagation of the Christian religion is Jesus of Nazareth, sent from another world to this. He was sent by the Father with authority to send others. "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." John 20: 21.

Thus sent, they went, and faithful workers are still being sent. Many of their names were mentioned and their work explained.

4. The Gospel System of Missionary Work.—The speaker showed that the Gospel is pre-eminently a book of principles, and therefore any system that accomplishes the object, required by the Commander, is a Gospel system, and the system which does the most and best work, in the particular part of the great field among the people and amid the surroundings where the work is to be done, is as good as any. Over two hundred missionary societies, for the propagation of the Christian religion, are now in active operation, varying in detail, but having the same end in view. Here the Brethren's system was illustrated on the blackboard, by a large tree, representing the general Brotherhood. A mark on the trunk near the roots of the tree represented the General Church Erection and Missionary Committee. The thirty-two large limbs of the tree each represented a State District with its Church Erection and Missionary Committee marked near the junction of the branch with the trunk of the tree. The branches on the large limbs represented the churches of the districts. Thus was the entire missionary work of the Brotherhood shown to be all one system. Many suggestions were offered for enlarging the tree, until the limbs and the branches thereof should reach every country on the globe.

5. The Relation of the Church to Missionary Work.—This was shown to be the same as the relation of the branches to the vine,—the members of the natural body to the body, and the natural body to the head of the body, which is Christ. As the head directs, so each member should perform the part for which he is adapted, and thus carry forward the work designed and ordered by the Head, which is Christ.

6. The Qualification for Missionaries.—It was shown under this head that the supreme qualification, the bottom foundation of all, is love. The three great masters of Christianity are agreed upon this. Paul, in 1 Cor. 13, contrasts it with the eloquence of the tongues of men and of angels, with the gift of prophecy, with all knowledge, and all faith and many other desirable qualifications, and places it above all. Peter says, "Above all things, have fervent love among yourselves." John goes still farther and says, "God is love." The more love there is in the missionary, the more there is of God, and the more of God in us, the greater our power.

Secondary qualifications were also pointed out, as well as our relations to the principles, underlying the possession and use of these missionary qualifications.

7. The Present Missionary Field and how to Cultivate it.—The most practical topic of all was embraced in the surveying of the entire field, which was explained to be the world. Thus there was brought before the mind, an idea of the amount of work already done by the two hundred missionary societies and the seven thousand missionaries and their helpers, now in heathen, or partly heathen, lands.

8. The Amount of Work yet to be Done to fulfill the Command of the Master.—Christ said, "Preach the Gospel to every creature," and in regard to this point, some practical suggestions were made, how to reach the rank and file of the whole army, with the teaching that will arouse and bring into action the hidden influence, yet slumbering beneath the surface,—the broad and far-reaching influence which has been set to work by D. L. Moody and other experienced workers. Each year these workers collect hundreds of college students from the leading colleges of this and other countries, to Northfield College, Mass. With the help of experienced missionaries from heathen fields, one or more of the summer months are spent in instructing and inspiring them with the knowledge and zeal, necessary to carry on the cause in their colleges and in heathen countries, which many of them will, sooner or later reach. Some of the soul-stirring speeches, made by the the experienced workers above referred to, are annually collected and published in book form, by the Fleming H. Revell Company, Chicago, Ill.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

SERIOUSLY ILL.—The prayers of the church are asked in behalf of our son, who is under the hand of affliction, and suffering severely. Brethren, remember him at a Throne of Grace.—John Ikenberry, Plum Tree, Ind., Jan. 21.

SEVEN ACCESSIONS.—Bro. C. H. Holsinger commenced a series of meetings in the Pleasant Hill church, Ill., Jan. 23, and a commendable success is already apparent. Saints have cause to rejoice, for sinners are coming home. There were seven baptized on Sunday, and more will follow.—James Wirt, Jan. 28.

SIX SOLDIERS FOR CHRIST.—Bro. David Dilling, of Monticello, White Co., Ind., came to the Snake Spring church, Bedford Co., Pa., Jan. 10, and remained until Jan. 26. During that time he preached twenty sermons, and six dear souls were baptized. Bro. Dilling labored earnestly for us, and the church was built up. May many others, who are seriously considering the cost, decide to come ere it is too late!—Solomon Hershberger.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—Bro. Hiram Kreighbaum, of South Bend, Ind., came to the Pokagon church Jan. 17, and remained until the 29th, delivering, in all, fourteen discourses. During this time he held forth the Word with power and earnestness, so that all became interested in the meetings. While none made the good resolve, we hope that the future will show that the labors of our brother have not been in vain. May God bless the good work every-where, and may his Spirit abide with us all!—Ida Stretch, Jan. 29.

FIVE ADDITIONS.—A very interesting meeting is now in progress in our Painter Creek house, in the Ludlow congregation, Ohio. Bro. J. B. Trout is doing the preaching. Five have been baptized, so far, and there are more applicants to-day.—Jesse Stutsman.

ONE BAPTIZED. The members at Edna Mills, Ind., have, since Bro. Henry Frantz left there, baptized one more dear soul. I hope others will soon follow her good example. We expect Bro. Daniel Mohler, of Illinois, to hold a week's meetings in this congregation soon.—John E. Metzger, Jan. 26.

PLEASANT MEETINGS AND COUNCIL.—The Brethren of the Tippecanoe church, Kosciusko Co., Ind., held a series of meetings from Dec. 20 to Jan. 4. Although we had no accessions, yet we had good meetings, and hope that good results may follow. We held our quarterly council-meeting Jan. 3. Much business came before the meeting, but all was disposed of satisfactorily. Daniel Rothenberger, Jan. 27.

ONE BAPTIZED. The members of the Four Mile church, Ind., enjoyed an interesting series of meetings at their White Water meeting-house, beginning Dec. 25 and ending Jan. 2. The meetings were conducted by Bro. Joseph Holder, of Deweyville, Ohio. The Gospel was preached in its primitive purity. One dear sister was added to the fold. The brethren and sisters were encouraged, and admonished to faithfulness in every line of Christian duty.—Wm. McWhorter, Jan. 26.

THE KANSAS CITY MISSION.—Our meetings are gaining in attendance. Jan. 18 Bro. Isaac Barto, of Iowa, preached to a fair congregation. We have now arranged for meetings on the first and third Sundays of each month, at 11 A. M., and on the Saturday evening preceding, at 7: 30 P. M. The place of meeting is on the elevated railroad running from the Union Depot to Chelsea Park. Go to the Park, then one and a half blocks to Chelsea Park School-house. All interested will please attend. Any one having friends in the city should inform them as to the place and time of services. Isaac H. Crist.

TWO ACCESSIONS.—Bro. Daniel Shively, of Peru, Ind., began meetings in the Bear Creek church, Ohio, on the evening of Jan. 10, and continued until the 25th. While there were no additions, we felt there were several who had heard the wooings of the Spirit. After the meetings were closed, a young man and his wife came to the Brethren for admission to the church. They were asked if they would wait a week until the regular meeting, but preferred to be received at once. A meeting was therefore appointed on Monday morning, and a goodly number assembled. The applicants were gladly received, and we hope that more will follow who are so near the kingdom!—M. B. Weybright, Jan. 27.

TEN ACCESSIONS.—Elder Levi T. Holsinger, of Ladoga, Ind., came to New Enterprise, Pa., to labor for the church here, Jan. 8, and remained until the 26th, preaching in all twenty-seven sermons. They seemed to be very much appreciated, as was evidenced by the close attention given, and the increased attendance, which continued until the close, on the evening of Jan. 25, when there were probably nine hundred persons present. Ten souls were added to the church by baptism, and we are glad to report a general awakening of the membership to a higher appreciation of their duties and privileges. The best wishes of the church here follow our dear brother to his other fields of labor, and we hope he may yet be given many years of service for the Master.—Geo. S. Myers, Jan. 27.

SIX SOULS FOR THE LORD.—I am at present holding a series of meetings in the Millmine church, Ill. So far six have been baptized and others are counting the cost.—Michael Flory, Jan. 31.

FOUR ACCESSIONS.—Eld. Andrew Hutchison preaches during the week each evening, at the College Chapel, McPherson, Kans. Four were received into the church to-day.—S. Z. Sharp, Jan. 25.

PROSPECTIVE MEETINGS.—Bro. Appleman is to commence a series of meetings in the Paint Creek church, Kans., on the evening of Feb. 14. I hope to give a good report at the close of the meetings. —A. C. Numer.

GOOD MEETINGS.—Dec. 17, 1890, Bro. Amos Moomaw, of Bed Rock, Marion Co., came to Altoona, Iowa, and held several meetings for us in our school-house. We had good meetings, pleasant weather and excellent attendance.—J. W. Moats.

MINISTERIAL AID DESIRED.—The church at Rushville, Nebr., though in a good condition, is much in need of ministerial help. Our elder is not able to do much, owing to the infirmities of old age, and we hope that some one will come to our assistance, and aid us in the work of the Lord. —J. W. Reehm.

INTERESTING MEETINGS. Bro. John Barnhart came to the Mount Vernon church, Jefferson Co., Ill., Jan. 15, and held a short series of meetings. Some favorable impressions were made, but, as it is too often the case, he went away too soon. We have reason to believe that if he had staid a while longer, much good would have resulted.—D. F. Eby, Jan. 28.

FOUR ACCESSIONS.—Bro. Paul Wetzel preached for us from Jan. 14 to the evening of the 25th. By his labors the members were much revived and four were added to the church by baptism. Others are counting the cost seriously. May the new-born babes in Christ hold out faithful, and be a light to the world.—Israel Brown, Wichita, Kans., Jan. 26.

INSTRUCTIVE BIBLE TERM.—Our Bible course at McPherson, is nearing its close. We were made to feel glad to see that our brethren who had the matter in hand, adhered so closely to the Bible, and brought forward such overwhelming proofs of the genuineness and truthfulness of the Blessed Book. To the writer it was a grand privilege, to be permitted to attend such a school. This week I have had to deny myself the privilege of being with the class, on account of a turn of La Grippe. I hope now, to be out again in a day or two.—A. Hutchison, Jan. 28.

EIGHT ACCESSIONS.—Jan. 24, was the quarterly council in the Hickory Grove church, Miami County, Ohio. All business passed off with the best of feelings. It was clearly demonstrated what may be done for missionary work when Brethren go to work in earnest. Bro. Bennett Trout, of Springfield, Ohio, came to us Dec. 27, and gave us a series of meetings at West Charleston. As an immediate result of the meetings eight were received by baptism, four of whom were between eleven and thirteen years of age. The saints were much encouraged. Our afflicted brother, Jacob Frantz, of whom we spoke in our last correspondence, desires the prayers of the church in his behalf. Soon after the loss of his companion he met with a sad accident, the results of which are slowly but surely wearing his life away. He is now almost helpless. At present we are having meetings at the Old Grove church, with Bro. Honeyman, of Gettysburg, Ohio, behind the stand.—Jacob Coppock.

THREE ACCESSIONS.—Bro. D. M. Garver came to the Price's Creek church, Ohio, on the evening of Jan. 17, and held a series of meetings until Jan. 25. While no one made the good confession, during the meetings, we were made to rejoice when, at our quarterly council, to-day, three souls came forward and were baptized. At the council everything passed off satisfactorily.—Jos. Longanecker, Jan. 29.

TWO RECEIVED BY BAPTISM.—Bro. Daniel P. Shively has just closed a two weeks' series of meetings in the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio. At the close of the meetings, Jan. 25, two,—a brother and sister,—came out on the Lord's side, and were baptized next day. We had good meetings and hope that both saints and sinners have been benefited by the services.—Levi A. Harries, Jan. 26.

GREAT INTEREST AROUSED.—Brethren David Hollinger and Samuel Blocher came to the Hoglen church, Paulding Co., Ohio, Jan. 17, and preached for us until the 25th. Marked interest characterized the meetings. The people said that such strong impressions never were made upon them. Now, brethren, will we let the interest die out, or will some one come soon, to finish the work, so nobly begun by our dear brethren?—G. M. Lauter, Jan. 17.

ONE ON THE LORD'S SIDE.— The Brethren at Lewiston, Minn., have just closed a ten days' series of meetings. We had good meetings, fine weather and excellent attendance. Bro. O. J. Beaver, of Fredericksburgh, Iowa, did the preaching. We are much encouraged and built up. One was made willing to leave the world and join in with the people of God. Others are near the kingdom, and almost persuaded to become Christians. During the meetings we raised a collection of $22.10 for the Western sufferers.—J. H. Wirt, Jan. 28.

MEETINGS AT A NEW POINT.—I commenced a series of meetings at a new point in Harlan County, Nebr., on the evening of Jan. 12, and closed on the evening of the 23rd. We had meetings every evening except on Saturday and Sunday evenings, when I filled appointments at another place, thirty miles from home. The attendance was very small at first but the interest as well as the attendance increased. While there were no additions, some were made to wonder why they never heard the Gospel preached in that way before. I distributed some tracts, but what the result will be, God only knows. One man said, "I read the tract, 'Why am I not a Christian?' and it hit me pretty hard." We need more help in the ministry. Who will come and help us?—J. P. Nofziger.

DO YOU STILL EXPECT TO GO EAST IN THE SPRING?—In answer to the above question, I say, yes. That is my present purpose (if the Lord will). I expect to start on said trip about March 1. I think of going via Chicago, Ill., and Dayton, Ohio. I expect to travel over the Baltimore and Ohio R. R, from Chicago, and will aim to preach for the Brethren at such places where they feel to hold meetings in the spring or before Annual Meeting. I do not expect to return over the same road. I think of returning through Virginia and West Virginia. Those who may wish to have some meetings between this and Chicago, will please inform me here, before I leave home. I intend to go to Chicago on the Rock Island Road. The time of my arrival at Chicago will depend on the amount of work which will be called for between this place and the City. I think of spending a few days with the Brethren in the City, as circumstances may seem to indicate.—A. Hutchison, McPherson, Kans.

THE WORK AT WICHITA, KANS.—My late series of meetings at Wichita commenced Jan. 15, and was continued for twelve days. The Lord brought fourteen souls to a knowledge of the Truth, of whom nine were baptized during the meetings; the others will be received into fellowship later on. I expect to hold a series of meetings at Kansas City and from there to return to my home in Iowa.—Paul Wetzel, Jan. 28.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—Bro. Moses Deardorff came to the Indian Creek church, Iowa, to hold some meetings at Gravel Point. As the measles broke out at that place, however, we thought it best not to commence the meetings there, and Bro. Deardorff agreed to stay with us here over Sunday, to preach some doctrinal sermons. These discourses have put many minds to thinking, and made the church here stronger in the faith.—Thos. H. Higgs.

EXCELLENT ATTENTION.—By the request of the Brethren I commenced a series of meetings Jan. 17, at the Disciple church, east of Roanoke, Ind., where I had been holding meetings once a month during last summer. The twelve sermons that I delivered were received with excellent attention. The preaching was mainly of doctrinal character, and I hope many will be led to search the Scriptures to see whether "these things" be true. —Dorsey Hodgden.

MEMBERS GREATLY REVIVED.—The members of the Wyandot church, Wyandot Co., Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Jan. 17, and continued until the 25th. Brethren David Lytle and S. M. Loose conducted the meetings, and while we can not report any additions, yet we rejoice to say that all were much built up in the most holy faith. We also enjoyed an interesting children's meeting, in connection with our other meetings. At our annual council, preparatory to District Meeting, brethren Isaiah Heastand and Joseph Crumrine were chosen as delegates to District Meeting. The last-named brother was also chosen as correspondent for the MESSENGER.—Joseph Crumrine, Mexico, Ohio, Jan. 27.

Meeting Notes.

ON the evening of Dec. 19, I began a series of meetings at the Wheatville church, Preble Co., Ohio, and continued with increasing interest up to the 27th, when Bro. Joseph Longanecker, of the Price's Creek church, came to my aid, and labored faithfully for the Master's cause till New Year's Day. While there is no precious ingathering of sheaves to reward our labors, the bread is upon the waters and doubtless will be "gathered after many days." During my four years' of constant service in this church, I have never seen the cause more prosperous than at the present time.

Jan. 5, I left home for Cottage Grove, Ind.,—one of the meeting points in the Four Mile church, just twenty miles south-west of us, and joined the Brethren in a protracted effort at that place. We had about all the advantages that we could desire in conducting such meetings, except a week's work in the dark of the moon, but the congregations were good all the while and constantly increased till the second Sunday evening, when the house was filled to overflowing.

I was called home to solemnize the marriage of Bro. Charley Showalter and sister Almeda Phlei-

ger. During my absence, the large crowd of eager listeners was richly instructed by Eld. Jacob Rife. Returning the following day, I continued the meetings with unabated interest till Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, closing with four accessions by baptism, and many others so near the Kingdom that I was loath to leave them. I extend many thanks for favors shown me while there.

While laboring in that field, Bro. Peter Eikenberry met with a painful, and what may yet prove a fatal accident. While among his horses in the barnyard, one gave him a kick in the back, which broke one rib, fractured another and injured one lung. Being seventy-four years of age, the shock is very severe. Eld. Daniel Brower is also very feeble and is fast approaching his last setting sun. A. G. CROSSWHITE.

Gratis, Ohio, Jan. 26.

Florida Notes.

— ELD. F. W. DOVE, of East Tennessee, came to us Jan. 17th, and remained ten days. He commenced his meetings on Saturday evening, and did some very acceptable preaching, but on Tuesday was taken with a very severe attack of the La Grippe, which at once put an end to his meetings. By our simple way of treating that disease we had him up and around in a few days, but he was not able to preach before the following Sunday, and then only one sermon. His sickness was quite a disappointment to all of us, as we had expected a number of very pleasant meetings.

— The main object of Bro. Dove's visit was to assist in the ordination of Bro. E. J. Neher of Keuka, and Bro. J. C. Lahman, of Northern Illinois. The latter is now spending the winter here. The elders of Tennessee decided in favor of Bro. Neher's ordination, while the elders of Northern Illinois wrote me that we should also have Bro. Lahman ordained at the same time, for general missionary work. The ordination of both brethren took place Jan. 21. As Bro. Dove was too sick to leave the house, the ordination services were held at my house, in the presence of nearly forty members. The occasion was a very impressive one, and did much in the way of strengthening the faith of all the members.

—Both of these brethren stand well in the church and also out of it, and we feel that they will magnify their office and do a good work for the Lord. Bro. Lahman's ordination for general church work is certainly important, for the Mission Board is greatly in need of suitable elders for work in new fields.

—Our church interest is moving along very nicely. The La Grippe has been its rounds among us, but in this mild climate it is of short duration.

The Needs of the West.

EVERYBODY who "loves his neighbor as himself" is interested in the people who live in the destitute regions of the West and North-west.

To-day we are kept in-doors on account of the blizzard that is raging without. It is not very severe but it is always best to be on the safe side in temporal and physical matters; much more should we strive to be on the safe side in the spiritual and religious life, for our temporal and physical life is short at its longest period, but the spiritual knows no end.

Likely some who can not be witnesses to the want and woe of the homesteaders, think that exaggerated stories have gone out. My real convictions are that it would be hard to exaggerate the true state of the people. As for clothing, so far as we can learn, they are fairly supplied. However, some of the most needy have been missed. We have seen children running in the snow, barefooted. It is rather difficult to reach all with help. People live far apart and some of the country is immensely rough, and many of the farmers' horses are so weak and poor that they can travel but a short distance in a day. We are not fairly started yet in the work of distributing. Places where we had preached before, they are so anxious to have meetings that we can scarcely consent to leave the Word and "serve tables." Bro. G. E. Whisler has volunteered to take part of the burden of looking after the poor. If the distributing of temporal things could be followed with Gospel truth, the spiritual life of the people could be much improved. Temporal gifts seem to inspire confidence and give a hold on the people's affections which can be gained by no other method. There is much anxiety among the farmers about seed for spring and the condition of their horses for work.

Some are hopeful that the State will appropriate some grain for seed. But if the State continues quarreling about the elections, she will exhaust all her means so that there will be nothing left for the poor. Why will men spend so much "for that which is not bread, and their time for that which satisfieth not." I believe God will bless us, as a people, for opening our hands for the poor. Read Ps. 41; Deut. 15: 11; Prov. 10: 4. Examine what Jesus says about the poor.

"Pride costs more than hunger, thirst and cold." Let the world make its show as it always did and will, at the Columbian Exposition in 1893 at Chicago, but let us, who belong to another kingdom, not lay up our treasures on earth, neither build monuments of marble, etc., but exchange earthly coin for heavenly by helping the poor and giving to the mission cause, to spread the Gospel. Help the kingdom of Christ in every way you can. I am sure all will do so when they know they belong to the heavenly family. J. E. YOUNG.

Wayside Notes.

I MET with the Brethren of the Canton church, Stark Co., Ohio, Jan. 11, and continued our labors until Jan. 29. It pleased the Divine Father to give us delightful weather and a gracious outpouring of his Holy Spirit. The church worked together in behalf of the good cause and the Lord made known the power of his salvation. Thirteen precious souls made the good confession and, we trust, will continue on the highway of holiness.

As the writer has assisted the Canton church in several series of meetings, previous to this, we can speak of the dear ones there as a loyal band of warm-hearted and faithful Christian workers. While they have much opposition on every side, yet, under the loving appeals and efficient leadership of our dear, aged brother, Eld. Conrad Kahler, they are moving triumphantly onward and upward. May God abundantly reward them all for the kindness we received at their hands while among them! I. D. PARKER.

We are now among the destitute, using the means to the best of our judgment. We take a receipt of every one who receives help. By this means we can show where every dollar has been used when our work is done.

Some may think that, because they have only a dollar or fifty cents, it will not be worth while to send that. We came to the little sod home of a widow and her daughter a few days ago, who said one dollar was all they had wherewith to buy. When that was all they did not know what they would do. Another was using the siftings of her meal for bread.

Many little sums aggregate a large amount, so let all send what they have. J. E. YOUNG.

From the Conestoga Church, Lancaster Co., Pa.

THIS church is very seldom heard from. Though one among the oldest and first-organized churches in Eastern Pennsylvania, it, like many other churches, has had its seasons of prosperity and adversity. Bro. Joseph Myers is our elder. He has, however, retired from active church work, as he is past the eighty-fourth mile-stone of his earthly pilgrimage. Our ministering brethren are R. S. Reidenbach, John Grabil, Hershy Groff, and Jacob Pfautz.

Nov. 22, 1890, a protracted meeting was commenced at the Earlville meeting-house by Bro. Hiram Gibble, who, in fourteen sermons, labored faithfully to declare the message of salvation. Two were added to the church by baptism.

Dec. 13 another series of meetings was commenced at the Blue Ball meeting-house by Bro. E. W. Stoner, who also preached fourteen sermons. One made the good resolve, while others are much impressed.

Let us, dear brethren and sisters, often think of the covenant, made with God, and see how we are fulfilling the same. Let us not try to see how far we may wander away from God, and engage in worldly affairs and sinful pleasure, but let us rather endeavor to live up to the standard of the religion of Jesus Christ, that we may be a light to those outside. If there are those who are weak in the faith, let us endeavor with the spirit of meekness and love to strengthen them, that we may all go hand in hand, and press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philpp. 3: 14.

During last year seven were added to the church, and there is one applicant at present. Two brethren have been called away. Bro. Thomas McGallager, aged eighty-three years, and Bro. George Seldomridge, aged sixty-five years.

Dec. 27 friend John Grabil (father of our ministering brother, John Grabil) died, aged eighty-eight years and one day.

J. W. TAYLOR.

From Fulton Co., Ind.

THE little band of brethren and sisters located in the south-eastern part of Fulton County, have been strengthened, spiritually and numerically.

Jan. 10 brethren John Wright and Noah Fisher came to us and preached nine sermons. Jan. 17 Bro. Wright was called to other fields of labor, and Bro. Frank Fisher assisted in continuing the meeting until Sunday night.

The meetings were well attended and good order prevailed during all the meetings. The Brethren "contended earnestly for the faith once delivered unto the saints."

As an immediate result, five precious souls confessed their sins and were buried with Christ in baptism to walk in newness of life. Our prayers are that they may ever keep their backs to the sinful world and their faces turned Zionward, and at last secure that home, prepared for all of God's children.

There is one more applicant for baptism and many others are counting the cost. May God help them to decide for right, before it is forever too late!

We are isolated from the church, but the Brethren preach for us the first Sunday of each month.

Deceased was an applicant for membership in the church, and at one time during the fall had agreed with Bro. Shreve upon a time to be baptized, but when the time came was not strong enough to attend to it.

This is another sad warning to the living to "prepare to meet thy God," before the awful summons comes. "Thou shalt die and not live." A wife and seven children are left to mourn their loss. THURSTON MILLER.

PAUL.—In the Clover Creek congregation, Pa., Dec. 11, 1890, Bro. Daniel Paul, aged 79 years, 11 months and 9 days.

To this union were born twelve children, four of whom preceded him to the spirit world. There are also twenty-six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren living. He always enjoyed good health to within about four weeks of his death, when he became afflicted with dropsy of the chest. He bore his affliction with Christian fortitude, and was prepared to meet the pale messenger. A few weeks previous to his death, he called for the elders of the church and was anointed in the name of the Lord. His children all live in Pennsylvania, and were present at his funeral. If they heed their father's good admonitions and live devoted Christian lives, their next meeting will be where all is joy forever.

After hitching a horse to the buggy, for his parents to go to town, he went into the house, and, after sitting down, experienced a smothing sensation, and asked that the writer of this notice be sent for. But before I got to the place, he was silent in death. Funeral services conducted by Bro. John Metzler and the writer. JOHN NUSBAUM.

SHENBERGER.—At Buffalo, Mo., Jan. 6, 1891, Solomon Shenberger, aged 75 years, 9 months and 15 days.

The subject of this notice was born in Pennsylvania, March 21, 1815. He was married in Ohio to Miss Elizabeth Saylor, Aug. 14, 1838. Eight children blessed their union, seven of whom survive him. Several years after his marriage he removed to Indiana and from there to Missouri. He professed religion early in his life, and, after his removal to Indiana, united with the Brethren church, in which he remained a faithful and consistent member to the day of his death. He also served in the office of deacon.

He was confined to his room for four months, but his disease baffled the skill of the physicians. Toward the close of life his sufferings were intense, but he bore them with Christian fortitude.

His remains were laid to rest in the Buffalo Cemetery. We command to the God of all grace his disconsolate widow and fatherless children. SAMUEL DUNCAN.

He was married to Elnora First, April 23, 1878. Two sons were born to them, who, with his wife, two little boys, a father, mother, two sisters, three brothers and many other friends mourn their loss. May God comfort the mourning friends. Funeral services by Bro. D. Shidler, assisted by the writer and Bro. H. Wike. SAMUEL MURRAY.

HOFFMAN.—In the Indian Creek congregation, Westmoreland Co., Pa., Nov. 15, 1890, sister Sarah Hoffman, aged 57 years, 6 months and 25 days.

ANOTHER LETTER.

JUST about this time people are writing to us, seemingly in ecstasy over what they call a "Drugless System of Treatment." At the same time they seem to condole with medicine makers, believing that their means of living will now be at an end.

The writer was born with large inquisitiveness, and has ascertained what this mysterious system of treating human ailments might be, or rather what it is.

Yes, the wonderful discovery has been made, while indeed it is drugless, it is by no means HARMLESS. Some may think, that taking a bath is harmless, but indeed, many people have lost their lives through reckless bathing.

This new "system," as it is called, is internal bathing, not bathing, which might be in itself harmless, but it is inflating the bowels with warm water by hydraulic pressure. The danger is in causing pockets to form in the intestines or bowels. Such a calamity could not be overcome even by a surgical operation. If you want to test the power of a syringe, then fill a hogshead, the strongest one made, fill it full of water, bung it very tightly, then make a gimlet hole through the stave, just large enough to insert a syringe, then force water into the interior, and in a short time there will be an explosion. Thus having witnessed the force of hydraulic pressure will you substitute your own body for the hogshead, and speak of it as a drugless system?

How foolish of a person to risk his life applying this drugless system, when ten cents worth of HERBICURA would do the work, and which is positively harmless.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY.

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

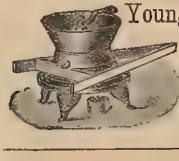
"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same. Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising."—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday-school music.

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday-school hymns are in great demand in Sunday-school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A. J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.



"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music."—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro. Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

CLOSE OF THE BIBLE SESSION.

One of the pleasant events of our late Bible Session was its closing on Friday, Jan. 30. All that came, with two exceptions, remained to the close, when a number of very touching talks were made by different members of the class. All expressed a most kindly feeling towards the work and the benefits received during the session, which, of course, gave us great pleasure, as the great burden of our prayers was that the work might prove to be a success. To this end we labored, and whatever success has been attained we attribute it all to the Lord, who is the source from which all that is good comes.

On our part, we are glad to say that all were excellent students, taking six classes or periods a day, and the lessons were well prepared, especially when we consider that some of the members of the class were from the farms and shops, and not accustomed to the work of a student. The greater part of them took in the full term of four weeks, and, as a result, got the full benefit of the session. We fondly hope that this was only a beginning, and that our future sessions may be greatly enlarged. We aim to do solid Bible work, such as will be helpful to all Christian workers, and our work is so systematized that we are enabled to do the greatest amount of work in the least possible time.

We feel greatly encouraged in the start we have made, and hope, by the blessing of God, we may be enabled to awaken a greatly increased interest in the study of the most important of all books, the Bible. Several of the class remained for the remainder of the regular school term, and classes are being continued in Bible study with encouraging interest and attendance.

We have received letters from a number, expressing their regret that they could not be with us, and that they hope to come by another year. All will be gladly welcomed.

VISIT TO PHILADELPHIA.

By request, we spent last Sunday with the Brethren in Philadelphia, and preached in their hired hall in the morning and evening. We were most cordially welcomed among them, and our visit was a pleasant one indeed. Their meetings are not largely attended, but a spirit seems to pervade the membership that makes them enjoyable.

In retrospecting the life and experiences through which this church has passed, we see much to admire and to call forth our sympathies. They have had their ups and downs,—especially the latter,—and when we consider the nature of them, the great wonder is that there is as much left as there really is, and we were made to wonder how many of our churches, that boast of their strength, would have passed through the fiery ordeal as this church did, and have come out any better, or as good. No true church test can be made independent of surrounding circumstances. This church manifests a zeal for the cause that is worthy of admiration. They are now building a new church house, which will tax their financial strength heavily, but determination like theirs knows no defeat. By the first of April they expect to have it ready for occupancy. And if they can then be successful in securing a loyal and devoted minister, we prophecy a brighter day for the the Philadelphia church. May our good Lord so lead and direct.

THE FOOT-LIGHTS.

In theaters and operatic performances the foot-lights have an important relation to those who are placed on the stage. Before them is the audience to be entertained, and the tastes and desires are so varied and many, that no point of attraction must be left undeveloped. This has special reference to the person or persons who come before the audience for their entertainment. The position, the movement of every member of the body, the hair, the face and the apparel must all be faultless, so that when the foot-lights are thrown on, no defect will be noticeable by the exacting and scrutinizing eyes of the beholders. This most severe demand is keenly felt by all who assume such responsibility, because they feel that their reputation is at stake. They stand before an exacting world and appreciate its meaning.

We, too, as professing Christians, stand before the great audience by which we are surrounded. We stand before the world as followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. We have promised to show to the world a pure life, devoted to the Master's work. We, every day, are placed on the stage and the foot-lights are flashed upon us with such burning brilliancy, that "the cloud of witnesses" behold our every action, and every movement is sharply scrutinized, every mistake seen. Do we feel that we have great responsibilities, and that our Christian reputation depends upon how we appear before the flashing foot-lights by which we are surrounded? Do we appreciate the grave responsibilities that are ours by profession?

Is there any difference between those who play for the flesh, and those who play for the soul? The most notable of the world's artists may fail on the theatrical stage, — the foot-lights may reveal the emptiness and sham, and the great audience may leave the place, loud in their expressions of disappointment, but where the harm, where the loss in such failure? Such disappointment may be great gain instead of loss. But how is it with those who play for the soul? A failure here may mean an inestimable loss, not only to the player, but also to the played for. Such loss would be so great that every one professing a discipleship to the Christ should feel alarmed and make every possible effort to so appear before the world, that when the foot-lights are turned on, there will appear no spot, blemish or any such thing. We are all playing a part on the stage of life that makes us deeply responsible for all of our actions. And we, as Christians (above all others), should feel these responsibilities and so direct our steps and actions, that it may truly be said of us, "Their lives are the light of the world."

The great trouble with us, to-day, as followers of Christ, is, we do not feel the weight of responsibility that is resting upon us, and the kind of influence we are exerting over those around and about us. Until we can feel this more, our power for good will be sadly deficient. God has so arranged that the world must be saved through us. And this power for salvation comes down to our personal lives. It is a work in which we are interested as individuals. We are to be walking, living preachers of the plan of salvation, and some lost soul may be looking to us for salvation. Have we ever thought how our life will appear to such as are looking when the foot-lights are thrown on? What will they see? Will they see in us the Christ, the Way, the Truth and the Life? Place your life outside of yourself just once, and take a good look at it. Look at it as you are sometimes disposed to look at your erring brother. Look until you are sure you have seen yourself all over, and we feel sure that it will do you good and result in good for others.

"No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, gentle, pure and good, without the world being the better for it."

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

GOD'S WAY IS BEST.

At early dawn I rose and prayed:
"My place and portion, Lord, this day
Appoint. O, let my soul be staid
On thee! Hedge with thy care my way,
That all I do may glorify
Thy name. Beneath thy wing
Hide me, lest Satan should draw nigh
To bruise me with his poisoned sting."

Still while the morning sunbeams played,
Like blithesome children round my door,
Sorrow had hung my way in shade,
And tears my path had watered o'er.
Nature rebelled against the fate
Of troubling griefs that thus molest;
But when the day had grown late,
I understood how it is best.

Grief turned my heart from vain desire,
And weeping blinded me to sin;
My longing eyes were lifted higher,
In hope of better things to win.
This was the answer to my plea,
Although I knew it not. His wing
All day had kindly sheltered me
From Satan's wiles and venomed sting.

O, troubled soul! Look up! Take heart!
When gathering clouds do overhang
Life's way. Celestial light will part
Them soon; and soothing strains which rang
Like joy-bells in the happy days
Gone by, shall be retuned when thou
Shalt comprehend God's strange, sweet ways,
And patience like a gem, adorns thy brow.

THE PRECIOUSNESS OF CHRIST.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

"Unto you therefore which believe, he is precious."—1 Peter 2: 7.

THE term precious means an object of great intrinsic value, or of external beauty.

A beautiful painting is precious to the eye, but has no intrinsic value. A rock of quartz may have no external beauty nor preciousness of surface, but intrinsically, is very precious, because of its value in gold. Thus Christ is precious to the believer, not so much from external beauty, as from intrinsic worth.

1. He is Precious to us as a Savior.—Imagine our condition, had we no Savior. We would have no hope and would be without God in the world. The world would have sunk into midnight darkness with no Savior, no Bible, no church, no ministry, no light to shine upon the dark way of sin, to lead us into the way of the Lord.

Had we no Savior, men would still be worshiping the work of their own hands,—idols,—gods of their own making, and darkness would cover the land,—gross darkness the people. He saves our souls from the ruinous effects of sin, and helps us make them pure. He fits us for eternal joys hereafter, in the world to come.

2. Christ is Precious as a Friend.—A true friend is the nearest kin we have. "He sticketh closer than a brother." Such a friend is Christ. To a friend, we unbosom our mind in the day of trouble. We feel that our friend, in some way, can help us. He can bear part of our trouble and give us comfort. Christ is a true friend in every time of need. Earthly friends, too often, when needed most, turn against us. They are only friends in our prosperity,—when we do not need them, but in adversity prove false. "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

Such a friend is Christ. The more we need him, the more willing he is to help. The more we are forsaken by others, the nearer Christ comes to us. "What a friend we have in Jesus!" The more we are tempted, the more he will help us. The weaker we feel ourselves to be, the stronger he becomes to us. The more we are troubled, the sweeter is his friendship. The more we are forsaken by others, the nearer he comes to us. He is a true friend in time and in eternity.

3. He is also Precious as a Priest.—A priest is one who bears the sins of others, and propitiates for them. The more sensibly the priest can feel the failings of others, the more successful will his intercession be. In this, Christ is a most merciful high-priest to us all. "He was tempted in all points as we are." "He was touched with the feeling of our infirmities," hence he is able to succor all that would come to God by him. He is thoroughly impressed, on every side, with the weakness of our humanity, and his divine power is able and willing to help us in time of need.

This is comforting to every believer to know that we have a merciful priest, who ever stands ready to aid us in our disappointments and sorrows here.

4. He is also Very Precious as a Leader.—Our condition in life is such that we are continually being led, either in the right or wrong direction. Christ and Satan are leading the human race. Christ leads to glory,—Satan to shame. It ought to be a serious question in the mind of each one, "Who is my leader?" To the believer, Christ is precious as a safe leader. He always leads in the path of peace, truth, love, temperance, patience, and into every good work,—on to final victory over the world, into the kingdom of eternal glory beyond.

Satan, as a leader, will be overcome and destroyed, and all that were led by him, while Christ, as a Leader, will ever remain, leading us on in the heavenly world to fountains of living waters.

5. He is Exceedingly Precious as a King.—One of the principal duties of a king is to look after the condition of his subjects, and to provide for their happiness in every way possible. In this Christ has no equal. His love for his subjects was so great that he gave his life for them.

No earthly king will condescend to a level with his subjects, but Christ, our King, came lower than the lowest of us, and acted in the capacity of a servant, instead of a ruler, and ministered to his subjects in every way, so as to relieve their sufferings and add to their happiness, both of soul and body.

No earthly king can be with his subjects always, hence does not know their needs at all times, but Christ will be with his subjects always, even unto the end of the world. He will supply all our wants, and guards us, day by day, against the dangers that otherwise might befall us.

Again, no earthly king will allow any of his common subjects to occupy the throne with him, but Christ promises to all his subjects, to sit on the throne with him and the Father and to reign with him.

How exceeding precious Christ is to the believer in every phase of human experience, as a Savior, Friend, Priest, Leader, King, and, we might have added, as Physician, able to heal every malady of the soul. May we so live as to be precious to him!

THE TRUE CHRISTIAN.

BY LISSA FREDERICK.

WE may well say that the religion, inaugurated by Jesus Christ, differs from all other systems, since it is the distinguishing glory of Christianity, not to rest satisfied with shallow appearances, but to correct the motives, and purify the hearts.

The true Christian, who obeys the lessons of Scripture, nowhere more deeply feels the insufficiency of his unassisted strength, or more earnestly prays for divine aid, than when he has exhausted all in his power, and yet longs for something higher and better than he has ever known.

He may well, indeed, watch and pray against the encroachments of a fierce disturbance of mind; which, when suffered to pass over unrestrained, is sure to prove ruinous to the distinguishing graces of the true Christian temper.

Our passions, too often, insensibly acquire force, because they are continually strengthened. Almost everything from without gives nutriment, and the growth of it within is carefully protected and aided by such powerful helpers as pride and selfishness, the natural and, perhaps, most tenacious inhabitants of the human heart.

Strongly impressed that there is a necessity of guarding against the progress of this untruthfulness, the earnest Christian thankfully exercises himself in the considerations suggested to him by the Word of God. He occupies much of his time in searching out and considering his own faults. He tries to acquire and keep a just conviction of his great unworthiness; and keeps in remembrance, that, whatever distinguishes him from others, is not properly his own, but that he is greatly indebted for all to the undeserved mercy of God.

Great care should be taken that we may not estimate ourselves too highly. Undeserved praise may often lead us to form a wrong conception of our true worth. And, yet, praises are a stimulus. They strengthen the growth of those qualities which the Bible enjoins upon all.

In all these things the Word of God must be our guide. Should we be tempted to win the favor, even of good men, let us remember that there is danger of being led into wrong by their influence. The only example we ought to follow in all things is the one given us by Jesus Christ. Him we know to be true. We can find no surer and safer Model than him who has suffered and died to save sinners, and wishes his children to walk in truth.

THE COMFORTER.

BY DAVID E. CRIPE.

WE hear but little said about the Comforter. The feeling seems to have spread over the people that they do not much need to be comforted, or if they do, they will look to the things of this world, and not to the Holy Spirit of God, for comfort.

At the time when the Comforter first came it was not so. When Jesus was taken and slain, the disciples sorely needed a Comforter. They had trusted it were he who should have redeemed Israel. Sinful, smitten, abject Israel surely needed a Redeemer. The disciples had hoped Jesus would establish an earthly kingdom, grander than that over which Solomon ruled, thus restoring the glory of Ancient Israel. Earthly hopes and human aspirations have never risen higher than they had in the hearts of the disciples. Jesus had explained to them the nature of his kingdom, and that he must suffer and die, and had tried to comfort them and prepare them for the great disappointment and sorrow that awaited them, but they had their plan so firmly settled in their minds that they would not understand him. He promised, when he was gone to send them another Comforter. While the Bridegroom was with them, they were not sad, and while the long-expected Messiah was in their midst, they could not realize the need of another Comforter.

Never was sorrow more crushing, despair more dark than that which filled their hearts while Jesus was dying upon the cross. It was as black and rayless as the darkness which enveloped the City and the Judean hills from the sixth to the ninth hour. But their despair left them not when light returned. They had forsaken every earthly consideration; they had left their boats and their nets by the sea, and their seats, at the receipt of custom, to other men, and had followed Jesus.

They had no one else, to whom to go. When Jesus was buried they sadly turned away to wander through the now empty world without him.

After the risen Savior appeared unto them and explained the Scripture to them, they began to understand the nature of his kingdom,—that it should be a spiritual kingdom, a kingdom in the hearts of men.

When Jesus had ascended, the disciples lingered at Jerusalem, hopeful, until the day of Pentecost was fully come, and the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, came and lighted on, and filled, each one of them. Jesus had promised that when the Comforter came, he should abide with the disciples forever. His office was to comfort them, to testify of Jesus, and to guide them into all truth. The record of the Acts of the Apostles, and the writings of these holy men show how fully the Comforter performed his mission in all these respects. He was with them all through their earthly career, and comforted them, and did not forsake them in death. They no longer mourned that their Best Friend had gone to heaven,—much less were they grieved over their shattered earthly ambition. Their lives, too, were cheerful, happy lives, in spite of the enemies that ever beset them and the persecutions and dangers they had to undergo. Their troubles and tribulations never made them gloomy and discouraged. Immediately after they were filled with the Holy Ghost, Peter,—no longer dismayed by the questions of weak sinners,—preached a powerful sermon to the enquiring Jews, testifying of Jesus, and explaining to them the truths of God which he now fully comprehended.

The Comforter, who was to abide forever with the disciples, and is as powerful to-day, to comfort, to encourage and to lead, as he was in the days of the apostles, still remains with all faithful followers of Christ. The Holy Spirit of God is as undying, unchanging as God himself. He is as wise and infallible, too, and makes no mistakes. What the Comforter does is completely done,—well done.

If we fall short of living the happy, holy lives which characterized the disciples and early Christians, the fault is on our part and not on that of the Comforter. It shows that we do not sufficiently divest ourselves of all prejudice and self, and do not fully yield ourselves to the influence and guidance of the Holy Spirit. If we, like the Israelites, murmur at the discipline, the sameness, the unhappiness of our present condition, and yearn for the bondage and fleshpots of Egypt, then our affections are not centered upon the proper object. Our state is sad, indeed, for the Comforter can not reach us.

If, like Lot's wife, we cast a longing, forbidden look behind us, at the wicked companions and pleasures we have left in the doomed valley of Sodom, we, too, are in danger of losing the power that enables us to press forward. We perish by the way as a monument of warning to others. Then we feel the need of a Comforter, but do not look to the Holy Ghost for it.

The Holy Spirit was no comfort to Ananias and Sapphira, who had kept back a part and tried to deceive. If we do not, in our conversion, surrender everything; if we try to keep some things back and make some mental reservations, such as doing, using or wearing forbidden things, then we follow in the tracks of those who tried to deceive, and can expect no comfort from the Holy Spirit, —the Spirit of Truth.

If we resign ourselves wholly to God and try to love, serve and obey him in all things, then his Spirit will comfort us. If we make any sacrifice for his sake, the Comforter will recompense us manifold, and will enable us to become bright and shining lights in the world. Then the sinful pleasures and amusements around us will have as little allurement for us as for the early Christians, and our lives will be as complete, cheerful and happy as theirs. "Delight thyself also in the Lord, and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart." Ps. 37: 4.

EVIDENCES THAT GOD'S WORD IS INFALLIBLE.

BY M. R. BASHORE.

EVERY effort on the part of man to deny the authenticity of God's Word has failed. All human efforts in that direction, have been utter failures.

One of the strongest evidences against those who claim that the Bible is the invention of man, is, that God has spoken nothing that should come to pass that has not, in due time, been fulfilled. Everything that the prophets have predicted and prophesied has, and will be, literally fulfilled. This is one of the strongest evidences we have of the authenticity of God's Word.

It would be utterly impossible for any human agency, or set of men, to devise something like the history of the Bible,—such of which the prophets have prophesied, and the fulfillment of which is recorded. The predictions of the prophets, concerning the coming of Christ, what his reign and kingdom on earth should be, how he should come into this world, his mission, his manner of life, his cruel treatment, how he should suffer and be crucified to redeem fallen humanity, I say again, have all been literally fulfilled. It would be an impossibility, on the part of man, or any set of men, to devise means that would, in the course of over four thousand years, harmonize and fulfill all these prophecies.

This is one of the most conclusive evidences that God's Word is authentic. It should cause every mind, who tries to evade the force of God's Word, to pause and consider.

The various convincing circumstances, related in the Bible, should incite every thinking and intelligent mind to fear God and obey his Word. Dear friend, read God's Word, but do not only read, but MEDITATE on what you read. Let your mind reach out far and wide, and your reading will become food for the mind and soul to feast upon. Look at nature, and up through nature to nature's God, and ask him to give you faith to dispel every doubt.

There is a possibility of man being and remaining in ignorance, because of a lack of proper information concerning the infallibility of God and his Word, but I do fail to see how an intelligent mind, when looking at nature,—the handiwork of God,—can have the least shadow of a doubt as to the authenticity of the Bible. Yes, the Holy Bible, when carefully and prayerfully read and studied, portrays divine truths to the mind. It becomes a mighty telescope that will bring to our view the beauties of the heavenly world. It is manna to the hungry and weary soul!

O, could our limited understanding grasp the object and design of our creation, it would incite us to live a more consecrated, a more holy and divine life. We would be better prepared to shun that which is evil, and love and obey that which is good. The man who has an unflinching, unwavering and abiding faith in God and his life-giving Word, is happy indeed. Though trials, difficulties, troubles and sorrows cross his pathway, he can, with joy, look through them all, knowing that the God whom he loves, fears and obeys, will lead him safely through by his strong arm. Our pathway is often crossed with sorrow and sadness,—all because we live at too great a distance from our Heavenly Father. In nine cases out of ten, we are the direct cause of all our troubles.

In taking up any book whatever, no matter on what subject, it soon becomes exhausted, and the enquiring and searching mind seeks after other treasures. But take the Sacred Volume,—the "Holy Bible,"—and we always find, in reading, perusing and meditating upon its sacred pages, something new. The more we read it, the stronger is our appetite and desire for reading, until our very soul is filled with the morsels of its sweetness.

My brethren, when we look at the greatness of God, we must exclaim, "Too deep, too deep for the finite mind to comprehend." Well might the Psalmist exclaim, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" Yet not one of the hairs of our head shall fall to the ground, without God's will. We are too ready to forget the goodness of God. He has created, redeemed and preserved us. It is our happy privilege to be his adopted children, and it is our Father's good pleasure to give us the kingdom.

Then let us dispel every doubt, thank God, believe his Word, trust his grace, and finally, if we are faithful to our calling, we shall hear that welcome plaudit, "Come up higher."

Van Dyke, Pa.

ANOINTING THE SICK.

BY JESSE CROSSWHITE.

My attention was called to this practice among the Brethren, more particularly, by the reading of an article prepared by Bro. D. L. Miller in the almanac for the current year. It is not the design of this article to criticise Bro. Miller's representation of the practice of the Brethren in the administration of this service, because I believe that Bro. Miller has, in this, as also in the other subjects treated, given a very correct exposition of the subject, as understood and practiced by the General Brotherhood.

My object in writing this is for the purpose of reasoning with the brethren on the prevailing practice among us, and, if possible, to convince them that, however time-honored the present practice may be, that does not make it any the more correct.

There are two points in the prevailing practice of the Brethren in the performance of this service, in which I think, they are at fault:

1. In the language employed in applying the oil.
2. In the design of the service, and the results to the sick.

I shall, in the first place, proceed to discuss what I understand to be the promised results to those believing sick, who, trusting in God and in his promises, "call for the elders of the church," and have this sacred service performed for them according to the directions of the apostle James. He says, "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him." James 5: 14, 15.

We notice in this statement of the apostle James that there are several essential things necessary in the correct observance of this sacred institution.

1. A believing sick person.
2. Faithful and believing elders.
3. Oil for the anointing.

4. That the anointing must be done in the name of the Lord.

5. That the prayer over the sick must be an earnest prayer of faith.

6. This "prayer of faith" must be to a certain end, or for a certain result.

Now any one must see that if any of these essentials are wanting in the performance of the service, the ceremony would be a mere farce, or at least not what is commanded in the case, and hence the result of the promise would fail to be realized. This brings us to the consideration of what the result of this anointing is to be. James says, "The prayer of faith shall save the sick." If, then, it is the prayer of faith that saves the sick, it can not be the anointing with the oil. The anointing with oil is only a means, while the prayer of faith is the cause. Hence we are not at all surprised that so many die, who, when sick, call in the elders of the church and are anointed.

In my varied experience, I have found but few elders of the church, who, according to my idea of requisite qualification, could perform this service to the full extent of the realization of all the blessings to be derived therefrom.

True, I am only human, and therefore not infallible in my understanding of Scriptural subjects, but I am quite sure of one thing,—if the Scriptures mean what they say, and say what they mean, then the view, held by many Brethren on this subject is incorrect, according to my understanding.

One of the points to which I wish to call special attention, is that contained in the words, "Save the sick," and "the Lord shall raise him up." The idea entertained by the General Brotherhood seems to be that this has reference to a future salvation, and to the "raising up at the last day." From this view I am compelled to dissent, and for my reasons for so doing, I offer the following Scriptural reasons:

1. While the word save, as found in the English translation, is the same as that found in Mark in connection with baptism, and may mean either present or future—it is not so in the German translation, and which all, I believe, admit to be the more correct of the two. If you will take the pains to examine the subject of the anointing, as given in the German Testament, you will at once be struck with the difference. I will here give the German:

Leidet Jemand unter euch, der bete; ist Jemand gutes Muths, der singe Psalmen. Ist Jemand krank, der rufe zu sich die Aeltesten von der Gemeine, und lasse sie über sich beten, und salben mit Oel in dem Namen des Herrn. Und das Gebet des Glaubens wird dem Kranken helfen, und der Herr wird ihn aufrichten; und so er hat Sünden gethan, werden sie ihm vergeben sein.

Now the words which I want to specially call your attention to in this quotation, are helfen and aufrichten, and then ask all who can do so, to carefully examine the meaning of these words in every place where they occur in the Scriptures, and see if, by any fair interpretation, they can ever be made to mean future salvation, or a raising up at the last day. I shall only have time in this to refer to a few cases as evidence of the correctness of my position.

First I will ask the reader to examine the case of the impotent man at the temple, whom Peter healed, as recorded in Acts 3: 7, "Und griff ihn bei der rechten Hand, und richtete ihn auf." Now there can be no shadow of a doubt in the mind of any what Peter did to this impotent man. All must readily admit that he raised him up from his prostrate condition. Then, if this be so, and if it be a safe rule to interpret the meaning of a sentence in Scripture which we do not understand, by a similar sentence about which there can be no doubt, I ask, "Why not apply the rule in this case?"

But, in order to make the case more certain, if possible, I will now call the attention of the reader to one of a different meaning, where the word "raise them up" occurs in the English. Here I would just remark that this seems to be the meaning which most of the elders, with whom I have conversed, ascribe to James 5: 15. Examine, if you please, John 6: 39, 40. Here Jesus is speaking of raising them up at the last day. While the English makes no difference in this, and that of James 5: 15, yet you will observe that the German makes a very marked distinction between the meaning of the two words and not only here, but throughout the entire Scriptures is this same difference maintained, the raising up at the last day always being auferwecken or auferweckt, while that of the present up-raising is always richtete ihn auf. I shall only ask for space in this article to give one more quotation from the German, as evidence on this question. In Mark 6: 13, we have it thus, "Und trieben viele Teufel aus, und salbeten viele Siechen mit Oel, und machten sie gesund."

Here it is expressly stated that the design of the anointing with oil was to make the sick sound, or as we would word it, make them well. But some will probably say, "Oh, this was done in apostolic times." Well, so it was, and so was baptism for remission of sins done in apostolic times. If we keep up apostolic practices, why not expect apostolic results?

But enough on this part of the subject for the present; we will give abundance of further proof if called on to do so, at some future time. The next question which engages our attention is, "What form of words is proper to use while administering the oil to the sick person?" Bro. Miller gives the formula, as generally used by the Brethren, in the Almanac, to which I before alluded. Now I do not want to be considered ultra, or of a disposition to quibble or find fault, but, honestly, I do not like the formula thus presented. My reasons are that I do not believe we have any right to make substitutes for sacred things, and I consider the one, as given by Bro. Miller and as accepted by quite a number of brethren, as being a substitute for the one given by the inspired apostle, St. James. While I give my reasons for objecting to the formula, as given by Bro. Miller, I do so with all due respect to all who may have accepted it as being Scriptural. I have said it is but a substitution for the one given by Inspiration and will here transcribe it, and then also give that which the "text" clearly authorizes, "Thou art anointed in the name of the Lord, for (unto) the strengthening of thy faith, for (unto) the comforting of thy conscience, and for (unto) a full assurance of the remission of thy sins." The inspired formula is, "Thou art anointed in the name of the Lord, that thou mayest be saved from thy sickness, and that the Lord may raise thee up, and if thou hast committed sins, they shall be forgiven thee."

Now, the reason why I believe the latter to be preferable to the former, is, because it embraces every promise contained in the ordinance while, on the contrary, the former is calculated from its very wording to weaken the applicant's faith in the realization of all the blessings promised to accrue to him in the performance of the ordinance, and I further believe that if the elders who are performing the service, would use the words which are clearly implied to be used, their faith also would be strengthened in their expectations of the realization of the blessings promised. But while we substitute something else in lieu of God's appointment, no marvel if our faith is too weak to realize the promises.

THE winter, so far, has been pleasant. We have had no snow, and the weather was just cold enough to keep fruit and vegetation from starting or swelling in bud.

In the last number of the MESSENGER, I see that J. M. Martin asks the question, "Why do not some of the brethren preach the doctrine to people of the South? The people here, at Carlisle, Ark., would gladly receive the Truth, and good results would follow." This may cause inquiry in the minds of some, as they know that we live here. We had several meetings in the Baptist church when we first came here, as they had no resident minister then. But they soon obtained one and we had no more calls to preach in their church houses, so we had no more meetings in the town. But in the vicinity around, we had regular meetings and still have. There might be some good done if the Brethren had a house of worship in Carlisle, but it would require those who claim to be members, to live up to the doctrine of Jesus.

I have thought much about the Hymn and Tune Book, whether it will be expedient or not to revise it. The cost, connected therewith, necessitating the members to buy a new book, probably is the greatest objection to the revision. There is no doubt but that we could easily dispense with a number of hymns that are seldom, if ever used, and also the duplicate tunes and a number of tunes that are seldom, or never, used. Then there are some excellent hymns and tunes that might be added, which would greatly improve our Hymn and Tune Book, and would be a great help in new fields, and where the membership is not large.

I can not see or conceive of any reason why any church should be the worse off for having three, four or five elders, if they properly work together. They should, at all times and at every council-meeting, have a proper understanding who is to be foreman. One may be at one meeting and another at the next meeting, or one preside on one case and another upon a different case. They can easily ascertain who is to preside by casting ballots among themselves, or by leaving it to the church, and that would be an advantage to the church over other churches having but one or two elders, as out of so many they might select a good foreman. If the Districts decide matters at their District Meetings by the delegate system, no church will have the advantage over another, on account of more elders or more members.

In Memoriam.

ELD. JOHN THOMAS was born Jan. 28, 1826; was married to Susanna Sanger, May 25, 1847; was baptized with his wife in 1849; was called to the ministry in 1857. In the spring of 1862 he, with his family, moved to Washington County, Iowa, where he was ordained to the eldership, in which capacity he served the church faithfully until his death, Jan. 13, 1891. He suffered severely for about six months, especially during the later part of that time, but bore all with Christian resignation. In Bro. Thomas the church has lost a good and wise counselor, and an able defender of the Truth. The widow has lost a true and loving husband, the children a kind and good Father, the community a worthy citizen, but all feel assured that their loss is his eternal gain, as he was one like the Apostle Paul, that could say, "I have fought the good fight," etc.

His funeral was largely attended, and the services, by his request, were conducted from 1 Thess. 4, latter part, by Eld. Jacob Brower, of South English, assisted by the writer.

Notes of Travel.

ON Saturday, Dec. 27, Bro. Eisenhower and I boarded the train for a place in Stark Co., Ind., thirty miles distant, and about six miles from the station. As we found no one to meet us upon arrival, we started to walk to our destination. After having traveled about three miles, we had an opportunity to ride the rest of the way to the school-house, where the meetings were to be held. We began preaching to a full house, and continued our meetings for two weeks. Four dear souls were baptized. One applicant thought she was not well enough to be baptized at present. Many others here are near the kingdom. The people at this place are generally poor, but are anxious for preaching. The Brethren of the above vicinity will please accept our thanks for the kindness we received at their hands. J. H. SELLERS.

Chips from the Work-House.

THE special Bible Term at McPherson College, beginning Jan. 5 and ending Jan. 30, was one of special interest and enjoyment. Upward of eighty students, ranging from eighteen to seventy-five years of age, attended day lessons, twenty-eight of whom were ministers. Large, attentive audiences attended the lectures in College Chapel each night. In the day lessons the Chautauqua text books, and the Bible were used. Two lessons a day were given by Bro. Sharp on Bible and Sunday-school work. Special attention was given to best methods for reading and studying the Bible, accompanied by actual practice of reading the Bible and hymns, in public. One lesson a day was given by Bro. A. W. Vaniman on Evidences of Christianity.

Part of the above lessons were given on blackboard in the form of systematized lectures. In addition to the above we had discourses at night in College Chapel, the first week by Eld. Daniel Vaniman, on "Missionary Work;" second week, by Eld. Enoch Eby, on "Church Government." The rest of the time we had doctrinal sermons, by Eld. Andrew Hutchison.

Twenty, during the last two months, were received by baptism. Thus the good work goes on. The Lord be praised for his mercies!

DANIEL VANIMAN.

A Few Suggestions.

IN reading the MESSENGER I am often made to wonder, and these are some of the things at which I wonder. Why is it that we pay money for missionary work in far-off places, when so great a work might be done in our adjoining Counties? Why is it that our church is advancing so fast in fashion, and retrograding so swiftly in the principles of true religion?

Why is it that some of our brethren, when they are looking for a place to work in the vineyard, go to a part in which the vine is under good cultivation, where the fruit of honor and of the purse may be gathered in abundance, and where the little hinderances which do exist, can not hinder prosperity? Why not go to the place where the branches can only hold up a few pale leaves, above the weeds of popularity and fashion? Places where the rich ground is as yet uncultivated, are passed by, seemingly unnoticed.

What is the matter? Are our brethren patterning after Jonas, who would sit under a gourd vine ofease, to awaitthe future disappointment and destruction of others? Here, within forty or fifty miles of as strong a membership as we have, we have heard but two sermons by our church in one year, for which we thank Bro. Samuel Petrie, of the Mill Creek church.

Are these things in accordance with Mark 16: 15, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature"? Can not such matters be revolutionized?

Are there not physicians yet, who will minister to those, even of other persuasions, who plead spiritual starvation for the want of the "True Bread of Life?" JOHN H. SENGER.

From Lyons, Rice Co., Kansas.

OUR quarterly council was held Saturday, Jan. 31, in the Kansas Centre church. All business passed off pleasantly, and, we trust, in the fear of God. Bro. I. H. Crist was with us. His presence we greatly enjoyed. He was with us several days previous to the council, during which time he gave us some good Gospel sermons. One was received by baptism. We have decided to organize our Sunday-school on the first Sunday in March. Our earnest prayers and desires are that the blessings of heaven may attend our efforts, that we may be able to so conduct our school that some good may be accomplished. Though we greatly feel our weakness, we are made to believe, through the Word of our Blessed Master, that if we look to him for grace and strength, he is able to sustain us that we may all be able to do some good in the Master's service.

We, in this part of Kansas have a great many blessings to be thankful for. Among them is our mild and pleasant winter, good health in general, and plenty of everything to make us comfortable and happy. May God's choicest blessings rest upon the well-written and timely article of our dear brother, Enoch Eby, under the heading of "Qualifications of Ministers." We feel and see the popular opinion too rapidly growing in our Brotherhood. SADIE J. DRESHER.

A Voice from the West.

DEC. 18, I took the train for Yoder's Station in Reno County, where I arrived the next day and began a series of meetings in the evening, at the Vansickle school-house, about eighteen miles southeast of Hutchinson. I continued the meetings till Dec. 30, and preached fifteen sermons to crowded houses, with the best of order. Much interest was manifested in the doctrine of the Brethren.

One was baptized. Others expressed themselves as being satisfied that we were right, but, like a Felix of old, are waiting for a more convenient season.

Our next point was the Pleasant View church, where meetings were appointed for Wednesday night, but, owing to rain and a snow-storm, we had no meetings till Friday night. Then the roads were so blockaded with snow-drifts, that but few attended.

We continued here till Jan. 5. The proposed Old Folks' home is located within about half a mile of the Pleasant View meeting-house, and is beautifully situated on an elevation, commanding a pleasant view of the surrounding country. The Home certainly is a laudable enterprise, and worthy the substantial support of the brethren and sisters. Money invested in this home will be a living monument of good, — blessing the poor the helpless, and homeless, who are tottering under the burden of old age, with a home, and the common blessings of life. More, and best, they will here have that sweet association of kindred spirits in the congregation of the saints, — feasting upon heavenly food and influences.

Jan. 5, I went to the Salem congregation, southwest of Nickerson. The brethren had been holding meetings here about two weeks. Brethren Enoch Eby, of Booth, and Frank McCune, of Iowa, did the preaching. I continued the meeting a week longer. Two came out on the Lord's side during the meetings at this place. One of them was a son of our lamented brother, P. J. Trostle. Our meetings were stopped several times on account of storms, but I enjoyed myself very much with the dear brethren and sisters in Reno County. It was my first visit and labor in this part of the Lord's vineyard. God bless the brethren and sisters for their kindness and interest manifested in my comfort. God bless the earnest efforts of his children every-where for good. I arrived home Jan. 15, and found all well. CHAS. M. YEAROUT.

BRO. I. BENNETT TROUT, of Clarke County, Ohio, came to us Jan. 16, to labor with us, and for the Lord, at our Painter Creek house. He continued his earnest and effective labors until the evening of the 30th, completely arousing the people,—not by telling death-bed stories and singing camp-meeting songs, but by holding forth the pure Word of Life, "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." The meetings closed on Friday evening with thirty-two additions by baptism, and one wanderer reclaimed. On Saturday one more was baptized, on Sunday two more and to-day (Monday), two more. In all, as an immediate result, there were thirty-seven received by baptism and one reclaimed. Our membership has been greatly encouraged and many "Felixes" were left standing near the door. May the good angel continue "to trouble the waters" that many more of the afflicted may be healed!

Our dear brother has gone to labor for a short time in the Upper Stillwater church. Many earnest prayers go up from our congregation in his behalf, that he may ever be kept humble, true and faithful to the cause of our Redeemer!

From the Martin's Creek Church, Ill.

THIS is a lonely day. We have no preaching, as Bro. John Harshberger has gone to Fulton County for a two weeks' series of meetings. I have been confined to the house for a few days, by illness, and hence had ample opportunity of reading the MESSENGER. Among other good things I notice the accounts of the many protracted meetings being held all over these United States. For this I feel glad, but when I look at Southern Illinois, and especially the Martin's Creek congregation, I am saddened. Fifteen long years ago about six members of the church moved from Virginia to this place, and so lived, without church privileges, up to the time mentioned before, when relief came to us. It was just in time to save a few stray sheep from being lost. Since we got relief we feel thankful, and yet we hope that more aid may be given us, that souls might be gathered into the fold of Christ.

In my letter of Jan. 10 I said "Jeffersonville church," when it should have been "Martin's Creek." JOHN MAUCK.

Jeffersonville, Ill., Feb. 1.

From Garrison, Iowa.

JAN. 25 we closed a very interesting series of meetings, conducted by Eld. J. A. Murray, of Waterloo, Iowa. The song service, conducted by Bro. Samuel Fike, of South Waterloo, also added much to the interest of our meeting. We wish the Brethren could have continued longer with us. We felt that it was a time of seed-sowing and we hope to see a bountiful harvest ere long.

During our meetings we raised $96 for the Western sufferers. Our brethren and sisters, near Shellsburg, are enjoying a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. James Thomas, of Ames, Iowa. May the Lord bless their efforts!

Bro. George Aschenbrenner is seriously ill with lung trouble, but at this writing has somewhat improved, so that we are hopeful of his recovery.

LIZZIE JOHNSON.

An Open Letter.

My dear Brother and Fellow-Laborer:

YOUR experience, with the suggestions of your mind, is very similar to that which I passed through, and is only such as we all have, more or less, passed through. The reasons you assign for becoming discouraged are not sufficient to carry you into that state, having, as you have stated, the Lord and the wife upon your side—two most powerful levers,—which, if properly utilized, will enable you to succeed in defiance of all the combined forces of the enemy.

You have no desire to be classed with the dyspeptics, but from the tone of your letter, I discover strong symptoms, and it has been, thus far, brought on by common causes.

You have used too much strong meat, and have not properly digested it, and, perhaps, you have aimed to reach the stature of an Apollos in one great leap, forgetting that we can only get there by the rule of addition, onward, upward, step by step. This will advance us to the full stature of manhood in Christ Jesus.

You also stated in your letter, that you absent yourself from the public worship of God's house, fearing that you may be asked to preach. This feature of the case I very much dislike, and the spirit, that prompts you to absent yourself from services, may prove to be your most successful enemy. I advise you, fight it as an enemy, with all your powers and might. If there is any one who has more and greater enemies than others, it is the minister of the Gospel, called forth to preach God's Word. Marvel not, my brother, because you have the enemy to beat back. With renewed energies resolve that, with the co-operation of the Lord, and help of a faithful and untiring companion, you will overcome the difficulties and faithfully accomplish all things. Do not attempt to turn the world upside down, but do the work assigned you by the Master.

Your letter reminded me of the days of my boyhood, when I failed to cope with those in the class, who, by reason of time and study, were more advanced. I would occasionally resolve to absent myself from the school-room, failing, at the time, to realize that in the act I was losing that, which required of me a double effort to regain. Every time you absent yourself from services when it is possible for you to be there—you will suffer loss, which may cost cries and tears to regain. I fully realize the responsibilities that thickly gather around you in your calling, and should they become to you a burden, cry mightily to the Lord, and he will come down and place himself under you and the burden, and bear you up on eagle's wings.

You say you have prayed to God to give you ability, etc., and he has failed to answer. Perhaps, if God would give you all you ask for, it would not be for your good. Rest assured, my brother, that the Lord will not withhold anything from you, that is for your good. There is a possibility that if you possessed all the desired attainments, you might become presumptuous. David found it necessary to ask God to keep him from presumptuous sins. Excuse me for my plainness of speech, for my address is to myself as well as to you, and I pray God that the few suggestions I have given, may be the means of not only giving you encouragement, but others also, who are struggling with the same difficulties.

Firmly hold the part assigned to you by the church, and do not allow yourself to cherish the thought of resigning your office. Stop, never, no never, until the Master declares, "It is enough! come up higher." Remember the grand old chorus:

"We'll work till Jesus comes
And we'll be gathered home."

Your Brother in Christ,
D. F. STOUFFER.

Benevola, Md., Jan. 24th, 1891.

From Esterly, La.

MANY dear brethren and sisters have written me as regards our home in the "Sunny South" and as I have not the time to answer all personally, I will give a short answer through the MESSENGER.

We have lived in Louisiana nearly three years and came here from Kansas. There are ten members living here. We like the country well. Our products are rice, cane, cotton, sweet and Irish potatoes, corn and oats. All kinds of vegetables do well. Fruit of all kinds may be raised in abundance. Our soil is alluvial, and capable of high culture. All kinds of wild grass grows in profusion.

We have no stone or sand, but have excellent lumber, and in abundance, and to a Kansas man prices seem low. We have a mild climate. In summer the average is from 75 to 85 degrees, the hottest days not exceeding 100 degrees. In winter the temperature varies from 55 to 65 degrees above zero.

As regards health, we can say that we have been as healthy here as in the north. A great many who were invalids when they came here have become healthy. Asthma, catarrh and rheumatism often are entirely cured. Land is worth from $5.00 to $150 per acre.

As regards the prospects for building up a church here, we have great hopes that ere long we shall be able to organize, for if all come that have expressed themselves, we soon can have a good-sized congregation. The people here are anxious that the Truth be preached. We have distributed the MESSENGER and tracts in all directions. We think the way is opened for the preaching of the doctrine of the Master and as the Mission Board has decided to locate a minister in our midst, we hope for much.

We here express our thanks to the one who sent us a package of tracts. Others who have any tracts that they wish to have distributed will please send them to me and we will try to place them where they will be read.

Those who contemplate moving South had better come and see before bringing their family. We will try to entertain you as best we can and show you around. We are no real estate agents, but are desirous of having a church home, and the association of the Brethren, and will do as much in that direction as is lawful.

We will try to give whatever information we can to those who write, but shall expect each one to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

JAN. 28, Bro. Isaac H. Crist came to us, on his way homeward from Barton County where he had been laboring. He remained with us until Feb. 1, and preached in our new church-house with good interest. The last discourse was preached at a funeral occasion, when the eight-year old child of Bro. H. T. Brubaker was laid to rest. Such occasions are always attended with sadness, yet we may feel consoled when the departed ones are prepared for the change. We think many lasting impressions were made upon that occasion. Especially was this manifested, when, at the close, one young man applied for admission into the church, and was received by baptism the same day. Jan. 31 was our council-meeting, and a pleasant one it was, because charity was the ruling motive of all. Oh, how often is this Christian grace lacking! Then discord and confusion is the result. Our church chose Eld. Jonathan Brubaker as delegate to District Meeting; also decided to begin a Sunday-school March 1, at the church, with Bro. H. T. Brubaker as Superintendent and J. P. Vaniman, Assistant. ISAAC S. BRUBAKER.

ON Sunday, Jan. 25, as the Brethren and friends were assembling at the Libertyville church, Jefferson County, Bro. S. M. Goughenour, made his appearance among us and conducted a series of meetings during the week, holding forth the Word with power. During the meetings two dear young people came forward, to be identified with the people of God.

On Saturday, Jan. 31, was the time of our quarterly council at the Pleasant Hill church. Bro. Goughenour was with us, and assisted us in the transaction of the business. All was adjusted, seemingly, to the satisfaction of those present. Surely, the Spirit of the Lord was amongst us.

On Monday, Feb. 2, our brother left for home. May the blessing of God attend him every-where. We would like very much if brethren, passing over the Rock Island R. R., would stop off and preach for us. ABRAHAM WOLF.

"On the Way."

DEC. 15, I met with the Union City church, Ind., to hold a series of meetings. The elder remarked to me, "We closed our meetings too soon, as a number were counting the cost." How strange that it takes so much preaching, of late years, to have any effect!

On Christmas evening, I commenced some meetings in the Palestine church, Darke Co., Ohio. Both of these series of meetings were enjoyable to me, and at each one we held a children's meeting. This seemed to the brethren the most enjoyable part of the whole service. If we can only keep our children from drifting with the popular world, and educate their minds, while young, we may have such influence over them as to bring them to Christ. However, I see some of our dear brethren do not see with us in this noble work, and remark to us like this: "I do not take as much stock in the children's meetings, as some of our brethren."

I have observed, as a rule, that those who oppose Sunday-school work and children's meetings do not have their own children under proper subjection. Such children may, at times, be led away by outside influence; they may refuse to join the Brethren church, and unite with one of the fashionable churches, and bring trouble and sorrow upon the hearts of parents. Solomon tells us "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Prov. 22: 6. Again, hear the apostle Paul upon this matter, "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Eph. 6: 4. I know of one family in which the husband and wife are both Sunday-school Superintendents, and good Sunday-school workers. They are also friends of the children's meetings. They have erected a family altar. Their children are taught to pray, and, not long since, I saw two of their little girls, with a number of others, ranging in ages from ten to fourteen years, go down into the water to be baptized.

What a power of influence parents can wield over their children! I remember of holding a meeting at a certain place, and after service I was invited home with a brother. Before we retired, one little girl whispered in her mother's ear, "Mamma, let us have prayer before I retire." The mother looks over at me and calls for prayer to satisfy the little girl, and before that meeting closed, she was one I had the happy privilege of immersing. Oh, what influence! Brethren, do not discourage Sunday-school work! Do not say you "take no stock" in children's meetings. Our children may suffer from such neglect, and then, who will be responsible in that great day?

Jan. 13 I commenced a meeting in our home district,—an isolated place. The New Mennonites had meetings in progress near by, which lessened our attendance somewhat. A few were ready to join, but met with such strong opposition that they did not have the moral courage to tear loose from sin, but waited for a "more convenient season."

Hearing of Bro. Lemuel Hillery holding a series of meetings in the "Big Church," Elkhart Co., Ind., wife and I went over to the meetings, and found them progressing with good interest. While there, we saw two baptized.

Jan. 29, I met with the brethren of the Berrien church, Mich., in church work. Two that had wandered away from the fold returned and acknowledged the old ship Zion the best of all for travelers who wish to make sure work for heaven and happiness. J. H. MILLER.

Goshen, Ind., Feb. 2.

From the Oakland Church, Darke Co., Ohio.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Bro. I. W. Hutchison, of Pennyville, Jay Co., Ind., commenced a series of meetings in the Oakland church on the evening of Jan. 18, and continued day and night until the evening of Feb. 1, 1891. During this time we had considerable inclement weather. The attendance and interest, however, were good, and we have reason to believe that many good and lasting impressions were made on all who attended the meetings. As an immediate result eight precious souls were made to realize the importance of joining in with the people of God. May the Lord ever help them to walk in newness of life! We rejoice in the God of our salvation, that eight souls have united with us to help move on the great ship of salvation. May the grace of God sustain us all and keep us from the wickedness of this world, that we may all finally be permitted to pass through the pearly gate of heaven, which stands ajar for all who prove faithful to the end.

We feel assured that many more were made to realize that all is not well with them, but for some reason they could not get the consent of their minds to make a surrender. May the wooings of the Holy Spirit continue to press upon them, until they will be made willing to accept the Savior as their guide. May they be brought to a realization of the fact, that to procrastinate means danger, for life is uncertain. We really have no right to spend our talents, our energies, and our lives outside of the service of our Master, upon whom hangs our entire dependence.

What is life? Life is a portion of time given to each of us, in which to prepare for the great future. It is the portion of time, in which we can prepare ourselves to enjoy an existence in that endless duration beyond the misty line, which marks the division of this world from the world to come. We are all eternity-bound creatures,—whether to a blissful abode with Christ, and all that glorified host that shall accompany him to the portals of heaven, or whether to sink into eternity amid the crimes of every description, where we will have to take up our abode with the damned of all nations and ages. If the latter should be our lamentable lot, who shall bear the blame? Certainly not God, for God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son to die for our ransom, that whosoever believeth on him, and does his bidding, shall have everlasting life. It is said by Divine Inspiration, that the way is so plain, that we need not err therein. There is no excuse for staying out of the kingdom. May the God of love and mercy help us all to so live, that we may have an abundant entrance in the glory world, where we may be permitted to enjoy the company of those who are awaiting our coming in the Paradise of God. "GOD knows where we can do the most good better than we do. Hence it is well for us to realize that we are just where we ought to be when we are in the place where God has set us. 'If each drop of rain chose where it should fall,' says Charles Kingsley, 'God's showers would not fall, as they do now, on the evil and the good alike.' So it is that the world is benefited by God's choosing the place for his individual workers in the world."

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Feb. 17, 1891.

BRO. L. H. EBY has changed his address to 1102 North 26th Street, Lincoln, Nebr. Please make a note of this change.

SISTER MARY R. MOHLER, of Clyde, Cloud Co., Mo., wants the address of James Burd, formerly of Tama County, Iowa. Who will answer her request?

WE are sorry to learn that Bro. R. H. Miller has again been prostrated by an attack of La Grippe. He was slowly recovering at last report. May the Lord restore him!

WE learn that Bro. S. S. Mohler is improving very slowly. The change for the better is hardly perceptible, and yet it is sufficient to encourage the hope that he may again be restored to health. He has been led along a path of great suffering. The Lord has sustained him in it all. Our prayer is that he may again be fully restored to health, and we know our Brethren will join us in this petition to a throne of grace.

BRO. HOWARD KEIM changes his address from Elk Lick, Pennsylvania, to Ladoga, Indiana. And now, Bro. Howard, since you have moved Westward, come to Mt. Morris and visit us.

"ELD. GEORGE ZOLLARS, of Mt. Carroll, Ill., has been holding a series of meetings for us in the old Indian Creek church, and at the close of these meetings Bro. Jacob M. Price was elected to the ministry." So writes Bro. Jas. Y. Heckler.

SISTER NANCY MARSHBURNE, of Estacado, Texas, would like to have some of our ministers visit that locality. She says the country is settling up rapidly, and that it is a goodly land. The MESSENGER she finds to be a welcome visitor in her isolation.

BRO. JOHN HOLLINGER, of Kansas, has this to say about the Brethren's Almanac for 1891: "Your Almanac answers the purpose of a tract very well. I have disposed of all I had save one copy." Many others feel the same way about the Almanacs, and are still making efforts to distribute them. We can fill orders as fast as received.

THE Old Folks and Orphans' Home, located at Booth, Kans., is receiving some liberal donations from those outside of the State who are interested in charitable work. The Kansas Brethren are to be commended for their efforts in this direction, and those who may feel like helping on the good work can send their donation to Bro. George W. Keedy, Booth, Kans.

AN error occurs in MESSENGER No. 4. Bro. Austin is made to say that he intends to travel with a tent. What he did say is as follows: "What brother will come and labor here in July and August? I think best to have a tent, and move it from place to place. Who will come? Let me hear from some loving brother." We ask Bro. Austin's pardon for the error.

BRO. D. M. REPLOGLE, of the Mexico church, Indiana, informs us that they are in the midst of a very interesting series of meetings at that place. Bro. I. J. Rosenberger is with them and had preached twenty sermons. Seven had come out on the Lord's side, and others were deeply impressed. The brethren expected to continue the meetings, with the hope that others may be induced to accept Christ as their Savior. We hope to have a full report of the meeting at its close.

WE are receiving notices of good meetings being held in many parts of our Brotherhood and many souls are turning to Christ. At Pleasant Hill, Ohio, the church enjoyed a wonderful season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Forty-six souls were led to Christ. How we rejoice to know that men and women are being made willing to accept Christ! We do not feel to rejoice only that OUR church is receiving additions, but that Satan's kingdom is being diminished and that the religion of Jesus Christ is growing. We sometimes hear of great rejoicing because some have turned their back upon the church of our choice and united with others. We wonder whether such rejoicing comes from an honest, earnest desire to see the kingdom of Christ enlarged or whether it comes from the selfish pleasure born of a desire to see one church torn down to build up another. Surely there is work enough for us to do in battling against sin and the power of the Evil One, and in snatching sinners as brands from the burning. The spirit that rejoices in the evils that grow out of church troubles is not, we fear, the outgrowth of the love of God, for behold the spirit of that love "rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth."

BRO. G. B. ROYER spent a few days at Lanark, Ill., recently. He reports interesting meetings with good attendance.

BRO. ANDREW HUTCHISON will spend his time from now until Annual Meeting among the churches in the East. His health is improving, and we trust he will be able to continue in the good work.

DURING our short stay at McPherson, on our recent trip to Kansas, we enjoyed a short visit at the pleasant home of Bro. Michael Reber, formerly of Waterloo, Iowa. They expressed themselves as being well pleased with their new home. Sister Reber is a mother to a number of the students.

THOSE who write to sister Gibson in reference to the Children's Mission, or send money to her, will please address plainly, Mary M. Gibson, Box 421, Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill. Sister Gibson also suggests that drafts on New York or Chicago be sent, as they are more convenient than money orders. She says that the banks will usually issue drafts free for charitable purposes.

BRO. S. A. SANGER, of Scott's Ford, Va., sends us the following report: "Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Bridgewater, Rockingham Co., Va., began a series of meetings in the Mill Creek congregation on Jan. 18 and continued until Feb. 1. As an immediate result fourteen were added to the church by baptism. Bro. Sanger's labors were very much appreciated. We hope he will come often."

FROM Mendon, Chariton Co., Mo., Bro. J. M. W. Smith writes, that Bro. S. B. Shirkey preached seven sermons at that place, commencing Jan. 20. Bro. Shirkey's discourses were doctrinal in character and were well received. One was received into church fellowship by baptism. Bro. Smith thinks that there can be a church established at Mendon, and asks the prayers of all for the success of the work there.

ARE you doing what you can for the Missionary and Tract Work of the church? Don't forget this important matter. The work must go on; there is to be no halting in the work of the Lord. Missionaries must be sent out and supported. Tracts must be printed and circulated, and if you are to have a lot and part in this matter, and the blessings that will come, it will be because you have given as the Lord has prospered you.

THE churches have not yet all responded to the call made by the Government for a correct census of our people. A blank was mailed to some one in each congregation with the request that it be filled out and returned. We hope this simple request, made by the Government, will be complied with. We are taught to be subject to our Government, and this we ought to do, so long as we are not required to violate any principle of our holy religion. The greater part of the congregations have been heard from, but there are some that have not responded. We hope they will do so at once.

"OH, to see the church and the world with Christ's eyes and heart," said good Norman Macleod. "One of the difficulties of our day is that men are not willing to be guided by Christ's eyes. The statement is made by thousands of professors, that the plain, simple commandments of the Gospel need not be obeyed. They tell us that these things are in the New Testament, but they were meant for apostolic times and not for these days of enlightenment and refinement. So they depart from the law of Christ and mark out lines of their own. How foolish for men to set up their judgment against Christ?"

We have just received word from the manufacturers that our new pasting, folding and trimming machine has been shipped from Erie, Pa. If the machine works well, we hope, in a few weeks, to send out the paper pasted and neatly trimmed. We hope this improvement will please our readers.

A new edition, the tenth, of "Europe and Bible Lands," has just been issued, and orders are being promptly filled again. An announcement of the new edition may be found on the last page of this issue of the Messenger. The Brethren's Publishing Company are offering liberal terms to agents. Write at once for terms.

Bro. J. M. Neff, writing from Knoxville, Tenn., under date of Feb. 2, says: "We held our first preaching service in the city last night. Attendance and attention exceeded our expectations. The room that we occupied was full, and then all were not accommodated. The Lord willing, we commence a series of meetings at the Choto church next week. We are well. Having a good deal of rain, otherwise pleasant weather. May the Lord bless his work and his people every-where."

The memory is often treacherous and can not be depended upon. A few days ago we received a letter, from some one, containing a sum of money for the Western sufferers, but the writer failed to sign his name. We credited the money to "Unknown," and to-day comes a postal card from a brother, saying that he had sent the money, but his mind was impressed with the fact that he failed to sign his name to the letter. He remembered that he had forgotten, and so correction was made. Another still more singular case came under our notice a few weeks ago. A letter came with money for books. No name was signed to it. Later a letter of inquiry as to whether the former letter had been received, came, and still the writer failed to give his name. The matter is still standing open, awaiting a name and address.

In this world how often joy and sorrow follow each other in quick succession! There lies before us on our desk a sheet of paper on one side of which is written an obituary, on the other a marriage notice. Here we have brought close together the sadness and sorrow of the house of mourning, and the joyous sound of wedding bells. Only a few weeks ago, by a singular coincidence, there appeared in the same issue of the Messenger the marriage and the obituary notices of a dear old brother, well known to many of our readers. The house of rejoicing was suddenly turned into a house of mourning. The words of congratulation still sounding in the air, are met by words of sympathy for the mourners. And so sunshine and shadow, daylight and darkness, follow each other in quick succession. The brightest sky is soon overcast with the darkness and blackness of the storm-cloud, and the gentle zephyrs of the balmy days of spring-time give place to the moaning and shrieking of the fierce winds that herald the coming storm. But amid all these sudden changes the child of God rests secure. He knows in whom his hopes and trust are fixed, and the joys and sorrows of this life only bind him closer to the all-loving Father above.

THE WESTERN SUFFERERS.

Since our return from the West we have received a number of letters from Brethren and others in the districts where help is needed, and where aid is being given, commending the Brethren and friends for their generous liberality, as well as the plan adopted for the distribution of the money given. In Kansas and Nebraska the work of distributing is being carried on according to the plan given in these columns several weeks ago. Personal supervision of the distribution by organized committees, for the most part appointed by the church, will insure careful work; receipts taken from those who receive help will show where the money goes.

In Dakota an organization of the Brethren is being effected, and the work of relief will begin at once. Of course it will not be possible for the Brethren to meet all the calls made. We can only relieve so far as the means at hand will allow us. Others are helping in the good work, and the States are taking action, looking toward giving assistance to the needy. It is thought that the State Relief will afford those, unable to purchase seed grain, an opportunity to secure it free of charge.

Already the fund, started by the District of Northern Illinois, has grown to $5,000. Churches and individuals from all parts of our Brotherhood have responded most liberally to the Messenger appeal for help, and over $2,000 has been received at this office, and reported to date. The money comes, for the most part, from our Brethren, but many warm-hearted, liberal friends also have a lot and part in this matter. In the distribution of the funds church lines are not regarded. The needy are helped without regard to their religious faith. True Christian charity is as broad as humanity. It embraces all of God's creatures.

All money sent to this office for the Western sufferers will be acknowledged in the Messenger, turned over to the treasurer, and properly receipted for. The printed list of donors, with the sums given, published in the Messenger, will show that the money has been received, and the treasurer's receipt will show that it has been paid over to the proper person.

In addition to $5,000 received, as above stated, at least $1,000.00 has been sent to individuals in the destitute districts, so that the church and our friends have donated at least $6,000.00 in cash for the relief of the sufferers in the West. We rejoice that this spirit of liberality is thus made manifest, for we know God's blessing will surely follow it.

We herewith give extracts from letters received from the West. Letters from brethren Lyon and Whitmer may be found in another column of the Messenger.

From friend B. Thompson, Benkleman, Dundy Co., Nebr., we have the following:—"Dear Editor: I am now seventy-three years old, and have spent all my life on the frontier. I witnessed a sight at Benkleman that impressed upon my mind the destitution of the people, above all that I had ever seen. J. E. Young, a minister of the Brethren's church, was there Feb. 3 with a large crowd of destitute men and women around him, pleading for aid to sustain them and their little ones until they could raise something to live on, and I must say that Bro. Young fills his place well. All have confidence in him. May the Lord's blessing rest upon his labors, and upon the Brethren who are so liberally giving of their money to carry on the good work."

Bro. J. E. Young, writing from Wallace, Nebr., on the 2nd inst., says,

"This is the coldest day of the winter. We are comfortably situated by the fire at Bro. Allen Cripe's. We feel sure there are many who are suffering from cold and hunger this morning. Bro. G. E. Whisler is helping in the work of distribution. He returned from Chase County on Saturday. He reports great destitution among the people. Fuel is most needed. Some were tearing out the partitions in their houses, and the mangers in their barns, and using them for fuel.

"The means that we have used so far, will reach over one hundred families. A lady in Illinois collected clothing in the town in which she lived to the amount of five hundred pounds. She committed it to our trust. Thirty-five families were helped with that amount. Praise the Lord for the helping hands all over the land! We leave here to-day for other places. Coal is needed above all things now. Bro. Whisler goes to Omaha to urge a supply. The railroad company favors him with a free pass. This is very helpful in our work."

"A man by the name of Moss met us in Maywood and reported that they had nothing to eat at home. God pity the poor and move the people to relieve them.

"The plan of taking a receipt from all who receive help works well. We aided about twenty-five families at Maywood with $50. We have the work well systematized, so that we can not be defrauded."

On the 4th inst., Bro. Young writes from Haigler, Nebr., as follows: "Dear Brethren:—This morning we are within four miles of the Colorado line in Dundy Co., Nebraska. Here is a section of country that has not received much aid yet. There is many a little one shivering from cold and hunger. Yesterday we stopped at Benkleman, the County-seat. The day was fair. Many had come thirty-miles to see whether there was not some aid for them. Thursday was our day to be there. But owing to the cold weather we had to suspend preaching and came two days sooner. We could not have come at a more favorable time. The people reminded me of hungry wolves when they found we could aid them. We were happy to be able to do so. Several boxes of goods from Missouri were ahead of me, for which we were very thankful. One man said, 'Three families have moved together to economize, and they were at the bottom of the sack; and fuel all.' Others were tearing down empty houses to keep from freezing. We could multiply such sad stories told with tears. We helped at least twenty-five families yesterday in two hours. We have a record of all."

We also hear from Bro. Young under date of the 5th inst. Writing from McCook, Nebr., he says: "We now have eight places established for distributing. Everything seems to be working very nicely, and the hungry are being fed. At Benkleman a poor old lady stood by the desk and told of her hardships, while the tears were rolling down her cheeks. Some had divided their last sack of flour with their neighbor; others their last bushel of coal, others had moved in with their neighbors, others were tearing down empty houses and burning them. So there is quite a variety of stories of hardships."

We know that these letters, with others published in this issue of the Messenger, will make those who have given to aid the sufferers, rejoice that God has blessed them with the means to give, and that their hearts were moved upon thus to help the needy. From many a needy home in the West will go up prayers for God's blessings to rest on those who have fed the hungry and clothed the naked, and in the end the Master will say, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

All contributions sent to this office, will be accounted for, and be used to alleviate the suffering of the needy.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"DUTY is the voice of God, and a man is neither worthy of a good home nor a heaven, that is not willing to be in peril for a good cause."

"THERE are two tests of pastoral efficiency, a growing church-register, and a growing spirituality. The former may sometimes be deceptive; the latter never."

"NO grace is more necessary to the Christian worker than fidelity — the humble grace that marches on in sunshine and storm, when no banners are waving."

"MINISTERS are not like Plato and Aristotle, the originators of their own doctrines, or the teachers of the doctrines of other men, but simply the dispensers of the truths which God has revealed."

"THE strong argument for the truth of Christianity is the true Christian; the man filled with the spirit of Christ. The best proof of Christ's resurrection is a living church, which itself is walking in a new life, and drawing life from him who hath overcome death. Before such arguments, ancient Rome herself, the mightiest empire of the world, and the most hostile Christianity, could not stand."

"EVERYBODY wants the reward of honest and laborious endeavor; but not everybody is willing to give the honest labor which is necessary to win the rewards of such endeavor. There is a Jewish story of a little boy who, while studying his Hebrew alphabet, was told that when he had learned his letters an angel would drop him a piece of money from the skies. Thereupon the little fellow, instead of reverently studying his lesson study, began to look up to see the promised money drop from the skies, and so his progress in knowledge was stayed. There is a great deal of this kind of looking for the reward of work before the work itself is done. Men are told that they shall have skill, or standing, or reputation, or character, if only they will persevere in faithfulness in the line of their present endeavor; and at once they begin to look for the promised reward, instead of sticking at that which would bring it to them—or bring them to it. On every side there stand idle stargazers expecting the dropping of unearned rewards from the skies; and there they are likely to stand."

"No truth is truer than the truth that it is more blessed to give than to receive. But giving in order to receive is not the kind of giving that wins a special blessing. It is he who gives because he ought to give, and loves to give, with no thought of gain to himself or reward from others because of his giving, who finds a blessing beyond his expectation in the joy of giving, and in the return that the Lord makes to those who look for no return."

THE WOMAN'S FIELD.

BY LANDON WEST.

IN more than one number of the MESSENGER I see intimations that the woman's field is not wide enough, and repeated calls for more ground are constantly being made.

It reminds me of what is said of Alexander the Great, that when he thought he had conquered the world, he wept because there was not another world to conquer, but died a drunkard. But would it not be best to look at the territory already occupied before more space or a new field is called for? I feel so, for it is not at all reasonable to think that the Holy Spirit would overlook the talents and qualities of the sisterhood, or fail to provide a field for the full display of their every gift. It is done, and well done; and a field as wide as the world has been long opened, giving space and opportunity for the exercise of every gift possessed.

Read carefully Titus 32: 3, 5, and then tell us if that is not field enough for the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of all the world. The behavior of aged women is named first, and well it should be, for their behavior is their light that is seen, and not the field.

A behavior, consistent with holiness, is what is needed just now, and to keep that gift in exercise amongst the aged women of the church and of the world, would make light as bright as day, in both hearts and homes. It is to make the tree good, and then good fruit is the result. It is to purify the fountain and then all its streams will be pure also. This one note of the spirit of God would call out every talent and put into active service every gift possessed by either man or woman. It opens all the field of the Master's vineyard, and we need ask no more.

But the Good Spirit goes on: "Not false accusers," — would bring peace where there is now wrangling, divisions and strife in words, in law, and sometimes in blood. This one note of the Spirit, if carried out, would go far toward bringing peace on earth, and the kingdom that is to be eternal. But as yet the field is seen in narrow bounds.

The note, "not given to much wine," implies that there should be temperance in both eating and drinking, and if this one point were carefully observed by the mothers of only this one generation, it would mould the sentiment of generations yet to come. And is not the field wide enough at this point for all the talent yet received? I feel so.

And "teachers of good things." What a thought! The sentiments of heaven are now to be distributed by the mothers of the earth. One glorious thought is, this field is unlimited, and these mothers and aged women can teach the good things to everybody. What greater field is wanted?

Human conception can not grasp the bounds of this opening or the yield of this sowing. This note of God's Spirit has placed the destiny of mankind, and of both church and State, yea, of the world, in the hands of the mothers and their teaching.

Eve, the mother of all living, gave a lesson to Adam on eating, and the marks of that one lesson are yet seen in every part of the earth.

Rachel gave Jacob a lesson on deception, and that of his father Isaac, and its fruit, have been seen in nations for ages.

The mother of Moses, of Samuel, of Jesus and of Timothy evidently taught good things and especially of devotion to the Word of God, for this fruit we see in the sons of these mothers, and it will be seen throughout eternity. That fruit will never fail.

But now opens the greatest field to the mothers of the earth, and that is, "to teach the young women," embracing all classes, —daughters, granddaughters, nieces, orphans, servants and strangers, —all the younger women and in every place "to be sober." What a field and what a lesson! All mothers can teach it and all women can learn it, and if this one thought of sobriety were taught as it could be and should be done, it would revolutionize the world.

And if all wives were taught "to love their husbands," that one stroke of the spirit, when active, would at once overcome the powers of darkness, and adultery, with all its consequences, would be abolished.

If all mothers would love their children as here taught, and teach them to fear God and keep his commandments, it is impossible to now see what a glorious result would follow. But it would close the gates of hell, now all open, and give peace and love and joy in all the earth. To love our children is natural and easy, but the command is in place, for to love them is not to indulge them blindly in lust and vanity, but to love them as Christian parents and intelligently, and give them the Word of Life from infancy, as did Timothy's mother and grandmother. This is to close the door against Satan and his host, and these will and can not enter in where the law of God reigns. The false teaching that our children must have time to sow their "wild oats," should have been, long since, rooted out, for it is squarely opposed to the Word of God which says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22: 6.

No, my dear sisters, do not ask for more territory when there is yet so much of the field uncultivated. Let us all go to work and make use of every thought suggested and Spirit of God to both fathers and mothers, teachers and all! Let us cultivate the gifts we now have, and make good use of every opportunity that may be presented, and we will all have field enough for the improvement of all our time and of every talent, and may God help us to see and use the gifts we now possess!

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN OUR TIME.

BY RICHARD S. STORRS.

THE command given long ago is still as imperative for all who owe allegiance to Christ as it was at the beginning; it will continue to be so till all shall have heard the Divine message, and there shall be no more call or room for its fresh preaching. And it is one of the astonishing facts in the progress of modern thought, that, after the vast missionary success of the early disciples, and of those who have followed them, down to our day, there remains still, here and there, a doubt, even among those who call themselves Christians, whether the lesser and lighter work yet remaining can be performed; whether it is possible, even in our day, to preach the Gospel to every creature,—to make disciples of all the nations. The apostles might almost have been pardoned if they hesitated before a command so staggering as this to human prudence. But, surely, we are blind if we draw back in timid unbelief; since the nations are now physically accessible, all over the world, as then they were not. The earth is so knit together that it might almost be said to be diminished in physical bulk, by steamships, railways, lines of telegraph, the explorations and expansions of commerce. Its most distant parts are practically nearer us to-day than the confines of the empire were in Paul's day to Rome. Japan and China are not as remote as Britain then was from the palaces on the Tiber. India is an English dependency; Egypt, a European suburb; Africa is being brought into the light of general knowlege, in all its extent, with a rapidity proportioned to the depth of the darkness in which it has lain; the islands of the Pacific are within easy reach from American shores. There is a supreme moral meaning in modern machineries. They came contemporaneously with the wide uprising of the missionary spirit, and came to be its ministers,—the swifter wheels for its advance, the silver trumpets for its Divine tidings.

There is now, too, a surpassing weight and majesty in the appeal of the Gospel which never before appeared so fully, not only in its address to individuals, but to peoples. It has now a Christian civilization behind it, such as the old world knew nothing about,—hundreds of years of what has been, on the whole, an impressive, an illustrious history. The Gospel is not henceforth in words alone, in letters, sermons, even treatises and volumes. It is in great civilized States, whose fame is familiar throughout the world; it pervades large parts of the noblest modern literature; it is in arts of beauty, and in useful inventions; in governments at once popular and strong, in multitudinous institutes of learning and of charity, in our many churches, and tens of millions of happy, cultured, and prosperous homes. It sets its impress on statute-books and makes laws more humane. It helps the poor, and heals the sick, and gives sight to the blind, as did the Master. It carries education into humblest hamlets; and it fronts tyranny, on whatever coast, or legalized crime wherever it exists, with a voice of command like that of the Lord, and with sure expectation of victory to come. Therefore the nations are more ready to receive it than ever before; because they see, and can not but see, the secular benefits which march in its train. They want what it has got to be done by it for themselves; and whether its doctrines and precepts suit them or not,—though these continue as offensive to them as aforetime they were to Roman and to Jew,—the peoples of the world feel, as Darwin did, that "the lesson of the missionary is the enchanter's wand," and they want that wand to start liberty, education, popular advancement among themselves; to turn the coal into color and power, to transform iron into steel, and to make electricity the servant of man. There is no mistaking this vast new trend in the attitude of the unevangelized world toward the Gospel of Christ. It may want this for its effects, rather than for itself; but those effects shine before it, quickening desire, alluring hope, as a sovereign prize.

At just this point there appears also, as almost might have been expected, another combination of cosmical forces reminding one of that in which Roman power and law went with Greek speech around the world. The interdependence of distant peoples was never before so close as now; and the outstretch of the commerce and of the languages of Protestant nations was never so vast. Not mere isolated points are now accessible to the Master's message. The whole world is open to it, dusky continents and cannibal islands, lands newly discovered, and lands of ancient and proud renown. It may be almost literally said that there is no people, or part of a people, no tribe or fraction of a tribe, to which may not be carried at once the angels' song, with the transfiguring story which follows. The habitations of cruelty have seen a new light, remotest coral-reefs watch for the mission-ship, Ethiopia stretches her hands unto God.

So such successes are realized now as have not been paralleled since the early days of missions. Standing in the vestibule, the house is not altogether in our view. Standing in one city-street the whole splendid and populous area is not before us; and figures as yet can not fully set forth what has been achieved.

Here then appears the immense and pressing duty of our time; pressing as the inexorable movement of the years, urgent as the moral and social need of mankind, superlative as the nature and work of the Lord! Here appears, too, our noblest privilege,— the privilege of taking part in this enterprise; of following in the line of those whose faith, consecration, and holy heroism, have built Christendom, and have made the religion which to human eyes came out of Galilee familiar in its name, and in many of its principles, wherever thought has language for its vehicle; the privilege of coming to such fellowship with the Master as can not be reached in song or sacrament, or in even the uplift and ecstasy of prayer. We touch his mighty and tender hand as nowhere else, when we are doing his work in the world. We come nearer to him here than we can elsewhere until we see him face to face; and many a distant missionary home, remote from civilization, planted amid an earthly darkness dense enough to be felt, is radiant with his manifest presence as the costliest chapel or the proudest cathedral never is. In this work we touch the future of the world, and put elements and forces into its history which shall be springing to their results long after the very stones at our graves shall have crumbled into dust. Through missions for the Gospel we realize the hope, and make the coming ages bright. It is the province of civilization to conquer and re-fashion the physical earth, as it is widely, magnificently doing, making wastes to bloom, abolishing mountains as barriers to intercourse, irrigating deserts, conquering seas, setting village and city amid the encircling loveliness of landscape. The Gospel is for every created thing, and the earth arrays itself in new garments before it.

But the primary and pre-eminent office of that Gospel, and of the churches which make world wide the knowledge of it, is morally to renew the race of mankind to which the earth has been committed, and so to build on the globe that ultimate, resplendent city of God which shall link the earth with spheres celestial, having come down out of heaven from God! No other work can be conceived so vital and so noble as that! There can be no other, the remembrance of which shall be to us so beautiful and dear when we stand—if we may—with apostles and martyrs, and with the redeeming Son of God in worlds of light.

For this is needed more than anything else, the temper of utter consecration,—which gives money gladly and vastly; which gives life, with that utter unreserve which marks the highest reach and royalty of the devoted human soul. Livingstone counted it a privilege, not a sacrifice, to have spent so much of his life in Africa; and that is the spirit of which the promised millennium shall show itself the predestined outcome!—S. S. Times.

WHAT SISTERS CAN DO.

BY MRS. AUGUSTA ELSON.

In reading the Gospel Messenger the many appeals of the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us," from North, South, East and West, my heart was stirred to its inmost depths by these cries for help,—and help means money. I felt as though there was something I could do, and I want to do it, God helping. Having been treasurer in the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, in the Methodist church, for the last seven years, I know what women can do, and do it successfully, too, and if every woman throughout the entire Brotherhood would consecrate $1.00 a year, what a help we could be to Christ's cause and kingdom. In this way we could each one feel as though we were doing something for our Master independent of our husbands.

So many of the sisters are satisfied with what the husband gives, but I want to give for myself. There is positive pleasure for me to even drop a nickel in the basket for Jesus' sake.

There are several reasons why I am a member of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. The first great reason is, that I am a life member. Second, appreciation of their trust and confidence, by again and again giving me that office even after leaving their church two years ago. The third and last reason is the great esteem and respect I have for those noble Christian Women Missionaries and every one that "hath forsaken houses or brethren or sisters or father or mother or wife or children or lands for my name's sake," Matt. 19: 29, who have indeed forsaken all these, and have gone to those far-off heathen countries,— India, China, Japan, Korea, Italy, Bulgaria, Mexico and South America, to endure losses and crosses, trials and privations, that the Gospel may be preached to every nation.

There are now one hundred and six missionaries in active work in those foreign fields,—sixteen are home on sick-leave. The Cincinnati Conference Division always responds nobly to the demand made upon it, and last year raised the large sum of $38,860. With the nine other Divisions, the sum of $220,329.90 was raised in a membership of 138,950 women. This large amount has been raised by self-denials, sacrifices, etc., for the saving of those who worship gods of wood and stone. Why can not we, as women, do something for the calls made to us, by sending out the Bread of Life freely and willingly, to those who are not heathens, but are not so fortunate as we. With a treasurer in each church to see every sister personally, to collect her dues of twenty-five cents quarterly,—which will take time and labor,—what a help we could be to brethren Royer and Bock for the Missionary and Tract Work!

We are not expected to go to those isolated places, but it is our duty to help send them the Gospel, by giving of our means, our time and our talents, to help those brethren and the silent messengers (tracts) to answer these calls. We would love to see the sisters every-where so enthused with this mission cause, for Christ's sake, in our own dear native land, that we would all be up and working, for "the harvest is great but the laborers are few." If we, as a church, are to help evangelize the world and to "preach the Gospel to every creature," it is high time we are about the "Father's business," "for soon the night cometh, wherein no man can work."

There will be exceptions where some are not able to give twenty-five cents quarterly, but they might all give something, if only the widow's mite. "She, of her penury, hath cast in all the living that she had."

In soliciting, we should not slight any one, for it is a common cause, and should be dear to every heart. If only we could all feel as Mary did, when Christ said, "She hath done what she could!" It will only require a little self-denial, a small sacrifice on our part, to save two cents a week, with a prayer,

"Take my hands and let them move
At the impulse of thy love."

I have faith in women's ability, if they can be touched by the miseries of others who know not God and his wondrous love. God grant that the time may soon come when every woman will see that there is something she can do to help "enlarge the borders of Zion."

There are various ways in which this money can be raised, one is to consecrate all the two and three cent pieces, left from your shopping. Another plan,—where a brother uses tobacco in any form, is, to give the same amount, spent for the filthy habit, to the wife for her missionary money. The use of tobacco is of no benefit to the wife or children, but the amount of money spent for it would be of untold benefit to the upbuilding of Christ's cause.

Feeling as I do about this great mission of love, with the consent of our ministers, we have already undertaken the work to see what we, the sisters of the West Dayton church, can do, with God's help, for the "General Missionary" and "Tract Work." "What thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

Grant it, oh Lord, that each one may give of that which thou hast given to us, is my prayer!

Dayton, Ohio.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

One Soul Brought to Christ.—We had a pleasant series of meetings in the Hickory Grove church, near Brandt, Ohio, from Jan. 22 to Feb. 1. Bro. B. F. Honeyman, of Darke County, Ohio, did the preaching. One dear soul accepted Christ, and others are much impressed. Our quarterly council Jan. 24, passed off pleasantly. A collection was taken for the Missionary and Tract Work of the church.—Carrie Studebaker.

One Accession.—The Huntsdale, Pa., brethren and sisters have been much encouraged and strengthened in the faith by a series of sermons, preached by Henry C. Early, of Virginia, at the Huntsdale meeting-house. He commenced his labors Dec. 13, and delivered twenty sermons in which he ably defended the doctrine. One was received during the meetings and many are almost persuaded to believe. Albert Hollinger, Feb. 5.

Fourteen Accessions.—According to previous arrangements, Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Bridgewater, commenced a series of meetings for us in the Mill Creek church, Va., Jan. 18, which he continued until Feb. 1. As a result of his labors, aided by the influence of the brethren and sisters and the blessing of God, fourteen dear souls decided to make the good choice. Bro. Sanger did not shun to preach the Word in its primitive simplicity and power. Samuel Petry, Good's Mill, Va.

Rejoice with Us! The waters were again troubled to-day, when three dear young souls were buried beneath the liquid waves. They were twelve, eleven and ten years old, respectively. May these young lambs prove shining lights to the world! There is one more applicant for baptism, which will be attended to as soon as circumstances permit. Thus the good work goes on! May we all feel encouraged to press onward and upward! Alice Garber, South English, Iowa, Feb. 8.

Interesting Meetings. Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Pennsylvania, commenced a series of meetings at the Dickey meeting-house in the Ashland church, Ohio, Jan. 3, and continued for two weeks. Then the meetings were continued at the Oak Grove house for one week. Our souls were fed abundantly during these meetings. May God bless our dear brother for his labors among us! From here Bro. Mohler went to the Loudonville church. Jan. 31, we held our regular quarterly council-meeting. Everything passed off very pleasantly.—W. F. England, Feb. 2.

Pleasant Council.—Last Saturday our church at Cabool, Texas, met in regular, quarterly council. The day being rainy, the turn-out was small. All business was conducted in a Christian spirit. Six members were received by letter. Three letters were granted to members going into other fields of labor. Eld. S. A. Honberger, with his family, goes to the mission field in Louisiana. Bro. David Glick goes to Vernon County, Mo., to teach school. God help them, that they may be successful in their new fields of labor! —J. J. Troxel, Feb. 2.

Three Accessions. Eld. Jeremiah Gump, from Indiana, came to the Poplar Ridge church, Ohio, Jan. 10, and stayed till the 25th. He gave us many good lessons which made us a good meeting, with good attendance and attention, and revived the church. Three precious souls came out and confessed Christ and were buried with Christ in baptism to walk in newness of life (one being a nephew of Bro. Peter Nead, aged seventy-one years). Others are counting the cost. We expect Bro. Gump back again some time in March. Simon Long, Jewell, Ohio.

Ministerial Aid Desired.—We greatly desire that some of the ministering brethren, traveling through Irving, Marshall County, Kans., would call and preach in our neighborhood. The writer lives two miles west of Irving, and is the only member living here. I am thirty-five miles from the nearest organization of the Brethren. We have preaching in our neighborhood, but not to suit us. The people have become disgusted; all wish to hear the good, old-fashioned Gospel preached. Ministering brethren will surely find a welcome here!—Joseph Mleynek, Feb. 5.

In Fair Working Order.—The Yellow River congregation, Ind., is still moving on in the good work. Dec. 6, 1890, Bro. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, came to our congregation and commenced a series of meetings. He preached to good audiences, night after night and did his work well, but it seemed that, at the time, no one was ready to go with us. The church was built up by his earnest labors. We baptized six souls during 1890. All are faithful members. One of them was an old sister, eighty-five years of age. Our church is in fair working order and in love and union. May it ever remain so!—J. H. Sellers, Feb. 3.

Three Baptized.—Bro. Jesse Stutsman came to the Pleasant View church, Allen Co., Ohio, on Saturday evening, Dec. 20, and commenced a series of meetings, which continued until Jan. 4. He preached, in all, twenty-seven sermons. As an immediate result three were baptized, and one reclaimed from the Old Order Brethren. Bro. Stutsman held forth the Word with such convincing force, that the church was much built up. After a few meetings the house was well filled with interested spectators, on whom, we believe, serious impressions were made. The Pleasant View church was built in the summer of 1889, by the Brethren of the Sugar Creek congregation, near its eastern boundary. This was the first series of meetings ever held in this neighborhood. —N. Vore.

Refreshing Meetings.—Bro. H. S. Claypool, of Salt Lick Bridge, W. Va., came to Hacker's Valley, Webster Co., W. Va., on Friday, Jan. 23 and commenced a series of meetings that night. He rightly divided the Word of Truth to both saint and sinner. It caused sinners to weep and saints to rejoice, and some were near the kingdom. I believe some would have been adopted into the family of God, had they not been debarred by sickness. On Sunday night, Jan. 25, when Bro. Claypool had just started on his sermon, a young lady was taken with a fit. That ended the preaching for the time being. The young lady is still afflicted with that trouble, and we, know not whether she will recover. We ask for the prayers of God's people in our every behalf.—Harriet Bankhead, Jan. 26.

Fifteen Accessions.—Bro. C. S. Holsinger came to the West Otter Creek church, Jan. 15, and preached nine sermons, when, on account of the small-pox, within a few miles of the church, it was thought best to close the meetings. He then went to the Pleasant Hill church, four miles east, and preached eight sermons, when, for the same cause as stated above, it was thought best to close there also. Bro. Holsinger labored earnestly in defense of the Master's cause. Saints were encouraged and sinners warned. The meetings closed with good interest. Fifteen united with the church at the two places. Most of them were from ten to sixteen years of age. One Sunday-school teacher of the West Otter Creek church had the pleasure of seeing seven of her class buried in baptism. May they all prove faithful until death!—Chas. Gibson, Girard, Ill.

A Pleasant Visit.

Dec. 25, Bro. John Olsson, from Malmo, Sweden, came to this place, Elmhult, from Wanneberga, where he had been for two weeks, preaching the Word. As a result of the meetings, many sinners returned to their Father's house.

At the last-named place there are now four members. One was baptized there a month ago. It is now only about six months since the Brethren came to that place to preach our doctrine, and it seems to be a good place to labor in.

On the day above mentioned at 2 P. M., we had a very good meeting in a place named Golshult, not far from my parents' home. We had the meeting on a young man's farm. His name is Swensson. He desires to join the church, and I believe he will be a good help for the cause. His wife gave her heart to God a few weeks ago,—glory be to Jesus! At the close of the meeting, two dear souls came out on the Lord's side. It was a mother and daughter from a village near by. They desired to have a meeting at their house Tuesday night.

Saturday morning, Bro. John Olsson and Swensson, with wife, took a ten-mile drive to Swensson's old home, where they remained until Tuesday, and preached the Word.

Wednesday, at one o'clock, we again had a meeting in Falhult. Two men and one woman, all advanced in years, gave their hearts to God as a "New Year's gift." May they all be led by his own hand, to our heavenly home "over there," is our prayer.

New Year's Day, at two o'clock, we again met for worship. Bro. Olsson preached on 2 Thess. 1:

1-10. He held forth the Word of Eternal Truth with much power. The children's meeting which was held at four o'clock, was a good one. Afterwards Swensson's bade us all to supper, and I wish that we all might gather, at last, around that large table "in the Kingdom of God." These meetings were enjoyable, and will long be remembered by all who attended them.

Next day, early in the morning, Bro. John Olsson started for his home, after staying a week here. I hope the good seed sown may soon bear much fruit. Bro. Olsson is a good and faithful minister. He has a very large territory,—much more than he can attend to alone. We have three more ministers, but all are working-men and can not help him, excepting on Sunday. Bro. Olsson needs a faithful minister to assist him every day in building up the Master's cause. The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest." Luke 10: 2.

Before closing, I desire to return my heart-felt thanks to all the dear brethren, sisters and friends with whom I was associated while in the United States, asking an interest in your prayers, so that, if we no more meet here below, we may all be so unspeakably happy as to meet where partings are known no more! O, it will be a happy meeting! May God help us to remain faithful to the end, is my prayer! ANDREW WESTERGREN.

Kloxhult, Elmhult, Sweden.

From the Walnut Valley Church, Barton Co., Kans.

BRO. JOHN WISE, of Conway Springs, Kans., closed a week's meeting June 5. Elder R. F. McCune, of Dallas Centre, Iowa, came to us on the evening of Jan. 6, and continued the meetings until Jan. 19, with increasing interest, not shunning to declare the whole counsel of God. On the evening of Jan. 19, two made application to be received into the church. On the evening of the 20th, Eld. I. H. Crist, of Olathe, Kans., came and continued the meetings. Jan. 21 five more came out to go with the children of God, making, in all, seven that have been received by baptism. The meetings closed on the evening of Jan. 27th. May the Lord bless the tender lambs that they may, with us, grow in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. May the Lord also bless our dear brethren, who so faithfully labored for the cause of the Master! MICHAEL KELLER.

Feb. 3.

Working for the Master.

ABOUT twelve or fifteen months ago the people of Albemarle County, Va., about four miles south of Crozet, a station on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad (near the Miller school),—called for the Brethren to come and preach in a temperance hall. Bro. John Brower and I held one meeting near the same place about eighteen years ago. In May last the writer filled the call, and held some meetings again in June, July, August, September and November. The people are very kind and sociable. They seemed to enjoy the meetings, and ask us to keep up the meetings.

In August two (man and wife) made application for membership. In September they were planted in the likeness of Christ's death.

Dec. 17, a snow fell with us, twenty-four inches deep, which put a stop to the Albemarle mission for that time. We hope soon to commence again.

Jan. 10 we went to Newport, Page Co., Va., where we held meetings that night and worked for the Master as God gave ability. The few members there,—twenty-five perhaps,—are isolated from the body, and surrounded by strong opposition. We held nineteen meetings and received four young brethren by baptism on Jan. 27. May the dear brethren be strong and true to their calling! Others were pierced to the heart and fully persuaded as to their duty, but stifled conviction and put off their duty until the future; may God help them to submit themselves to the Truth!

E. L. BROWER.

Waynesborough, Va., Feb. 3.

From the Newton Church, Ohio.

LAST night we closed our series of meetings, which commenced Jan. 10. Bro. Quinter Calvert preached thirty-nine soul-inspiring sermons, which much encouraged the saints on their way heavenward, and warned sinners to shun the ruinous results of sin. To the joy of God's people, the unconverted took warning and came flocking home to God. Time after time the waters were troubled until forty-six precious souls were gathered into the fold of Christ, to walk in newness of life with the people of God.

The newly-baptized members ranged in age from fifteen to seventy-eight years in age, and among them were the heads of twelve families. We feel that more are near the kingdom. Thus the good work goes on, and we praise the name of the Lord! J. B. DEETER.

Pleasant Hill, Ohio, Feb. 4.

From Lucas County, Iowa.

RECENTLY we visited, and held a meeting with the few members near Derby, Lucas Co., Iowa. Our meeting was held in the Presbyterian church in town. I am requested, by our dear brother and sister Henry, to say to our ministering brethren, who may pass over the C. B. & Q. R. R., between Chariton and St. Joe, that those isolated members would be glad to have our brethren stop and preach for them. There are several isolated members there, and others of the Brethren's children who ought to be in the church. God help them to come so the work of the church may be carried on! We hope to meet again the fifth Sunday in March. If any brother can respond to this request, he will please notify Bro. Emmanuel Henry, Derby, Lucas Co., Iowa, and he will be met and cared for, and arrangements made for meeting.

Garden Grove, Iowa, Feb. 3.

From the Shiloh Church, W. Va.

A SERIES of meetings was commenced at the above-named church, Jan. 10, and continued until the 22nd. Bro. Aaron Fike, of Eglon, Preston Co., W. Va., came to us during the first part of the meeting and preached fourteen sermons for us. As a result of his labors nine were baptized. One was reclaimed and three more applicants are to be attended to. The home ministers labored with Bro. Fike. The congregations, at first, were small, on account of the inclemency of the weather. After the second evening the audience began to increase in number, and the best of attention was given. Saints were made to rejoice and sinners to tremble. Bro. Fike made many friends while among us. May the Lord crown his labors with success! L. G. SHAFFER.

Jan. 31.

From La Porte, Ind.

ON Sunday, Jan. 18, at 2 P. M., I attended the funeral of a young man, twenty-six years old, another victim of consumption. The occasion was improved by the Pastor of the Free Methodist Fraternity, in their church at Springville, five miles north of La Porte. The minister did not suggest one ray of hope for the departed, whose remains were soon to be consigned to the earth. His life was Christless, his bed of pain bereft of religious soothing balm, and his death unblest by hope. How terrible! When the coffin with its awful burden rested in its place in the ground, a cold shiver ran through my frame. When the last benediction to the dead, "Earth to earth; dust to dust, ashes to ashes," was pronounced by the preacher,—my silent but earnest prayer was, "O let me live the life of the righteous and let my latter end be like his." THURSTON MILLER.

DANIEL R. PRICE, Treasurer.

Oregon, Ill.

From the Wabash Church, Ind.

OUR meetings closed last night with three additions. Bro. George Stump, of Ohio, did the preaching. We have never attended a more interesting series of meetings and we think that many lasting impressions were made on the minds of all who attended. Our meetings continued to grow in interest till the last. We were well satisfied that some were near the kingdom, but, like Felix of old, they have said, "Go thy way for this time; I will call for thee at a more convenient season." Bro. George is one of our plain-spoken brethren. He strikes some hard blows. Let us, dear brethren and sisters, try to profit by what we hear. When our brethren say something in their sermons that hits us, or crosses our path, let us not get offended, but rather encourage our brethren in their arduous work. Bro. Stump's kind companion accompanied him in all the meetings. To-morrow morning they expect to go to their home in Ohio. May God's choicest blessings ever attend them! C. C. ARNOLD.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 4.

From Gilman, Ind.

BRO. G. L. STUDEBAKER commenced a series of meetings Sept. 6, in the Killbuck church, and continued until Sept. 21. The meetings were continued by the home brethren until Sept. 28. As an immediate result six souls were made willing to follow their Savior in the holy ordinance of baptism. Sept. 27 was our regular quarterly church council. Much business came before the meeting, but all passed off quietly. Saturday, Jan. 24, we met in council again, at which the mission work was considered. There was a motion to petition District Meeting to appoint solicitors to raise an Endowment Fund for the mission work in the District. This motion was deferred until next quarterly council. It would be well for the churches of Southern Indiana to consider this subject. At this meeting one more was added to the church by baptism. Pray for us that we may work till Jesus comes!

H. E. MILLSPAUGH, Cor. Sec.

From Sidney, Ind.

On the evening of Jan. 13 I commenced meetings in the large meeting-house in the union church, Marshall Co., Ind., and continued the meetings until the evening of Feb. 1, preaching in all thirty-two sermons to large and attentive congregations. As an immediate result, seventeen dear ones came forward. Seven of the number asked to be baptized. The others, who had wandered away from the fold, requested to be re-instated. Among the number received was a dear mother and her two sons, the one being only eleven and the other thirteen years of age. We were made to believe that many others are counting the cost, and will come soon.

We commenced meetings at home, in the town of Sidney, last night, and expect to continue the meetings till Feb. 12. Then I expect to go to the Rock Run District, Elkhart Co., Ind., to begin a meeting there on the night of Feb. 13. I ask the prayers of all in my behalf, and for the success of the meetings. DANIEL SNELL.

A Welcome Visitor.

JAN. 24, Bro. D. L. Miller unexpectedly arrived in Sidney, with heart and hands laden with gifts, both spiritual and temporal.

The next day he instructed a large audience in the way of holiness, and we are glad to say that Christ's name was honored and his precepts taught in a practical way. In the evening Bro. Miller spoke of Bible Lands from personal observation, to an attentive audience.

On Monday, after having had a committee of three brethren appointed by the church, he left with them $466.44, to be used among the needy of this County. He then left for Western Kansas to seek other needy people and aid them.

The people of Western Nebraska are needy; but we thank God their needs are being supplied! May the Good Lord abundantly bless the kind donors of Northern Illinois, and other places, who have so liberally opened their hearts in a practical way and responded to the cry of the needy. We fully realize that it is "more blessed to give than to receive," and we invoke the choicest blessings of the Infinite God upon those who have such charitable hearts, for their kind remembrance of the needy.

We shall have a report to make in due time, through the MESSENGER, of the distribution of the money left here. Shall also send a letter to the Northern District of Illinois after the funds have all been used, to try to show our appreciation of their gift.

O. D. LYON,
Treasurer of Committee.

Sidney, Nebr., Feb. 1, '91.

"How much of that which is best in us is due to the inspiration and example of our friends! How much of that which is worst in us is a result of our living within ourselves, instead of living for others, and in the light that others shed upon our pathway! It is our best side that we like to show to others. Our worst side we want no one to know but ourselves. And when we have a friend who holds before us a lofty ideal, in example or in suggestion, we are drawn away from ourselves and toward that which is better than our native aspirations. The very trials that a true friendship brings to us are a help outward and upward; and the joys that we gain in a friendship are a foretaste of the joys of a better state than this.

All are in the church except the youngest, and we trust this dispensation of God's providence may be the means of bringing him to Christ. Among her descendants are forty grandchildren, and fifty great-grandchildren. Sister Hollinger joined the church of the Brethren in 1823, and lived a devoted life to the church of her choice for sixty-eight years. Her husband, Bro. Samuel Hollinger, preceded her to the spirit world, June 18, 1883. In her death the church has lost a strong pillar, but we hope that our loss is her eternal gain. Europe and Bible Lands.

BY D. L. MILLER.

A new edition, THE TENTH, of this excellent book of travels has just been issued. The extensive sale of the work gives abundant proof of its great popularity It was thought, at first, that one or two editions would supply the demand, but already ten editions have been issued and yet the book finds a ready sale.

Thousands of copies have been sold outside of our church, and many strong testimonials have been recieved from those who have read the book. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin. —The King's Palace. Dresden — The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People. —Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia —Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner Plain of Sharon Lepers and Leprosy. Mountains of Judea. Jerusalem. Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb. Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night —Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane Jericho.—The Dead Sea. —River of Jordan. Bethel. The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee. —Capernaum. —Damascus. Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, white paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth, or $2 00 for full leather binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS —In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

TESTIMONIALS.

We have space here only for extracts from a very few of the kind letters received by the author.

A copy of Bro. D. L. Miller's work on Bible Lands is before me. I like it very much. It contains much spiritual food for the Christian as well as many useful historical facts. —Eld. Enoch Eby.

It is an interesting book and should be in every family, and read by every young man and woman, so that they may know how the people live in Europe and the East. I would not take three times what the book cost me and do without it. Eld John Knisley.

I have read Europe and Bible Lands, and I am ready to confess that it gave me more satisfaction than I anticipated. I am especially pleased that the history you give of the Bible lands corresponds in its arrangements so well with the Bible. Since reading your book, I think I can almost see the different cities, mountains, rivers, scenery, with the valley and the river of Jordan. Eld. John Forney.

Your book brought back to me many pleasant recollections of countries I saw long ago, and which you describe so vividly and truthfully. You have done a good work in publishing a book which contains so much interesting and valuable matter, especially for our young readers, giving the present aspect of many countries and the present condition of many interesting questions Hon R R Hitt

Having given considerable time to the study of sacred history and antiquities, I was especially interested in that portion of the work devoted to the description of Bible Lands, and can truly say that I have obtained from it much information that I have not been able to obtain heretofore although I have perused volumes. The author has been careful to combine the past and present history of those lands, the better showing the fulfillment of prophecy, which makes it doubly interesting to the Bible student. And then, the cheerful, spicy manner of narration makes it of incalculable worth. —M. H. Robinson, Sherwood, Ohio.

I received your book of travels in the Holy Land, and have finished reading it I consider it an excellent work, not only for our people, but all who have an interest in the Holy Land and a desire for Bible knowledge. It gives, in a plain, clear style, much information regarding the country, towns, mountains, rivers and seas made sacred by the footprints of our Savior. Another thing which makes your book valuable is the religious character given to all your travels, even outside of Palestine. I would be glad if all our reading matter had such religious character underlying it; how safe and profitable it would be for the Church, our children, and the world to read! Eld. R. H. Miller.

I admire your book very much, and while it has cost you much work and great anxiety, it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to others long after you and your wife have gone to the Paradise above. I consider the book a credit to you and the Church. When you left us for your trip, I knew you would make a great effort to put your thoughts in a readable shape, and do your utmost to describe everything of interest. In that respect you have succeeded far beyond my expectation, and now instead of reading your work for pleasure, I consult it for solid and reliable information. I hope the book will have a large sale, for it deserves it, and ought to be in every family, especially in the Brotherhood.—Eld. J. H. Moore

Mr. Miller has been careful in collecting his facts, and conscientious in describing what he has seen. He has not sacrificed truth to mere picturesque effect. It is this very quality of simplicity and truth that makes the book interesting. After one has been satiated with the common type of the book or letter of travel, which aims at describing the writer's fancies or saying something fine, but which seldom descends to describing things as they are, it is really refreshing to read this straight-forward and faithful narrative. More than one half of the book is occupied with Bible lands. There are many books on the Holy Land, and this work will make no pretensions to supersede them; but it will find its way into many homes where the larger works have not appeared. By reason of its simplicity of style, it is well adapted to younger readers, and it will doubtless stimulate in many young minds a greater interest for Bible study.—A. W. Burnett, Strasburg, Germany.

Doctor Koch's Discovery.

Dr. Koch's great remedy seems to prove efficacious in those cases where the patient has contracted consumption in low lying countries, —almost all the level European districts where the disease is traceable to purely climatic conditions, the moist atmosphere being a fine breeding region for the microbe. But in the high and dry altitude traversed by the Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route, consumption not only can not exist but is surely curable in its early stages. And this is testified to by thousands who have regained health and strength in the life giving air of the Mountains. 7t8

That Brilliant American.

Samuel Bowles, the famous editor of the Springfield Republican, said, in recording his impressions of the Puget Sound Country:

"Up here, above the latitude of Quebec and Montreal, we basked in the smile of roses that are even denied to us in New England. Here, within the circle of the softening sea, reigns a year that knows no zero cold, and rarely freezes water or snow; that winters the fuchsias and the most delicate roses, English ivies and other tender plants, and summers them with rioting luxuriance; that grows the apple and the pear and the small fruits to perfection."

The Puget Sound Country is a wonderful agricultural country awaiting development. There is nothing open to the home seeker to compare with it and it is the future goal of the great army of home seekers. In healthfulness it is wonderful and in productiveness unsurpassed. Thousands last year journeyed to this charmed region over the Union Pacific, the original overland route, and thousands more will go this year. 7t8

Some of our correspondents from the extreme North-west report a great desire, on the part of the people, to have our brethren come and preach. Who are they who will say: "Here, Lord, send me." If there are such, they should be sent, not as squatters, or to open up farms, but to preach the Gospel.

Death, our common foe, is still at work, and at his call one of our members, sister Annie Myers, was taken from us. She was yet young in years, and leaves a husband and son to mourn their loss. She was a daughter of Henry and Nancy Brumbaugh, of the James Creek church. The bereaved husband has our sympathies, and we hope that the good Father will, in some way, direct his bereavement to his good.

Just as we were closing our editorial for the week we received the intelligence of the death of Eld. John Studebaker, of Troy, Ohio. Tick, tick, as swings back and forth, the pendulum of the old family clock, each time it seems to say, "One gone, one gone," and so it is. We are all hastening along the round that will, sooner or later, come to an end and pass us over to the other shore. This is not our home. The stay is too short to so call it, but let it be a pleasant sojourn, with a hopeful looking forward to the closing day and the opening of the eternal day, when there are no shadows of sin, and when there are meetings without partings. Eld. Studebaker was human as we all are, but there were times when, with an eye of faith, he saw the bright light which filled his soul, without giving language for expression. His daughter, sister Quinter, was with him during his sickness and death, and has not yet returned.

Bro. W. J. Swigart held a week's meetings in Frederick City, Md., and he reports a very pleasant stay with the brethren and sisters of that city. They have a good house and a fair membership.

Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh is now holding a series of meetings in Waynesboro, Pa. There is a good membership in that place, and it is said that they are live and active workers. In such congregations it is not so hard to awaken an interest as when the members must first be moved, which, sometimes, is the hardest part of the work.

CIRCUMSTANCES AND OUR RESPONSIBILITIES.

It is often said that our lives are much as our surrounding circumstances make them, and there is considerable truth in it. But is it all truth, or, at least, should it be? That circumstances by which we are surrounded and with which we are related tell largely in the shaping of our lives, is a truth beyond a successful denial. But, then, is there not another way in which we may look at it and draw our conclusions? A very important question in locating human responsibilities is to determine who is the author of our surrounding circumstances. If we are entirely independent of their authorship and their being around us, and then accept the idea that they necessarily shape our lives, then, if we are wrongly shaped, the blame must rest on the circumstances, and not on us. If, however, we are the authors of our own environments, or if we are the cause of them being such, we must accept, at least, part of the praise or blame ourselves. Our rseponsibilities are in proportion to our cause of their being and allowing them to be around us.

God has given us the possibility of being the authors of our surroundings, or to become the subjects of those made by others, and we are called upon to decide which we shall do,—make such as suit us or accept such as are made by others. Many have raised themselves above the nests in which they were born and bedded, and, by God's help, have made their own environments. Our Father has given us senses, and wisdom and will power to use them. If we fail to use these and are willing to remain mere figure heads or machines, we will go through life and turn up in the end just what circumstances have made us. But if we utilize our God-given powers, we may be what God would have us to be, a blessing to the world and an honor to the household of faith.

The good men of old were not the outgrowths of their surroundings—Abraham, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, David, Daniel, and the Hebrew children, were all men that walked and lived above their surroundings. This may also be said of the disciples and especially of Paul. Think, for a moment, of them being thrown into the crucible and coming out shaped into golden calves! No, they came out of all these things better men than they were before. They made and turned up circumstances that were in harmony with their senses of duty, and so must we do, if we ever expect to reach the true standard of manhood.

There are three things we can do:

First. If our surroundings, as we find them, are such as are adapted to our highest development and good, we can utilize and magnify them in a way that will serve us to our best advantage, and for the accomplishment of the most good.

Second. If they do not suit us, or are not adapted to our needs we can either drive them away from us, or we can go away from them. There are no man-made circumstances from which we can not, in some way, free ourselves. The surroundings of Paul and Silas in the Philippian prison, with their feet in the stocks were about as incongenial and hard to get away from as we can well imagine, and yet they did it, even before the walls were shaken and the gates thrust ajar. They possessed a power that was unbindable. In the midnight-hour, inclosed within prison walls and barred doors, they were the same indomitable witnesses for Christ as they were the day before, and, in a most inauspicious moment, they converted surroundings that seemed most unfruitful for good, into such as proved most favorable and opportune.

Third. If your surroundings are such that you can neither change them or get away from them, then make better ones higher up. Either of these ways will place us largely beyond the reach of the ordinary environments of life and enable us to be ourselves and do as we wish. It is not intended that we should run the current as drift-wood, but to stem the flood when need be. When duty calls, be as ready to go against the current as with it.

There is more drifting with us, as a people, than many would be willing to admit, and this drifting is not in the single channel of fashion as some would gladly make believe. There are other currents running worldward as rapidly as this, and by hissing all at one, others have been allowed to quietly slide on unnoticed. It will be well for us all to take heed to our ways, lest, while we are hissing at the heels of others, we, ourselves may slide on our own slipperiness. We need men in the church who are not the creatures of circumstances but who are well-founded on the principles of Truth, and who dare to do right though a heavy current must be stemmed to do it. We admire the moral pluck of the man who could say: "I would rather be right than President." Such men, if filled with the Spirit of truth, will make circumstances and such ones, too, as will be a power for good in the world.

This is what we should all strive to be. Life is too short and precious to try to be one thing and do otherwise. A little bit of reputation is spoiling some people. Their environments are endangering their souls but the morsel is so sweet that they would not have it otherwise, even if they could.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

"LET NOT YOUR HEART BE TROUBLED."—St. John 14: 27.

Fear not, weary storm-tossed Christian,
God will make a way for thee
To escape, when fierce temptation
Would engulf thee in its sea.
Round, about, above, beneath thee,
Dangers seen and unseen lie;
But beyond these cometh comfort,
Fear not, little flock—"'Tis I."

"It is I—your Lord and Master;
I will succor, I will save,
Through temptation I will lead thee
To a home beyond the grave.
As thy day, so shall thy strength be;
Oft in weakness cometh might;
After conflict comes the victory;
After darkness cometh light."

Day by day the shadows lengthen,
Night by night they fade away,
By and by there'll be no sorrow,
When we've gained that perfect day
When our latest sun is setting,
When our trials all are o'er,
When these fragile barks are nearing
Canaan's bright, celestial shore.

When we reach the Golden City,
When we see the white-robed throng,
When we hear in sweet perfection,
Angels sing Redemption's song;
When, O when we see our Savior,
When admitted to his fold,
We will shout, "O glorious vision!
Not the half has e'er been told."

OWE NO MAN ANYTHING.

BY J. L. SWITZER.

"Owe no man anything but to love one another."—Rom. 13: 8.

"My experience," — says Bro. Eby, — "proves the words of Solomon to be true." My experience proves the words of Paul to be true. Samuel Smiles says, "By running into debt, you are giving another person power over your liberty."

Security is the second degree of debt. If it be wrong in its second degree, is it not wrong in its first? Under the moral law the wages of the hireling were not to remain with the employer over night. Under the Gospel we have the golden rule and the language of Paul.

It will be noticed in the case of Onesimus and Philemon, that Paul wished Philemon to cancel the debt. Every debt ought to be cancelled. Is it possible that we can close our eyes, and be indifferent, to the tremendous convulsions that debt is producing in this nation?

Is it possible that the church is insensible to the multiplied sorrow that financial entanglements have caused her?

One thing, to me, I know is not possible, and that is that my own experience can pass by unfelt and unheeded. A small obligation, given to a brother in 1874, swept all my property away in 1886, involved a number of others to a shameful extent, and nearly ruined an entire church. It was a painful exemplification of the maxim, "Give the devil the little finger and he will soon have the whole body."

What happened to me is happening almost every day in this County and in almost every other County in Kansas. Neighbor Cook told me today that he met the Sheriff and that he had in his possession a number of foreclosure notices; and so great and disastrous has been the effects of these inexorable obligations in Kansas that special legislation is demanded to mitigate the evil and give relief to the people.

The people have been brought under bondage. What brought them under? Owing a man something besides love,— debt.

Bro. Eby deals with one phase of the evil,— going security one for another. Is it any less an evil for a man to give his farm or other property for security?

When one man goes security for another, the security is obtained by the consent of the endorser. When the farm is given it binds all the family, often without their knowledge or consent, and the children's labor and property must often go to satisfy the debt.

What are the advantages of going into debt? Is it the part of discretion and good judgment to go into debt? Is it generally attended with financial advantage, or with disadvantage? Is it a source of peace and tranquility to the individual and to the church? Does not Rom. 13: 8 positively forbid it?

I am aware of the position, taken by some, that you do not owe a debt until the obligation to pay becomes absolute, but a more shallow conception of a plain fact is difficult to conceive. Just consult your dictionary, consult your judgment, consult plain common sense.

I feel glad that Bro. Eby has approached this subject. Individuals, myself included, and the church, have suffered much from too much indifference, upon the part of the pillar and ground of the truth, with regard to this matter. The great credit system of doing business, adopted by the world, has insensibly overshadowed the church and insidiously crept into her methods and dealings, until many of us have gone to sleep over a chasm, only to be aroused by the fearful shock at the bottom.

Individual members are not generally very prone to practice virtues which the church does not teach and enforce. This salutary admonition, aye, command of the Apostle Paul has met the fate of every precept and principle of the Gospel which Christians do not enforce, which the church does not maintain. Its disregard is the result of a gradual slackening of the reins, that permits many to wander off into the slough of despondency, and, if they get out at all, their garments are soiled.

Better wake up to the glory and beauty of our perfect law of liberty.

"TO ALL THAT ARE AFAR OFF."

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

While this epistle is intended for all that are "scattered abroad," it is specially designed for the little band of brethren and sisters in South-eastern Colorado. There is something very precious and heavenly to be learned in "the back side of the desert," which can not be learned in Egypt nor in Canaan. Ex. 3: 1.

Too much of the tangible and visible in religion is not consistent with "our high calling in Christ Jesus." "God is a spirit; and they that worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth." John 4: 24. The more of material and external we need to make God intelligible, the farther we are yet from the apprehension of the doctrine Christ preached at Jacob's well. Symbols change with changing dispensations, and the higher and more spiritual the economy, the less of symbol and medial worship. The great consummation to which all dispensations tend, is the perfect fulfillment of the petition, "Thy Kingdom come," and the only medium between God and the saint will be the glorified Humanity of Emmanuel. To the extent that we realize the Beatific Vision of 2 Cor. 4: 6, will we be prepared for the more immediate and perfect beholding of Rev. 22: 4.

Ordinances are needful while in the flesh; they are God's object-lessons to quicken and expand our dull spiritual perceptions. But to be in bondage to them is to convert them into hinderances instead of helps. What these scattered sheep in the desert need, and what, indeed, we all need, is that God open our eyes to behold a well of water in the wilderness, where we think we are hidden away from all human companionship and sympathy. No matter how far circumstances or Providence may lead us into the desert, God has a Beer-la-hai-roi, or a Beersheba to quench our thirst and refill our empty bottle, and send us on our way rejoicing. Gen. 16: 7–14, and 21: 14–19.

Colorado belongs to Christ, as does every other inch of this sin-smitten planet. The Holy Ghost has the same mission there as elsewhere. Although you are separated from personal communion with the general Brotherhood, you are not cut off from the Fountain of Life. "Lo, I am with you always," to the end of the world both as to space and time. That means the little flock browsing on the field of Colorado. The pastures grow as green and the waters flow as quietly in your locality as in the richest Goshen of Egypt, or the most fertile hills and dales of Canaan. Psalm 23: 1, 2.

"Jehovah is my Shepherd, I shall not want." "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me; and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand." John 10: 27, 28. How will that do for Colorado?

Eighteen centuries have not changed either the heart or the voice of "the Good Shepherd." His heart is as full of love, and his hand as full of power as when He nailed sin and death and hell to the cross, and, in His glorious resurrection, "spoiled principalities and powers," and made an open show of them in His mighty triumph of self-liberation from all the claims of the eternal Law of Righteousness. Col. 2: 14, 15.

He is the Faithful Shepherd and Bishop of souls, "elect precious; and he that believeth on Him shall not be confounded." 1 Pet. 2: 9, 25. The ravening wolf of hell is crafty and strong, and he knows well where Colorado is, but he can not overpower or circumvent the Omnipotent, Omniscient Shepherd of Israel. "If you abide in Him, and His words abide in you," and you employ His name aright, you will be "strong in the Lord and in the power of His might," and "the gates of hell shall not prevail against you." John 15: 7; Eph. 6: 10. In the midst of all your isolation and trials and afflictions, you can hum the sweet heart-melody which has cheered God's pilgrims always and every-where: "God is my salvation, I will trust and not be afraid; the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song." Isaiah 12: 2.

Led by such a shepherd, you will find the Crystal River of Life in the dreariest wilderness, and "with joy draw water out of the wells of salvation." Isa. 12: 3. The Beersheba of Calvary springs wherever there is faith to "Behold the Lamb of God," and accept His cross as the ground of hope and the standard of life.

Although you are weak as Philadelphia and poor as Smyrna, you may be "a happy little band," wearing 1 Pet. 1: 8, as a sign upon thine hand and as a frontlet between thine eyes. Ex. 13: 16. Beware of the greed of Cesar and of the "leaven of Herod," and of the siren snare of angel-cloaked devilism. 2 Cor. 11: 13, 14, 15. If you would be kept of God, then keep yourselves. 1 Pet. 1: 5; Philpp. 4: 7; 1 John 5: 18. Then Galatians 6: 16.

Christ first, then the church. "We are his workmanship." Eph. 2: 10. "Ye are God's building." 1 Cor. 3: 9. In Jesus we are "builded together for an habitation of God, through the Spirit." Eph. 2: 22. "He who hath builded the house, hath more honor than the house." Heb. 3: 3. The church is a Divine institution, but it is no substitute for the Founder. Through the Word and the Holy Spirit and faith, we have direct access to our Redeemer and Father. Eph. 2: 18; John 14: 6. When Elijah was in the cave at Horeb all alone, he was as near to God as when in populous Palestine.

"Seek and ye shall find, ask and ye shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto you," is as true in Colorado as in Pennsylvania or Jerusalem. If you "seek first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness," "with all your heart and soul," you will have a Pentecost which will fill your heart and mouth with the Magnificat of Luke 1: 46–54, and convince the world that you are indeed risen with Christ, and your citizenship is in heaven. Rom. 6: 4, 5; Col. 3: 1–4; Philpp. 3: 20.

Although you are few in number, you can often "assemble yourselves together," "build up yourselves in your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost, keeping yourselves in the love of God," and thus be "mighty through God, to the pulling down of strongholds." Jude 20, 21; 2 Cor. 10: 4. You have an infallible teacher and omnipotent leader, and his promise is, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Heb. 13: 5.

You can not only serve God acceptably, and be "strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man according to the riches of His glory," but you can, by "your chaste conversation," the "ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which in the sight of God is of great price," win others to the Crucified, and thus enlarge the borders of Zion. Eph. 3: 16; 1 Pet. 3: 2, 4. The best preaching is to "walk even as he walked." 1 John 2: 6.

Light is its own testimony. I stand in doubt of garrulous saints. Wordy Christians are often like "sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." We may preach and pray fluently, and "speak with the tongues of men and of angels," if our neighbors witness our selfishness, spleen, passion, envy, impatience, kicking and clubbing our animals, scolding and maltreating our servants, they will naturally and reasonably put a heavy discount on our religious profession. Such demonstrations of the flesh take Christ out of the most eloquent sermon. If we are temples of the Holy Ghost, and the love of God rules body, soul, and spirit, everything around us will share the gracious presence of Incarnate Deity. "To me to live is CHRIST." "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." This is the only religion that will avail us before God, or convince the world of our celestial pedigree.

Expect nothing from God save by faith. Remember Christ's motto, Mark 9: 23. Moses can not conduct the soul into the promised rest. Joshua and Jesus are synonyms. All the Divine promises are made to faith, but only to such faith as includes all obedience. The world is full of protestants against both faith and obedience; some mistaking emotion for faith, while others sum up obedience in ordinances.

To believe, in the Gospel sense, is to accept Jesus as our justification from all legal liabilities. Acts 13: 38, 39; Rom. 5: 1. To obey is to live what the ordinances symbolize. Not he that is baptized, but he that exemplifies trine immersion, is a sacred person. Compare "THOU ART" in Acts 8: 23, and "WE ALSO" in Rom. 6: 4. The ordinances are for believers, and believers stand in such relation to God as the vicarious sufferings and imputed righteousness of Jesus Christ establish. Grace does not disparage obedience, but it fulfilled what law could only prefigure. This is the Gospel, and any chipping or compounding is under a double anathema. Gal. 1: 6–9.

Works can never be interposed as a basis of acceptance; but they are always demanded as the argument of faith and the expression of the indwelling Christ. What it costs to satisfy Divine Law and maintain the Divine Righteousness, is seen in the Divine-human career of Emmanuel. It is folly for us poor sinners to attempt it. Blessed be God, it is not required of any one. It is done once for all. On that foundation we step by faith, and on it we remain by faith, externalized in all the relations and manifestations of life.

Let there be a bright spot in Colorado, where obedience to the Gospel means "God manifest in the flesh" by faith in Christ, and not poor, human nature vainly struggling to incarnate God by works. Have prayer-meeting, Bible-class, Sunday-school, and let "holiness to the Lord" flame on your foreheads, and be written on pot and pan, table and door, no less than on the altar and the Ark. The grace of Christ is sufficient, and if your faith is correspondent, your life will be ditto. This is the practical trinity of salvation. God works because He is God, and believers work because God is in them. Life must out, but it must first be the gift of God. Rom. 6: 23.

THE JUDGMENT.

BY A. FLORY.

CHRIST says, "When the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Matt. 19: 28. This locates the place where the judgment will be. The apostle Paul says, "The saints shall judge the world." This explains to us who the judges will be.

This judgment can not occur in this dispensation, for God has appointed a day for this purpose. This day will not come until after the resurrection of all the dead. John says, "And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works." Rev. 20: 13. None save those that have judged themselves will be competent to judge others. The apostle Paul says, "If we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." The man that is in sympathy with those who violate the laws of America is not competent to render a verdict and the same is true in regard to God's law. All those that believe that a man can be a Christian in any church, regardless of their practice, are in sympathy with those who violate God's law, because many of those churches do not fully believe Christ's commandments, neither do they practice them. Therefore those who are thus minded, lack some of the qualifications of a judge. Paul tells us to examine ourselves whether we be in the faith. It is impossible to be in the faith of the Gospel of Christ, and, at the same time, believe all the creeds in the land to be right. It is much to be deplored that we have some in our Brotherhood that lack this qualification.

Dear brother and sister, if this is your faith, you may be found wanting in the great day of accounts. Possibly you have not searched God's Word as you should have done. In all ages of the world none save those who fully believed and and obeyed God's Word, were justified. It is extremely wrong to justify the ungodly. This was clearly demonstrated in the camp of Israel. After the earth had opened her mouth and swallowed up Korah and his host, we find that the people murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, "Ye have killed the people of the Lord." Num. 16: 41. Please read to the end of the chapter, and you will find that 14,700 persons died simply because they were in sympathy with those that refused to obey one of God's commands. We do not wish to hurt the feelings of any one. We simply give these few thoughts for the benefit of our brethren and sisters.

RECEIVING AND IMPARTING TRUTH.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

IN the pursuit of truth in any department of the Christian economy, we ought always to be willing to lay aside our preconceived notions, and accept the plainest and most significant teaching of the Word of God. This, however, is frequently very hard to do. Indeed, it is so difficult that we, not infrequently, see men completely blinded by prejudice, while at the same time honestly, but mistakenly, protesting that they are entirely free from it.

To a person in this state of mind, all evidence is more or less distorted. They are not to be taken by logic. If you hurl a syllogism at them, it will glance off. If you quote authorities, they are discredited. We do not make these remarks to show that prejudice is a perversity, for this is not always the case.

Most men are creatures of circumstances. The illiterate man, who declaims against education, would be entirely on the other side of the question if his father had graduated him in some good college or university. The Calvinist, who insists on predestination, would have been a zealous Armenian, if his parents, uncles and cousins had been Methodists.

The exceptions to this rule are very rare. It requires, therefore, great knowledge of self, and no little ability, to lift the mind out of its well-worn grooves, and give it such penetration that it can recognize truth in a strange dress, and weigh reason without bias. One mark of a mind, emancipated from the thraldom of traditional modes of thought and traditional opinions, is its ability to recognize changed conditions, and to adapt itself readily to a new order of things.

Perhaps the most conspicuous example in all history of this kind of genius is the apostle Paul. By birth and education he was the representative of a sect, notorious for the pertinacity with which it clung blindly to the traditions of the fathers, and rejected every innovation with uncompromising zeal, no matter how good it might be in itself.

This Pharisee of the Pharisees so expanded under the light of the Gospel that he could readily adapt himself to the constantly changing conditions, customs and habits of thought which met him among the differing peoples of his widely-varying missionary work. "He became all things to all men," not in respect to their moral or spiritual condition, but in respect to all such customs, habits, traditions and characteristics, as were simply hereditary and constitutional without being immoral.

As an illustration of the Apostle's meaning in this utterance, which puzzles so many people, we may refer to the policy of many American and English missionaries to China, who wear the Chinese costume because it gives them more influence with the natives. The ignorant Chinese have a strong prejudice against the dress of a foreigner, because it is so very different from their own. Of course, it is an unfounded and unreasonable prejudice, but it hinders the Gospel, and for this reason the missionaries adopt the native costume and conform to other customs of the country, "so that by all means they can save some."

In an enlightened country like ours, the general level of intelligence is much higher, and we do not encounter so many and so violent prejudices, but here and there we find individuals and communities far removed from the sunny heights of knowledge, and in almost every community there is a sub-stratum of spiritual ignorance, wide-spreading and profound. How to get light into this prevalent darkness, how to disarm prejudice, how to inform and persuade where suspicion closes the door, and contented ignorance darkens the window, is one of the gravest problems which confronts the teacher, preacher and reformer.

We are obliged to use the words "knowledge" and "ignorance" relatively, for in respect to mere human attainment, no man living has so much knowledge that he can be said to have no ignorance. By virtue of our natural limitations, it for no other reason, we can only, at the best, explore but a small corner of the vast empire of knowledge. There are a thousand mysteries all around us, completely hidden from our understanding; but while our limitations are of such a nature as to prevent us from knowing everything, yet they do not prevent us from making continual and often rapid progress into the clear shining of every kind of light.

He who makes no progress, who has no aspiration to know more and more, who perhaps imagines that he knows about all that is worth knowing, who thinks that there is no more light than just enough to fill the narrow bushel of his understanding, is stagnant, if not dead.

To hide this fact from their own consciousness, we sometimes see men engaged in the pitiful task of pouring the ocean of truth into the thimble of their own formula, making the entire spiritual revelation of God consist of a few things which they can easily count on their fingers. Every man who has had even a little true experience in the things of God, knows that he is only a babe in knowledge, but not discouraged thereby. He ever follows the beckoning of Truth, and so converts an ever-increasing knowledge into an ever-deepening wisdom. He continually discovers new truth, as well as new beauty in the Word, and there is not a day in which he does not make some new application of truth, new or old, to the practical duties of life, whether God-ward or man-ward. "Therefore every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old."

No man, who is a man, will put his mind and conscience into a cast iron mould, either of his own making or somebody else's making, lest Truth, like a wayfaring angel, should come along and find no hospitable door, no cheerful welcome. It is well to hold the Truth we have with unyielding tenacity, but it is folly to seal our doors so tight that old error can not go out, and new truth can not come in.

No man is perfect in this life, or can be, either in respect to moral excellence, or theological understanding, and as churches are simply aggregations of individuals, no church is perfect in either particular. It is a very fortunate thing that in the economy of grace, salvation is not made to depend upon our own perfection, but upon the perfections of another. Our perfection is made, not the condition of salvation, but its result, its mature fruit, beginning to develop at conversion, and going on through time to the threshold of eternity. Some individuals and some churches are more perfect than others, and this is always found to be in exact proportion to the diligence and faithfulness with which the "things new and old" are continually set before them and appropriated by them.

Every Christian, therefore, is a reformer, in relation to his own spiritual life and in relation to the circle of his individual influence. Likewise every true preacher is a reformer in relation to the church as well as to the world. A preacher who is not a reformer is a cipher. There have always been some of both, and there has never been a good understanding between them. "Light is sown for the righteous," but there are those who "love darkness rather than light." Nevertheless when that light "shineth unto the perfect day," it will be seen that "Wisdom is justified of her children."

From Goodland, Kans.

Our dear brother, B. B. Whitmer, of Quinter, Kans., was here, looking after the needs of the destitute. After a careful investigation of our condition, he made arrangements for the proper distribution of the funds, donated through the liberality of the dear brethren and friends of Northern Illinois and other places, who, as an evidence of their love to God, have given freely for the relief of the suffering ones. The members and all others who have received of the donations, wish me to extend their grateful thanks to the donors.

Language fails to express what my eyes have seen and ears heard, in visiting from house to house, for the purpose of learning the needs of the people. With the $147 that I received of Bro. B. B. Whitmer, I assisted twenty-eight families and caused over 123 souls to rejoice. I thought, while distributing this money, if the donors could see the poor mothers and six or eight half-clad children, rejoice over a few dollars, they would realize the blessedness of giving.

The Lord only knows what an influence this is wielding for the cause. I have heard it on all sides that the Brethren practice what they preach.

We are having more snow this winter than we have had since I am here, and I think that the Lord will bless the earth during the coming season, that it will bring forth its fruit.

J. F. Cline.

From the New Hope Church, Cherokee Co., Kans.

Although this church has seen dark days, yet we have reason to be hopeful for the future. On Saturday, Jan. 3, Bro. J. H. Neher, and wife, of McCune, Kans., came among us. Our meetings commenced the same evening, and were continued until Sunday evening, Jan. 11. Bro. Neher did the preaching and labored earnestly. The roads were bad, the nights dark and the weather unpleasant part of the time, so that we did not have large congregations part of the time, yet we think much good was done, as the members were built up, and there are some who, we think, will unite with us soon.

On Saturday, Jan. 31, the church met in quarterly council. All the business that came before the meeting was attended to with love and good feeling. We were made to rejoice that one who had wandered from the fold, returned again. The painful duty was laid upon us lately to disown one of our number. Two have been received by letter. We are glad to have members locate with us, as we are but few in number.

At the above-named council, brethren J. H. Neher and Samuel Edgecomb (our elder) were with us, and labored until Sunday evening very acceptably. We have three appointments for preaching each month. On last Sunday we organized a Sunday-school at Neutral. We ask an interest in the prayers of God's children everywhere!

We have already reached two hundred and fifty or three hundred families with the funds we have distributed. None have received less than $1.70 worth of provisions and none more than $5.00 at one time. The sum of $650 has been consumed, and we have a goodly sum on hand now. The newspapers and many individuals say, "The Brethren are doing more for the destitute than any other religious people."

I learned, while among the needy, that many societies are sending aid to their members only. The Bible says, "As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." Gal. 6: 10. Members or not,—we use all alike.

Was there ever a better opportunity? We pray that it may be said by those who watch us that we, the Brethren, do more for the spiritual good of the people than many are doing. Surely, the whole Gospel, in its original, self-sacrificing and self-denying form will do more good than a part of the Gospel. Read Num. 32: 11, 12.

Feb. 11.

From Cartersville, Va.

While sitting in darkness, God caused great light to shine in our hearts, and new joys to inspire our thoughts. We were thinking seriously of the following Sabbath, that being the appointed time for our dear brother Kauffman to have come to labor for us, but God had called him to a higher realm, where he would be free from the cares of life.

While thinking how lonely we would be without our dear brother's words of admonition, God sent one into our midst to fill the appointment,—Bro. Wm. Bowser, of Ohio, who came the evening of Jan. 31 and remained until Feb. 3. He preached three sermons while with us. We hope that he will be pleased well enough to come here and locate amongst us. He lives five miles from Bro. Kauffman's old home in Ohio. He also visited the bereaved wife of our dear, deceased brother. She is bowed down with grief, and she wishes the prayers of all God's people. My mother, S. J. Etter, spent eight days with her, trying to comfort her in her lonely hours. God has promised to be our refuge in time of trouble, and his promises can not fail.

We are earnestly praying for Bro. Bowser's return, to labor for us in the Master's vineyard, and will do all we can to help him in the work. While he was with us, we enjoyed singing the songs of Zion. Our minds were carried heavenward, where we can unite in singing God's praises forever and ever. Pray for us! FLORIDA J. ETTER.

District Meeting.

THE Southern District of Indiana will hold her District Meeting March 25, at 10 A. M., in the "old church," two miles east of Middletown, in the Upper Fall Creek congregation. Those coming by the Pan Handle R. R., will be met at either Honey Creek or Middletown on the evening before. Trains arrive from the West about 5 P. M., and from the East about 9 P. M. On the morning of the 25th trains arrive from either way between eight and nine o'clock A. M. Parties coming over the Ft. W. C. & L. R. R., will be met at Springport on Tuesday evening. If any desire to come from the South over this line, on the morning of the 26th, they will please notify Bro. G. W. Painter, Springport. We think it would be well for brethren to come the evening before, especially those from a distance. Brethren, do not forget to bring the sisters along to help us in the meeting. D. F. HOOVER.

From Manassas, Va.

WE enjoyed a visit from Bro. J. B. Miller and daughter, of New Paris, last Sunday. They attended our regular meeting at the Valley meeting-house; we also had meeting on Sunday evening at the Cannon Branch school-house. After meeting, one dear soul requested to unite with the church. We appointed a meeting at the house of the writer; then repaired to the waterside where prayer was wont to be made. Bro. Miller performed baptism in the same stream that was crossed by thousands of soldiers during the war. Now we are trying to enroll soldiers for the Lord's army in this beautiful country, that formerly was under the bonds of slavery and sin. Slavery is now in the past, but sin still abounds.

All the brethren that can, will please drop in and do like Bro. Miller,—give us a few meetings at least. We have members scattered along the Virginia Midland R. R., for a distance of about forty miles in this beautiful country, but have room for many more preachers, deacons and lay members to move and locate here among us. We have a healthy and mild climate, and while the land has been treated badly, it may be highly improved. Some that have moved here from the North and West are doing well.

From Loraine, Ill.

At our last quarterly meeting, in November, we organized a prayer-meeting, which, so far, has proved a great blessing among us. We meet every Wednesday evening. Our meetings are frequently led by sisters. We have songs, prayer, reading of Scripture and speaking on the lesson subject by all who wish to do so.

Upon the whole we realize that the meetings are food for the soul, strengthening to the spirit, comforting to the mind, and to the upbuilding of the Christian associations of our neighborhood. The meetings are well attended by outsiders and other denominations.

I have been out in the field, preaching, most of my time, this winter. I will start to Missouri tomorrow, to hold some meetings in the Novelty congregation.

The weather is still very fine here. Mercury has not been lower than sixteen degrees above zero until night before last, when it dropped to two degrees below zero. H. W. Strickler.

Among God's Children.

Jan. 3, in company with my two little boys, I started on a visit to Tennessee. We drove thirty-two miles in a buggy over snow drifts, in the mud, and through farms, to the railroad station.

Jan. 4, at 11: 30 P. M., we arrived in Johnson City, Tenn., and in a few minutes were with loved ones.

Next morning (Sunday) we were conveyed about four miles to the Knob Creek church, where we met with a number of God's children and tried to point out the "Lamb of God," to them. The brethren desired us to continue services here a few days and nights, and we preached about seven times to fair congregations. Then we went to the home of Eld. G. C. Bowman, where we tried to preach about the "house not made with hands." We have reasons to believe that Bro. Bowman has a little family over on the other shore in that "house not made with hands." A few years ago we met around his family altar and heard the feeble voice of our grandfather, Eld. Austin Hylton, mingling with the voices of sister Bowman and Willie, her oldest son, but on this occasion their voices were not heard. They have gone to join the angel band.

On the following Sunday we were conveyed to Union where we met a very attentive audience. Here services were continued for a week, both morning and evening, by Eld. G. C. Bowman, S. J. Bowman and myself, to interested congregations.

Here we visited some very warm-hearted brethren who showed an interest in the Master's cause. As we had other business to see after, and as the time had arrived when we had to take leave of our brethren, we were forced to discontinue our meetings, but we met once more with the Brethren at Knob Creek.

In the Knob Creek church, Dec. 25, 1890, at 5 P. M., our beloved brother and father-in-law took his final departure from loved ones on this mortal shore. His spirit was peacefully translated from earth. The death angel came so quietly that not a signal was given until his work was accomplished, and, like Bro. Quinter, it may truthfully be said,—he died at his post. He had served the church for a number of years as a deacon, and it may be said of him that he was a preacher helper, and no doubt, his exit from this world was a glorious exchange for him.

While in Tennessee we met with elders D. B. Klepper, of Blount Co., Tenn., and C. H. Diehl, of Jonesboro, besides all the elders and ministers of Knob Creek, and some from Sullivan County.

While in Tennessee some united with the church and others were, seemingly, very much impressed with their awful danger.

We enjoyed our visit very much and feel very grateful to the dear brethren for their kindness shown us. We arrived at home Jan. 23, and found all well. May God every-where be adored!

C. D. Hylton.

Wayside Gleanings.

We, the Kaskaskia church, Fayette Co., Ill., are trying to make some progress in the divine life. We were much encouraged on our journey heavenward by a series of meetings, held at the Victor school-house by our beloved brother, Allen Taylor, of Mulberry Grove, Bond Co., Ill. Bro. Taylor closed his two weeks' effort Jan. 25, with one applicant. We had a crowded house of interested people. We hope that much good seed was sown, for some, apparently, are near the kingdom. Many tears were shed at his taking the parting hand. Come again, Bro. Allen.

At our regular meeting at the Hog Creek school-house, Feb. 1, Bro. Allen's applicant was baptized into Jesus Christ. We hold all of our meetings in school-houses because we have no church house of our own in which to worship, and up till this time we have not been able to build even a small church house, yet, if the Lord will, we aim to make a strong effort in that direction the coming season.

We are trying to follow the instruction of Annual Meeting in regard to paying all the members a pastoral visit, but in doing so, we are holding a social meeting in connection with the visit and the members seem to enjoy and appreciate our weak efforts.

* * *

There is one advice of Annual Meeting that I find it very hard to carry out,—that we should instruct applicants for baptism, if they use tobacco, to quit its use, unless used for medicinal purposes. I never did use the weed myself, but to advise babes in Christ to quit it when, at the same time, others will not leave it alone, it looks, how? You answer, brother.

* * *

I am in school as usual this winter again, which deters me from doing any aggressive work for the Master. Pray for us, one and all!

Granville Nevinger.

Our Arrangements for the Annual Meeting of 1891, to be Held at Hagerstown, Maryland.

We presume that it is already generally known that the Annual Meeting has been deferred two weeks, from Whitsuntide, the usual time for holding the Annual Meeting, and our arrangements are (if the Lord will) that the Standing Committee can meet on Thursday, May 28, and be ready to organize on Friday morning, the 29th, as usual.

Other committees that have business to arrange, prior to the General Council, can come a few days earlier. We have arranged to accommodate them also. The General Council is to open on Tuesday morning, June 2. We have secured Kee-Mar College,—the commodious school buildings of Dr. Keedy,—in which many can be accommodated with lodging within a few rods of the Tabernacle. Those who wish to lodge in this building during the meeting, had better write at once to the Lodging Committee, and secure a room or rooms as they may wish. The rooms vary in size,—small and large. Four, six, or eight persons may occupy a room, and enjoy all the conveniences that might be expected in a building of this kind.

As we are to pay a considerable sum of money for the use of said buildings and their surroundings, which privilege we consider quite an accommodation to our Brethren, we will expect each one to pay twenty-five cents for the use of the bed each night they occupy it, during the meeting. Should any one desire to have the use and control of an entire room, they will be expected to pay in proportion to the capacity of that room. Therefore, if you select a room with capacity to accommodate four persons, you will be expected to pay $1.00 per day for the use of that room, and if its capacity is eight persons you will be expected to pay $2.00 per day, and so on, according to the size of the room. We desire to assign these rooms to persons who will be present during the entire time of the meeting. The following brethren have been appointed a lodging committee: Charles W. Reichard, David Emmert, D. Elmer Wolf, Robert Cushen, Samuel Frounfelter.

Persons desiring to secure rooms are requested to write at once to D. Elmer Wolf, Secretary of Lodging Committee, Hagerstown, Maryland (writing Maryland in full), giving a full statement of their wants. If an entire room is wanted, state the capacity of it and the number of beds desired. Also give, as near as possible, the date when you expect to be on the ground.

When possible it is recommended that companies of four, six, eight or more of men or women be formed, who may be assigned to the same room. Additional lodging will be found in private families and in boarding houses in the City. Hotel accommodations can be secured also through the Lodging Committee at hotel rates.

W. S. Reichard,
Secretary.

McPherson Notes.*

The four weeks' Bible Course held at this school during the month of January, was in many respects remarkable. One of these was, the very deep interest manifested by all who participated in the study of the Bible, thereby proving that the study of this book can be made as interesting, if not more so, than that of any other book introduced into our schools.

Another peculiarity was the feeling of equality and freedom which prevailed among the members of the class. The aged grandsire of seventy-six and the young brother of sixteen recited together without any embarrassment. Those who had but few advantages, could learn something and tell it, while those who studied the Scriptures for fifty years, found questions they could not answer.

The character of the work done was sufficiently varied to make it as profitable as possible to all. The morning session was devoted to Sunday-school work, embracing the teachers' qualification, the teachers' preparation, principles of instruction, methods of instruction, the management of the class, etc. The principles of reading, as applied to the Bible and hymn book, were also taught and those books used as text-books in reading. More than ordinary interest was manifested in this last exercise, and, we believe, much good was accomplished.

In the afternoon the regular Bible study was taken up. The manner of study and objects studied will form a topic for a future article. After the daily lesson in the outlines of Bible study followed a lesson or lecture on the Evidences of Christianity. This, too, will merit further notice. We only mention it now to show how well the time was taken up.

Six evenings each week were devoted to sermons. First, on Missionary Work, by D. Vaniman; second, a course of sermons on Church Government,

*Part of the contents of this article appeared in Bro. Vaniman's "Chips," published last week, but as Bro. Sharp has interwoven them with his notes, we give space to them again. —Ed.

by Enoch Eby; third a course of doctrinal sermons, by Andrew Hutchison. Eternity alone can reveal the widespread influence these sermons have had upon our students and others, gathered here from eleven States. The immediate result was six received by baptism, making twenty-one in all since the school began in September.

Let no one think that the care for these young converts does not give us the deepest concern, and sometimes comes upon us with crushing weight.

The Visiting Board of Elders, appointed by Annual Meeting to watch over the spiritual welfare of the school, discharged their duty faithfully, being with us, in part, during the whole month, and labored for us in a loving way, but we still greatly need the prayers and help of all the faithful.

Besides twenty-three of our regular students there were fifty-six others in attendance, of whom twenty-eight were ministers. S. Z. Sharp.

More About the Destitute.

I feel like offering some suggestion in regard to the condition of the destitute, as I think the most serious time is yet in the future. A total failure in 1890 means no grain on hand for seed or feed for 1891, when the mild days of spring approach, and the anxiety to supply feed for stock and clothing for man, will begin to subside. Then only will begin the real want for grain to feed teams, and for seed.

No seed for 1891 means a general "pull out" from this Western country. This will be disastrous in the extreme, as such a move means a sacrifice of all they have, their homestead included. Many have only from one to two years to final proof, and to leave now would involve a loss of all the farm utensils; also a great loss on depreciation of stock of all grades.

Should those homesteaders return to the East they will be as destitute there as here, and will have to depend on the charity of the community in which they live.

Now, in the face of all this, would it not be wise to keep those who must have aid, here, instead of all this sacrifice? Thousands of families that are prosperous now, were helpless in the times of extreme failure and grasshopper scourges, and by a little aid from the East they were made able to withstand the privation of that early period. Much has been gained by those parties being helped, so they could stay here. Would it not be better to help them here and save their homes, so as not to be renters all the rest of their lives?

Again, another entire failure will not likely again occur for years, and people are learning each year, more and more, to suit themselves to the adaptations of this country, and making greater exertions to accomplish greater results from their efforts, by accumulating stock. Upon the whole we think a brighter day is awaiting this great Western country, if we can only see the hand of God in all these privations and afflictions. Who can estimate the result of a full crop of wheat and corn over all this western country for a few years in succession? We would loathe the products of the earth.

The writer sincerely believes, looking at all things in a general way, that if all of the Kansas people use their utmost endeavors, through petitions to the State and general Government, for seed and feed for the spring crop, and if a general help of donations will continue, as already begun, we will all see the wisdom and blessing of the outcome. I will venture the assertion that thousands of families, now discouraged, would, in one year from now, be in much better circumstances, and could not be induced to "pull out."

I give this for the prayerful consideration of many who may improve my suggestions by amending, etc., but some steps should be taken at once to keep the homesteaders here until final proof.

B. B. Whitmer.

From Waynesborough, Pa.

We began a series of meetings at the Welty meeting-house, near Edgemont, Jan. 20, 1891, and closed Feb. 1. Bro. H. C. Early did the preaching. He preached fourteen sermons at that place. He did not fail to declare the Gospel in its primitive purity. The weather was unfavorable nearly all the time, the roads were very bad, yet the congregations were large and very attentive to the Word preached. As a result of our brethren's labors two made the good confession and were baptized into Christ's mystical body. Two were reclaimed. There was much rejoicing when those four were brought into fellowship with the church.

Bro. Early came to Waynesborough on Sunday evening, and preached an able sermon from James 1: 12, first clauses of the verse, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation." On the following morning he took leave and went to his home.

Our Sunday-school, under the new organization of officers,—all busy, young, active members, with the assistance of Bro. I. F. Emmert, starts out well. The school has increased, both of old and young people. The writer has formed a class of middle-aged men, hoping to be able to do a noble work for the Lord,—not only in training the young mind, but also the minds of older ones, to lay hold of the one thing needful.

We anticipate holding a series of meetings to commence Feb. 14, and hope that the members of this church will look to that time with prayerful anxiety for a happy and successful meeting. May God's people be built up and sinners brought to Christ! J. F. Oller.

In the Field.

My last was written at Middle Fork, Ind., Jan. 8. Meetings closed there on the evening of Feb. 13. On my way to the train, on the morning of the 14th, I met a brother, who informed me that his daughter wished to be baptized that day, not wishing to wait another day. This was right, for "to-day is the day of salvation," and we have no promise of to-morrow. Knowing the Brethren there could and would gladly attend to the work, I went on, and she was baptized into Christ that day. May she be a shining light, is my prayer!

I reached home on the night of Jan. 14th, and for two days was kept busy, looking after the duties of home.

Jan. 12 I went to Arlington, Ohio, to hold a meeting in a joint house, owned by the Wolf Creek and Salem churches. This meeting closed on the evening of Feb. 1. The attendance and interest were very good, but I had to wonder, while here, as I often do, how strange it is that men and women say the church is right, that it is founded on the Gospel, that they expect to unite with it before they die, and, though not a moment is their own, they still wait and say, "Not now." Oh, dear sinner, when will you say, "Now?" How many have waited till it was too late? Oh, what a pity when God has made such great provisions for us all! Who will not go? May God help many to say, "I will arise and go,—not to some man, or some favorite preacher, but,—to Christ, the Lord of all."

While at this meeting, I was called home twice, once to attend our council-meeting and once to attend the funeral of Bro. J. N. Kauffman, who died very suddenly in Virginia. Just as I was opening services on the evening of Jan. 22, I received the sad news of his death. I could hardly realize it to be true. Often we occupied the same pulpit, and we lived in the same church for fifteen years. It almost disqualified me from preaching that night. Then, again, I thought, "There is nothing strange about it, as any one of us may pass away as suddenly." Oh, let us be ready and have the armor on!

After closing the meeting at Arlington, I was at home one day; then went, on Feb. 4, to the White church where I am trying, by the help of the Lord, to preach the Word of Everlasting Truth. I expect to return home Feb. 13th and remain for two weeks, to be present at a series of meetings, which I expect to hold at New Carlisle. The Lord willing, I shall commence a series of meetings at Georgetown, Ohio, Feb. 28, and on March 12, a similar effort at Pyrmont, Ind. I had thought of spending a few months in California this winter, as I feel that the two trips I have made to the Golden State have improved my health very much.

A good brother says to me, "Bro. Henry, you had better be out, preaching the Gospel, than to go to California." While I would not expect to quit preaching, even in the Far West, yet, as the Pacific Coast is fairly well supplied during the winter, I thought that, perhaps, I might be of more use there in the summer, and more here in the winter. Henry Frantz.

Colfax, Ind., Feb. 9.

From the Milmine Church, Ill.

One of the most interesting series of meetings, that has been held in the Milmine church for many years, closed last evening. Bro. Michael Flory, of Girard, Ill., conducted the meetings.

Ten precious souls heeded Jesus' pleading voice, and came while the door was yet ajar. May they live faithful and be the means of leading others of their associates into the fold!

Others were almost persuaded. May they yet come before the harvest is past, so when their labors here are ended, they may be gathered with the loved in Paradise.

During the first week of our meetings a donation for the poor western sufferers was made, to the amount of $53. Not only our immediate district, but several members from adjoining districts, also, donated very liberally. Anna Bowman,

Feb. 6. Correspondent.

From Ionia, Kansas.

A draft was sent from the Solomon's Creek church, Elkhart Co., Ind., by Hiram Forney, of Milford, Ind., for the benefit of seventeen families, living in Rawlins County and Clinton, State of Kansas. The draft amounts to $68.18. From the English Prairie church, Ind., we received $31, through Y. D. Yoder, of Lima, Ind. From B. B. Whitmer, of Quinter, Gove Co., Kansas, we received $10.

The above funds are to be divided equally among seventeen families. Zachariah Troyer.

Practice in most things is better than theory. We are more ready to believe what we see than what we hear. Thomas heard, but it did not satisfy; he wanted to see, and in seeing he was convinced. There is a sense in which we can not see, and yet it is blessed to believe. Yet even in this, it is seeing and believing. While we can not see the tree, we do not see the fruit which it bears. The seeing of the fruit is unmistakable evidence that there is a tree. There are times when it is better that we see both Thomas' believing was all the better for the seeing. And it would be better for us if we would not believe until we get all the evidence that can be obtained.

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized Organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, Baptism by Trine Immersion for the remission of sins, and the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the only Christians.

It also maintains the Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command. Believers should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with it, Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the Followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principles of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5, 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon believers, and the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, it claims, must ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

BRO. HENRY HOKE, of the Yellow Creek church, Indiana, visited with us last week.

BRO. SAMUEL WEIMER will locate at Wyman, Washington Co., Ark., where he may be addressed in the future.

BRO. S. BURKET sent $10.00 for the Western sufferers. It is regularly recorded, but was not reported in the MESSENGER.

BRO. D. E. BEUBAKER, of this place, started for Wisconsin last week, where he expects to labor for some time in mission work.

THE address of Bro. M. J. McClure, of Morrisonville, Ill., is changed to Oakley, Ill. His correspondents will please make a note of the change.

ANY one knowing anything of the present whereabouts of William E. Vaughan, whose address in 1888 was Alvord, Texas, will confer a great favor by informing J. W. Reynolds, Oak Grove, Jefferson Co., Tenn.

BRO. PETER BROWER reports three additions to the church at English River, Iowa, recently, and expresses the hope that God's blessing may rest upon these dear young lambs of the fold.

THE General Council of Annual Conference at Hagerstown, Maryland, will open on Tuesday, June 2, at 9 A. M. Some of the committees will meet, at least one week previous to above date.

IN report of money received for Western sufferers in MESSENGER Jan. 27, read Samuel Wagner and family instead of Meadow Branch church, and instead of J. A. Trackler and wife, McComb, Ill., read McComb, Ohio.

HOW easy it is for us to make mistakes and fall into errors! What man is there who can say, My life is wholly free from errors and inconsistencies? This being true, we should never be too hasty to condemn, for, after all, we may have fallen into the same fault at sometime in our lives. While we should not condone sin, yet we should always be ready to deal gently and kindly with the erring.

BRO. SILAS HOOVER writes, Feb. 10, 1891, as follows: "I met with the saints in the Johnstown congregation on Jan. 24 and continued meetings, over two Sundays. The meetings were held in a school-house on what is called Yoder Hill. As an immediate result ten were added to the church by baptism, and several of the number came over from the German Reformed church. Our visit among the saints in the above-named church was an enjoyable one. Many thanks to the brethren and sisters for their kindness."

THE report of money received for the Western sufferers, published in this issue of the MESSENGER, contains all donations received to Feb. 18. Money received after that date will appear in the next report. We ask those who have sent in money to examine the report carefully, and if any omission or errors occur, to report at once, so that corrections may be made. Since last issue a Committee has been appointed by the church in South Dakota, composed of brethren B. F. Miller, Geo. J. Royer and D. F. Thumb, and money has been sent to those brethren for distribution. As spring approaches money will be needed to purchase seed and feed for stock. The Brethren and friends have responded most nobly to the calls for help in the West. What an outpouring there has been, and we do know that God's richest blessings will fall upon those who give to the poor and needy.

A BROTHER, who walked with us years ago, and with whom we enjoyed many hours of pleasant, social intercourse in the past, says he can not walk with us any longer. We have always admired honesty, and while we regret to have our church relation broken, yet we believe that it is better for a man, who is not in full sympathy with the church, to go where he can be satisfied. If we are honest we can not do otherwise. Some there are who accept the ministry from the church, and then go about trying to pervert her doctrines. Such a course does not commend itself to men of even common honesty. Personally, we feel no bitterness toward those who go out from us; we feel that it is better thus. If our views should so change that we could not indorse the faith and practice of the Brethren church, we should feel that it was our duty to honestly tell the Brethren so, and ask them to relieve us of the work given into our hands. This would be honest and right, according to our ideas of right. Let us, as the Scriptures teach, entreat those who go out from us as brethren, and not as enemies.

AT a recent council-meeting, held in the County Line church, Allen Co., Ohio, Bro. W. R. Guthrie was called to the ministry, and Bro. J. Grant to the deacon's office. May these brethren be blessed of the Lord in the work which the church has given them to do!

A WELL-KNOWN, faithful brother, one among our best writers, in whose judgment we repose great confidence, has these good words for the MESSENGER: "Many good words are said for the GOSPEL MESSENGER. I do think that it stands at the head of Christian journals in the United States, as an exponent of sound Gospel doctrine. The Lord bless you in the worthy work, is my prayer." We feel unworthy of such strong commendation. We hope, however, to be able to make the MESSENGER in every way worthy the name it bears. We often receive letters of commendation, but publish only a few of them. Sometimes, after receiving a severe castigation for not publishing some correspondent's article or cutting down another, it is refreshing to receive a few words like the above. Not long since a brother wrote us to stop his paper because an article that he had written had not been printed. If we should publish all that is sent to us, it would not be long until the dear brother, who wrote the kind words given above, would have occasion to form quite a different judgment of our work. Kind words never die, and how good it would be if unkind ones could be forgotten forever!

SOMETIMES brethren insist upon the publication of an article, which, in the judgment of the editor and his advisers, it would not be best to publish in the MESSENGER. The writers occasionally demur to the judgment thus given, and feel that we ought to give their productions a place in the paper. Recently one said: "You publish my article and let the responsibility rest on me. I am able to stand it." Now here is just where the trouble comes in. According to present arrangements it is the editor and not the correspondent, upon whom the weight of responsibility falls. If each individual, who writes for the paper, could be held personally responsible in the same sense, and to the same degree that the editor is, how happy that individual would be to share in this matter! But were this so, would it be best to publish all that comes to the office? If those who think so could examine our contribution box, they would at once be convinced that such a course would not only be unwise, but absolute folly. Our Progressive Brethren tried the free rostrum idea of running a paper, and the veteran editor was compelled to call a halt. With all their ideas of liberality in Christian thought and practice, it was found that it wouldn't do to publish all the articles sent in. We have extremists on almost every question that comes up. For example here are two articles on the tobacco question, one against, one in favor of the use of tobacco, both radical, both extreme. Wisdom says, "Don't print either one." Here are extreme views on both sides of the question of a supported ministry. One favors a salaried ministry out and out, with strong language and some abuse of the church for not having adopted the correspondent's ideas long ago. Here is another, taking the opposite extreme, not willing even to give the minister in need a support. Well we say of both, "Better not publish them." We might enumerate other examples of this kind, but these will show that it would not be wise to publish everything that reaches the editor's desk, even if the writer could be held personally responsible. The editor's task is by no means a pleasant one, and he needs the sympathy and prayers of all who are interested in the success of the work placed in his hands.

Bro. James M. Neff has changed his address to Rodelia, Knox Co., Tenn. He enjoys the fresh, pure country air, and says his health is improving. He reports one baptized at the above-named place, recently.

Bro. S. H. Myers, of Timberville, Va., writes us that there are quite a number of State Districts that have so far failed to pay up their annual assessment, and asks us to call attention to it through the Messenger. The treasurers of the various State Districts, who have not already done so, should at once send the amount due from them to Bro. Myers. The money is needed to pay up current expenses, and should be paid at once. Please attend to this and you will very much gratify the treasurer of our Annual Conference.

THE PRICE OF THE MESSENGER.

One of our agents, who works hard to increase the circulation of the Messenger, meets the objection that the paper is too high. He says: "I would like to have some information as to the price of the Messenger. There are some very erroneous reports, at least it seems so to me, out about the price of the paper. Some say it could be got out for half the price now charged for it. Some information on this point would help me in my work."

One reason why some of our brethren conclude that the subs ription price of the Messenger is too high, is because they compare the subscription price with that of the large city weekly papers. The comparison is not a fair one. The city weeklies are published by those who also own and print daily papers. The weekly edition is printed from the same type set for the daily, so that it costs nothing to set type for the weekly, as exactly the same matter is used the second time. Again, from one-third to one-half of many of the weekly papers is taken up with advertisements, and as those more than pay the cost of the paper, the subscription price is put down to $1.00 a year or less, and this the publisher can afford to do, for what he receives for subscription is usually clear profit.

Again, the circulation of the city weeklies runs up to many thousands. Some of them send out hundreds of thousands of copies each week. All things being equal with such circulation, the paper can be sold for much less than if it had only a small circulation as has the Messenger, when compared with the large city weeklies.

It will be seen at once that a comparison of this kind would not be fair and just. The proper thing to do is to compare the Messenger with other religious papers of the same size, and with the same or a larger circulation, and we invite our brethren, who feel that we are asking too much for the paper, to make such a comparison, and we are satisfied that if it is made it will be shown that the Messenger is, perhaps, cheaper at $1.50 per year, all things considered, than are many other religious papers.

We receive at this office a number of religious papers in exchange, and we, for the purpose of comparison, give the prices asked for them.

The Christian Standard, published at Cincinnati, Ohio, claiming double the circulation of the Messenger, has from ten to fifteen columns of advertising matter weekly. Its pages of reading matter are 11½x16 inches in size, and the same number of pages as contained in the Messenger. Subscription price, $2.00 per year, paid in advance, $2.50 at the end of the year.

The Christian Evangelist, a trifle larger than the Messenger, has ten columns of advertising weekly, claiming the same circulation as Messenger; subscription price, $1.75 per year.

The Christian Cynosure, something smaller than the Messenger, with fifteen columns of weekly advertisements, circulation not known to us; subscription price, $2.00 per year; if paid strictly in advance, $1.50.

The Christian Worker, a Quaker paper, published in Chicago, a little over half the size of the Messenger, with over four pages of advertising matter each week; subscription price, $1.50.

The Religious Herald, less than half as large as the Messenger, with eight columns of advertising matter each week; subscription price, in advance, $2.00; if delayed, $2.50.

The Herald of Truth, the Mennonite paper, published at Elkhart, Indiana, twice each month. The paper contains a little over one-half the reading matter to be found in the Messenger; subscription, $1.00 per year. If the Messenger were sold in the same ratio, the price would be $3.50 per year.

The Religious Telescope, published at Dayton, Ohio, a United Brethren paper. We do not have a copy at hand, hence can not give its size. The subscription is $2.00 per year.

We might increase this list from among our exchanges, but we trust this will suffice. Upon a careful comparison of reading matter, we find that the subscription price of the Messenger is lower by from ten to fifty per cent than the average religious paper, and we feel that the price is not too high.

It should also be remembered that we furnish our paper as a donation, and to the General Missionary and Tract Work, where it is sent out as a missionary, at $1.00 per year. Last year we had on our list a very large number of $1.00 names. Our agents are also authorized to furnish the paper free to the worthy poor, and we have a good many free names on our list. This burden we do not, however, bear alone, for many of our brethren and sisters assist in this matter.

We are willing to have a fair comparison of prices made at any time, knowing full well that we are furnishing our church paper at a lower price than religious papers are usually sent out for. We hope those who have heretofore felt that the price asked for the Messenger is too high, will at once see, upon reading this explanation, that we are not doing so when a proper comparison is made.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

Special Notice. Old Folks' Home.—The Mark of Cain.—Pensions. Purifying the Soul.—Flying, Fiery Serpents.—The Resurrection.

Special Notice. — Heretofore we have, by special request, withheld names of those sending in queries. In one or two cases the queries were of a personal character, and resulted in a demand for the names of the querists. In order to avoid difficulty in the future, we shall only answer queries sent in by those who are willing to have their names appear. All matters of a personal character should not be the subject of a query.

Dear Messenger:—Will you please inform us through your columns, how many Old Folks' Homes there are established among the Brethren; where they are located, and who are the superintendents? A. Spangle.

There is an Old Folks' Home in the Middle District of Indiana, located near the town of Mexico, Miami Co., Ind. Bro. Frank Fisher has charge of it. Near Hagerstown, in the Southern District of Indiana, is located an Old Folks' and Orphans' Home. We do not know who has charge of it, but a letter, addressed to Bro. James Wyatt, Hagerstown, Indiana, a member of the Board of Trustees will bring all the desired information necessary. The Brethren of the State of Kansas have organized a Board of Trustees, and are now engaged in raising money to complete the purchase of an Old Folks' Home at Booth, Reno Co., Kansas. Any information as to the enterprise may be obtained by addressing Eld. Enoch Eby, Booth, Kans. The Brethren of Northern Illinois have appointed a Committee to receive donations for an Old Folks' Home. Eld. Joseph Amick, of Mt. Morris, Ill., may be addressed on the subject. Northern Indiana is also moving in the direction of an institution for old folks, and it has been suggested that Northern Illinois and Northern Indiana unite their forces and establish a home at some central point.

2. What was the "mark" God put upon Cain, as spoken of or mentioned in Genesis?

3. Inasmuch as we are a non-resistant people, is it consistent with our principles as a church, for Brethren, who were in the "Civil War," not members at the time of the war, but united with the church after the war, to draw pension from the Government? Jefferson Mathus.

Ans.—2. Don't know. The Bible is silent as to the nature or character of the mark placed upon Cain. We might speculate, but one man's speculation is as good as another's. The question does not specially concern our salvation.

3. We do not think it inconsistent for a brother to receive a pension, if he deserves it, and if the Government adjudges him worthy to receive such a favor.

Dear Bro.:—Will you explain 1 Pet. 1: 22? "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently." John H. Stager.

Ans.—Obeying the Truth, as revealed from heaven through Jesus Christ, purifies the soul, if the obedience be prompted by the right motives. But it must have in it the influence of the Spirit, and this leads to love. Not only to love, but unfeigned and fervent love for those who are of the household of faith. The soul made pure, the heart also becomes pure, and then it is that we can "love one another with a pure heart fervently," and this comes as the result of obeying the Truth.

4. Did the Lord send flying, fiery serpents among the children of Israel? I have heard ministers say so in their sermons, but I never could find the Scripture to prove it Please answer through the Gospel Messenger.

J. B. Sell.

Canton, Mo.

Ans.—The only reference to flying, fiery serpents in the Bible that we can find, is Isaiah 14: 29; 30: 6.

5. Please give your views on 1 Cor. 15: 43, which reads as follows: "It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory: it is sown in meekness: it is raised in power." What is that seed-field in which our bodies are sown? E. F. Wolf.

Ans.—The entire chapter from the 35th verse to the close is an argument for the resurrection of the body. The meaning of the language is that our bodies die and see corruption. Our flesh becomes offensive even to our friends, thus the body is laid away, and from our earthly view sees dishonor. Our strength wastes away, and we are laid away in our weakness. In the resurrection all this will be changed. We shall be raised with a glorious body with the power and strength of the life of Christ. Reference is doubtless made to the grave, as to the field wherein our bodies are cast, as a sower casts the grain upon the field.

CHURCH GOVERNMENT.

Synopsis of a series of sermons, delivered at McPherson College Chapel, by Eld. Enoch Eby, during the Special Bible Term of 1891.

FIRST DISCOURSE.

GOVERNMENT is only another name for order. "God is a God of order and not of confusion." Government and order exist in heaven. Obedience to law are its requirements. Fallen angels were cast down, and man was excluded from the Garden of Eden for disobedience to law.

All nature is controlled by immutable laws, which result in the beautiful order among the heavenly bodies, and through the entire animal creation.

Please observe the wisdom of God, as displayed through the government of the entire animal creation,—the law of adaptation, and the instincts of animals, fowls, and insects, the perfect order of a humming-bird's nest. Examine the construction of the honey cells, as well as the work of collecting and storing the honey. Look at the wisdom of the ant in all its ways and work! Think of the wonderful instinct of the hen, which, by a variation of voice, warns her brood of the danger by the approaching hawk; then, when the danger is over, calls them again with the cluck of safety. With still a different call, they run to her for the food just discovered. The little chick, of two days old, knows more than the average child when two years old. You can not get the cat to give notice of the approaching thief, nor the dog to sit and watch mice. Among all the millions of human beings in the world there are no two alike. This must be so, in order that order and harmony, instead of confusion, may result.

CONCLUSION.—Since government and order are so essential to happiness, both in heaven and in earth what folly to suppose that in the church, the greatest family on earth, there should be no government, but that each one should be allowed to do as he pleases!

SECOND DISCOURSE.

In our first discourse we showed the necessity for law, both in heaven and in the entire realm of nature, and that everything of which we have a knowledge, is governed by law. Man, being endowed with intelligence, created only a little lower than the angels, needed additional law for the regulation and development of his moral or higher nature. This law God gave to him little by little as he became able to receive it. Man had no written law for nearly two thousand years. The first written law was given by Moses on Mt. Sinai, written on two tables of stone, but had no penalty attached. Later came the ceremonial law, with penalty attached, and carrying with it types and shadows of a perfect law. This law had no eternal life in it. The blood of bulls and goats could not take away sin. Its rewards and punishments were all temporal. It was a school-master to lead man to Christ and his perfect law of life, which is able to free us from the law of sin and death.

The speaker thus explained:

1. The wisdom of God, the happy results and the beautiful harmony, resulting from the law of instinct and adaptation.

2. The necessity and nature of the moral and ceremonial law, found in the Bible, for the regulation of the higher nature of man, and to lead him up to the Gospel dispensation, which contains the highest type of law and government, known to man, which will be the theme of future discourses.

THIRD DISCOURSE.

1. The church of Christ is a body of baptized believers, governed by the Gospel of Christ.

2. She is built upon the Rock, Christ, and can not be destroyed. The gates of hell shall not prevail against her.

3. She is the pillar and ground of the Truth, the body of Christ,—the habitation of God through the Spirit.

She is one family, part of which is on earth, and the other part in heaven.

She is the best organization on earth.

4. Great power is committed to her, power to remit and power to retain, power to bind and power to loose.

All her work must be done like the leaven working from the inside out.

5. Her government is democratic because vested in the people. All have equal rights.

6. The whole Brotherhood is one body, as the people of the United States compose one Government.

The Gospel of Christ is her only law, to which not one iota may be added or from which nothing may be diminished.

7. The Gospel is a book of principles which does not specify everything that is sinful. The interpretation and application of these principles belongs to the body and not to the individual. If each individual subject of the United States Government, would assume the privilege of interpreting the law for himself; and acting according to his own interpretation, it would result in great confusion. So in the church. The church, governed by the Holy Spirit, judges and determines the propriety of the conduct of her members.

8. Their counsels have always been safe. Note her decisions against slavery, the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, against the costly, sinful fashions, on the prayer covering, etc. My own tastes and notions are always to be surrendered for those of the body. That is the only way in which we may maintain the oneness, taught in the Gospel.

9. Sufficient uniformity to distinguish the church from the world is taught in the Gospel and required by the church.

10. What shall be done with members who will not govern themselves sufficiently to keep inside of Gospel limits? Ans.—Restrain them by applying the government of the church the same as the government of the State or of this school is applied to those who will not govern themselves, and thus teach the members subjection to the government of the church.

11. The church has the mildest, most merciful and most loving government on earth. It is always used to help the individual out of danger into safety, from darkness into light, and into greater usefulness.

FOURTH DISCOURSE.

Bro. Eby next set forth the qualifications and duties of elders, ministers, deacons and their wives as examples for the flock, also the advantages of all falling in line with Heb. 3: 17, "Obey them that have the rule over you and submit yourselves, for they watch for your souls, as they that must give an account, that they may do it with joy and not with grief, for that is unprofitable for you.

The government of the church of Jesus Christ is one of love, and not of physical force. It is the best government on earth. It accords equal rights to all its members. The babes in Christ have the same right to make a speech and vote on the question as the oldest elder in the church. The discourse closed with an illustration of the advantages of steadfastness on the principles of right. The affections of a young sister had been won by a young man who did his best to turn her away from the church but was deliberately told by the sister that she joined the church to live out her principles, because they were right, and much as she loved him she did not intend to forsake her principles of right for him or any other man living, and unless he could allow her to live a consistent member of the church of her choice, further attentions to her must end that night. This resulted in greatly increasing the young man's love and respect for her. He not only married her but her steadfastness to the principles of right won him to Christ, and caused him to join her in the good work of the Lord.

THE FIFTH DISCOURSE.

In this address the difference between private and public offenses was explained, pointing out the Gospel government in each case, illustrating the relation of each member of the church to the church by the relation that each member of the natural body sustains to the body, and the whole body to the Head of the church, which is Christ. He showed that in the church (the best government on earth) each member is cared for even as we care for the members of our natural body.

The speaker pressed the importance of each member doing all he can to so learn to govern himself that the church will have no trouble. The idea of each member helping others all he can in a private way, by correcting every mistake made, so far as can possibly be done without bringing it to the church council, was also made quite prominent.

THE SIXTH DISCOURSE.

It was shown that in withdrawing fellowship from any member two objects must always be kept in view,—the safety of the church and also the good of the erring one.

The government of the church of Jesus Christ is a government of love. The reason why fallen members need not be rebaptized was also given; and the imperative duty to forgive and restore the true penitent was forcibly set forth. Much encouragement was given to strive for higher attainments, both in the church and school.

READ THE BIBLE.

BY LANDON WEST.

If you want a knowledge of God, of his works, or of his people, read the Bible.

If history is wanted, read Genesis, the Books of Samuel, Kings and Chronicles.

If biography is wanted, read the Gospels.

If experience is sought for, read time and again, the Book of Psalms.

If law is wanted, read Exodus, Leviticus, the Gospels and the Epistles.

If future events are sought for, read the prophets and Revelation.

If you wish the full character of our Savior, read all that is spoken of him from Genesis to Revelation, and if you wish to learn how fully his life and character agree with what the prophets have spoken of him, read his biography,—what he did and said, as given by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. To know him, we must hear his prophets and his biographers.

If you want comfort, read the promises made and given to the people of God in all his Revelation, and under all the varied circumstances that they have been placed. There is a promise for every servant of God, in every place, age and condition.

If you want the benefits of Revelation, in full, make the Book of God a study. Take one book or thought at a time, and learn what was said, who said it, to whom spoken, and the thought given; and you will soon learn that you are being associated with the sentiment and language of another world, and the more you become submitted to the mind of God, as revealed to all men in his Holy Word, the more are you becoming fitted for a life in the world from whence the Word of God has come. If we have no delight now in things spoken of God, or the communications we now have from him and his throne, how can we hope for enjoyment in a world where God's face is to be seen, his voice is to be heard, and his praises to be sung forever? The Bible is the great book, given us to prepare us for the sentiment, the songs, the society and the life in a heaven to come, and it becomes all men to acquire the fullest acquaintance with all the great truths that are now given us.

No wonder the man, without the wedding garment on, is represented as speechless, for he had nothing to say. He did not know what to say, and, of course, could say nothing. And now, when we are all bidden to a wedding, and the fullest instruction is given us, so that all may have a wedding garment on, and that, too, without spot and blameless (2 Pet. 3: 14), is there not great danger that we, too, may be found both naked and speechless, all because we did not hear the Word given us?

THE PRAYER COVERING.

BY CHAS. M. YEAROUT.

"Please explain through the GOSPEL MESSENGER the covering, or cap, that your sisters wear. Do you think it necessary for Christians to wear it? I have never understood that part of the Gospel." S. B.

THE Apostle Paul, in 1 Cor. 11: 4, 5, 6, says, "Every man praying or prophesying, having his head covered, dishonoreth his head. But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoreth her head: for that is even all one as if she were shaven. For if a woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: but if it be a shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered." Dr. Adam Clarke, in his comment on these verses, says, "The men of the Corinthian church sat in the house of God with caps or turbans on, and the women bare-headed," and thus worshiped (I quote from memory), hence the Apostle is trying to set them in order (verse 34).

"But is not the hair the covering?" I say emphatically, "No." "For her hair is given her for a covering," has no reference to the prayer covering. The apostle says, "If the woman be not covered, let her ALSO be shorn," which is equivalent to "If she will not put on an artificial covering, in time of prayer or prophesying, let her also cut her hair off." Substitute the word hair where covering is used and you will observe at once that it makes no sense of the Word of God. How can a woman cut her hair off, if she has no hair on her head?

"Will not a bonnet or hat do for this covering?" No, for this is a special covering for a special purpose, viz., the honor and glory of God in prayer and prophesying, for the woman does not pray unto man, but unto God through Christ.

The bonnet and hat are worn as articles of dress, for comfort and a protection from heat, rain, storm, etc., and not for the honor and glory of God. This prayer covering is not worn as an article of dress to keep out cold, rain, and sunshine, but should be worn specifically in the service of God,—prayer and prophesying.

"But," says some one, "the Apostle does not say it should be a cap." No, but it is necessary that it be composed of some kind of material, and have a form. Who has a right to say what that form shall be? The devil? No; for he is the enemy of God, and his church. The world? No, for they are not subject to the Law of God, and this covering does not concern them. The individual member of the church? No, for God never gave such authority to individual members. But the church of God being the only party interested in this covering has the right to say what form it shall have. See Matt. 18: 18; 16: 19. They should be united in all, saying the same thing. "I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." 1 Cor. 1: 10. LET US ALL WALK BY THE SAME RULE, let us mind the same thing. Phil. 3: 16; 1: 27; 2: 2.

The same cause must produce the same effect. The same spirit will produce the same fruit in ten, that it does in one, and the same in ten thousand, that it will in ten. "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit." 1 Cor. 12: 13.

If a man were to go into the church, and get down and pray, then get up and preach a sermon with his head covered (his hat on) you, with hundreds of others, would say, "He is crazy; it is a shame to thus desecrate the holy sanctuary." It is just as much a shame and desecration for a woman to pray unto God uncovered (bare-headed), for the same authority that says it is a shame, or dishonor for a man to pray with his head covered, says it is a shame or dishonor for a woman to pray uncovered.

The woman ought to have this covering—power, or sign of authority,—on her head because of the angels. To what angels does this refer? Evidently to the administering angels. Every child of God has an administering, or guardian angel who goes with him through the uneven, checkered journey of life, and delivers him from hurt and danger. These guardian angels are ever hovering around us during the busy scenes of life, and keep their watchful vigils during the silent slumbers of night. Ps. 34: 7; Matt. 18: 10; Dan. 3: 28; 6: 22; Heb. 1: 14. Angels are not heart-searchers, or rein-tryers. They go by sight. Ex. 12: 13. Hence the woman ought to have a sign of authority on her head because of the angels (Revised translation). There is truly a power, or sign, of authority in this covering.

The flag of the United States, or stars and stripes, illustrate this very beautifully. While it is nothing but a very thin fabric, it is a sign of power, or authority, and is recognized by all civilized nations of earth as an emblem, or sign, of the great power of America. It is a protection to her citizens in all climes, but nothing but the stars and stripes represent the American government, or her sign of authority. A flag of any other color has no protection for the American citizen. So this covering has behind it the power of the church of God, and is recognized by the angelic throng. Black, or any other color, does not so fully represent the characteristics, as does white, which is an emblem of purity, — spotless, and chaste,—and fittingly represents the character of the child of God.

At the marriage of the Lamb, his wife,—the church -will be clothed in fine linen, clean and white, which represents the righteousness of saints. Rev. 19: 7, 8, 9.

White being a representative of righteousness, this prayer covering, which brings the sisters very near to God in prayer, certainly ought to be white.

"But if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God." 1 Cor. 11: 16. The Apostle gives us plainly to understand here that they had no such custom as men praying unto God with their heads covered (hats on), and women uncovered (bare-headed), neither have the churches of God such a custom as that.

"Do you think it necessary for Christians to wear it?" I certainly do; for it is a shame for a woman to pray or prophesy without it, or, as the original has it (Kataischunei), disgraces her head. Our worship will certainly not be acceptable unto God, unless it is in conformity with his divine will, and it is the will of God that men pray unto God with their heads uncovered, and that women pray unto God with their heads covered, and that a specific covering for the service of God only. I do not believe that a woman should pray without it. Paul says he was taught what he preached by the revelation of Jesus Christ, and if an angel preach any other, let him be accursed. Gal. 1: 8, 9, 11, 12; 1 Cor. 11: 23. "If any man think himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord." 1 Cor. 14: 37.

There was a time in the history of the churches of any age, when their sisters wore a plain, white cap as our sisters do at the present, but, sad to state, pride entered, and humility went out. Pride and humility can not dwell together. "Every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered, dishonoreth her head," for it is the same as if her hair was cut off, which is a shame.

"FAITH is more than reason, but faith is not unreasonable. 'It is the most reasonable thing in the world,' says Mark Hopkins, 'to believe that God, being what he is, will do as he has promised to do.' And Jeremy Taylor suggests, that 'it is impossible for that man to despair, who remembers that his Helper is omnipotent.'"

THE old Quaker was right: "I expect to pass through this world but once. If there is any kindness or any good thing I can do to my fellow-beings, let me do it now. I shall pass this way but once."

INFORMATION DESIRED.—As I am living in St. Joseph, Mo., again, I would like, if there are any members in or near that place, to address me as below. Any members traveling through, will please call on us. We live north of Frederick Avenue, on Twentieth and James Street; Francis Street depot is the nearest to us.—Mary E. Cole, 2003 Twentieth St., Holmes, St. Joseph, Mo.

GOOD MEETINGS.—Bro. Joseph Glick, of Pratt Co., Kans., came to the Mingona church, Kans., on the evening of Jan. 21, and commenced a series of meetings, which he continued until the evening of Feb. 1. He preached in all fourteen sermons, with a crowded house and the best of attention. During our meetings researches were made as to the truth of the things preached, and although we had no accessions, yet we had good meetings, and hope that good results will soon be manifest. — Wm. Smith.

PLEASANT COUNCIL. — Our quarterly council-meeting was held last Thursday at Sugar Hill, and was one of the most pleasant meetings we have had for years. The mission work of Southern Ohio was substantially aided, and arrangements were made to relieve the "Western Sufferers" by canvassing our church district by school districts. Several other churches in the valley are adopting this plan. Try it, brethren, your outside friends will assist you in the good work. Let us not wait until they are beyond our assistance.—A. G. Crosswhite, Gratis, Ohio, Feb. 12.

LASTING IMPRESSIONS.—Bro. John B. Fluck, delivered a series of sermons in the Woodbury church, Pa., commencing Jan. 10, and continuing until Jan. 22. Bro. Fluck worked with his usual zeal and energy, and we feel indebted to him, the more so as his health was such that it required quite an effort on his part to speak. The meetings were well attended and close attention was paid to the Word spoken, and although there were no additions to the church, yet we think there were many lasting impressions made, which will be as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered not many days hence.—Annie E. Miller.

FLORIDA MOSS, HOLLY, ETC.—Since coming down here to this land of oranges, I have received many letters, asking if I would send Spanish moss, also holly and mistletoe. Certainly I will. If you send half a dozen stamps for postage, I will send you a nice twelve-ounce roll, or if you wish a large four-pound package, send sixty-four cents in stamps, and I will mail that amount to you. Any one is welcome to send, as there is plenty of it here, and easy to get. I do not ask any remuneration for so little trouble, so please do not offer it. If I can oblige in any way like this, I will do so, for I remember how glad I once was to get such things from the sunny South Land.—Mrs. F. A. Warner, St. Nicholas, Fla.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—The members of the Massissinewa church, Delaware Co., Ind., commenced a series of meetings Jan. 1. Brethren Jacob Rarick and Samuel Younce conducted the meetings during the first week, while Bro. Geo. L. Studebaker labored for us during the second week. The attendance, as well as the interest, was excellent, and though we could not rejoice over additions to the church, yet we believe that much good was done, and, had the weather remained pleasant and roads good, there would have been some accessions to the church. On the evening of Feb. 8, Bro. Abraham Young, of Ohio, preached a very acceptable sermon on "Ye are the light of the world."—Calvin W. Hooke, Feb. 11.

TWO ACCESSIONS.—The Brethren have just enjoyed an interesting series of meetings at Little Walnut church, Putnam Co., Ind., commencing Jan. 18, and ending Jan. 23. Bro. Wm. R. Harshberger and Bro. Wm. Lawter, both of Ladoga, Ind., did the preaching. Two young ladies came out on the Lord's side. May they so live as to influence others to come to Christ!—Nannie McGaughey, Clinton Falls, Ind., Feb. 9.

OUR CHURCH NAME.—It seems to me that some of our Brethren are at a loss as to a name for our church. We have a good name for it, one that was established by our Lord Jesus. Why not call ourselves as the Lord calls us,—Brethren? Let us add nothing to this. It is a far more appropriate name than "German Baptists," "Dunkards," or "Triune Baptists." Take the Gospel name and this will be a pure and right name. St. John 20: 17.—Joseph Mleynek, Irving, Kans., Feb. 7.

NEW MEETING-HOUSE DEDICATED.—The home ministers of the Panther Creek church, Ill., commenced a series of meetings in the new meeting-house at Roanoke, Jan. 25, to be continued two weeks. The new house was dedicated to the Lord on Sunday, Feb. 1. The services were conducted by Eld. Jas. R. Gish, who read from 2 Kings 8, but took his text from Matt. 6: 10. We had meeting again in the evening when Bro. C. S. Holsinger addressed us. Many encouraging thoughts were given us by these brethren. May the seed sown spring up and bring forth much fruit. Our council-meeting will be held on Saturday, Feb. 7. —Neoma Gish.

PUZZLED.—In GOSPEL MESSENGER of Feb. 3, 1891, Bro. Martin Neher says, "It looks very clear that the supper at Jerusalem had not ended when it was not eaten yet." Will Bro. Neher please tell us why,—if his assertion is a fact, in regard to supper being "not ended" when it was not eaten,—the Brethren wash feet before the supper is eaten? Christ washed his disciples' feet, then sat down again and gave the sop to Judas. Were they not eating after feet-washing? If Bro. Neher is correct, the Brethren have it backwards. With all due courtesy to Bro. Neher, we ask an explanation through the GOSPEL MESSENGER.—W. H. Miller, Adrian, Mo.

Our Trip to Cumberland and Franklin Counties, Pa. and the Manor Church, Md.

JAN. 14, 1891, we commenced meetings in the meeting-house at Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa. We preached four times at that point, and there was every prospect for a successful series of meetings, but appointments at Huntsdale and Canada, Upper Cumberland, hurried us away.

At Canada we found a hungry audience for the Bread of Life. Here we held forth the Word of Life five times, with the deepest interest. One soul was brought to Christ and a number were deeply affected. It was a pity that we could not stay a week longer at this place, but meetings ahead, in the Ridge church, called us there. We held two meetings at the Vogelsanger house, one at Bro. Neff's, one at Scotland, one at Salem, and four, six miles north of Salem, near the Blue Mountain.

Upon arrival at Bro. Neff's, they kept Bro. Adam Shope to labor at that point while they took me north, to assist Bro. Vineman in a series of meetings, in progress for some time before I got there. The audience here was quite attentive and hungry for the Bread of Life. I labored here, under divine influence, four times, then left for Stoufferstown, near Chambersburgh, where I preached twice to an intelligent audience. Bro. Shope left for home with a feeling of having done a good work for Christ while in the field.

After paying visits to some relatives around Chambersburg I then left, in company with Bro. Jacob Zug, for the ministerial meeting at the Manor church, Washington Co., Md., where the Annual Meeting was held in 1857. Here I found many preachers and laymembers convened, and found this to be the most interesting meeting I attended for a long time. The program of subjects was published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER prior to the meeting, and those subjects were duly discussed. Three Pennsylvania ministers were present,—brethren Daniel Keller, John Trostle and the writer.

When the subjects were opened by the persons to whom they were assigned, impartial liberty for all present was extended, and as far as I can recollect, all ministers and some others, participated in solving the questions. I must say for the credit of the Brethren, that a noble spirit of love was manifested during the deliberations on that occasion, and I came to the conclusion that meetings of that kind would be a great benefit for the ministry in all the districts of the Brotherhood, to ventilate dark subjects of the Bible, and to harmonize the clergy in sentiment, as well as to do away with clashing remarks in the pulpit or, at least, get such a training as to handle ideas with more Christian courtesy, if not seeing eye to eye.

The subject, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," was assigned to Bro. Daniel Stouffer and he gave it a fair and Scriptural exposition, claiming the meek shall inherit the earth right here, just now, and allowed also, in a wider sense, that they might take part in the Millennium, but this last as a secondary matter. He defined the word "meek," as Webster gives it in his unabridged work. Some of the Brethren would not countenance his assertions, as above given, —but thought it applied only to the second advent of Christ. The writer came up in support of the ideas held forth by Bro. Stouffer.

The German text makes it plainer than the English. In the German the term, "meek" is a compound, and a verbatim translation of the phrase would be, "Blessed are the 'mild-minded,' for they shall possess the earth." Now, if men have all the characteristics of the term used by Webster, they will certainly manifest a divine life, incarnated in a human body, right now and here in this life. Such men are no slaves to the mammon of unrighteousness, but they are able to control all that God gave to them, and they are not controlled by matter and vanity. Thanks to God for such a power! Those men are always ready to do the bidding of God in all the various functions in life, here on earth, and ever ready to depart this life and enjoy the everlasting realities of the future. WM. HERTZLER.

A Correction.

IN the Brethren's Evangelist of Oct. 29, 1890, page 5, W. J. H. Bauman has an article, headed, "From the Base of the Rockies," in which he has false statements in regard to our meetings, held near Longmont, Colo., in October last. In part Mr. Bauman's article is deceptive, viz, in regard to the opposition meetings. The idea would be drawn from his language that our Brethren appointed our meetings in opposition to theirs, which is untrue. Our meetings were published, and announced before our Brethren knew of their (the Progressive) meeting. The reader may judge which was the opposition.

I was told by those who heard Mr. Bauman preach in the Pella school-house, near Longmont, Colo., that, in his preaching, he was telling how he used to have the dyspepsia (having reference to the time when he was a member of the German Baptist or Brethren church), but did not have it any more now. Mr. Bauman also states, they closed their meetings on account of "much inclement weather," etc. Our meetings were only one and one-half miles apart; we had nice sunshine at our place of meeting in day-time, and nice moonlight at night, when Mr. Bauman closed his meetings. On account of nice weather and a growing interest in our meetings, we decided to continue one week longer, which we did with good results. Six were added by baptism and one reclaimed.

The false or untrue statement Mr. Bauman made, was in charging me with saying, "All any one needs to do to join the Progressives is, to go forward and give his hand, and thus become a member (no matter how mean he is). The words in parentheses have been manufactured. I did not use them. I will leave the congregation, which was present, to testify and not Mr. Bauman, who was not present, and, I think, none of his members.

Oct. 12 I preached a sermon, showing the reasons, from a Scriptural stand-point, why we do not invite members of other churches to commune with us, and gave as one of the reasons that we could not commune with the so-called Progressives, because there was no union between us, from the fact that they took expelled members from our church into their fellowship by the expelled member going forward and giving his hand to the Progressive church, without being required to make his (the expelled member's) wrongs right, with the church from which he was expelled,—regardless of the wrong done.

On this statement or any other I made on Oct. 12 last (in the stone church near Longmont, Colo.), I am willing to meet Mr. Bauman, or any one else. If I can not prove my statements true, I am willing to write a letter and confess my mistake and have it read at the same place. Is not that fair, Mr. Bauman? JACOB WITMORE.

From the Far West.

I LEFT my home and many loving friends near South Bend, Ind., on Wednesday, Nov. 12, with a family who were moving from that place to Oakland, Cal., and with whom I have made my home since here.

After a very pleasant journey of four days, crossing prairies and mountains, and viewing many objects of interest, the principal places passed through being Omaha, Cheyenne, Ogden City and Sacramento, we reached our destiny. All stood the trip well.

Our winter, here, with its few light frosts, is over, and we are having delightful spring weather now. Oakland is beautifully situated on the Bay, with a population of about sixty thousand, and contains many beautiful homes, as it is more a place of retirement than business.

But while people are enjoying their homes here, I am afraid they are neglecting the one thing most needful. I have not seen a brother or sister since I left home, and have talked with only one person, that has any knowledge of the German Baptist Brethren. While our brethren are earnestly laboring in the East, to save souls, we feel that their labor is more needed in the Far West, where the true doctrine of Christ has never been preached, than where churches have been established.

To the brethren who have a few weeks to spend in the winter, I will say, Do not stop at places where your labor is not needed, but do as Christ did, when he was on earth,—go to new fields of labor! Come to the Far West, where souls are dying for want of the true teachings of the Gospel. Come where the very air is darkened with the arrows of death. I do not know of any members, living in or around Oakland, but if any of the readers of the GOSPEL MESSENGER have knowledge of any, or a church that can easily be reached by rail, I would be pleased to be informed, either by letter or through the MESSENGER.

THE new year has opened up with bright prospects, financially, socially and spiritually. A good class of citizens, from all parts of the country, are locating here, quietly selecting their lot and improving it, but there is no speculative boom. A very extensive beet sugar factory is in progress near here, and affords one of the finest openings for parties of small means to get a good start, by buying a small tract, leasing more and cultivating all in beets, for which there is a steady and profitable market. The orange crop is now being gathered and sent on its way Eastward. Thousands of fruit trees of every kind are now being taken from the nurseries for transplanting. There have been touches of frost in many places, but Ontaria tomatoes and lettuce are still on the market.

In taking a leisure walk up Euclid Avenue and looking at the beautiful homes, we may see cypress, artistically trained into pitchers, baskets, pyramids, and arches, creeping vines and flowers. The mind reverts to the dawn of time, and we wonder whether Paradise, or Eden, could be much fairer.

There are no saloons here, but while there are a number of church edifices, there is still room for spiritual improvement. The "earlier rains" have failed to make their appearance, yet there is room for the later. The religious interest in this country is fair, while, at places, the condition described by the minister, who held his services above a saloon, continues. On being asked how he was prospering, he answered:

> "We have a Spirit above and a spirit below;
> A Spirit of love and a spirit of woe,
> A Spirit Divine and a spirit of wine."

We held services in Anaheim,—a small town down south. The spirit of wine is the leading spirit at that place. There are a dozen saloons and two man-forsaken, and probably God-forsaken, churches. At a meeting, which we held at this place, some confessed that they never "heard it in that fashion." Two dear souls made the willing confession and were baptized. A number of others are counting the cost. We considered it best that they should search the Scriptures and lean somewhat on their own better judgment, that they may, of a truth, say, "We do not believe only because you said so, but because our eyes have seen and our hearts felt the force of the truth."

In the Field.

WHEN I wrote last, I was with the Brethren in the Raccoon Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ind. I labored for the Brethren here, in the cause of our Master, through the month of December. My family was with me. The Brethren were kind and hospitable to us; may the Lord bless them! A report of this series of meetings has been given by sister Charity Himes.

I returned home Jan. 6, and found all well excepting my wife's niece, who is suffering from lung trouble. May she have the prayers of God's people!

Jan. 10 I again bade farewell to my family and went to the Nettle Creek church, Wayne County, Indiana. At first the weather was very unfavorable, but soon everything seemed favorable, and we had glorious meetings. Souls were converted and the church was much revived.

In these last two series of meetings I noticed something that is commendable. In each case the church seemed ready for the meetings. Work was suspended, and the brethren and sisters attended the services both day and night. Some, who lived as much as six or seven miles away, would attend both meetings and bring their children. As a result, they were made to rejoice to see their children come into the church.

Brethren, whenever we call in a brother to assist in holding a series of meetings, let everything else go! Attend the meetings and take your children. By so doing you encourage your neighbors, and the result will be a glorious meeting.

Saturday, Feb. 7, I was called to preach the funeral of Bro. William and sister Mollie Barber's infant child, aged one month and twenty-one days. May the parents continue faithful until the end, that they may be permitted to meet their little boy, "that is not lost but gone before!"

Feb. 9 I again bade farewell to my family and wended my way to the La Fayette church, Allen Co., Ohio, where I am now trying to hold up the banner of our Lord. The meetings began with a very small attendance, but are steadily increasing. There is one applicant for church membership and I hope that others may follow!

My next series of meetings will be with the Brethren in the Oakland church, Ohio. May the Lord bless Zion every-where, and may many more laborers go out into the field, for "behold they are white already for harvest!" Many souls are perishing for the Bread of Life. Let us be up and doing! GEO. L. STUDEBAKER.

Shideler, Ind., Feb. 12.

From the Lower Stillwater Church, Ohio.

BRO. DANIEL SHIVELEY, of New Paris, Ind., came to us Jan. 17, and continued until Feb. 1. Dark nights, rainy weather and muddy roads, during last week, worked somewhat against the success of the meeting. Four made the good confession and showed their faith by works, being baptized for the remission of sins, and walking in newness of life.

March 6, or sooner, we expect to begin a meeting in our upper house. Bro. Lewis W. Teeter is to preach for us. May we show to the world and the Master that we desire the conversion of sinners, and power will be given from on high to accomplish it.

To-day, Feb. 11, was our regular quarterly council. Considerable matter came up for disposal, which, we hope, was considered in the fear of the Lord. We fear that sometimes we allow our feelings or emotions to guide our minds in making decisions, whereas we should be governed by sound reasoning and sober judgment.

The church held an election for two deacons, which resulted in the choice of brethren Wm. Mumma and David B. Miller. May the strength of the Lord enable them to become pillars in the cause. The vineyard needs willing and earnest workers, ready for every good work to advance the Kingdom. L. A. BOOKWALTER.

To the Churches of the North-Eastern District of Kansas.

ACCORDING to arrangements made, our next District Meeting will be held in the North Morrill church, located north-east of Morrill, four and one-half miles, on Wednesday, April 1. The ministerial meeting will be held on Tuesday previous. Delegates will endeavor to reach the place of meeting on Monday, March 30.

Trains arrive at Morrill as follows: From the West at 7:17 A. M., and 3:15 P. M.; from the East at 12:6 P. M., and 8:20 P. M.

Connections with this road are made at St. Joseph, Mo.; at Hiawatha, Kansas, by Missouri Pacific; at Sabetha, by Rock Island; at Seneca, by Kansas City and Western; at Marysville by the Union Pacific; at Hanover by Burlington and Missouri railroad.

The facilities for reaching us are ample, and we hope all the churches of this District will be well represented by delegates.

The ministers' meeting, on Tuesday previous, will, doubtless, be interesting, and we would advise as many of our ministers to attend as possibly can.

Conveyance to the church will be furnished on Monday and Tuesday morning. J. S. MOHLER.

In Memoriam.

DIED, at Bremo Bluff, Va., Jan. 19, 1891, of heart failure, suddenly, our beloved and much esteemed brother, elder and father in Israel, Joseph N. Kauffman, at the age of seventy-two years, ten months and fourteen days.

Deceased was born in Mifflin County, Pa., March 5, 1818. Feb. 4, 1839, he was united in matrimony to Magdalene Yoder, with whom, in this relation, he journeyed until her departure to the spirit world, about three years preceding his. In 1843 he emigrated to Ohio and soon after settled in Logan County, from where, several years later, he, with his family, removed into Clarke, near New Carlisle, where he resided many years, and up to within a few months of his death. His descendants numbered ten, — three sons and seven daughters. Two sons and six daughters still survive.

Deceased united with the church upwards of thirty years ago, and spent his principal life-work as a minister, to which office he was called soon after he became a member. He was known, far and wide, as an able, zealous and faithful minister of the Gospel,—a man of clear head and hopeful heart, of strong convictions of right, firm and uncompromising in all matters of doctrine and faith, and an able and ready counselor in church practice and discipline. I may furthermore add that he was devoted, persevering and trustful in the cause, and to and in him "who knoweth and doeth all things well."

In later years he met with some reverses and discouragements, yet, like brave and courageous Paul, "his faith in Christ and his word remained unmoved," and having the Holy Spirit for his guide and Comforter, his great soul bore on peacefully and with trustful patience to the end. He died in the missionary field with his hands to the plow. We believe that his soul rests with the good, ultimately to wear the crown and enjoy the glory of the redeemed and saved in heaven.

His second marriage was with Julia A. Wood, of Bremo Bluff, Va., which took place on Sunday, Jan. 11. With her he lived but eight days when death came and took him away. The body was brought to his former home, near New Carlisle, and on Sunday, Jan. 25, at noon, amidst the sorrowing and tears of the family, relatives and friends, and kind remembrance of the absent wife, so soon widowed, was quietly laid away, to rest in the cemetery near by.

The funeral services were held in the Brethren's house of worship in the town, prior to interment, conducted and improved by the writer and Bro. Henry Frantz from the words of Job 14: 2.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

McDONOUGH. — In the bounds of the Johnstown church, Cambria Co., Pa., Jan. 20, 1891, infant child of brother and sister McDonough, aged 10 days.

BRALLIER.—Also, in the same church, Jan. 28, 1891, Bro. Jacob G. Brallier, aged 37 years, 11 months and 2 days.

BEAM.—Also in the same church, Jan. 29, 1891, Bro. David Beam, aged 82 years, 7 months and 14 days. DAVID HILDEBRAND.

NICKASON.—In the bounds of Ten Mile, Washington Co., Pa., Feb. 30, 1891, friend William Nickason, aged 54 years, 5 months and 17 days.

Funeral services improved on this occasion by the writer from the words, "When a few years are come, then I shall go the way whence I shall not return." Job 16: 22. Deceased was a member of the Lutheran church, and was buried at Hillsborough cemetery. N. B. CHRISTNER.

HODGES.—Dec. 9, after an illness of typhoid fever, Rachel R. Hodges, aged 23 years and 11 months.

Just in the prime of life and happiness she has been cut down, leaving many friends and loved ones to mourn over her death, yet we mourn not without hope, for we have the evidence that our loss is her gain, and we rejoice in the hope that now she is enjoying that rest prepared for the saints. Although we miss her much, we feel resigned to the will of the Lord. We know that he does all things well. She will not return to us but how consoling the thought, that we can go to her! How necessary to be prepared for death at all time! Let us all resolve so to live that, when we are called to cross the turbulent waters of death's dark river, we may meet a reconciled God.

Deceased was a member of the church of the Brethren about three months before her death. May we all heed the solemn warning and prepare to meet her in the better land where sickness, pain and death are feared and felt no more. JULIA L. EAST.

MAYSILLES.—In the Pine Creek congregation, Ogle Co., Ill., Jan. 20, 1891, of scarlet fever, after three days' sickness, Florence Viola Maysilles, youngest daughter of Bro. Henry and sister Mary Ellen Maysilles, aged 14 years, 2 months and 22 days.

MAYSILLES.—Also, in the same family, of the same disease, Jan. 23, sister Sarah Verona Maysilles, oldest daughter of the above-named family, aged 20 years, 2 months and 3 days.

MAYSILLES.— Also in the same family, sister Mary Ellen, invalid wife of Bro. Henry Maysilles and mother of the above children, aged 46 years, 1 month and 14 days.

For many years she has been afflicted so that she was unable to attend church, but the grief over the departed ones no doubt hastened her death.

Thus three loved ones were taken out of the family inside of four days by the icy hand of death. The father, one daughter and four sons are left to mourn the loss of those gone before. Thank God that they need not mourn as those who have no hope, for our loss is their eternal gain. In the above family there were seven children who were taken down with that dreaded disease about the same time, so as yet there have been no funeral services. May the remainder of the family so live as to be again re-united on the evergreen shore! DANIEL R. PRICE.

LIVINGSTON.—In the Quemahoning congregation, Somerset Co., Pa., Jan. 8, 1891, Bro. Tobias Livingston, aged 69 years, 8 months and 14 days. Funeral services by Eld. E. J. Blough and the writer. S. P. ZIMMERMAN.

STRICKLER.—In the Mount Zion church, near Luray, Va., Jan. 27, 1891, sister Lucy Strickler, wife of Sylvanus Strickler, aged 68 years, 9 months and 28 days.

Sister Strickler was confined to her bed only a few days, and all that loving hearts and hands could do to relieve her of her sufferings was in vain. Deceased leaves four sons and four daughters to mourn the loss of a dear mother. She also leaves twenty-four grandchildren. Her husband, one son and two grandchildren preceded her to the spirit land. She and one daughter are all of her family that belong to the Brethren church.

Sister Strickler was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She was kind and good to the needy, and always aimed for the right. The high esteem in which she was held by her friends and neighbors was fully attested at her funeral by the large concourse of friends and neighbors. Thus another mother in Israel is gone, -not lost, but gone before. Brethren Samuel Spitler and Joseph Foster conducted the funeral services. Text, Rev. 14: 13. T. D. HEISTON.

SECHRIST.—In the Mount Zion church, Tuscarawas Co, Ohio, Jan. 21, 1891, sister Catharine, wife of Bro. David Sechrist, aged 44 years, 4 months and 9 days. GEO. V. KOLLAR.

WIGINGTON. — In the Quinter church, Kansas, Jan. 11, 1891, of diphtheria, Alfred W., son of friend Isaac and Tabitha Wigington, aged 1 year, 3 months and 12 days. Funeral services by the Brethren from 1 Cor. 15: 22. B. B. WHITMER.

KOCHLER.—In the Fairview church, Appanoose County, Iowa, Jan. 27, 1891, of consumption, Mamie, daughter of brother Fred and sister Eva Kochler, aged 13 years, 5 months and 26 days.

Though Mamie has left us, we trust it is only to shine anew as a bright star in God's kingdom. Her Heavenly Father saw fit to call her ere many years had crowded their shadows upon her innocent life. Her illness was marked with patience and a quiet trust in Jesus.

Funeral services were conducted by brethren Martin Replogle and Jacob Hawn, to a sympathizing audience. MARY REPLOGLE.

HANEY. — In the Bethel congregation, Kosciusko Co., Ind., Jan. 16, 1891, sister Elizabeth Haney, aged 82 years, 9 months and 10 days.

Michael Haney and Elizabeth Miller were married Dec. 27, 1827, in Montgomery County, Ohio, and moved to Elkhart County, Indiana, and settled on the bank of the Elkhart river, just north of the iron bridge on the Rodibaugh farm.

Sister Haney was a consistent member of the Brethren church for many years, and a constant Bible reader. Funeral services conducted by the writer. HIRAM FORNEY.

Doctor Koch's Discovery.

Dr. Koch's great remedy seems to prove efficacious in those cases where the patient has contracted consumption in low lying countries,—almost all the level European districts where the disease is traceable to purely climatic conditions, the moist atmosphere being a fine breeding region for the microbe. But in the high and dry altitude traversed by the Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route, consumption not only can not exist but is surely curable in its early stages. And this is testified to by thousands who have regained health and strength in the life-giving air of the Mountains. 7t8

That Brilliant American.

Samuel Bowles, the famous editor of the Springfield Republican, said, in recording his impressions of the Puget Sound Country:

"Up here, above the latitude of Quebec and Montreal, we basked in the smile of roses that are even denied to us in New England. Here, within the circle of the softening sea, reigns a year that knows no zero cold, and rarely freezes water or snow; that winters the fuchsias and the most delicate roses, English ivies and other tender plants, and summers them with rioting luxuriance; that grows the apple and the pear and the small fruits to perfection."

The Puget Sound Country is a wonderful agricultural country awaiting development. There is nothing open to the home seeker to compare with it and it is the future goal of the great army of home seekers. In healthfulness it is wonderful and in productiveness unsurpassed. Thousands last year journeyed to this charmed region over the Union Pacific, the original overland route, and thousands more will go this year. 7t8

Europe and Bible Lands.

BY D. L. MILLER.

A new edition, THE TENTH, of this excellent book of travels has just been issued. The extensive sale of the work gives abundant proof of its great popularity. It was thought, at first, that one or two editions would supply the demand, but already ten editions have been issued and yet the book finds a ready sale.

Thousands of copies have been sold outside of our church, and many strong testimonials have been recieved from those who have read the book. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin. The King's Palace.— Dresden —The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner. Plain of Sharon Lepers and Leprosy. Mountains of Judea. Jerusalem. Place of Crucifixion. Mount Moriah Solomon's Temple. Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem. The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho. The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan. Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee. Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, white paper, in clear faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth, or $2.00 for full leather binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

TESTIMONIALS.

We have space here only for extracts from a very few of the kind letters received by the author.

A copy of Bro D L. Miller's work on Bible Lands is before me. I like it very much. It contains much spiritual food for the Christian as well as many useful historical facts.—Eld. Enoch Eby.

It is an interesting book and should be in every family, and read by every young man and woman, so that they may know how the people live in Europe and the East. I would not take three times what the book cost me and do without it. Eld. John Knisley.

I have read Europe and Bible Lands, and I am ready to confess that it gave me more satisfaction [illegible] corresponds in its arrangements so well with the Bible. Since reading your book, I think I can almost see the different cities, mountains, rivers, scenery, with the valley and the river of Jordan. —Eld. John Forney.

Your book brought back to me many pleasant recollections of countries I saw long ago, and which you describe so vividly and truthfully. You have done a good work in publishing a book which contains so much interesting and valuable matter, especially for our young readers, giving the present aspect of many countries and the present condition of many interesting questions —Hon R. R Hitt.

Having given considerable time to the study of sacred history and antiquities, I was especially interested in that portion of the work devoted to the description of Bible Lands, and can truly say that I have obtained from it much information that I have not been able to obtain heretofore, although I have perused volumes. The author has been careful to combine the past and present history of those lands, the better showing the fulfillment of prophecy, which makes it doubly interesting to the Bible student. And then, the cheerful, spicy manner of narration makes it of incalculable worth.—M. H. Robinson, Sherwood, Ohio.

I received your book of travels in the Holy Land, and have finished reading it. I consider it an excellent work, not only for our people, but all who have an interest in the Holy Land and a desire for Bible knowledge. It gives, in a plain, clear style, much information regarding the country, towns, mountains, rivers and seas made sacred by the footprints of our Savior. Another thing which makes your book valuable is the religious character given to all your travels, even outside of Palestine. I would be glad if all our reading matter had such religious character underlying it; how safe and profitable it would be for the Church, our children, and the world to read!—Eld. R. H. Miller.

I admire your book very much, and while it has cost you much work and great anxiety, it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to others long after you and your wife have gone to the Paradise above. I consider the book a credit to you and the Church. When you left us for your trip, I knew you would make a great effort to put your thoughts in a readable shape, and do your utmost to describe everything of interest. In that respect you have succeeded far beyond my expectation, and now instead of reading your work for pleasure, I consult it for solid and reliable information. I hope the book will have a large sale, for it deserves it, and ought to be in every family, especially in the Brotherhood.—Eld. J. H. Moore

Mr. Miller has been careful in collecting his facts, and conscientious in describing what he has seen. He has not sacrificed truth to mere picturesque effect. It is this very quality of simplicity and truth that makes the book interesting. After one has been satiated with the common type of the book or letter of travel, which aims at describing the writer's fancies or saying something fine, but which seldom descends to describing things as they are, it is really refreshing to read this straight-forward and faithful narrative. More than one half of the book is occupied with Bible lands. There are many books on the Holy Land, and this work will make no pretensions to supersede them, but it will find its way into many homes where the larger works have not appeared. By reason of its simplicity of style, it is well adapted to younger readers, and it will doubtless stimulate in many young minds a greater interest for Bible study —A. W. Burnett, Strasburg, Germany.

Gospel Chimes!

BY WM. BEERY.

THIS little book has been selling more rapidly than the publishers anticipated. The first edition was almost exhausted in the first two months. A second edition is now printed.

Following are a few of the good words received from brethren and other competent judges:

"An Excellent Book for Sunday-schools."

"After having carefully examined "Gospel Chimes" I can pronounce it an excellent book for Sunday-schools, and hope all the schools of the Brethren will adopt the same Our church is conceded to have the best congregational singing of any denomination, and if it is improved, as it can be, by the use of 'Gospel Chimes,' the power for good will be surprising "—GEO. B. HOLSINGER, Teacher of Music, Bridgewater College, Va.

"Fresh and Pleasing Melodies; Thoughtful, Spiritual, and Poetical Words."

"It gives me pleasure to speak in terms of praise of your new book, 'Gospel Chimes.' It contains many fresh and pleasing melodies to which are wedded thoughtful, spiritual and poetical words. I trust it will hold its own in competition with the numerous books now in the market and find a large sale."—T. M. TOWNE, Chicago, Ill., one of America's best writers of Sunday school music

"Better than Many Similar Publications."

"Copy of your new book received. It contains some very pleasing and useful music, while it is to be commended especially for the selection of hymns. Good Sunday school hymns are in great demand in Sunday school work, and in this particular 'Gospel Chimes' is better than many similar publications."—A J. SHOWALTER, the leading writer and publisher of Sunday-school and church music in the South.

"An Excellent Collection."

"I have carefully examined your late Sunday-school singing book, 'Gospel Chimes' and find it to be an excellent collection for the purpose designed, both in words and music "—S. W. STRAUB, Chicago, Ill., the popular Western writer and publisher of Sunday-school music.

Bro Beery has had a large experience in Sunday-school work, and the book which we offer to the brethren, and the public in general, evinces the exercise of talent as well as good judgment. The religious purity of the hymns contributed by sister Beery adds much to the excellence of the book.

SEND for our catalogue of family and hand Bibles. We aim to give the best for the smallest price.

WE are sorry to learn that Eld. J. W. Brumbaugh, of Clover Creek, Pa., is still unwell and confined to the house. We hope that he may soon be restored again to his usual health.

FROM our actions it would seem that we are more ready to sympathize with physical suffering than we are with spiritual suffering. Both should have our care, but more especially should we be concerned about those who are spiritually in danger.

THE prospects for a large attendance during the Spring Term of the Normal are unusually encouraging. Especially are we pleased to learn that the percentage of members and those from the members' families, is gradually on the increase.

WE are glad to inform our readers that in a short time we expect to put out a book containing a part of Eld. Quinter's sermons, in connection with a history of his life. The copy is now ready for the printers, and as soon as possible, the work will be completed. The book will be a blessing to every family in the Brotherhood, as his life was one that was a light to the world in the truest sense.

A NUMBER of our Eastern and Southern churches have been holding series of meetings in their congregations and the reports indicate a fair degree of success as to increase of membership, etc. It is generally thought that a meeting without additions is a failure. This may be so, but this is not necessarily the case, as a reconversion of the membership is quite as essential as the addition of members to that which is already dead.

WE are glad that our Bible Sessions have been so liberally patronized. It shows that our ministers and religious workers feel the need of them, even if the churches do not. It is a hard task for a man to try to do a work for which he has little or no preparation.

As the time for holding our District Meeting will soon be here, we advise that the churches make it a point to report by delegates as fully as possible. These meetings are important, and the character of our Annual Meeting depends largely on what is done at these sessions. It is an easy matter for a District Meeting to send a bundle of queries to Annual Meeting, but when they get there, it requires considerable time and labor to get rid of them. Do not send unless they are very important and can not be disposed of at District Meeting.

HAS BEEN, IS, AND WILL BE.

JOB'S theory is, that which has been, is, and that which is, will be, or, more directly, in his own words: "There is no new thing under the sun." This, of course, is a cosmopolitan view of things and can not hold good in individual experiences. The wheel within a wheel theory will not hold good in individuals, while it may be true in the broader interpretations of time and its changes. That is new to us which has not come within the scope of our knowledge before, the thing itself is not new. It is so only in our relation to it.

But this thought should not discourage us, neither should it abate our zeal in seeking after the, to us, unknown. There is a development that is always in harmony with our possibilities of reciprocity, so that we are assured that there is not only something to be learned and discovered, but that we also, at the same time, have the possibilities of learning and discovering.

Religion has been a scheme of development. While the whole has been as it is and as it will be, man's relation to it has, through all time, been changing. These changes necessarily happened as the different periods of the development of the great plan appeared.

The course of religion can not be a rut, as from the beginning there has never been a going back or a retracing of steps. It is as the little ball that enlarges and completes itself as it rolls, and its enlargement consists of the material over which it rolls. This is all directed by the great Author who knows the end in the beginning.

The changes do not consist in the use of new things, but in the discovering and utilizing of that which has been of old. All these are points in the great and original plan. In studying a book, it is natural to feel that we go from the simple to the more abstruse. This only seems so as each page, when mastered, becomes the simple, and the one preceding is abstruse only till we turn over and learn it. A thing is abstruse only when it is beyond our reciprocity, or when it is beyond our scope. Adam and those who followed him up to the flood, could understand the great scheme of Redemption, as it was unfolded to them. They formed conceptions of what the completeness would be, but they, necessarily, were vague and undefined. For them, the present was sufficient, and as far as their individual good was concerned, the plan was complete. Just that part or period was for their salvation, and neither that which had been, nor that which was to follow, could be adapted to their individual wants, yet that which was past was not the old, nor could that which was to come be the new. It was for them to adapt themselves to the development and utilize the then present.

So it was in all the future developments. Their salvation depended on their relation to the plan or scheme, as it was unfolded in their day.

To catch an idea of the great plan of salvation that was to save from the beginning, picture in your mind on old Jewish roll on which the law was written. This was a long strip of parchment, say, eighteen inches wide and twenty to fifty or more feet long. To each end was attached a roller. Before commencing to read, the parchment was wrapped all on the end roller. In beginning to read, the roll is held in the left hand of the reader, and, as he commences to read at the beginning of the parchment, with the top roll in his right hand, he turns this roller, so that the parchment that is taken off the end roller and read, is placed on the top roller, thus having in sight only that which is being read.

So it has been with the plan of salvation in all ages of the world. They could have really before them, that which was intended for their day and use, and that was all sufficient, though different from the past or that which was to come. This roll is still in the hands of our Great High Priest, and daily and yearly it is being steadily unfolded, and will so continue until the end roll is reached and it can be practically said, "It is finished." Then, what will we have? Nothing more, and nothing less than was in the beginning. The only difference will be, the other end will then be reached and the great work, which it was intended to accomplish, will be done.

What is the lesson we are to learn from this truth? It is this,—we must adapt ourselves to the work and circumstances before us.

The antediluvians had their work, so did the patriarchs, the priests, the Christ, the disciples, the reformers, and we have ours, as our High Priest is unfolding it to us. We are not to do what has been, or what will be, but what is. Do this well, and the past, as well as the future, will be just what our Father wants them to be. Let it not be said of us, that in the day of judgment, "Sodom and Gomorrah will rise up and condemn us, because they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas has preached to us and we have not done as well."

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

HOPE.—"NOW ABIDETH HOPE."—1 Cor. 13: 13.

Our journey lies across,
A wide and dangerous sea;
With rolling billows tossed,
On raging Galilee.

CHORUS.—Hope cheers us on when storms arise,
Our anchor cast beyond the skies.

Though threatening waves assail
Our bark on every side,
The journey can not fail,
For Jesus rules the tide

Hope cheers us on when storms arise,
Our anchor cast beyond the skies.

Our bark is moving on,
Though clouds and storms arise;
The compass points beyond,
To calm and peaceful skies.

Hope cheers us on when storms arise,
Our anchor cast beyond the skies.

The sun is sinking low,
And night will soon be here;
Though dark, we onward go,
The fiery pillars near.

Hope cheers us on when storms arise,
Our anchor cast beyond the skies.

The storms will soon be o'er,
Fair Canaan's land appear;
We get a glimpse of shore,
Our bark is drawing near

Hope cheers us on when storms arise,
Our anchor cast beyond the skies.

We've anchored by the strand,
And walk the golden shore;
To greet the angel band,
Our Savior there adore.

Hope cheered us on through many a storm,
But, "praise the Lord," we're safe at home!

THE WAGES OF SIN.

BY ROSIE S. MYERS.

THE first thought with which this subject impresses us, is that of meriting a reward, or receiving compensation for services rendered to some one. In a certain sense, every one that arrives at the age of accountability is a servant working for some master. In Rom. 6, we hear the Apostle propounding this question to his brethren: "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" We are free agents and are at liberty to serve the God of heaven, or we can bow our knees at the feet of Baal, and we will be regarded as being the servants of that master, whose commands we willingly obey and strictly follow.

It is almost universal that, in the temporal affairs of this life, we endeavor to engage our services, or give attention to such things where we may expect to receive the best wages, or which may result in the most gain to us. Almost daily our ears are greeted with the time-worn question, "Will it pay to do this or engage in that?" Since we are so anxious to make the most for the enjoyment and gratification of the present life, should we not be equally interested, if not more so, in that which will be to our best advantage and add to our happiness in the life beyond?

The apostle thus inquires of the believers at Rome, what advantages they had gained in the service of sin: "What fruit had ye, then, in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? For the end of those things is death." It is eternal separation from the presence of God, which is the "wages of sin." Might we not, with equal propriety, ask the question, What advantage is it to us, to serve the enemy of our souls? Brethren, what benefits did you receive from following the sinful inclinations of your hearts and from refusing to follow the call of the Gospel, as long as you did? Do you not, as those Roman brethren did, regret it and feel sorry that you, from time to time, spurned the offers of mercy? Sisters, did it contribute anything to our personal happiness, and did we expect to receive a reward for giving our attention to following in the ways of fashion, and wasting our time in going to places of sinful amusement? I know it is often with remorse of conscience, that we look back upon the time when we closed the door of our hearts to the repeated calls of our Savior to follow him.

We were the servants of sin, and should we have continued in the ways of unrighteousness, our wages would have been eternal death. But, we trust that we are now trying "to obey from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered unto us" by the Master we are now trying to serve. Let us, then, follow close in his footsteps, for we learn in Holy Writ that we "can not serve two masters."

Unconverted reader, I ask you the question, What are "the wages of sin?" Are you prepared to give an answer? If not, listen to the language of the inspired Apostle, who positively declares it is "death,"—not the end of your earthly existence, but eternal banishment from the presence of God and the enjoyments of heaven. Will you not pause and consider, whether it will pay you to continue to serve that master whose reward will be nothing but misery and woe? Young man, does it pay you to partake of the intoxicating cup, and waste your golden moments at the gambling table? What are the wages of the drunkard? The Bible says that no drunkard can enter into heaven. What are the wages of the murderer? Their reward in this life often is an untimely death with no promises for eternal life. Truly "the way of the transgressor is hard."

What are the wages which the rich man received from the master whom he served? We read that he died and was buried and "in hell he lifted up his eyes." Dreadful thought! In consequence, then, of the awful future that awaits the unconverted, will you not decide to quit the service of sin and enter the service of God? He is the best pay-master. Christ invites you to come and work in his vineyard. He says, whatsoever is right, he will give you. The reward is sure. Then do not delay! "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

SHALL WE EVER BECOME ANGELS?

BY J. H. PECK.

ON page 739, current volume of the MESSENGER, is an article entitled, "Angels not Probationers," in which the writer takes exceptions to Bro. McCann's "Angels No. 5," and uses the following language: "The writer of that article endeavors to show that angels are probationers; that is, that they are liable to fall. This, were it so, would be very discouraging to us. Must we labor and toil to enter in at the straight gate, and then, after all our difficulties are surmounted, and our temptations overcome, enter upon another state of probation with the liability of falling again? I am glad that the Bible does not teach me this doctrine."

Leaving Bro. McCann to attend to the matter of angels as probationers, I will address myself directly to the intimation, contained in the above, that when we pass from this stage of action, we will enter upon a state of angelship, which I do not understand my Bible to teach. Of all the language found in the Bible, referring to the future state, I can not now recall a single instance where men are said to have become, or are to become angels. We have a Lazarus in Abraham's bosom, Luke 16: 22; the spirits of just men made perfect, Heb. 12: 23; "To-day shalt thou be with me in paradise," Luke 23: 43; "Ye which have followed me . . . shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel, and every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold and shall inherit life everlasting," Matt. 19: 28-29; "And I appoint unto you a kingdom as my father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom," Luke 22: 29, 30. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord," 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17; "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years," Rev. 20: 6; "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," Matt. 5: 5; "Many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven," Matt. 8: 11; "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their father," Matt. 13: 43.

Many other passages of Scripture might be mentioned, indicating what we may expect if we are faithful enough to have the welcome plaudit, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you," addressed to us, but nowhere, I repeat again, is there any intimation that we are to become angels.

In Matt. 22: 30 we read, "For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven." I do not understand that being as the angels of God with reference to marrying and giving in marriage, is identical with becoming angels.

In 1 John 3: 2 we read, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him." No one would construe this Scripture to mean that we shall be him. I take the position that if being like him is not being him, being as the angels is not necessarily being angels.

Some may, perhaps, be ready to offer Rev. 22: 9 in proof that we become angels after we pass out of this life, but instead of reading, "I am thy fellow servant, and one of thy brethren, the prophets, and one of them which keep the sayings of this book," would it not be more in harmony with the entire Scriptures to read, "I am thy fellow servant, and the fellow servant of thy brethren, the prophets, and the fellow servant of them which keep the sayings of this book?" The latter, I believe to be the better rendering, and this does away with the idea that many hold, that this angel was one of the old, dead prophets, and leaves both men and angels in their distinct spheres,—angels as ministering spirits for them who shall be heirs of salvation, Heb. 1: 9, and men and women that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, both theirs and ours. 1 Cor. 1: 2.

Here we learn that we are called to be saints, and not angels and if we come up to our high calling, we will do well, without aspiring to something the Gospel nowhere promises us.

THE CHRISTIAN ARMOR.

BY MARY M. COX.

A CHRISTIAN life is one of continual warfare. How important, then, that we put on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil!

To oppose the enemy of our souls successfully, we must have our loins girt about with truth and have on the breastplate of righteousness and our feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace. Above all, we must take the shield of faith wherewith we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, and we must take the helmet of salvation and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God.

With such a complete armor, we surely will be able to overcome all of our enemies. We must be truthful, or we can not say that we are girt about with truth. We must be very careful both in our business transactions and our general conversation, to speak nothing but the truth.

Then again, we must have on the breastplate of righteousness. We must be righteous, and to be righteous we must be just, virtuous and honest. We must have our feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel. The word preparation means the act of making ready, and Gospel means good news or glad tidings, so, if we make ready a way to send the glad tidings of salvation to all parts of the earth, may we not safely say that our feet are shod with the preparation of the Gospel?

Above all, we must have the shield of faith, for if we have it, we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. We can not be Christians without faith in Christ, and if we have perfect faith in him, we will obey him. We will not think that anything which the Son of God commanded us to do, is not essential to our salvation.

Furthermore we must take the helmet of salvation and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. The Sword of the Spirit being the Word of God, how important that we study that Word! We will be poor soldiers if we go into battle without our weapons, and the only weapon given us is the Sword of the Spirit. It is not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds.

We need more faith, more consecration and more zeal, if we would win souls to Christ. The members must work as well as the preachers. We must let the people see that we are in earnest, and that we are interested in their salvation. We must be courteous and cordial in our greetings, and make the people feel at home in our churches. By so doing, we will make mighty inroads into the ranks of Satan and become valiant soldiers of the cross.

MARTHA AND MARY.

BY SARAH SAUNDERS.

"Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman, named Martha, received him into her house."—Luke 10: 38.

IN reading the New Testament Scriptures or that portion of it which relates most directly to the life and labors of Jesus, the Son of God, we learn that he was not an idler, but went about doing good, traveling from place to place. It seems that he had, what we might term, his special or confidential friends; and the little family at Bethany appears to have been a favorite one, and their home a resting place for our Savior during his ministerial work upon earth. There seems to have been a congeniality of temperament, and a oneness of heart existing between him and the members of this particular family, composed of one brother and two sisters, but we have no evidence that there was any blood relationship existing between them. In John 11: 5 we have these words: "Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus." There was such an attachment that their house was his home.

The apostle tells us that Jesus had been busily engaged in his Father's business for a time, during which he appointed seventy persons as missionaries, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place where he himself would come, and said unto them, "The harvest is great and the laborers are few," Luke 10: 1, 2. He also came in contact with a "certain lawyer," who, with a grand display of oratory and eloquence, asked Christ, "Who is my neighbor?" The Savior turns to him with true dignity, and, by taking a very common circumstance, explains to the proud man of the world the meaning of the word and the obligations of a neighbor, in the case of the wounded man and the priest, Levite, and the good Samaritan.

After the labors of the day were past, Christ went to the home of Martha and Mary for rest and the soothing influences of their friendship and conversation. But there seems to have been a difference in the inclination and occupation of these two sisters. In imagination we see Martha a bustling little housekeeper and cook, whose first thought was to prepare something appetizing and dainty for her weary guest, but the quiet and spiritually-minded Mary took a seat at his feet to "hear his words," and to offer, perhaps, comfort and consolation to his harassed mind. "But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me." And Jesus turned to her with a loving and gentle rebuke, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her." Luke 10: 40, 42.

How many Marthas there are in the world today, and even among those who profess to be the friends of the Meek and Lowly One, who are "careful and troubled" unnecessarily with serving tables! At least four-fifths of our sisters devote too much time in preparing sweetmeats and dainties to gratify the lust of the eye and to pamper to the perverted appetites of the natural man. It would be far more appropriate and becoming to women, professing godliness, to store our minds and hearts with the sweet words that fell from the lips of him who spake as never man spake, thus choosing the "good part" that Mary chose, which, the Master said, should never be taken away. It does not look consistent with our profession of denying ourselves of worldly lusts, and superfluities, when we dress our bodies in a plain and modest garb, while decorating our tables with hurtful and unnecessary luxuries.

O, for an army of Marys to work for the Master by learning from his Word the good things necessary for spiritual growth, and communicating to the sin-cursed world the glad tidings of a Savior's love! We have a few who have discovered the vanity of laying up treasures on earth, and who are willing to work for the Master in the harvest of souls, but the supply is not adequate to the necessity and demand for workers. "The harvest is great, and the fields are white, but the laborers are few." Why stand ye here all the day idle?

"'My will, not thine, be done,' turned Paradise into a desert. 'Thy will, not mine, be done,' turned the desert into a Paradise and made Gethsemane the gate to heaven."

STILL SEARCHING.

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

MY mind has been for some time considerably exercised on the subject of the different Covenants, which, in the different ages have been made between God and the children of men, and not being favored with visions, dreams, or special revelations, and not inclined to take anything for granted merely on the opinion of others, I have decided to fall back upon my preferred method in settling all questions of theology, by searching the Scriptures.

1. We inquire, What is a covenant? The answer is, "It is a mutual agreement between two or more parties." Gen. 21: 32.

2. "A writing containing the terms of agreement."

3. "Theologically the promises of God, revealed in the Scriptures, conditioned on certain terms on the part of man, as obedience, repentance, faith," etc.

(a) The covenant God made with Noah. Gen. 9: 8–17.

(b) The covenant with Abraham. Gen. 17: 8–10.

(c) Renewed with Isaac. Gen. 26: 4-6.

(d) Confirmed with Jacob. Gen. 28: 13.

(e) The blessings promised are conditioned upon keeping the covenant, walking in the statutes, and keeping the commandments of God and doing them. Lev. 26: 3–13. The terrible consequences of breaking the covenant are shown in verses 14 to 33.

(f) The covenant made with Moses at Horeb. Deut. 5: 2, 3. "The Lord our God made a covenant with us at Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day." "And another covenant which the Lord commanded Moses to make as a mediator between him and the children of Israel, besides the covenant he made with them at Horeb." Deut. 29.

(g) The covenant with the Holy Three. First, with his son, whom the Father gave for a ransom to all men, to be testified in due time. Having called him in righteousness, he would hold his hand and keep him; give him for a Covenant of the people, for a light to the Gentiles. Isa. 42: 6. Thus upholding him, he would give him to be the surety, the foundation of the new covenant. "He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth, and the isles shall wait for his law." Verse 4.

Thus we see that, as Moses was the mediator between God and man in the Old Covenant, so Jesus Christ is the Mediator of the New. Moses says, "A prophet will the Lord, your God, raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me, him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you." "And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." Acts 3: 22, 23.

Thus our Heavenly Father commissioned his Beloved Son to be our surety and to mediate a new covenant of peace for all those who believe in him. The holy law of God is established in honor and authority, both as to its precepts and sanction. In Christ, the righteous servant, the chosen of God, and many nations have been favored with "his law"; others are still waiting. The islands are still waiting. While our blessed country is among those favored ones, that have received this blessing, it is not confined to our fathers of the ages past, "but is with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day."

We mean by this the law of Christ. The law of Moses is not destroyed, but it is fulfilled in the introduction of the law of Christ, symbolized by the law of Moses, and as it was essential to obey the law of Moses in that day and age, so under this dispensation we must obey in all things and so fulfill the law of Christ. Gal. 6: 2. For if they that despised Moses' law were held so fearfully responsible, how much sorer punishment awaits those who despise the law of Christ and belittle the ordinances and commandments of his covenant! Heb. 10: 28, 29.

The prophet's declaration in Isa. 42: 6 is again virtually reiterated in 49: 8, which is sometimes construed to mean that Jesus Christ is personally the New Covenant, and that faith alone in him is all that is needed for salvation,—nothing more and nothing less. Can the Scriptures be made to harmonize on this theory? I do not so understand it. That he is the surety, the foundation of the New Covenant, I do solemnly affirm. None can be more thoroughly satisfied of his divinity than I, and I have settled this question upon a thorough analysis of the evidences upon which it is predicated, and the objects and efficacy of his mission into the world. "For without faith it is impossible to please God." "He that believeth not, is condemned already, because he has not believed on the only begotten Son of God. But he that believeth on him, is not condemned," John 3: 18, of course, not as yet, but if not made perfect, Revelation informs me, he can not be saved. His faith is dead, being alone. James 2: 20.

But I will dismiss Bro. James at this point, as he is not so highly esteemed by some, and will invite Bro. Paul upon the stand. Remember that we are searching for a foundation of the Christian system. Bro. Paul, what sayest thou? "I affirm that other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereon." 1 Cor. 3: 10, 11.

Let us be assured that we will have to meet the issues at the day of judgment. Do not fail to read verses 12 to 15.

To illustrate, supposing a father lays the foundation for a residence for his son, and instructs him how to build, and the son refuses, or neglects to build, where is the protection from the wintry blast? Or if he builds of shoddy material, where is the safety from the crushing snowstorm, or the destructive cyclone? Echo answers, Where? Just so it is in the spiritual building.

Our Blessed Redeemer is, as indicated in the two passages quoted, the foundation of this New Covenant, as decided in the celestial court, and he was chosen for the time being as the messenger of this Covenant to the human family. He sends John, his messenger, to prepare the way before him, and then him,—the Lord,—who they, at that day sought so anxiously and so earnestly, expecting that he should suddenly come to his temple. "Even the messenger of the covenant they did delight in. Behold he shall come, said the Lord of hosts." Mal. 3: 1.

In this Scripture we have him spoken of as the messenger of the Covenant, which is something apart from being a personal covenant. "A messenger is one who bears a message or an errand, the bearer of a verbal or written communication, notice of an invitation from one person to another, or to a public body." Such is Jesus Christ, who published the tidings of salvation, as are prophets and ministers in general. Job 33: 23; Mal. 2: 7.

We read in John 1, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. Verses 1 and 2. "And as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." Verse 12. O, for the blessing of the option to become the sons of God, and joint-heirs with our Blessed Savior! Why, oh why do men and women neglect this great salvation!

"And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." In what sense is he the Word of God? "He was the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Verse 8. He was the messenger of the Covenant, the representative of the will of God to man and says, "He that rejecteth me and receiveth not my word, hath one that judgeth him. The word that I have spoken shall judge him at the last day, for I have not spoken of myself, but the Father which sent me, he gave me commandment what I should speak." John 12: 48, 49. He says of his disciples, "Ye are the light of the world." Matt. 5: 14; Rom. 2: 9. Having given them an example of righteousness in his baptism and other ordinances, accompanied with commands, more or less, he commissioned them, by virtue of the power given him by the Father, to go and teach all nations, initiating them into the divine family, teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever he had commanded them, and, encouraged by the promise then given, went about the work, the sacrifices to be made and the consequent persecutions pending, notwithstanding. Matt. 5: 11, 12.

They now became messengers of the New Covenant, or Testament, which, in the place of Christ, is the representative of the will of God to man, with the promise given them by Christ that if they love him and keep his commandments, he would pray the Father, and he would give them another Comforter that would abide with them forever. This Comforter which is the Holy Ghost, the Father would send in his name, and he should teach them all things and bring to their remembrance all things whatsoever he had said unto them. John 14: 15, 16, 26, 27. This Comforter, remember, is one of the Holy Three,—the third party in the Covenant agreed upon by them. The Father sent the Son, the Son willingly came, he finished his work on the cross, sent the disciples in his name, under the authority of the Father. They now, with the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, become the light of the world, the representatives of the will of God.

As Christ, in person, was the mediator of the New Covenant, they, with the living ministry of to-day, become the messengers of the New Covenant between the personal Christ and the children of men, as Moses and the prophets were of the Old. Gal. 3: 19, 20. A mediator is one that stands between, in order to conciliate contending parties. "There is one God and one Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus." 1 Tim. 2: 5. "He is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises." Heb. 8: 6. He is the Mediator of the New Testament, which is synonymous with "covenant," 9: 15. Again, Jesus is the Mediator of the New Covenant, that speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. "See that ye refuse not him that speaketh: for if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, much more shall not we escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven." Heb. 12: 25.

Thus we see that he is also the Mediator of the New Testament or Covenant, which certainly means more than merely a personal covenant and this Testament we understand to be the Word of God, revealed in the Gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation. Rom. 1: 16. It is the power of God in enlightening the mind, in the conversion of the heart, in the sanctification of the spirit, and in the salvation of the soul.

The Apostle Paul, sensible of human weakness, the insufficiency of himself and his brethren, acknowledged that their sufficiency is of God, who also made them able ministers of the New Testament or Covenant, not only of the mere letter, but of a doctrine, accompanied by the operation of the Holy Spirit, which gave life and salvation through the Gospel. 2 Cor. 3: 5, 6. "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." 1 Cor. 3: 9. Christ is the foundation, and also the architect. On him, and by his directions, we are to build, and as we build, so will be our destiny. Verses 12–15.

JAN. 25, our beloved elder, G. W. Stambaugh, commenced a series of meetings, which he continued until Feb. 8. Feb. 7, fifteen precious souls were baptized. It was estimated that over two hundred persons witnessed the administration of the rite. We have four more applicants for baptism; one was also reclaimed.

Many deep impressions were made during the meetings, and our congregations were very large. We held our meetings in the Presbyterian church in town. The people say, they never heard the Gospel preached until now. Some say that their foundations are torn down,—especially is this the case with the Mormons. The church here is much encouraged. We have now forty-seven members. Pray for us! L. J. REDING.

From Pleasant Home, Oregon.

THE members in this vicinity are few in number and scattered over an extensive territory, comprising two large Counties. Our meetings are not very regular. At Gresham we hold an interest in a meeting-house and meet there for worship, whenever our dear brethren come to break unto us the Bread of Life. Yet God is working amongst us, for in December, when our dear young brother, J. B. Early, of Marion County, visited us, two brethren were made willing to join the army of the Lord. One is in the prime of life; the other not yet fourteen years of age. O, how pleasing to our Heavenly Father when sinners obey his voice!

Jan. 13 our elder, M. M. Bashor, came to this place for the first time, and held a week's meeting. The Brethren have not had services here for over two years, and the word spoken was well received by most of the people. To some, the doctrine was strange. Our dear brother told us much about obedience to God, the necessity of serving him in a right manner and to hold to the form of doctrine once delivered unto us. We think many good impressions were made, and that some are near the kingdom. May the time speedily come when we can have laborers constantly in the field, that the good seed may not get choked, but produce sheaves of golden grain.

In many places, souls are dying for the Bread of Life all around us, and we need not go to heathen lands to find them. We can all do something for the Lord. If we are not talented to preach the Word, we can distribute our tracts and church literature, and thereby get people to read and examine the Bible, and see if we have Scriptural proof for our practices.

Brethren and sisters, think on these things! Let us be up and doing, and work while it is called to-day! The battle of sin is raging. Many a soul is lost in the strife. Let us arise and feel the burden of souls upon us!

Feb. 1. JENNIE A. STEPHENS.

WE are still laboring for the advancement of the Master's cause. Bro. J. P. Nofziger, from near Mascot, Nebr., came to us Feb. 3, and commenced preaching at our school-house on the evening of Feb. 4. He continued until Feb. 10, and preached eight sermons to attentive and interested congregations. The interest increased from the beginning. He shunned not to declare the Gospel in its primitive purity. As a result of the meetings the members were built up in the cause and encouraged to press forward in the divine life, and sinners were warned.

Our brother was called home just when the interest was the greatest. We believe if we could have continued the meetings longer, some would have joined in with the people of God, but, on account of sickness in the writer's family at the time, we had to close. We started a Bible class Jan. 1, and have a good interest. We meet once a week at the members' houses.

On account of the failure of crops here, last year, a good many people are running short of provisions and a great many have no seed or grain to feed their teams while putting out a crop, and, unless they get help, they will suffer. We are glad to know that so many of our dear brethren in the East are coming to the rescue of the needy ones in the far West. We think if they all knew the true condition of the people of the West, many would lend a helping hand. Dear brethren, you that are blessed with this world's good, remember when you give to the needy you are lending to the Lord, who has said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." We desire an interest in the prayers of our Father's children, that we may ever be found in the path of duty. J. W. JARBOE.

FOR the satisfaction of those who have been desirous for information, regarding this country, we give the following: We came here a year ago last October with our daughter, the wife of J. C. Shermer. They came here to educate their children. We consider this a good place to live. The climate is mild; and there is a heavy rain-fall during the winter. Land is rather high for families of small capital. Fruit and vegetables of every description do well here. I see no reason why the Brotherhood should not have a mission post in this section as well as elsewhere. The morals here are good. We have two good schools and no saloons.

Early last spring my health was injured by La Grippe and overworking. This obliged me to go east of the mountains to spend the winter with my two sons. Upon my arrival home, Jan. 25, I found wife, son and wife in their usual health, but my heart was sad when I learned that our house, with most of the contents, had been consumed by fire. Nearly all our books, together with our church letters and other papers, were destroyed by the flames.

I spent a pleasant winter in regaining my health, east of the mountains and acquainting myself with the advantages of the country. I have now decided to move there soon, and wish to notify all our correspondents that our future address will be Thompson, Okonogan Co., Wash.

THE members of the Thornapple church, Mich., have had a very enjoyable and, we, believe, a profitable, series of meetings at their east church-house. The preaching was done by Bro. J. V. Felthouse, of Indiana. He began on Sunday, Feb. 1, and continued meetings day and evening, excepting three days, until the 13th, when he was obliged to return home on account of sickness in his family. As an immediate result, four precious souls confessed Christ and were buried with him in baptism. May they continue faithful, and walk in newness of life! One who had wandered away, returned. The church was made to rejoice, and we think all feel to give themselves more earnestly to the service of our Blessed Master. To-day our council, preparatory to District Meeting, was held. The church represents at District Meeting by two delegates,—brethren I. F. Rairigh and S. M. Smith. Bro. I. F. Rairigh was chosen to represent this church at Annual Meeting. It was also decided to hold a love-feast at our west house, on Saturday, June 13, to be preceded by a week's meetings. A general good feeling pervaded the council.

From Sweden.

ON Thursday, Dec. 11, a sister was baptized in Copenhagen. She is the wife of a brother who married her Nov. 16, 1890. May the Lord bless them richly in their new relation to each other! Dec 12 I went to Wanneberga, Ignaberga and other places. Much interest was taken in the Word preached, and we were glad to see sinners draw near to the Lord for mercy. One of them was the husband of our sister, who was baptized here Nov. 30. The meetings continued until Dec. 25, on which day we held a good love-feast at Wanneberga at which eight communed. Not a few witnessed the sacred ordinances.

Brethren Olin, from Kjeflinge, and Olsson and wife, from Malmo, were with us, and continued the meetings a few days longer. I then went to Gölshult to hold some meetings until Jan. 2, when I returned home.

After I held some meetings in Malmo, Limhamn, Copenhagen, Eslof, Kjeflinge and Trelleborg, I went to Wanneberga, Ignaberga and Gölshult again on Jan. 24, and preached every day, sometimes twice a day, to good audiences.

Jan. 29, a sister and that brother, who accepted Christ during our last meetings, were baptized. He and his wife rejoice very much because they have joined the church. They are praising the Lord night as well as day. When they were baptized, twenty members of other denominations witnessed the occasion. First a sermon on baptism was delivered, and after that the ordinance was performed, with which the spectators felt much interested.

Jan. 30, I set out for Gölshult where I held four good meetings. Jan. 2, I returned to Wanneberga and held a meeting in our new brother's little house, and from there I went to Copenhagen.

Feb. 14, I am going to Wanneberga and some other places again, and intend to stop there about two weeks. Do not forget to remember me in your prayers, that the Lord may give me bodily as well as spiritual strength. Sometimes, after walking much here and there to the houses, and after much preaching every day, I feel very tired, but my hope is in the Lord, that he will help and strengthen me with his almighty power.

A warm greeting and much love from all our members to all the churches in the Far West.

Wayside Notes.

WE are now living near the horseshoe bend of the Cimarron River, at a distance of about fourteen miles from Stillwater, a young town about twenty-five miles from Wharton, a station on the Santa Fe R. R. The land here is all occupied and society and life are somewhat primitive. There are no members around here except ourselves, but there are four members near Stillwater, viz, Bro. D. Cripe and wife and Bro. J. Clingenpeel and wife. We are talking about an organization in the near future and holding a love-feast in the spring. At present the writer's health is so much impaired, that he is unable either to leave home or to do any work whatever. He hopes, however, soon to recover.

We have not been here long enough to form an opinion as to the country, but so far we like it. We are living near the timber, and will have the overspreading oak around us with its thick foliage to shade us from the summer heat. The climate is mild and we can plant peas, onions and radishes next week (Feb. 16), and potatoes about March 1. Our crops will consist of corn, cotton, flax and cane. The soil seems rich, produces fine grass, is easily worked and, being near the river and timber, will have rain.

If our health improves, we will labor in the Gospel. In the meantime we can circulate tracts among the people; then get a faithful, earnest and energetic evangelist to come and build up a church here.

We are glad that a volume of Bro. Quinter's sermons is to be published. We ought to have more Brethren's literature than we have. Last summer we were looking over a number of bound volumes of Gospel Visitor, Primitive Christian, etc., and much that we saw ought to re-appear in print for the benefit of our younger and even older members. We need several volumes, to be called, "The Gospel Preacher." Who will second this proposition? JAS. EVANS.

UNDER the protection of our Heavenly Father, our dear brethren and sisters are still permitted to meet and dwell together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. Our social meetings each week have been attended with much good, and for six years have been continued throughout the year. Recently two dear souls came forward during a series of meetings. A special meeting was called next morning, when they were buried with Christ in baptism, and are now laboring to bring others to Christ. Deeper convictions and a higher order of divine life is the watch-word of our dear members. There were five added to the church by baptism this fall and winter.

Our Sunday-school is kept up the year round. Why should it not, if our common schools can be run successfully during the winter, why not our Sunday-schools? I do not remember of ever hearing the children ask to have the Sunday-school closed, on account of the approach of winter. At our annual report it was found that 4,500 Bible verses were committed to memory by the children. May the Lord bless the Sunday-schools all over our beloved Brotherhood! J. A. ROOT.

Our Meetings at the Jordan and Pleasant Valley Houses, Ohio.

ELD. TOBIAS KRIDER commenced a series of meetings at the Jordan house, Nov. 13, and continued till the 24th. The meetings were well attended; the house was too small to accommodate the people. One was added to our number by baptism and the common expression, at the close of the series of meetings, was, that it was one of the best ever held at this point, on account of the general religious interest taken in all the meetings.

Eld. Lewis W. Teeter commenced to preach for for us, at the Pleasant Valley House, Jan. 20, and and closed Feb. 5. He gave no uncertain sound, and thirteen precious souls were added to the saints at this place,—much to the encouragement of the church. The roads being very muddy, hindered the large attendance that would have characterized the meeting. I never saw a better religious interest, or better order, which confirmed my faith that God has much people here in this Valley. These dear brethren that labored so earnestly to build up the cause, will be remembered with grateful hearts. Those two houses in which the meetings were held are in the northern part of the Union City church, Darke Co., Ohio. May God bless the cause every-where!

In Memoriam.

SISTER SUSANNAH HARTER was born Sept. 10, 1795, and departed this life, Feb. 7, 1891, aged ninety-five years, four months and twenty-seven days.

Grandmother Harter, as she was always called, was born in Virginia and emigrated, with her parents, to Ohio when she was about ten years of age. Her father was one of the early pioneer settlers of the new "western country," and old Anthony Wayne's trace was as familiar to them as any fort or wigwam in the boundless wilderness. She was the last of the family. Two sisters one older and one younger,—having seen more than ninety summers, preceded her to the spirit world but two or three years.

Her recollection of pioneer days was very vivid and her chief delight was to rehearse their hardships and trials among the Indians in her early days. She was the mother of eight children, five of whom are living. She had twenty-seven grandchildren, forty-seven great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren. About the year 1843 she united with the church of the Brethren and has lived a devoted, Christian life through the ministerial labors of all the elders and ministers of Upper Twin congregation since its organization. She came to her grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season. She peacefully fell asleep in Jesus at the home of her son-in-law, Jacob Deardorff, and had all the attentions that loving hearts and hands could bestow. A few weeks before her death she had the misfortune to break her left arm, which was a heavy stroke on her already tottering frame. Appropriate funeral services were held at the Wheatville church, conducted by the Brethren from 1 Cor. 15: 57 and Rev. 14; 13, after which interment was made in the cemetery near by. A. G. CROSSWHITE.

LAST evening we closed a very interesting series of meetings in the town of Sidney, conducted by Bro. Daniel Snell, one of our home ministers. The series embraced twelve practical sermons, all of which were ably handled, and highly appreciated, by the members and those not members. So far as we can learn, the discourses gave very general satisfaction. Although some of the doctrines advanced were entirely new to many in the congregation, yet it was generally admitted that all was good, sound Gospel doctrine, and could not well be gainsaid. The weather was rather inclement part of the time, yet the interest and the attendance were good at the services, and we hope good may result from these meetings. Although we had no immediate accessions to the church, we do hope that the seed sown will yet bring forth fruit, — "if not an hundredfold, then sixty or thirtyfold."

Bro. Snell is rather a new worker in the mission field, but handles his subjects in a most excellent manner. He rebukes sin in the plainest terms, without any compromise.

We were very sorry to close these meetings as yet, but Bro. Snell had other appointments out, and was compelled to close here. Our prayers accompany him to his other fields of labor.

Next Monday evening Bro. Jacob Snell will commence a series of meetings at our East church, in Whitley County, and continue a week, at least. May God bless his labors!

The brethren have now held series of meetings in all their houses of worship in this locality. This is as it should be, for the enemy of souls is ever busy, plying his trade, deception, in every vocation of life. Then, if the enemy of souls is so persevering, and is so successful though he has such poor pay to offer, why should not the ministers of God be energetic in preaching the Kingdom where the reward is beyond our imagination? Paul says, "It has never entered into the heart of man what God has prepared for those that love him." Health here is fairly good, weather is mild. We have had no snow this winter, thus far!

E. MILLER.

Notes by the Way.

JAN. 8 I left home en route for Johnson County, Mo. My first stopping-place was Salt, Sullivan Co., Mo., where I remained over Sunday with my friends. I attended the Methodist meeting at Lindeville and by invitation of the resident ministers, I tried to preach to a crowded house of attentive hearers. This was the first meeting of our people held in that place.

I left my friends on Monday, Jan. 12 for Polo, Caldwell Co., Mo., where there is a little band of God's children. We had meetings here each evening during the week with good interest. These people need some good, live brother to settle among them.

Bro. Peter R. Oats has just moved in, and, I hope, will do all he can, but, owing to poor health, he can not always be depended on, to fill his regular appointments.

I left Polo for Kansas City on Saturday Jan. 17, and remained over Lord's Day. I met with a little band of brethren, sisters and others. We had a fair turn-out for the first regular meeting. Ministers present were brethren W. Holsinger, —— Wise, of Olathe, Kans., and the writer. They now have meeting at the Chelsea Park school-house every first and third Sunday of the month. They much desire traveling ministers to call with them, when in the city. To reach the place of meeting, take the elevated railroad at the Union depot, and go to Quindora Station. From there take the street west, one block, to Bro. Oliver Jones'; who will care for you, and take you to the place of meeting.

I left on Monday, Jan. 19, for Centre View, where I was met by Eld. Jacob Witmore, and taken to his pleasant home. Here I remained for one week and held some meetings; also visited some of the members, and took a look at their beautiful country. Through the kindness of Eld. Witmore and his kind companion I was taken to our dear brother, S. S. Mohler, Jan. 22. I am sorry that I can not report as favorably as I would like to do. Those who see him daily, however, think that he is improving slowly. I am glad to report that, spiritually, he is much improved, and that his hope and confidence in his Redeemer is quite encouraging to me. May the good Lord spare him a little longer, for the comfort of his dear family, and the church. We had a season of worship with him, which he seemed to enjoy very much. He still craves an interest in the prayers of his brethren and sisters. I left him with tears, and pray the Lord to stand by him and help him to bear his affliction with Christian patience.

I left the dear brethren at Centre View on Sunday, after the services we enjoyed with them, for the Knobnoster church. Jan. 25, I visited a few of the members, and then left for Harrisonville, Cass County, Mo., Jan. 28. After looking over the country and visiting a few members in company with Bro. and sister Jacob Kricket, I left, homeward bound, by way of Kansas, where I arrived Jan. 31, and found all well, for which I praise the Lord.

The brethren and friends, who are looking for new locations, may be suited in any of the above places where I have been. Ministers are needed, and will be made welcome, at any of the places mentioned. I return my thanks to all the kind brethren and sisters with whom I have been sojourning, praying that the Good Lord will bless all. ISAAC BARTO.

In Memoriam.

MARY BRALLIER, nee Lidy, died Jan. 26, 1891, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years, three months and fifteen days.

She was a daughter of Samuel Lidy, Sr., who was the father of a large family, all of whom lived to a ripe old age, but she outlived them all. Eld. Samuel Lidy, who was the first bishop of the Manor church and died at the age of eighty-three years, some time since, was her brother.

Sister Brallier lived a remarkably devoted Christian life. All the traits which make up the Christian character, seemed to be happily combined in her. If there was any one predominating principle, it was charity for all, and her happiest efforts were to inculcate and foster that admirable trait in her associates.

Deceased was born in Bedford County, Pa., Oct. 11, 1803, married to Emmanuel Brallier, Sept. 25, 1823 and baptized two years later by Eld. David Pfoutz. Twelve children blessed their union, four of whom preceded her to the spirit world. Eight are still living who mourn, but not without hope. All but one are members of the church of her choice. Fifty-six grandchildren and forty-seven great-grandchildren follow in her line. Her husband served many years as a faithful deacon in the church. Two of her sons were called to the ministry here, and one to the deaconship. Two others of her sons were practicing physicians.

Her history is such that it seems to the writer worthy of the commendations expressed in Romans 16. Her wise, Christian counsel was always ready, and, by the writer, much appreciated and warmly cherished. In her death the Manor church has lost a pillar,—"a mother in Israel,"—the neighbors, a friend in need, and the poor, a liberal benefactor. JOSEPH HOLSOPPLE.

The Bible Normal at McPherson.

AFTER thinking over carefully, since returning home, the many helpful suggestions presented, the many useful lessons learned, the character and amount of information imparted, as well as the design and scope of the work, it has seemed that there were two excellent reasons why more might be said and written with profit, in regard to the Bible Normal and its object.

1. All the ministers, Sunday-school Superintendents, and teachers, to whom McPherson College is accessible, ought to know that the College has opened its doors and extended an invitation to all the Brethren, to gather, in the month of January, and take free of charge, a short Bible Course, embracing, for the time allotted, a very thorough drill in Bible and Sunday-school work.

2. In justice to the officers and teachers of that excellent institution, the brethren, who were not able to be present this year, should know something of the good work done, the very high appreciation of the benefits received, and the efforts of our instructors, which all those felt, who were able to attend and take this year's course.

On Jan. 6 there were gathered in about twenty-four ministers and teachers from various churches and congregations, and this number increased before the close of the first week. The second week we were all surprised to find that our number had increased from thirty to sixty, and soon reached from seventy to seventy-five.

Our regular work embraced the following studies,—Bible geography, i. e., the geography of Bible Lands in Bible days, Bible history, Sunday-school work, "Evidences of Christianity," and Bible reading.

The work was handled very carefully and the lessons, as far as we were able to go, well exhausted and well digested; that is to say, the work was well and thoroughly done, and those who attended will never forget the continued efforts, and the untiring industry of the instructors, to make the Normal a successful one, and our attendance most profitable.

The information imparted was just that needed by every minister and Bible teacher, every time he comes before his class or congregation, and without which he too often hinders his own prayers, and brings unjust criticism and even reproach upon the cause he undertakes to help.

Those who came first and were most regular in attendance and careful in study, of course obtained the greater benefit; and those who were only able to take part of the drill were very sorry they could not have taken all.

If perchance any came thinking he knew a good many things about the Bible, one thing is certain, every one went away, conscious he had yet much to learn, and that it is as impossible to exhaust the treasures of God's Word, as it is to exhaust the riches of God's grace.

Not only was all the time used that had been assigned to the work, but extra sessions were held, by special request of many of the ministers, in order that they might have some special instruction, embracing many things that would better enable them in their labors and preaching, to both instruct and edify their congregations.

Further mention also should be made of one very helpful feature in connection with the work. A course of sermons was given by Bro. Daniel Vaniman on missions and mission work, showing the methods used by our church, and showing the necessity of special and united effort, on the part of our churches every-where, in this direction, thus revealing the great need of individual consecration in the matter of rendering unto the Lord as he hath prospered us.

A course of sermons on doctrinal subjects, by Bro. A. Hutchison, was well received and instructive.

A series of eight sermons by Bro. Enoch Eby, on "Church Government," was very strong, and of great value, particularly to meet the present need of many churches. Such sermons could be preached with good results in every congregation, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

I have thought if those sermons could be published just as they were delivered before us, in a cheap pamphlet form, not to exceed ten or twenty cents in price, they would meet a very pressing need in many of our churches, and would be a silent but potent influence in regulating many objections and difficulties that now have to either be adjusted in council, or are permitted to run, until greater evils grow out of them, which finally estrange those from church fellowship, who, otherwise, would have, by careful nurture, made useful and helpful members.

In the brief space, to which I feel this article should be confined, it is not possible to speak of the many good things that were said concerning the Bible work for this year, by all those who enjoyed its benefits and privileges.

It will suffice, perhaps, to say that all returned to their homes much strengthened and greatly encouraged, because they feel so much better able to meet the tasks before them, and in much humility of heart they will undertake to use very carefully the precious time and opportunities that fall to their lot, seeking prayerfully to both do and say the right thing, at the right time, in the right way.

The Bible and Sunday-school work for the next year, I am informed by one of those who have the matter under advisement, will embrace a much more complete and comprehensive course, than it was possible to arrange this year. And while all those who attended this year will be glad to return again, it is hoped that many more may avail themselves of this opportunity, in some measure, to better prepare themselves for their respective fields of labor.

Too much can not be said in commendation of our colleges, which have united in thus undertaking to strengthen, and make efficient, the hands of those who have been chosen in the service of the Lord! J. B. MOORE.

In Memoriam.

THE dreaded enemy of human life,—Death,—has taken from us our dearly beloved brother, Nathaniel S. Replogle, who died Jan. 28, 1891.

The deceased was born near New Enterprise, Bedford Co., Pa., June 16, 1863. In his fourteenth year he united with the church and was a faithful and devoted member. He entered the Normal College, at Huntingdon, Pa., and graduated in the class of '85. Since then he had been successively principal of the schools at New Enterprise for three years, and of Saxton, two. Last fall the principalship of the Meyersdale, Somerset Co., schools was accepted, and death stopped him in the midst of a very successful term.

His father and younger brother having been very low with typhoid fever, he came home and tenderly nursed them until they were on a fair way to recovery, when he returned and was at once laid up with the same disease.

Bro. Replogle was very genial and amiable socially, very bright intellectually and possessed an exceedingly noble character. Although engaged mostly in the active duties of the school, his duties in the Sunday-school and prayer-meeting were never neglected. He was one in whom the church had great hopes, and one who apparently had the promise of a brilliant future.

His sorrows were many, yet he bore them bravely, looking to the Great Comforter in whom he always found relief. He had the moral courage of a hero, and in the darkest adversity he often said that the consciousness of being in the right was his consolation.

He was married twice. His first wife died within a year of their marriage, and he died within a year after his second marriage. His remains were brought to New Enterprise, and interred in the cemetery here. Funeral services by Bro. D. T. Detwiler, from the words, "To die is gain." Brethren Levi Stuckey and C. L. Buck also assisted. The bereaved widow, parents, and the whole community mourn the loss of a dear one.

Kind Words for the "Messenger."

I HAVE been a reader of our church paper for nearly fifty years, and have, from time to time, received much food and encouragement through its pages. I have learned much of the doings of the church, which I could learn in no other way. We must all confess that our different church papers of former years (with, of course, some exceptions), have done much good in the world and to the church, in exposing error and encouraging saints.

Especially am I pleased with the present management of the GOSPEL MESSENGER. It makes its regular weekly visits, laden with good and religious thoughts, from the pen of many of our faithful and zealous workers in the good cause. The correspondence department, especially, is very interesting, and is read with much delight. Many good articles have appeared in the MESSENGER since the beginning of the present volume. I was much pleased with Bro. Enoch Eby's admonition on "Going Security," in No. 5, present volume, and I can fully endorse his sentiments. Many, very many, pleasant homes have been entirely ruined just by carelessly signing an obligation with some one who, at that time, claimed to be a friend, but who will, in an evil hour, step out, and suffer you to pay the debt. This is just what you said you would do, when you signed the note with your friend. You said, in just so many words, that if your friend failed to pay the note, you would do so. You said, "For value received, we, or either of us, promise, to pay $—— to bearer, on a certain date." Now, as Bro. Eby said, you tell an untruth right there, for you, at least, have not received any benefit at all, but you may, very likely, stand a good chance of having to pay said note. "Then thou shall smart for it." I believe that our overseers ought to admonish our members against going security. E. MILLER.

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the form of doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

"WEST VIRGINIA ECHOES" is a well-written bit of correspondence, but owing to the fact that it is anonymous, it goes into the waste-basket.

BRO. JESSE STUTSMAN, of Pitsburgh, Ohio, says: "At an election held at the Pitsburgh house on the 14th inst., Bro. Elihu Bagwell was chosen to the ministry. We had a very enjoyable meeting, there being over two hundred members present."

BRO. B. F. MILLER, of Alpena, Dakota, reports the receipt of $17.50 from the church at Greene, Butler County, Iowa, for the needy in South Dakota. Bro. Miller extends warm thanks to the Brethren and friends at Greene for their loving helpfulness.

BRO. JACOB MITCHELL, agent at Saline City, Ind., calls attention to an error in the report of donations for Western sufferers. Instead of Saline City church, it should have been members of the Saline City neighborhood. We gladly make the correction.

BRO. R. A. YODER should now be addressed at Sabetha, Nemaha Co., Kansas.

BRO. ISAAC FRANTZ, of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, is holding forth the Word of Truth at Cerro Gordo, Ill.

BRO. J. C. SEIBERT changes his address from Melbourne to Bon Accord, Johnson Co., Iowa, where he should be addressed in the future.

GOOD news in this week's issue from far-away California. Six souls were added to the church. Read Bro. Norcross' letter in another column.

BRO. A. W. VANIMAN is visiting among the churches in Eastern Kansas, preaching the Word, and laboring for the school interests at McPherson

IF you wish your paper stopped, don't try to do it by returning it to either of the offices, but send us a postal card, stating that you wish it discontinued, and it will be promptly attended to.

SOME people will never learn much because they feel that they already know it all. Christ came not to heal the well, but the sick. Those who think they know are the hardest to teach.

BRO. GEO. W. CRIPE, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., gave us a very short call last week on his way home from Iowa. Bro. George has been laboring among the churches for over five months. The Lord blessed his labors, and a number were added to the church.

UNDER date of Feb. 17, Bro. Jas. R. Gish writes: "We start to-day, and expect to make our first stop in Cass Co., Ill., to hold some meetings with a few isolated members. Hereafter our address will be Stuttgart, Arkansas, until further notice. All have our best wishes. Remember us at a throne of grace."

"I saw some handfuls of the rose in bloom,
With bands of grass suspended from a dome.
I said, 'What means this worthless grass, that it Should in the roses' fairy circle sit?'
Then wept the grass, and said: 'Be still! and know
The kind their old associates ne'er forego.
Mine is no beauty, hue, or fragrance, true!
But in the garden of my Lord I grew.'"

APPLICATION has been made to the various railroad associations for rates to our next Annual Meeting at Hagerstown, Md. As soon as rates and limit of time are received, notice will be given in the MESSENGER. If the limit on the tickets is extended to forty or sixty days, many of our Brethren will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit in the East.

BRO. J. H. HARTMAN, of the Northern church of Philadelphia, writes as follows: "Eld. Geo. D. Zollars was with us on last Lord's Day, and preached both morning and evening; also made a few remarks at our Sunday-school session in the afternoon. All of the services were well attended. We want to build a chapel, the Lord permitting, if we get the means by next fall. We ask the prayers of the brethren and sisters in our behalf."

ONE by one our friends are passing over the river. Here we have no abiding city, no place of refuge, no harbor of absolute rest and safety. Again the shadow of death has fallen upon our church and social circle at this place. Sister Ada, wife of Bro. Harvey Puterbaugh died Feb. 24. Sister Ada was a faithful child of God, and she died in the hope of a blessed immortality. Bro. Harvey has the warm sympathy of all in this sad hour of bereavement. May the Lord comfort him!

THE Brethren and friends at Warrensburgh, Mo., are doing a noble work in helping the Western sufferers. A Nebraska paper, referring to the benevolent work of the Brethren's church in behalf of the needy in the West says: "The recording angel has been writing down many good deeds this winter to the credit of the Brethren." And we know that the Warrensburgh, Mo., Brethren and friends are also recorded for their labor of love. Bro. John W. Brooks, writing under date of Feb. 17, says: "We ship a car load of supplies to-day to Goodland, Sherman Co., Kans. The car contains 273 bushels of corn, two barrels of molasses, seventy sacks af meal, 183 sacks of flour, twelve or fifteen barrels of second-hand clothing, four barrels of meat, one bolt domestic, five dozen spools of thread, etc., etc. We mention this so others may know what and where we sent it. We think we can make up another car soon. About three-fourths of these supplies were donated by the Brethren."

WE clip the following from The Southern Californian: One of the busiest men in this valley is G. L. McDonaugh, Freight and Passenger Agent of the Southern California Railway. He has collected data on all kinds of products grown in his territory, and is ever ready to give information to his employers as to the amount ready for shipment. Not only does he know who the purchasers and shippers are, but he carries a list of growers and producers, becomes acquainted with them, and studies their wants in marketing their products. It is seldom he loses any business, and we know he has gained a large amount for the "Santa Fe" during last year. It is likely he works on the principle of faithfulness to his employers, and to make himself so useful that there can be no question as to fitness for the position. Too often men work only for their salary, and not to make themselves felt as a power by their usefulness." We know that the host of friends, that G. L. McDonaugh has among our readers, will be glad to hear that he is pleasantly located at Lordsburgh, California. No railroad man ever made so many friends among our people as did George. He was always kind, accommodating and courteous, and his word could always be relied upon. We wish him abundant success in his new home in the land of the orange and the pomegranate.

WE spent a few days very pleasantly at the Lanark church last week, and enjoyed meeting the members in public worship, and in visiting among them at their homes. The meetings were largely attended, and the interest in the church and her work does not seem to be waning, but rather increasing. Bro. Frank Eckerle has charge of the Sunday-school, and his heart is in the work. Something over seventy were in attendance on the Sunday that we were present. The officers, teachers and scholars all seemed to be interested in their work. We were sorry enough to miss a few well-remembered faces, that in times past were always seen at the Lanark church. Our dear old brethren, William Henkle and Jacob Eby have gone to their eternal home. Others there are, who, feeling that they could not walk longer with the church, have gone away from us. When we think of the heart-aches and the sorrow that comes with a division in the church, we do not wonder that our Blessed Master prayed so earnestly to the Dear Father in heaven, that the bond of union that united his disciples might never be broken. "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

NOT long ago we stood by the side of a lonely grave, far out on the Western prairies, even where the shadows of the Old Rockies fall not far away. A granite block and a plain, marble column, placed over the last resting place of a beloved wife, by conjugal affection, marked the place of sepulture. The spot was isolated and lonely, but beautiful withal. Eastward and Westward the grand sweep of the prairie spreads away until the limit of vision is reached, and earth and sky blend in an unbroken line. Alone, in silence and in solitude we stood by the side of the grave, and there came to us a vision of the life that once animated the form, now so quietly and peacefully sleeping in the shadow of the tomb. And, behold, we saw a life of pure and unselfish devotion to duty and to the church, a life rich in all the Christian graces, full of love to God and to humanity, faithful and true to the right, a life full of self-sacrifice for husband, for home and for friends, a life full of sympathy and helpfulness for the unfortunate and needy, a life not without pain and suffering, but all borne with uncomplaining, Christian forbearance, a life that ended in the full development of all its powers, ere half the allotted years had passed away, a life that closed to this world in the glorious triumphs of an abiding faith in Jesus Christ, and in the full hope of a glorious resurrection, remembering, even at its close, that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Such was the life that came before us as we stood in silent meditation, alone with the dead, and, stooping down, we read this name on the cold, marble, "Callie B. Teeter." Behold, God giveth his beloved sleep.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

Special Notice.—"Spiritual Wickedness in High Places."—"Girt About with the Truth."—Rebaptizing.—Angels of the Seven Churches of Asia. Giving.

1. Please give us an explanation of "spiritual wickedness in high places." Eph. 6: 12.

2. In what way are we to be "girt about with Truth?" Eph. 6: 14. Give it so all of us can understand and apply it.

LANDON WEST.

SPECIAL NOTICE. — Heretofore we have, by special request, withheld names of those sending in queries. In one or two cases the queries were of a personal character, and resulted in a demand for the names of the querists. In order to avoid difficulty in the future, we shall only answer queries sent in by those who are willing to have their names appear. All matters of a personal character should not be the subject of a query.

ANS.—1. The words translated "high places," are in the original epouraniois. It occurs in Eph. 1: 3; 2: 6, where it is translated HEAVENLY PLACES. The Revised Version gives a clearer translation of the passage than is found in the Authorized. It reads as follows: "For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places." The apostle very clearly says, that our warfare is not against men armed for battle, but that we are to battle against the devil and his hosts of evil spirits that dwell in upper places, high places, or heavenly places.

It is to be noted here that the word "heavenly places" does not refer to the abode of the blessed, but that reference is made to the air, or rather to the region where the evil spirits have their place. As Lange says it means the region assigned to those beings who are purely spiritual over against men, and although these are angels who have not remained in their original fellowship with God, yet there still remains to them a region corresponding to their nature, of course not in nearness to God.

These spirits are supposed to occupy the upper air, and hence the use of the word signifying "heavenly places," meaning upper places. In Eph. 2 occurs the following language: "To the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience." It is now generally conceded, that by the "prince of the power of the air," Satan is referred to, but it is not so easily determined just why he is called the prince of the air. We are plainly given to understand the nature and character of the enemies, that we are to meet in the conflict with sin and Satan. The warfare is not child's play, the enemies that we are to meet are strong and on the alert. We are engaged in a contest with the evil one and his helpers. The foes are set forth as terrible, and as occupying high places. The apostle thus warns us, so that we may be fully prepared for the conflict. We are to be fully armed with the Gospel armor, so that we may meet the enemy and overcome him. It is against the angels or the spirits of the evil one that we are called upon to contend, and that, too, "in whatever way their power is put forth, whether in the prevalence of vice and error, of superstition, or magic arts, of infidelity or atheism; of evil customs or laws, of pernicious fashions and opinions, or in the corruptions of our own hearts. We are to make war on all these forms of evil, and never to yield in the conflict."

ANS.—2. And this brings us to the second query, which refers to a part of the armor the Christian is to have on. "In what way are we to be girt about by the Truth?" The girdle of the soldier kept all the parts of the armor in their proper places. It was a strength, a brace, and a support to the wearer. So the Truth is to be a support and a brace to us. It will serve to make our lives consistent. Grotius says: "Great is the laxity of falsehood; truth binds the man." As the soldier was girt about by his girdle, so are we bound with the Truth. It makes the Christian sincere, firm and watchful. It gives him stability of character and determination of purpose. It braces him up against every wind of doctrine. It preserves him from lax views, as to religious and moral duties. In all these things it supports and strengthens him. Without it his armor is weak, and he is just the man to fall an easy prey to the adversary of souls. Let us keep bright the girdle of Truth, allowing no stain or blot to mar its fair escutcheon, and having it ever girt about our loins, we shall be able to stand firm in the liberty of the Gospel.

Dear Bro.:—Will you please explain through the MESSENGER Acts 19: 5 7? I wish to know whether these disciples were rebaptized with water. A. J. MILLER.

ANS.—The language plainly sets forth that the disciples found by Paul, who had been baptized "unto John's baptism," after he had taught them more fully the way of life, were "baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus," that is, with the baptism of Christ. Hence they were taken down into the water and rebaptized according to the commission given by the Savior to his disciples. Matt. 28: 19. Commentators generally hold the same view of this passage; we quote from several as follows: "It is evident that these persons were rebaptized by the direction of Paul, for this is the obvious meaning of the passage, that which would strike persons as correct, unless there were some previous theory to support."—Barnes. "As there is no evidence in the New Testament of persons being rebaptized, unless this be one, many criticisms have been hazarded to prove that these persons were not rebaptized. I see no need of this. A Christian should be baptized in the Christian faith; these persons had not been baptized unto that faith, and therefore they had not received Christian baptism; they felt this, and were immediately baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus."—Clarke.

Lange, The Bible Commentary, Henry, and others, that we have examined on the subject, take the ground that the disciples, here spoken of, were rebaptized. Indeed, to take any other view, is to do violence to the rules of language, and the laws of interpretation.

Dear Bro.:—Will you please tell us through the MESSENGER what we are to understand by the words in Luke 6: 25? "Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep." JOHN JONES.

ANS.—The Master draws a contrast between the final end of those who weep now, and suffer for his sake the reproach and persecution of this world, and those who are rich, and are full, and laugh now. The time will come when the Christian's weeping will be turned to joy; and the time will come too, when those who refuse Christ, and revel in riches, and in pleasure, and laughter now, will weep and mourn. In sickness, in calamity, in death when the fear of eternity shall enter their souls, then shall their laughing be turned to weeping and mourning, but then it will be too late; for God will give them over. Too late, too late, will be the cry of many a poor soul when fear and calamity comes upon them.

5. Dear Bro.:—Please inform us through the MESSENGER, who are meant by the angels of the seven churches of Asia, referred to in the first chapter of the book of Revelation.

EMMA E. WIEMER.

ANS.—The elder, the bishop, or the presiding minister of the congregation. The word angel means messenger, and denotes those who are sent forth by God to do or convey his will. This meaning may be extended to any one employed to communicate the will of another. As the duty of the elder is to communicate the will of God to the flock, and to transact business and attend to the spiritual needs of the flock, over which the Holy Ghost has made him overseer, he is in that sense a messenger of the Lord. To the elders or bishops John was commanded to write what the Spirit had to say to the seven churches, and the messages were, no doubt, read to the churches. This is the obvious interpretation of the term angel in the Scriptures referred too.

6. Dear Bro.:—Will you please explain Luke 6: 38? "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over shall men give into your bosom." M. E. MURPHY.

ANS.—The thought is clearly expressed at another place, that it is more blessed to give than to receive. The man who is liberal and gives to the poor, will, should he have need, always find many ready to help. In another sense, too, does the liberal soul grow fat, and that is in treasures in heaven, richness of the soul. A man can not be stingy, and be a Christian at the same time. The soul of the liberal man is enlarged in good works. The soul of the covetous and stingy man becomes lean and shrivels up. God's blessings rest not upon it. God's Word is full of precepts to give, and with this one a gracious promise is coupled. He that knows not the pleasure of giving to the poor, and to the work of the Lord, has not yet had one of the most blessed experiences of Christian life.

THE TRUE SPIRIT OF GIVING.

BY A. P. HAPPER.

IT is a common impression among Christian people that the religious life of God's people under the Old Testament dispensation was less spiritual and consecrated than it is now. It is very easy to suppose that devotion of life and engagement of heart would be more easily developed toward a Savior already come, and who has made expiation for our sins, than it would be for a Messiah yet to come. Yet the Scriptural narrative of the lives of the patriarchs and prophets impresses all careful readers, that there was a greater depth of piety and consecration to the service of God by them than most people suppose. The record that "Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him," very tersely expresses a life of most intimate communion and fellowship with God. So also the narratives of Abraham, Isaac, Moses, and other servants of God. Abraham is still the Father of the faithful; and Moses is the example of "choosing rather to suffer afflictions with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt."

The account of the gifts of the children of Israel for the preparation of the ark of the covenant and the vestments of the priests in the wilderness strengthens the impression of the piety of the mass of the people. "The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the Lord, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the Lord had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses." This implies that all the people, the rich and the poor, those who had to give, and those who could do special and necessary work, men and women, all took part in the work, which was of common and general interest, and which was completed by the conjoint gifts and labors of all the congregation of God's people.

A large proportion of Christians appear to overlook the terms of Christian discipleship as laid down by our Lord and his apostles. In making a profession of religion, many accept the usage of Christian life as they see it exemplified in the lives of those whom they know to be members of the church, instead of looking at the terms of that life as stated in the Gospels. The prevailing type of profession leaves Christian people to pursue their worldly callings as others do, for their own purposes and interests, only conjoining with it attendance upon the service of the church when convenient, giving something to the support of the church and the promotion of Christian work, and living an upright and moral life. But how little is there of that entire change of heart and life which are presented by our Lord as the terms of discipleship when he says, "Except a man forsakes all, he can not be my disciple?" The apostle Paul says, Christ "died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again." This passage teaches that the unconverted live unto themselves, but that they who are made alive in Christ Jesus should not hereafter live unto themselves, but unto Christ.

How few, comparatively, feel and act in the belief that the money in their possession is not their own, but is entrusted to them by God, to be used for his glory and for the promotion of his kingdom! When the great agencies, which should carry on the great work of the evangelization of the world, are hindered for want of means, how few of those who have money in their possession regard the knowledge of this fact as a call upon them to give of their substance to those agencies for doing this work! How many of the professed disciples of our Lord suffer the most important departments of Christian work to be cramped and hindered for want of money, rather than forego their own personal gratification of ease and comfort, or curtail plans and arrangements for the increase of their possessions? This would not be so, if members of the church felt that the money in their homes belongs to God, and they are his stewards to disburse it for the promotion of his cause.

How beautifully and strikingly is this truth expressed by David when he and his people presented their offerings for the building of the temple! The people gave them willingly, as they did at the preparing of the tabernacle; only they gave more abundantly, according to their wealth and the greatness of the temple. It has been estimated by some that the amount of gold and silver and precious things given by David and his people was something near to three hundred millions of dollars. And with this giving he says: "Now, therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort? for all things come of thee, and of mine own have we given thee." 1 Chron. 29: 13, 14. When will God's people give in like abundance for the building of the great spiritual temple which shall fill the whole world?

God, in his good providence, has entrusted abundant wealth to his professing people. If they realized that they themselves, and all that they have, belong to the Lord, and that they are to live for, and use their money for promoting his cause and kingdom, there would be a great abundance of men and means for the promotion of every good work. It is stated in the book "Our Country," by Dr. Strong, which has had a wide circulation, that the amount contributed by the professing Christians in the United States, for the extension of the Gospel, is yearly but the one-sixteenth of one cent out of every dollar in their possession. At this rate of giving by the great body of professing Christians in this country, is it any wonder that every form of Christian work is cramped and hindered for want of the necessary means to carry it on with efficiency? How different was the action of the children of Israel in the wilderness! They, in the ordinary services, gave one-tenth of all their income; and when the special occasion for their giving occurred, every man willingly gave of whatever he had, and men and women gave willingly of personal service and labor, as they were qualified to labor in the service.

It will be noticed that the readiness to give, as well as to work, is ascribed to the working of God in the hearts of all the people. This suggests that it is a proper subject of prayer that God would give this willing heart to give of the money, as well as to engage in personal work for the promotion of his kingdom. When this spirit of liberality is poured out upon God's people, in answer to prayer, as it was upon his people of old, then will his kingdom speedily come in all the earth. The circumstances under which many converts in heathen lands come into the church are very different from what they are in Christian lands. There they come out to profess Christ in the face of opposition and reproaches. In many cases, they have literally to forsake father and mother, and brothers and sisters, and all things. —*S. S. "LIVE OF THE GOSPEL."

BY S. H. LOVE.

"Even so the Lord hath ordained, that they who preach the Gospel shall live of the Gospel."—1 Cor. 9: 14.

THAT a preacher's duty is to give his time and energies to the propagation of the Gospel, is plain from Paul's commands to Timothy, "Study to shew thyself a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Continuing he says, "Give thyself wholly to it."

Now, if a man preaches the Gospel and obeys Paul by giving himself wholly to it, he must, perforce, live of it. And if the Lord has ordained, indeed, that he should live of it, how can it be wrong to accept a support?

When a man takes upon himself the duties of the ministry in our Brotherhood, as a general thing he has before him a thorny road. He must dress himself decently or have no influence upon those without. He must pay up his debts promptly or have no influence upon those within. He must be hospitable and generous, taking the lead in extending the same to visiting brethren, and, above all things, he must be at all times ready to give a reason for the hope that is in us, clothing the doctrines of Christ in winsome and convicting garb, glad to visit the bedside of the sick or dying, stop at any hour of the day to administer baptism or preach funerals, and, after all these arduous labors are performed, there are those who think he ought not to receive support. Did not Paul take wages of the churches? He says, "Be ye followers of me."

So, then, if a man were to receive support enough to live on, and then throw all the concentrated energies of his being into the Gospel work, giving himself wholly to it, would he not be doing expressly what Paul commands him to do, and receiving exactly what the Lord of Glory has ordained he should receive?

If our ministering brethren were thus encouraged and supported, they would turn the world upside down with their doctrines, as they did when they received wages of the churches, and lived as the Lord ordained they should. There are certain old paths that we are commanded to seek and to walk in, and the church will be much more spiritually-minded and godly therein than in any of the paths hewn out by the commands of men. Let us not try to improve upon the Lord's way; he has ordained that which is best for his people.

My heart was made to ache upon reading old Bro. Evans' letter, in last week's MESSENGER.

Eminently qualified for the pulpit, full of zeal and ardor, classically educated and possessed of a mind wondrously filled with Bible love, a heart gushing with love to God and love to his fellowmen,—he proposes to go to the wilds of distant Oklahoma, there to bury himself and his polished talents, while trying to dig a living out of the ground.

Paul likens the church to a man with eye, ear, hands and mouth. What could the hands do without the eye to direct their course? The eye would soon perish if cut off from the nourishment that comes through the mouth. Now, our old brother, Jas. Evans, is eminently qualified to be the mouth-piece, and those who are able to be the hands, in other words, those who know how to make money with their hands, ought to minister to him, so that with his mouth they, who possess the hands, could speak forth the wonderful words of life, saying to him, "Brethren, you can preach with power and we can work with might. Go on, preach the Word to dying man, and we will give you a comfortable living. For thus the Lord hath ordained."

In my own congregation there is a brother who for three years cleared on an average five dollars per day, Sundays and all, above all expenses. Now such might be called the hands of the body,—the church. Now put this brother up to preach and he could not begin to come up to some other brother who is qualified to be the mouthpiece. Suppose, then, this brother should say, Let us strive together for the upbuilding of the Master's cause, each one in his own sphere. Come now, and let us reason together. Does it not seem that the Master has ordained it thus?

In providing food and raiment for the natural man this brother can do more in one day than Bro. Evans can in ten. But in providing food and raiment for the spiritual man Bro. Evans can do more in one day than he in ten. Now each is mutually dependent on the other; let neither withhold the needed help that both may rejoice together and be mutually thankful to Christ, the Head of all.

Lest this letter be misunderstood, let me say that the most pleasant relations possible exist between myself and the congregation here. I will give an example. On last Sunday when I got to church, as usual a brother came to me and said, "Let us go to our accustomed place to pray. At that place, down in the woods, below the church, for three years we have kneeled together, and asked the Father to bless us and give us grace to speak aright his glorious Word. After our prayer my brother said, "Now Bro. Stephen, I wish to show that I appreciate the sacrifices that you are making for the truth," and with those words he handed me a crisp five dollar bill. Many of my brethren thus, in a substantial way, show their appreciation of my effort. Were it not for these expressions of approval I should have to abandon the work, for I can only have courage to engage in it after the most diligent preparation, requiring much time and concentration of thought and energies thus averted from business channels.

Cheer up, Bro. Evans, in your sorrow and broken-hearted discouragements. Your Lunenburg friends are poor and weak, but we will send you some more cheering reminders of us than empty words.

Pleasant Grove, Va.

[NOTE.—It has been the rule in our church for lo these many years for congregations to assist ministers who need help, and what the brethren are doing in brother Love's congregation is being done by many churches all over our Brotherhood. Our Brethren do not object to a supported ministry, but they have guarded against making ministers hirelings, and we trust this point will never be lost sight of. Let us afford a competent support to those who are worthy, but let us guard against a hireling ministry. This system has flooded many churches with corruptions and its evils are discerned by thoughtful men in all denominations.—ED.]

CHIPS FROM THE WORK HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

"Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into the harvest."—Luke 10: 2.

LET Peter "stir up our pure minds by way of remembrance," especially the minds of the elders in charge of churches, and their co-laborers in the ministry, that they may remember,

1. That the Lord said, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest."

2. That he said this to his disciples.

3. That it is just as applicable to us now as when first spoken.

4. That the last Annual Meeting passed the following for the churches to act upon, and not simply to fill up space in the Minutes. Sincere, conscientious Christians pray for what is needed, and then plan and work for it. How much have you prayed and worked since last Annual Meeting to have more suitable laborers called, and properly qualified and made ready and willing to be located by the General and District Missionary Committees in the many favorable openings in the Master's great field? If we neither pray nor work in this direction, how shall the pressing demand, now upon us for more suitable laborers, ever be met? Below find the qualifications for laborers and the recommendation of Annual Meeting to the churches, to move in this direction. Come now, stop and think! Do the Master's "Pray ye," and the recommendation of the Annual Meeting mean anything, or do they not?

1. Let churches, having brethren possessing the necessary qualifications, from time to time hold elections to increase our ministry with a view of meeting the growing demand for preaching the Gospel, both at home and in all the various localities of the missionary field of the world. And let all ministers, when elected, be advised and urged to hold themselves in readiness as much as possible, to be used by the church wherever they may be needed.

2. Let the General Mission Board, as often as they deem it necessary, publish the following qualifications necessary for missionaries:

(a) He must be sound in the faith.

(b) He must be able to submit himself wholly under the control and advice of the Mission Board under whose direction he labors.

(c) He must be able and willing to teach and defend the principles of the Gospel and the doctrine and peculiarities of the church, as defined and applied by Annual Meeting, and must manifest the same in his conversation, life and character.

(d) If married, he must have a companion who is to him a true help-meet, possessing as far as may be, similar qualifications, and who is ever ready and willing to help him in every possible way to carry forward the Lord's work.

3. Let the several District Meetings each appoint three of their well-established elders, who are known to be favorable to the missionary work of the church, whose duty it shall be to report to the General Mission Board the names of such ministers in their respective State Districts who possess the proper qualifications, and who have proved themselves faithful to the church and efficient workers, and who are willing to be located by, and work under the direction of, the District and General Committee. And the above item, if adopted, shall repeal Art. 21 of Minutes of Annual Meeting of 1886.

4. Let the General Committee give the regular missionaries to understand that they will be furnished with steady employment as long as they prove to be the right men in the right place, and that, while thus employed, they shall be sustained temporally.

McPherson, Kans.

"EVERY nature must have the slow plowing of sorrow, before it can recognize either its present poverty or its possible wealth."

"STAND UP."

BY ENOCH EBY.

"All you who have accepted Christ as your Savior, stand up!" says a minister to his congregation. Husband and I, and two others of our company did not rise. Did we do wrong?"

THUS asks a sister whose consistency made her and her company a gazing stock. Heb. 10: 33. She requests an answer through the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

I answer, A minister has no Gospel precedent for such a request; hence it is not wrong to sit still. Isaiah 30: 7. Our strength is in sitting still, under such circumstances. It will afford you a good text to preach from, when they ask you to speak a word for Jesus, and you, Boanerges-like, can tell them the better way, or expound the way of God more perfectly to them.

Accepting Jesus means a holy walk, a daily self-denial, a coming out from the world, using the money spent for jewelry, and costly array, and gold, in feeding the poor and clothing the naked, and paying our debts, etc. Following such a course you will not likely receive many invitations to speak for Jesus; and I know of no other way to speak for Jesus, than to tell how Jesus did, taught and suffered for us. Telling our experience is speaking for ourselves; the Apostle says, "We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves, your servants for Jesus' sake." 2 Cor. 4: 5.

It is a minister's duty to preach the Word. To resort to such measures, as above alluded to, is policy for effect, and Christianity needs no policy work; it is based on principle; and the Gospel will convert the sinner without any outside issues brought to bear; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.

Again, if I can not worship conscientiously with a people, because of antiscriptural measures adopted by them and can not get them to see the error of their way, I would better do as the Savior says, "Go not after them, nor follow them." Luke 17: 23, or 2 John 10: 11. "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed. For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds." To say Amen to anything that is not Scriptural, either by word or action, we are partakers of their works and in the judgment we may be held measurably accountable for encouraging error. They will claim they have cast out devils, and done many wonderful works, yet the Savior will say, "Depart; I never knew you."

Shall we make ourselves guilty by silent worship with them? God forbid! The matter is too important. Eternal consequences hang upon this subject.

We are aware that this style of treating the subject is not gratifying to the itching ear, for we do not follow cunningly-devised fables, when we want to preach Christ and him crucified. The days of untempered mortar are past; the trumpet should not give an uncertain sound. It is important that the Gospel light is taken from under the bushel. We should not cry, "Peace, peace," where there is no peace. The man without the wedding garment got into the guest chamber, but he felt worse after he was cast out than before he entered. Only those who do their Heavenly Father's will, will remain there.

Booth, Kans.

"THE light in some faces is like a benediction of peace. Nothing but the purest piety makes it to glow there; it blesses you as by a holy influence; it tells of devotion never failing, of untroubled faith, of perfect hope, of undivided love."

TWO RECEIVED BY BAPTISM.—Since the meetings, held by Bro. Geo. L. Studebaker at the White Branch house, in the Nettle Creek church, Ind., two more have been received by baptism.—Abraham Bowman, Feb. 20.

TWO ACCESSIONS.—The church at Webber, Jewell Co., Kans., was made to rejoice recently, when two dear souls accepted Christ in baptism. Two members of the Old Order brethren desire to be received into the church again.—S. L. Meyers, Feb. 16.

ONE BAPTIZED.—Bro. John B. Miller, of New Paris, Pa., paid Virginia a flying visit recently. While here he preached at the Valley meeting-house, on the regular day, to the satisfaction of all. In the evening of the same day he preached in the school-house near Manassas. After services one young sister presented herself for baptism, which was attended to the next day. We much appreciate the visits from our brethren. Come and help us. There is a great work to do here in the South.—Abraham Conner, Manassas, Va.

TWO RECEIVED BY BAPTISM.—We are having good meetings at the Grundy County church. Bro. G. W. Cripe, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., came to us Jan. 31, and has labored hard. Two were baptized Feb. 15, and there are still others near the kingdom. Meetings are still being continued. Feb. 14, Bro. William H. Eisenbise, of Mt. Carroll, Ill., came to us. He commenced meetings at Grundy Center, Feb. 16th. Our prayer is that the Lord may pour out his Spirit upon his Word and give our brother power faithfully to preach his Word to the people, and that sinners may be brought to Christ, is my prayer!—C. M. Garner, Feb. 17.

STIRRING MEETINGS.—Bro. Frank McCune, of Dallas Center, just closed a week's meetings at the Coon River meeting-house. Though there were no additions at present, the preached Word had a telling effect on both saint and sinner. Notwithstanding the muddy roads, the interest and attendance increased until our large house was well filled with silent, eager listeners. God bless and reward our dear brother! This week he goes to the Irish Grove church, about thirty miles south of Des Moines, while the writer will labor in Carroll and Shelby Counties. Bro. M. Deardorff is now laboring in Dallas County. "There is something for each one of us to do."—J. D. Haughtelin, Panora, Iowa, Feb. 17.

TWELVE APPLICANTS FOR BAPTISM.—Our series of meetings at the Fairview church, George's Creek congregation, Fayette County, Pa., conducted by Bro. George W. Lowry, of Somerset County, Pa., closed Feb. 1, with twelve applicants for baptism. Bro. Lowry handles the two-edged Gospel Sword with precision and effect. Some were made to feel the goodness of God and his loving-kindness. The Brethren were made to rejoice and praise his holy name. The church felt the reviving influence of the Holy Spirit, and joined in the service in good earnest, and it is hoped that the good work will still go on and prosper. How beautiful it is, to behold man,—the image and likeness of his Creator,—follow Christ, in baptism! There is no act of man so noble, so grand!—John C. Johnson.

PLEASANT COUNCIL. The quarterly council in the Loramie church, Ohio, occurred Feb. 14. It was a pleasant occasion to all. There was but little business before the meeting, and all was adjusted in a satisfactory way. The missionary cause was not forgotten. Our plan for raising the funds for that work is arranged in a systematic manner. We have the names of all the members in a book, and opposite to each name we put the amount they wish to pay quarterly. In that way all give something, and give it regularly.—Jonathan Hoover, Feb. 16.

QUARTERLY COUNCIL.—Last Saturday the members of the Bear Creek church, Ill., met in regular quarterly council. We had quite a number of visitors from the Pleasant Hill church. One member was received by letter. Two letters were granted to members going into other fields of labor. Elder M. J. McClure moves with his family into the Oakley church. God help him that he may be successful in his new field of labor! Our little band is now without a preacher, though we retain Bro. McClure for our elder. He will preach for us once a month. We desire an interest in the prayers of God's children.—S. E. Carl, Feb. 17.

TWENTY-TWO ACCESSIONS.—Yesterday, at 2 P. M., we closed our series of meetings, which commenced Jan. 27. Bro. I. J. Rosenberger preached thirty-four soul-inspiring sermons, which much encouraged the saints on their way heavenward, and warned sinners to shun the ruinous results of sin. Time after time the waters were troubled, until twenty-two precious souls were gathered into the fold of Christ, to walk in newness of life with the people of God. Bro. Isaac made many friends while among us. May the Lord crown his labors with success! Last Sunday our large house was crowded, and not all could be seated.—J. M. Replogle, Mexico, Ind., Feb. 17.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—Bro. J. B. Light came to Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Feb. 5, and preached in the United Brethren church at Rock Run, until Feb. 16. The weather was inclement and the roads bad, consequently the attendance was not as large, as it would have been otherwise. We had a good meeting and good impressions were made on the minds of the people. Some were out to meeting that had not attended for years. The United Brethren have no meetings in their house at present. They gave us the privilege of using the church whenever we desire to have it. Any one, passing through Upper Sandusky, that can give us a few meetings, will be gladly received and will be met by notifying us.—Alverty Buxton, Feb. 19.

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, County and State. Be brief. Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Wayside Notes.

ACCORDING to previous arrangement, I met Feb. 7, with the members of the Novelty congregation, in the Northern District of Missouri, at the house of Bro. Samuel White, in Monroe County, Mo. Here I met Bro. C. Lapp who has the oversight of this congregation; also his co-laborer C. Steffen. The business of the meeting passed off pleasantly, and as the Brethren in Monroe County are isolated about thirty-five or forty miles from the other members, we, by unanimous consent, organized them. This little band is called the Monroe congregation. They selected Bro. D. D. Sell for their housekeeper. Bro. A. Hutchison and Jacob Witmore have preached for them, and have worked up a good interest. While with them, I held six meetings with good interest.

There are ten members living here. We visited most of them. We found sister Royer, companion of Bro. Jesse Royer, sick, but convalescent, and hope she will continue to improve. Brother and sister Royer will present their letter to the church, as soon as her health will admit of it. As far as I know, they have three deacons but no minister in this church. Here is a good opportunity for some good brother to locate. Land is cheap, considering the quality, ranging in price from $15 to $30 per acre. Prairie land, timber, coal, and mineral water may be had here in abundance. For further information address Samuel White, Madison, Mo. S. B. SHIRKY.

The Lincoln Mission.

BECAUSE of immature plans for the furtherance of the city mission work, we have refrained from sending reports for a few months. Sept. 6, 1890, the Lincoln church met in special council, with our elder, Bro. B. F. Flory, of Nebraska, present. Several elders and ministers from the vicinity, as well as from other parts of the State, were also present.

The object of the meeting was to consider the best method for city work, also the propriety of purchasing a lot and building a house unto the Lord.

After considerable reasoning together, and receiving advice and words of encouragement from our dear brethren from abroad, we all decided to push the work, as best we could. As to the propriety of building, the voice was nearly unanimous, favoring building, on condition that the means could be raised. Sufficient encouragement was given, respecting the raising of funds, so that the church appointed the writer as solicitor for the work.

On account of arranging to move, the work of solicitation was considerably delayed. At the earliest convenience we solicited the Lincoln church and all such adjoining churches where we felt wisdom and prudence would dictate, and where the failure of crops would not interfere. We experienced that the raising of such funds in Nebraska, this year, was slow work, and required considerable traveling, yet, in view of the failure of crops, and that aid is being given to various parts of the State, we feel that the work of solicitation was well supported indeed. In behalf of the Lincoln church I hereby feel to extend hearty thanks to all who have donated towards an object so worthy as the the city mission work.

We feel to call special attention to this thought, since the purchasing of a lot, or lots, in our cities is expensive, whether in Chicago, Lincoln, or elsewhere, and building houses of worship thereon, all of which requires means, that the primary object of such investments is not for the benefit of members of the church as they already stand in those cities, but as a great means towards the ingathering of the thousands who are yet without.

Thus considered, should not every brother and sister feel like sharing a part of these burdens? Dear brethren and sisters, should we not awaken to a greater sense of our duty, and a greater realization of the fact that the Gospel can not be carried forth extensively, and houses be built, without much sacrifice of self and means?

Our subscription list promises us $700, to which the General Church Erection Board adds $200 as a donation, for which we are very thankful.

After finding our financial strength, the church has decided to work accordingly and not incur debt.

From several causes our efforts in purchasing a lot have been unavoidably protracted. We expect to complete our purchase about Feb. 24. The cost of the lot will be $575. The church decides to prepare basement story, 32 by 40 in size, with temporary roof, for present purposes, and build further in the future. This plan is followed by other churches in the City.

Bro. W. A. Gish, and wife, of Roanoke, Ill., encouraged us much by being with us Dec. 23. Both seemed filled with a desire for mission work in the West, — in the city as well as the country. After giving a substantial evidence of their appreciation of the work by a $15.50 donation, they took their leave.

The work here would bear many more such substantial visitors, but if you can not bring silver and gold, come with a large heart of love.

Agreeably surprised were we all, when our dear editor, Bro. D. L. Miller, came to us Jan. 22, on his mission West, to the poor. He spoke to us one evening from 1 Cor. 2: 12. Brethren from adjoining churches were also present. We contemplate holding protracted meetings as soon as our basement room is prepared.

We call the special attention of the ministry of Nebraska to this point, and heartily solicit their presence and help. All who may be traveling through, will please stop with us and do us good. We ask the kind remembrance of all the dear brethren and sisters at the Throne of Grace, in behalf of our needs here, against the powers of sin. May the Lord bless us all in Jesus' name!

Starving.

What, the Brethren in Wisconsin starving? Yes, we are starving for the Bread of Life. We have had no spiritual food since last fall, when brethren D. M. Miller and H. C. Baker came here and preached about two weeks.

Brethren, you that have church privileges, think of the isolated ones! Think what will become of our children, if we are left long in such a condition! May God speed the day when the Gospel may be preached oftener to the isolated brethren. Remember us in your prayers!

From Glendora, Cal.

Bro. S. G. Lehmer, of McPherson, Kans., commenced a series of meetings at this place, Jan. 25, and closed Feb. 8. There were seventeen discourses preached,—fourteen by Bro. Lehmer, two by Bro. John W. Metzger, of Indiana, and one by Bro. P. S. Myers, of Illinois. The attendance was reasonably good and the attention paid to the Word preached was excellent. The members were built up and their hearts were made glad to see so many impressed by the power of the Gospel. Six dear souls made that noble confession before men, which causes angels in heaven and God's children on earth to rejoice, but there were a few, whose hearts were touched, that concluded to wait for a more convenient season. Others, like Korah and his followers thought that we demand too much, and that the people are holy without strict obedience to the truth as it is in Jesus. May they see the evil of their way, before their life of probation closes!

In conclusion I will say to the dear brethren and sisters of Martin Co., Ind., that notwithstanding being out here, on the "border land," I have again been permitted the privilege of hearing our dear old brother, John Metzger and his son, John W., deal out the precious Word of Life. When I left the home of my youth, the dearest spot on earth to us all, I never expected to meet these brethren until in the "great beyond," but God, in his good providence, has permitted us to meet again, and our meeting and associations together have been pleasant. I would say, dear isolated ones, "Be faithful and true to the Giver of all good, and I shall try by the grace of God, to meet you in that better land!"

D. A. Norcross.

From Loudonville, Ohio.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 11, Bro. W. Dessenberg, of Ashland, Ohio, began a series of meetings for us in the Honey Creek church-house. A deep interest was taken in the meetings, and although there were no additions to the church, we feel that they were as bread cast upon the waters, that shall be gathered many days hence. These meetings were closed Jan. 26, and all felt that a good work had been done, as Bro. Dessenberg gave good instruction, and tried to impress upon our minds the importance of living up to the Word of God. The meetings were held both forenoon and evening, with a good attendance.

At the close of these meetings Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Pennsylvania, commenced a series of meetings in our house at Plum Run. This church-house, is about six miles from the Honey Creek house, mentioned above. These meetings lasted nearly three weeks, and, as a result, eight precious souls were added to our number. We think there were others almost persuaded. These meetings were held morning and evening with good attendance, considering the bad roads that we had. At times the roads were almost impassable. We, as a church, learned truths during our meetings, that will never be forgotten!

In Memoriam.

BRO. RICHARD E. BERKEYBILE was born near Johnstown, Cambria Co., Pa., 1833. He moved to Toledo, Ohio, in 1867, and remained in that vicinity till 1884. During that time he was ordained. Next he was called to take charge of the church in St. Louis. In the spring of 1887 he moved to Falls City, Nebr., and took charge of the church there, and so labored, and ruled, as to inspire confidence among all the members, and succeeded, under divine guidance, in building up a promising church. Within the last year it was found necessary to build a new church-house, of which he was the sole workman. Not long since it was dedicated.

A few weeks ago Bro. Berkeybile found it necessary to go to St. Louis for medical treatment, for a sore on his limb. The injury was caused by a fall, years ago, and would not heal. The treatment proved too severe for him, and, on Feb. 12, 1891, he died in the presence of his companion, and a few acquaintances, in the Protestant Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. Feb. 15 his funeral was preached in the church which his hands had just completed, and his body was laid to rest in the cemetery near the old church, north of Falls City, Nebr. He leaves a companion, six brothers and four sisters to mourn his loss. The church, of which he was pastor, is left with but one minister, who is living quite a distance away, but, while our loss is great, we have every reason to believe that his gain is far greater. Services by the Brethren. J. S. MOHLER.

Deceased moved to Harrison township, Henry County, when but four years old. At that time there was not a white man's house within twenty miles of them on the south side of the Maumee River. His companions were the children of the red man. At his death he was the oldest pioneer in the County. He was sick eleven days. His suffering was great, but he sang and praised God. His life was worthy of imitation.

OVERHEESE.—In the Bango church, St. Joseph Co., Ind., at Osceola, Feb. —, 1891 sister Charlotta Overheese, aged 78 years, 3 months and 28 days.

We feel like sympathizing with those mourning ones in their loss, and ask them to consider that Christ did so much for them, and is pleading for them to-day. May they accept the kind invitation, and come to him and find rest!
D. F. HOOVER.

EBY. In the Springfield congregation, Noble Co., Ind., Feb. 6, 1891, Bro. Cornelius Eby, aged 57 years, 7 months and 3 days.

The subject of this notice was afflicted for sometime with heart disease and dropsical affection, and died almost instantly, while sitting in his arm chair, without as much as raising a hand. He was born in Wayne County, Ohio, July 3, 1833, was married to Susan Huff, Aug 26, 1860, united with the Brethren church in 1862, was elected deacon in 1867. He was the father of fourteen children, five of whom preceded him to the spirit world. Six of those yet living are members of the church. Funeral services were conducted by Eld. C. Weaver and Bro. John Crume. Bro. Eby was a devoted member of the church, and we feel assured that he rests from his labors and his works do follow him.
I. N. SHANOWER.

KELLER. In the Oak Hill church, Shenandoah Co., Va., Dec. 12, 1890, sister Eliza Ann Keller, aged 62 years, 5 months and 14 days.

Deceased was sorely afflicted for some months, but seemed to be resigned to her fate. Some weeks before her death she called for the elders and was anointed. She will not only be missed in the family, but in the church and neighborhood, for she was ever ready to lend a helping hand wherever needed. She leaves five children to mourn their loss, which we hope is her great gain. Funeral services by the writer from Rev. 14: 13.

BURK. In the same church, County and State, Dec 14, 1890, Bro. Johnson Tomson Burk, aged 72 years and 3 days.

Bro. Burk was a member of the church for about twenty years, and served the church as deacon for about ten years. He was a man of few words, yet he preached wherever he was, by his chaste walk and conduct. He was the same in the church, at home, and abroad. He leaves a wife, four daughters and three sons to mourn his loss, but not to mourn as those who have no hope. Funeral services from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7 and 8.

She moved to Harrison Co., Iowa in 1873, to Adel, Iowa, in November 1887, was baptized May 13, 1889, and lived a consistent Christian life until death. The husband remains to mourn his loss which, we hope, is her eternal gain. T. J. BEAVER.

BLOUGH.—At her home, near Garrison, Iowa, Feb. 11, 1891, of heart and lung trouble, sister Mary, wife of Samuel A. Blough, aged 26 years, 1 month and 17 days.

She leaves a husband and one son, father, mother, one grandmother, six sisters, two brothers, and many other relatives and friends, who highly esteemed her.

Her funeral services were conducted by Bro. Stephen Johnson from Rev. 14: 13 to many sympathizing friends. She has gone to be with Jesus, and may we all make the necessary preparation to meet her where parting is not known. May the many dear relatives be consoled to know that she is now among the number that are called blessed, and enjoying the sweet and happy rest that none but Jesus can give!
LIZZIE JOHNSON.

DENLINGER. — In the Hickory Grove church, Miami County, Ohio, of typhoid fever, Oct. 22, 1890, Bro. Jacob Denlinger, aged 48 years, 6 months and 28 days.

Deceased was a faithful deacon. Funeral occasion was improved by brethren Jesse Stutsman and Jacob Garver to a large concourse of sympathizing relatives and friends. He leaves a wife and two daughters, one of whom is sorely afflicted, to mourn his death. JACOB COPPOCK.

BRUMBAUGH.—In the East Nimishillen church, Stark Co., Ohio, Feb. 12, 1891, sister Abigail, wife of Andrew Brumbaugh, and daughter of Nicholas and Eve Pontious, aged 62 years, 7 months and 2 days.

Mother Brumbaugh died of dropsy of the heart, from which she had suffered for a number of years, but she bore it all with Christian fortitude.

In the last days of her sickness she was visited by her only sister, who resides in the State of Indiana, and whom she had not seen for eighteen years. This, at first, seemed to be consoling to her, but her chief consolation was in her Savior in whom she had implicit confidence. She united with the church twenty years ago, and was a consistent member until death. While health permitted, her seat was seldom vacant at church. At her request a Communion was held at her home Dec. 13, in which she and a number of brethren and sisters participated. She also requested to be anointed with oil in the name of the Lord, which was complied with. She leaves a kind husband, three daughters, one son, ten grandchildren, three brothers and one sister to mourn their loss. But what is our loss, is her gain. Funeral discourse by Bro. I. D. Parker, assisted by Bro. C. Kinsley, from Philpp. 1: 21. C. MILLER.

Doctor Koch's Discovery.

Dr. Koch's great remedy seems to prove efficacious in those cases where the patient has contracted consumption in low lying countries,—almost all the level European districts where the disease is traceable to purely climatic conditions, the moist atmosphere being a fine breeding region for the microbe. But in the high and dry altitude traversed by the Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route, consumption not only can not exist but is surely curable in its early stages. And this is testified to by thousands who have regained health and strength in the life-giving air of the Mountains. 7t8

That Brilliant American.

Samuel Bowles, the famous editor of the Springfield Republican, said, in recording his impressions of the Puget Sound Country:

"Up here, above the latitude of Quebec and Montreal, we basked in the smile of roses that are even denied to us in New England. Here, within the circle of the softening sea, reigns a year that knows no zero cold, and rarely freezes water or snow; that winters the fuchsias and the most delicate roses, English ivies and other tender plants, and summers them with rioting luxuriance; that grows the apple and the pear and the small fruits to perfection."

The Puget Sound Country is a wonderful agricultural country awaiting development. There is nothing open to the home seeker to compare with it and it is the future goal of the great army of home seekers. In healthfulness it is wonderful and in productiveness unsurpassed. Thousands last year journeyed to this charmed region over the Union Pacific, the original overland route, and thousands more will go this year. 7t8

Europe and Bible Lands.

BY D. L. MILLER.

A new edition, THE TENTH, of this excellent book of travels has just been issued. The extensive sale of the work gives abundant proof of its great popularity. It was thought, at first, that one or two editions would supply the demand, but already ten editions have been issued and yet the book finds a ready sale.

Thousands of copies have been sold outside of our church, and many strong testimonials have been recieved from those who have read the book. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia. Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. Joppa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner. Plain of Sharon. Lepers and Leprosy. Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem. Place of Crucifixion. Mount Moriah. Solomon's Temple. Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives. The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan. Bethel. The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee. Capernaum. Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, white paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1 50 per copy, cloth, or $2 00 for full leather binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

TESTIMONIALS.

We have space here only for extracts from a very few of the kind letters received by the author.

A copy of Bro. D. L. Miller's work on Bible Lands is before me. I like it very much. It contains much spiritual food for the Christian as well as many useful historical facts.—Eld. Enoch Eby.

It is an interesting book and should be in every family, and read by every young man and woman, so that they may know how the people live in Europe and the East. I would not take three times what the book cost me and do without it.—Eld. John Knisley.

I have read Europe and Bible Lands, and I am ready to confess that it gave me more satisfaction than I anticipated. I am especially pleased that the history you give of the Bible lands corresponds in its arrangements so well with the Bible. Since reading your book, I think I can almost see the different cities, mountains, rivers, scenery, with the valley and the river of Jordan. Eld. John Forney.

Your book brought back to me many pleasant recollections of countries I saw long ago, and which you describe so vividly and truthfully. You have done a good work in publishing a book which contains so much interesting and valuable matter, especially for our young readers, giving the present aspect of many countries and the present condition of many interesting questions. Hon. R. R. Hitt.

Having given considerable time to the study of sacred history and antiquities, I was especially interested in that portion of the work devoted to the description of Bible Lands, and can truly say that I have obtained from it much information that I have not been able to obtain heretofore, although I have perused volumes. The author has been careful to combine the past and present history of those lands, the better showing the fulfillment of prophecy, which makes it doubly interesting to the Bible student. And then, the cheerful, spicy manner of narration makes it of incalculable worth.—M. H. Robinson, Sherwood, Ohio.

I received your book of travels in the Holy Land, and have finished reading it. I consider it an excellent work, not only for our people, but all who have an interest in the Holy Land and a desire for Bible knowledge. It gives, in a plain, clear style, much information regarding the country, towns, mountains, rivers and seas made sacred by the footprints of our Savior. Another thing which makes your book valuable is the religious character given to all your travels even outside of Palestine. I would be glad if all our reading matter had such religious character underlying it; how safe and profitable it would be for the Church, our children, and the world to read!—Eld. R. H. Miller.

I admire your book very much, and while it has cost you much work and great anxiety, it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to others long after you and your wife have gone to the Paradise above. I consider the book a credit to you and the Church. When you left us for your trip, I knew you would make a great effort to put your thoughts in a readable shape, and do your utmost to describe everything of interest. In that respect you have succeeded far beyond my expectation, and now instead of reading your work for pleasure, I consult it for solid and reliable information. I hope the book will have a large sale, for it deserves it, and ought to be in every family, especially in the Brotherhood.—Eld. J. H. Moore.

Mr. Miller has been careful in collecting his facts, and conscientious in describing what he has seen. He has not sacrificed truth to mere picturesque effect. It is this very quality of simplicity and truth that makes the book interesting. After one has been satiated with the common type of the book or letter of travel, which aims at describing the writer's fancies or saying something fine, but which seldom descends to describing things as they are, it is really refreshing to read this straight-forward and faithful narrative. More than one half of the book is occupied with Bible lands. There are many books on the Holy Land, and this work will make no pretensions to supersede them; but it will find its way into many homes where the larger works have not appeared. By reason of its simplicity of style, it is well adapted to younger readers, and it will doubtless stimulate in many young minds a greater interest for Bible study.—A. W. Burnett, Strasburg, Germany.

Bro. D. Emmert, of Hagerstown, Md., has again shown his smiling face among us. He gave us a short talk in prayer-meeting. Always welcome!

Bro. Henry Brumbaugh, of James Creek, Pa., has disposed of his farm near the church-house and has purchased a home near Chambersburg, Pa., where he intends to locate April 1.

Those wishing to purchase Bibles should send for our new catalogue, giving full descriptions, with prices to suit all. The Bibles we sell are made for service and will always give good satisfaction. Catalogue sent free of charge.

The Fairview church, Pa., had the services of Bro. Spencer Beaver during a short series of meetings which, we are told, were well attended and interesting. This congregation is under the charge of Eld. J. W. Brumbaugh, of Clover Creek, who is still unwell and confined to the house.

My brother, are you able to tell the world just why Joshua asked the Lord to have the sun stand still, until he had gained his victory? If you are, you need not tell it, because if you do, ten thousand will rise up and contradict you. There are a great many problems that the people don't want solved. It would rob them of their mission. These very abstruse questions don't trouble us. All that is necessary on our part is to believe that with God all things are possible. If we can do this, we are willing to let him do things in his own way.

Some one asks for the origin of the River Brethren. We have examined several histories on religious denominations, but have found nothing that is satisfactory. Who can give the desired information?

If our farmers, instead of attending Grange and Alliance meetings, would devote the time thus spent, in reading some good agricultural paper or book and practice more real good farming, we believe that their exchequer would make a better showing at the close of the year, and there would be less cause for complaining than there now is. For people to try to legislate money into their pockets is of doubtful propriety.

Just now there seems to be a lull in church work, and as the spring opens the series of meetings season will largely close. Is this as it should be? It can not well be otherwise under our present system. Many of our ministers are farmers, and dependent on what they thus make. If they are to be successful farmers, they must attend to it in the season—make hay when the sun shines. This seems necessary, even if their church work must suffer. Surely, this is not as it should be, and somebody is responsible. Who is it? Let every one who is interested in the salvation of souls, work out a solution for this problem. We are all interested.

The Lord said to Satan, "Hast thou considered my servant Job?" Satan had been out on an exploring expedition, and was prepared to answer this question as he, no doubt, saw and knew more about Job than he did about any man then living. Job was to Satan what Mordecai was to Haman. And he was only too glad for the opportunity that was then afforded him. God himself had said that there was none like him in the earth, and could he turn his heart from the Lord, he would have a victory over the world. Satan always strikes hardest for the best. The indifferent and the outbroken sinner he counts his own without a struggle. Reader, are you one of the kind that gives Satan no trouble? If you are, the time will soon come when he will give you trouble, and that, too, when it will be too late to get away from it. Job was not of those whom Satan had no need of watching, hence the question, "Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth?"

A NINETEEN DAYS' FAST.

Fasting, as a means to grace and favor, we may obtain from God, we fear is losing some of its significance and power, and is tending towards some of the now obsolete practices of Christian people. And while this seems to be so, on the part of the many, there are a few who persist in running in the other extreme and fast unwisely, and thus abuse that which was most beneficently intended for our good.

There are different kinds of fasting, and some, of course, are not of the Lord's appointment. The mere abstinence from daily food does not necessarily constitute an acceptable fast, and therefore can not be considered as a means of grace. It is the motive that leads to a fasting that determines its character. The motive or design may be that of money, reputation, physical health, or the health of the soul. In fasting these ends should be discriminated, and those who fast should do it understandingly. There is no spiritual virtue in fasting, unless done intelligently and with proper motives.

A few weeks ago there was quite a sensation produced by a man by the name of Rupp, of Bareville, Lancaster Co., Pa., who is said to be a member of the Conestoga Brethren church. Reports of it are heralded, through the daily and weekly papers, all over the United States. The cause of the fast seems to have been a trouble in the church named, the character of which is not stated, neither does it say that he was a party to the trouble, but being a leading member, the difficulty so preyed on his mind, that he conceived the idea of fasting, that the Lord might reveal to him a way of adjusting the trouble. This, in a modified sense, is a commendable way of procedure. But from the narrative, as given, it seems that this man went at it with the intention of forcing from God a revelation, as it is said that he commenced the fast by going to bed with the avowed purpose of remaining there until he would get the desired revelation. He is said to have continued the fast for nineteen days, taking nothing but water all this time. The account of this strange affair closes by saying that "the appearances now are, that he has succeeded in his self-imposed mission."

We are certainly glad to learn that the difficulty has been adjusted, and that the fast has been broken. But the whole affair reminds us of a man in our own County, who became somewhat stirred on the subject of feet-washing, and, to have the matter settled for all time, as far as he was concerned, he went to fasting and prayer, and then asked God to tell him whether or not it was necessary for Christian people to wash feet as a church ordinance, and the result of it was, the Lord said, "No."

Now, we think that if this man, after fasting and prayer, had read the thirteenth chapter of John, and then done what the Lord said he ought to do, he would not have needed a new revelation, and we are inclined to believe the same about settling church troubles. A sincere compliance with Matthew 18 is the panacea for nine-tenths of all the church troubles that we have. We need no more revelations, but prayer and fasting may be needful, in many cases, to make us willing to do that which the Lord has already revealed, and which is all-sufficient to meet every Christian need.

Our brethren, as well as others, should guard against extremes, or those things which have a show of zeal without knowledge.

Michael Zug 1892

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

FOLLOWING JESUS.

Bearing the fruit of the Spirit,
Gentleness, meekness and love,
Thus we are following Jesus
Up to the mansions above.

Casting out evil passions,
Envying, hatred and strife,
Walking with Jesus in spirit,
Pure in our ev'ry day life.

Helping to bear other's burdens,
Heeding the law of our God;
Thus would he teach us to follow
Pathways our dear Savior trod.

Sending our prayers and our praises
Up to our Father on high;
Sowing the seed in our weakness,
Reaping will come by and by.

CHORUS.

Scattering blessings and sunshine
Cheering the sad and the lone
Then when the Master shall call us
Sure of a glad welcome home.

THE INDIAN WAR.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

ANOTHER page of our nation's history has been covered with military glory. The Sioux, Brule, and Dakota Indians of the North-west who have long been starved by the Government, robbed of their best lands, and swindled by rascally officials, attempted, in their desperation, to snatch courage from despair, and hope from superstition, for a last great stand against their oppressors.

The poor wretches encamp in a desert in the midst of a terrible winter. They are harangued by their chiefs. Their great leader and patriot, Sitting Bull, reminds them of innumerable and exasperating wrongs. They are ready to follow him to the death. Newspaper correspondents expatiate upon the treachery and cruelty of this Sitting Bull. Before the ink is dry the Government sends a gang of redskin assassins who murder him in cold blood, in his own house. They shoot down his little son, and the boy falls over the dead body of his father.

A few days afterward, while still smarting under the sting of this outrage, the Indians attempt to take revenge. They are all shot down by the soldiers, who, not satisfied with the slaughter of the men, continue the sport by murdering sixty helpless women and children.

This civilized and Christian nation carried on this war to the finish. The Indians are surrounded by the humane soldiery, and surrender. They will all be marched off to some waste land, belonging to the Government,—and perish.

Glorious war! By all means train up the youth of our land to the manly and Christian art! Imbue them with the ardor of the military spirit! Let the halo of martial glory so dazzle their eyes that they will not notice the blood, and torn limbs, and dead bodies, scattered beneath their feet! By all means blow all the brass horns, and beat all the drums, so that we can not hear the wail of widows and orphans! Deify the heroes of wholesale slaughter! Make demi-gods or demi-devils of the successful lieutenant generals! How like is the clamor of war to the hideous rites of Moloch, where drums were beaten to drown the shrieks of the infant, roasted alive in the red-hot brazen hands of the horrible idol. War is the Moloch of modern civilization.

So ends the last chapter of American war. Bancroft, the great historian, is dead. Who will be found to write this last chapter, so as to hide our country's shame?

THE CHRISTIAN HOME.

BY SOLOMON SCHUBERT.

A CHRISTIAN home is the most powerful influence on earth. No wonder the devil takes much pains to mar it, for if that be injured, then, like cracks in the ice, huge fissures and breaks are seen in every direction. How demons must rejoice, as they see the records of spoiled homes in our newspapers! They feel that drunkenness, impurity, ill-temper, pleasure, and want of godliness are preparing whole families for hell.

How God must rejoice at the conversion of such a man as the Philippian jailer! It is salvation, brought to the man and also to his house. His children know the change; his servants breathe a new atmosphere. There is one more fortress built up against sin. Will you help build a like defense? Fathers and mothers, be truly godly. Children, be obedient to Christ! Servants, serve as to God. Masters and mistresses, seek the special good of those under your roof. Let the home be both yours and Christ's,—yours to serve and Christ's to rule. Serve as though all depends on you. Call to your aid frugality, simplicity of living, freedom from debt, the beauty of cleanliness and of art, the polish of industry, the helpfulness of friendship, the stimulus of the best books, the brightness of art and music. But pray, as though all depended on you. Let the cross be your refuge from sin. Plead daily at the mercy seat of pardon. Make the Most High thy habitation.

Let children, treasures, income, hopes, expectations, all belong to God. "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain. It is vain for you that ye rise up early, and so late take your rest, and eat the bread of toil; for he so giveth unto his beloved sleep."

Alvada, Ohio.

HERE A LITTLE AND THERE A LITTLE.

BY J. S. FLORY.

THAT doctrine, which being believed, destroys sin in the heart and life of man, and produces right living, is no other than the Truth of God.

* * *

Is it anything strange that the true disciples of Jesus have to walk separate and apart from the worldly multitude, or that they are evil spoken of when we hear the blessed Savior saying to his disciples, "Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake?" Luke 6: 22.

It is evident the Jews believed in the immortality of the soul. In a book called Shemath Rabba, fol. 159, Rabbi Abbin says: The Lord said unto Moses, find me out ten righteous persons among the people, and I will not destroy the people. Then said Moses, "Behold here am I, Aaron, Eleazar, Ithamar, Phineas, Caleb and Joshua." But God said, "Here are but seven,—where are the other three?" When Moses knew not what to do, he said, "O Eternal God! do those live that are dead?" 'Yes," said God. "Then," saith Moses, "if those that are dead do live, remember Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

Among the redeemed in glory it is hardly supposable that there are the marks of old age on any. The angel that appeared to Mary at the sepulcher doubtless was at least 4,000 years old, yet he appeared as a young man.

It is a true saying, that a man should be dead before he is buried, but when we see persons yet alive to the dictates of the carnal mind after baptism, it looks as if such persons had been buried before they were dead,—really buried alive!

* * *

There is a world of truth in the saying of Christ to his disciples, "I will not leave you comfortless," John 14: 18, that is to say, "I will not leave you orphans." An orphan is one without parents, but he would have his children know that though he go away in person, he will come again to us. Blessed thought! He will be to the redeemed all that it is possible for a Heavenly Father to be. He personated the Father when here in the flesh. He will now represent him in all the fullness of the Spirit, because in him "dwelleth the fullness of the Godhead bodily."

* *

Damnation is always connected with the belief of falsehood, and salvation with the belief of truth. It is a part of the constitutional law of the moral universe, and there is no power in existence that will stop the consequences that result from following the antecedents. therefore the whole sum of Gospel sequence is wrapped up in the saying, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; he that believeth not (the truth) shall be damned." They are saved in accordance with the unalterable fiat of the eternal goodness of God, and damned from the absolute necessity, existing in the nature of things. God himself can not change this absolute law of preponderance, pro or con, in the elements of good or evil.

Number Two.

THE idea obtains in the mind of some that no material action is essential to salvation. With due respect to the opinion of others, I must beg leave to differ. Upon this hypothesis may we not conclude also, that no material action will hinder our salvation? An exposition of this theory will be given at the close of this essay.

It was material action that brought ruin, destruction and death upon the world. Had not Eve and Adam taken, from the serpent's hand, the forbidden fruit, they would not have fallen, nor been driven from the beautiful garden, nor from the presence of God. But here we are met with the thought that it was not in the material action, but the want of faith. It was because of a defective faith, supposing that God did not mean what he said, that he might yield to the temptation to eat the luscious fruit, and become as gods. Thus the material and the spiritual natures participated, and the fall was accomplished. Just so the spiritual and material natures must co-operate to counteract its effects and bring us back into the favor and friendship of God.

There are few in Bible lands who do not believe in God and in Christ; also John 14: 1. The Scriptures "testify of them," yet they will not come to him that they might have life." John 5: 40. "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Matt. 11: 28, 29.

"Must come and take his yoke." This is material action. "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel [the New Testament or Covenant, if you please] to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark 16: 15, 16. Having obeyed the form of doctrine from (not only in) the heart, being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness. They were buried in baptism. This is a co-operation of the spiritual and material natures, and as a result we have salvation. He that believeth not is condemned already, and baptism could be no advantage to him; being alone it is dead. It would not save him, for "whatsoever is not of faith it is sin." Nor would he have been saved by faith alone, it being dead also. The spiritual and the material natures must go together, in order to salvation. James 2: 22.

Coming to the apostolic age, on that grand and glorious occasion,—the advent of the Holy Ghost,—the day of Pentecost, when occurred the most overwhelming effusion of the Spirit, and thousands were converted to faith in Christ, and sensible still that they were in an unsaved condition,—they earnestly enquired, "Men and brethren what must we do?" Peter, answering, did not tell them to believe. This was not needed, seeing that the spiritual nature was actively exercised, but told them to "Repent and be baptized in the name (or the authority) of Jesus Christ for (unto) the remission of sins." Acts 2: 38.

This certainly implies material action. See also the conversion of the jailer. Acts 16: 30–34. When he and his family had all been baptized, coming into his house, they all rejoiced together, having the seal of the covenant, believing and being baptized. The spiritual and material natures both being active, they had the assurance that, so far their faith was made perfect, and the promise was theirs to enjoy.

Still another case. In the history of Saul's conversion, there was no question in the mind of Ananias, as to his faith, nor the genuineness of his repentance. All is right so far. "Why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Here the material action was called for to perfect his faith and to secure the promise of pardon. Acts 22: 16.

The Galatians, though pronounced to be the children of God by faith in Jesus Christ, in order to be in Christ had to be baptized into Christ. Gal. 3: 27. Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death, and being planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likeness of his resurrection. This makes it clear that this material action is necessary to becoming "dead in Christ." Rom. 6: 3–8.

We might multiply testimony, almost indefinitely, sustaining this phase of theology, but, leaving the first principles of the doctrine of Christ, we add to our faith virtue. This means courage, which, in many instances, involves material action. To virtue we are to add knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity." 2 Pet. 1: 5, 6, 7, 10, 15. All this requires material action, "And he that lacketh these things is blind and can not see afar off and hath forgotten that he has been purged from his old sins."

The apostles were always careful to put the Father's children in remembrance of these things. 2 Pet. 1: 12. They exhorted them to be followers of him, as he also is of Christ, and praised them for keeping the ordinances as he had delivered them to them. 1 Cor. 11: 1, 2. In this chapter Paul also calls attention to the ordinances instituted in the night of the betrayal, which we find in John 13. Feet-washing, the Lord's Supper and the holy communion,—all these require material action, and impress the mind with their essentiality, to have part with Christ.

Christ tells Peter, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." "No part with me." If not in the church here, certainly not in the church triumphant. After washing their feet and taking his seat, he explains. He had washed their feet, the supper was before them, the holy Communion in anticipation, and he says to them, "I have given you an example that you should do as I have done to you." The servant is no greater than his Lord. If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them. 1 Cor. 11: 17 34.

Here are ordinances to be kept, a memorial service of our Divine Savior, and we are happy in doing them, because we have the example and the command of our Master, and we know it has his approval, whereas, if we do them not, we hear him say, "Not all that say unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of Heaven, but they that do the will of my Father in Heaven."

All these things indicate material action, and point to the final results. As to the commandments of Jesus we may sum them up in a short chapter. The first and great commandment is to "love God with the soul, mind, and strength, and the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Upon these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." Matt. 22: 40. "This is the love of God that we keep his commandments." 1 John 5: 3. The Apostle John says, "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected; hereby know we that we know him." 1 John 2: 4, 5. Let this suffice to show the immutability of the law of love to God and man, and the responsibility resting upon those who lightly regard them. All of them involve the necessity of material action, and will have to meet the issues at the final day, when rewards and retributions will be meted out according to the record then presented. Judgment will be pronounced for doing or not doing certain things, there and then specified, and all of them material actions.

As to the number of commandments contained in the Scriptures, I have not counted them, but I am aware that there are extremes both ways which should be carefully guarded. I am satisfied, however, of this one thing, after co-operating with the church for nearly a half century, and searching the Scriptures on all questions of theology, and studying many of the different theories extant, especially to learn if there were any church in which I could serve God more acceptably, in accordance with the Inspired Volume, I have found none, and consequently can make no change in my church relations, nor can I approve of any proposition to "revolutionize our theology," because, if we were to make a start in that direction, for salvation by faith alone, and belittling the ordinances and commandments of the covenant, it would be a long step in the downward tendency towards the liberal ideas of modern Christianity, and only a question of time till we would arrive at a state of pusillanimous Antinomianism.

Of this doctrine I will give a specimen, as found in the history of John Wesley. In his day and age of the world he got into a controversy with a prominent theologian.

1. With regard to Christian salvation, which is through faith. This does imply liberty, so that one who is saved by faith is not obliged to do any of the commandments of God, as a duty to support which they have affirmed that there is no command in the New Testament but to believe, and that, to a believer, there is no commandment at all.

2. That it does imply liberty to conform to the world; and advise, not to use those ordinances which our church terms means of grace, till they have such faith as implies a clean heart. They advise them, till then, not to search the Scriptures, nor to pray and affirm, that to do these things is seeking salvation by works, and that, till these works are laid aside, no man can receive faith.

And, further, some of them say of good works in general, whether works of piety or of charity, that a believer is no more obliged to do these works of the law than a subject of the Queen of England is obliged to obey the laws of the King of France.

Wesley asks the question, "Do we not, while we deny ourselves more and more, die unto the world and live to God?" His opponent replies, we spurn all self-denial, we trample it under our feet, "being believers we do whatever we will, and nothing more. We ridicule all mortification, no purification precedes perfect love."

The sum and substance of this Antinomianism I insert as expressed by Wesley. Remember, I speak of Antinomian doctrine, abstracted from practice, good or bad, that is making void the law through faith and can not be more expressed by thought than in these words: To believe certainly that Christ suffered death for us. This is the true means to be saved at once. We want no more; for the history of Jesus coming into the world is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. The bare historical of this: There is but one duty which is that of believing. "From any demand of the law no man is obliged to go one step to give away one farthing, to eat or omit one morsel." What did our Lord do with the law? He abolished it. "Here, one may think, this is a fine sort of Christianity, where nothing good is commanded, and nothing bad is forbidden. But thus it is; so one ought to speak now. All commands and prohibitions are unfit for our times."

I do not mean to say that to change our theology from what it now is, from repentance, faith, love and obedience, with self-denial and non-conformity to the world, to the doctrine of salvation by faith alone, would, by the first leap, bring us into the current, but it would lead to such conclusions, sooner or later. I am satisfied that the church, as a body, will not thus change its theology, which has stood the criticisms of centuries, and withstood the storms of secession, fore and aft, from time to time, to grant this Antinomian spirit. I would advise those who are so inclined to read the GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 3, page 41, and think seriously upon it, whether they can not call a halt and be reconciled to the doctrine of the church. Its theology, I am sure, is the theology of the Bible, apart from some human imperfections in practice, which confront us every-where and in all associations.

Brethren who speak of the "nobleness of heart and sweetness of life" of those attired in gaudy apparel, and who utter severe reflections upon those of unfashionable dress, would be likely to see things differently, had they gone through the experience of myself and others in days that are past. In the period before the war, in our intercourse with all classes, we got along very sweetly and safely, but when the strife was upon us, and, true to our principles of a peaceful theology we were preaching against war, and working day and night to keep our brethren out of the army, by petitioning and securing exemption laws in the Northern as well as the Confederate States, then their sweetness changed, and we were interviewed by committees, our theology was denounced, we were cursed and threatened with imprisonment and death. Bro. Cline was murdered and it was said that I would be next, and was warned of the danger I was in, that there were a number of men (of course of that class) that were thirsting for my life. Such was now their nobleness of soul and sweetness of life, but, in the Providence of God their hands were tied, the lion's mouth was closed, and I was preserved and delivered from the chasm.

I knew the danger I was in, if in their power, but in the hands of those with a sensible hat, modest apparel, and no buttons on the back of my coat, I knew just as well that I was entirely safe, they believing in and having the spirit of Christ. We learn much by experience that faith alone will not discover.

HOMES FOR OUR AGED.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

DURING our visit to the Upper Fall Creek church, in December last, it was our privilege to visit the Old Folks' Home of Southern Indiana, located near Middletown. As they were not able to attend the meeting, we had a meeting at the Home, on Sunday at 3 P. M., for their benefit. The meeting seemed to be of special enjoyment to them. We found four aged sisters, and four orphans. All seemed to enjoy their home and felt that their home was a pleasant one. The Home is cared for by brother and sister McCarty,—persons well suited for that calling. The Home consists of 160 acres of land, well improved, but the enterprise is hindered by a lack of sufficient funds, hence they are not prepared to receive more inmates.

During our meetings at Mexico, we frequently visited the Old Folks' Home of Middle Indiana, located near the village of Mexico. Bro. Levi Miller owned a lot of fourteen acres, upon which he built a large dwelling, and, after fitting it up, he donated it to the Middle District of Indiana for a home for the aged and the orphans. The Home is supported by an endowment fund of seventeen thousand dollars, more or less, secured from the various churches of Middle Indiana. If I remember, there were, at the time of my visit, seventeen aged in the home. They seemed much to enjoy their hospitable home. I believe they were all in attendance at our meetings part of the time. Bro. Frank Fisher and his wife, sister Fisher, have charge of the home. They control the inmates with a great deal of system and regularity. I was pleased to notice the seeming concern and affection they manifes' for one another. Orphans they simply receive until they can secure permanent homes for them. Of these orphans, they have quite a number. These institutions of charity well deserve our growing attention. It seems to be a great pleasure for our aged Bro. Miller, to see the good his liberalities are doing, during his life. Then, to think of the good his means will be doing when he has gone to his long home, how pleasant!

Florida Notes.

—WE held our Love-feast last Saturday, Feb. 21st. The feast was a very pleasant one, and well attended. Better order I never saw. I believe all of our feasts at this place are enjoyable, as much so as any meetings I ever attended. We generally have about forty members at the table. I say table, for we have but one table, which we arrange in the west half of the house. It is in this shape:

The sisters sit on the inside of the table, while the brethren are on the outside, and next to the congregation. Where the membership is small, this is a very nice arrangement, especially during feet-washing, for the sisters have plenty of room all to themselves. They occupy chairs.

—The next day,—Sunday,—Bro. J. C. Lahman preached an excellent sermon, after which we took up our collection for the Mission Board. We make it a rule, always to take up a missionary collection at these feasts. Our members are so used to it, that they come prepared.

—In this congregation we never had any solicitors, but always collect our missionary funds in the manner mentioned above, at our feasts and on Thanksgiving. We never have any trouble or complaint about calling for money intended for a good cause. Some of our brethren lay aside for the Lord one-tenth of their net income, and seem to always have money in the Lord's treasury when called on for a good purpose. I know one member whose income can not exceed four dollars per week, and yet one-tenth of that is laid aside for the Lord. If all of our people would do this, what a power we would be for good!

—We have in the Brotherhood 40,000 members, whose net income will average $300 a year, aggregating $12,000,000. One-tenth of that for the Lord would mean $1,200,000, and yet I presume we would be none the worse off for it, for people who do that way generally prosper as well as others do. In fact, most of them better.

—Eight miles out in the woods from Keuka, is a fine old member of the Baptist church, who, for years, has been laying aside the Lord's tenth. That man last fall sold the oranges on his trees, perhaps six acres, for $1,700. He always gets along well.

—The blessing may come on the principle of giving one day out of every seven to the Lord. That means 52 days out of every year, or over 3,000 days for a man of 70, which, at $1.00 per day, and six per cent interest, would amount to over $10,000. And yet the man who gives this ten thousand dollar's worth of time to the Lord gets along just as well as the man who works on the Lord's day, and tries to make ten thousand dollars for himself. He never makes it, nor does the man who gives it miss it. He who can explain this kind of philosophy can, perhaps, tell us how it is that the man who gives the Lord $100.00 out of his $1,000.00 has just as much left as the man who gives the Lord nothing.

—We are having delightful weather. Orange trees are now in bloom, and everybody busy at their spring work. The members seem very cheerful, and we all have many good reasons for thanking God for what we are permitted to enjoy in this genial clime, with plenty of meetings and good Sunday-schools. J. H. MOORE.

Notes and Jottings.

ON the evening of Jan. 8, I met with the Brethren at the old Bachelor Run church, Ind.

This is one of the historic churches in our Brotherhood. In this church the Annual Meeting was held in 1858. Those present at the meeting well remember the danger incurred in going to the meeting, and the exposure while in attendance, occasioned by continued rain, mud and high water. Brethren have learned to guard well the facilities for our Annual Meeting, travel, lodging, board, etc.

It was here that the Quinter and Snider debate was held, which proved such an advantage to our cause. This church was affected more by the withdrawing Old Order element than any other church in the State. But they have not prospered,—have not now their original number.

Five years ago I held some meetings for this congregation, the immediate results of which were ninety-two additions. I was glad to still find a fair number of active workers in the good cause. It afforded me pleasure to renew my large and pleasant acquaintance. The "Farmers' Alliance" are extensively organized in that country. It was reported that they have a lodge in every school-house in the township. They meet once each week. This we soon found a hinderance to our work.

The temperance workers on a political line are active in that State. Some of our Brethren have associated with this line of temperance workers, until they have sustained some loss. Politics, when agitated, never fail to produce disastrous results to religion. The privilege accorded to brethren, simply to go and cast their vote, is as far as is safe.

There is a large body of faithful members in the Bachelor Run church. Brother Hiel Hamilton, their aged elder, was in attendance at the meetings. He is rather feeble in body, but in mind is remarkably vigorous. But few have served the church more faithfully. May the evening of his day be calm! The attendance at the meetings was large. As an immediate result, two were received during the meetings and two at the close.

On the evening of Jan. 27, I filled my appointment at the Mexico church, Ind. This is one of the largest and most prosperous churches in Indiana. They have four good houses of worship in different parts of the field, with seven in their ministerial force, a number of them of sufficient experience and ability to do good work as evangelists. It was in this church that their faithful elder, —Isaac Fisher,—died in the stand while exhorting the people to a faithful, holy life. His family are all in the church; the last child was received during our meetings. The weather, for the most part, was inclement and the roads unpleasant, yet the attendance was large. The members seemed to be ready and alive to the meetings. I closed on the evening of the 16th, with twenty-two additions.

My associations with the members of the Mexico church were pleasant and, I trust, will not soon be forgotten. I. J. ROSENBERGER.

From North Manchester, Ind.

THIS church is in peace and union and in a prospering condition under the care of Eld. R. H. Miller. The elder is just recovering from a severe attack of La Grippe, and is able to be out again.

We have preaching every Sunday at 10 A. M., and every alternate Sunday night at 7 P. M. The meetings are well attended, with good interest. This church numbers nearly, or quite, four hundred members. A large brick house of worship, 50 by 80 feet in size, with basement, is to be erected the coming spring. The stone, brick, etc., are already on the ground.

This will add much to the comfort and accommodation of the people, especially on love-feast occasions. The Sunday-school in town is doing efficient work, with Bro. Robert Metsker at the head as Superintendent. They have a full corps of officers and teachers. The school moves along without a jar. Much good, we trust, is being done, which will continue to produce its fruits many days hence. How brethren, and even ministers and elders, can throw their influence against such a work, is a question which we are not able to solve.

We meet in social worship every Thursday night in town. These meetings are fairly well attended, and we realize they are food for the soul. Social interests are being improved, and a Christian spirit is manifest. We have song service, prayer, reading of Scripture and commenting on the lesson subject. May God bless every effort put forth for the upbuilding of Zion!

Messages dropped by the Way.

AFTER some correspondence with Eld. J. D. Trostle, of the Abilene congregation and with Bro. Marshall Crumrine, of Junction City, Kans., I set out on Feb. 14, and arrived at the latter place that evening. I found that Bro. Crumrine had sent and paid for the MESSENGER, to be sent regularly to quite a number of citizens of that locality. He had also sent for a large package of tracts from the Brethren's Book and Tract Work, and distributed them over the City and vicinity. Then he advertised the meetings in two different papers and rented a large hall in the center of the town. Here we tried to hold forth the Word for seven consecutive nights, when a relapse of La Grippe laid hold on me, and I was forced to write to the Brethren of the Abilene church that I was scarcely able to return home, a distance of one hundred miles. But I boarded the train at noon of Feb. 21, passed over divisions of three different roads and reached home that night. Since that time I have been confined to the house.

Whatever law of health I may have violated and thus caused this sickness, I pray to be forgiven by the Lord and also by those who were thereby disappointed. The few meetings at Junction City and all pertaining to them, cost Bro. Crumrine about $25. He is very desirous that ministering brethren who contemplate passing through Junction City, stop off there. If they notify him of the fact, they will be met at the Depot by a brother whom they may recognize at sight.

I owe the few members and many new friends of that city many thanks for their untiring kindness toward me, while with them. There are many strong indications that our labors were not in vain in the Lord in Junction City. C. C. ROOT.

ON Saturday, Feb. 14, the Hurricane Creek church held her regular quarterly council. The weather was pleasant, the roads good, and the attendance excellent. What business came before the meeting was transacted in the spirit of union and love. Eld. Henry Liligh was present with us and gave us good and wholesome counsel and advice.

With all the love and harmony that prevailed, yet there was gloom and sorrow cast over the Father's children. It had been reported that one of our deacon brethren, who has also been our clerk, had manifested a disposition to walk and work with the loved ones no longer. In the morning, soon after the members had convened at the place of meeting, two brethren were sent to investigate the matter, and demand the book of records. It was found that the brother and sister in question had joined another church, in consequence of which they were expelled.

The church decided to organize a Sunday-school. Bro. Joseph Jones was chosen Superintendent, and the writer, Assistant.

RECENTLY I visited a few isolated members and many friends, in Washington County, Iowa. That arm of the church at one time had quite a number of members. They had preaching twice a month, but now they have no meetings at all. I found the MESSENGER in a few families, and was kindly received by all. If we would visit the outside world more, our influence would be greater for the Sunday-school cause, and the conversion of souls. Too many of our ministers remain inactively at home, while the world moves on. They might, to a good profit, evangelize isolated places near home and thus gladden the hearts of many. The laity, too, can be a great help to our ministering brethren, by supporting them in the work. If we have oil in our lamps, our lights will shine. Others will surely see our good works, and glorify our Father in heaven.

Such fruit manifests itself if we love God and keep his commandments, but, instead of all this, men are lovers of themselves more than lovers of God. Christianity is, in many places, conforming itself to the world. Let us awaken to our duties, pray to God for grace and the power of his Spirit, that we may be able to withstand the fiery darts of the enemy.

My brother, you that have a message to proclaim, the Lord can and will give you utterance if you will make yourself acquainted with his Word. Cast all your cares upon the Lord, but not your duties. Be a man of prayer! Search the Scriptures and make yourself acquainted with the Word of God. Then you will be able, under all circumstances, to fulfill the important duties of your office. Your preaching will redound to the honor and glory of God, and the salvation of souls. In all possible ways and by all Scriptural means you should seek to lead souls to Christ, and bring them from darkness unto light.

May God, in his mercy, help us all to become fruitful vines, to the honor and glory of God!

Eastern Notes on Western Interests.

I NOTICE in GOSPEL MESSENGER that I am credited with $10 for Western sufferers; this should be "by citizens of 'Folks of Creek' vicinity." I sent in the donation, but contributed but a small portion of it.

Now that the good work is started so systematically, let us have a statement from the West, occasionally, as to what is or may be wanted, so that we may respond accordingly.

I see, by the way contributions are coming in, that our people are not indifferent to the wants of their fellow-men, but, when their sufferings are properly placed before them, they generally respond according to their several abilities. This is right. Let us "grow in this grace," for "the merciful shall obtain mercy."

If those who have so far failed to heed the calls for help, could be made to see the sufferings, and hear the pleadings, and above all, if they could read the expressions of gratitude, and the blessings pronounced upon the donors, they, too, would want a "part in this matter."

After all, God is good, and rules in love, and these "light afflictions" may work out for many a "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

We are all, East and West, dependent upon God, and are under the highest obligations to him for what we eat, wear and enjoy in life, especially for the great gift of his Son, who has become for us the Bread of Life. May we all labor for that meat that endureth unto Eternal Life!

To Mary Bucher Brahm.

NUMBER TWO.

Dear Daughter:—

IN my first letter to you, I, in a short way, wrote about the beginning of the Christian life. In Heb. 6: 1-3 we read as follows: "Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit."

From this Scripture we learn that repentance, faith, baptism, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment are the "principles of the doctrine of Christ." Some translation has it "elementary principles," meaning the same as "first principles." See Heb. 5: 12. As there are first or elementary principles in education, so also in the Christian life. Now notice, the Scripture, above quoted, says, "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection."

The Christian life, then, is a progressive work. Every year, every month, every week, every day, every hour, yea, every minute should chronicle some advance in our new life in the books which will be opened. Rev. 20.

"He that believeth on me" as the Scripture says, "out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water," John 7: 38,—rivers of love, of peace, of joy, of righteousness, of mercy, of humility, etc. The farther a river flows, the larger it gets. To the shame of some it must be said they were the biggest when they were born,—like the wasp. "O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments, then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea." Is. 48: 18

The heavenly-born feels like the Syrophœnician woman, who, after Jesus had put her off by saying, "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs," readily answered, "Truth, Lord; yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from the Master's table." Matt. 15: 26, 27, or like the centurion, of whom the elders of the Jews said to Jesus, "He is worthy," but he himself said, "I am not worthy." Luke 7: 2-7 As long as one feels that way, he will cause no trouble to the church. Not the little children in a family cause the trouble and heart-aches, but the big ones.

"Go on!" O how little progress so many of us make! "For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God, and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat." Heb. 5: 12.

A Pleasant Visit to the Normal.

ON the morning of Jan. 12, accompanied by Bro. Swigart, I boarded the western-bound train for Huntingdon Pa. Here we were met by Bro. A. C. Wieand and sister Lizzie Delp, who kindly took us to the Brethren's Normal College, where we spent a few weeks very pleasantly in the study of the Bible.

The Bible Session was very interesting, to those attending, by the efforts of the teachers, brethren Swigart, J. B. and H. B. Brumbaugh.

Our members who have children to educate,—and educated they should be, both spiritually and intellectually,—should place them in a school like this one. The advantages are good, the building is beautifully located, well ventilated, and comfortably heated by steam. Good, substantial food is furnished, and the instruction, by the corps of whole-hearted professors, is thorough.

A Sunday-school is held each Lord's Day. A great many poor, neglected children are gathered in and cared for, temporally as well as spiritually. God bless the work, especially that of sisters Howe and Holsopple, who sacrifice precious time in finding and recovering those unfortunates.

There is also preaching and "Young People's Prayer-meeting" each Sunday. We left the place reluctantly, with the assurance that a well-regulated school does not impede the progress of the church. But here, as well as elsewhere, one needs the power of virtuous reading, a well-balanced mind, a good degree of determination and a spirit of Daniel. Then all will be well.

OUR quarterly council-meeting was held Feb. 14. The weather being pleasant the attendance was good. Much business came before the meeting but all passed off pleasantly, and a good spirit seemed to pervade.

After the business of the meeting we considered the propriety of building a church at Basic City. A committee was appointed to investigate the matter before futher arrangements are made. We also elected delegates to District and Annual Meetings. Brethren Samuel Huffman and Jacob Godhonour were elected as delegates to District Meeting, and one brother to Annual Meeting. At the quarterly council we re-organized our Sunday-school. We also considered the Western poor. All were advised to contribute as they thought best, and not to neglect the poor and needy of our home church and others. Charity should begin at home. We have many poor members in Virginia.

We held four series of meetings during 1890,—two in our home congregation. As a result eighteen united with the church by baptism. Six of those baptized belong to the Middle River district. We also held two meetings in Bell's Valley congregation. Bro. J. C. Garber, a deacon brother, was with us and did the singing, which added much to the interest of the meeting. Nine were added to the church by baptism and one reclaimed. Several aged persons expressed a desire to unite with the church, but thought best to wait until warm weather. We went back in June when one of the three and five others were baptized, making, in all, thirty-three, and one reclaimed, during the year. Give God the honor, and all the dear ones grace to hold out faithful to the end, is my prayer!

BRO. ISAAC BILLHEIMER commenced a series of meetings for us Jan. 10, and continued till the 22nd.

Bro. Billheimer is in good health, considering his age, but is almost blind. May the Lord be with him in the operation he contemplates having performed on his eyes, that sight may again be restored to him!

Bro. Henry Frantz commenced a series of meetings Feb. 4, and continued until Feb. 11, closing with a very good interest. The home brethren will continue the meetings over Sunday. While there were no accessions to the church, during our meetings, there was seed sown that, we think, will bring forth fruit in the near future. Our prayer is that God will give the increase in due season! All seemed to enjoy the meetings and the Word preached.

Feb. 11, Bro. Ira Fisher called for the elders of the church that he might comply with James 5: 14. Bro. Frantz and another brother attended to this request. Many tears were shed and many prayers ascended to the Lord in his behalf. After the administration of the solemn ordinance, Bro. Ira expressed himself as feeling better, and by his request, hymn No. 680 was sung. At this writing Bro. Ira seems to be better again.

We think the suggestion of Bro. J. Rife, D. Hoover and S. W. Teeter in behalf of the Western sufferers, is a good one. Let the local churches take the matter in hand and solicit for the needy in the West without calling an extra District Meeting at an extra expense. Let the local churches take what it would cost to represent at an extra meeting, and send it to the sufferers, and it will be better used, we think, and the fund increased the more. As Northern Illinois has taken the lead by organizing and appointing a committee that will act for all, it seems to me useless for other Districts to go to the expense of calling extra meetings. Let all the local churches act, and send what they can to the committee already at work, and thus secure the more for the sufferers! May God add his blessings to every effort put forth to the spreading of his Truth!

On the Way.

FEB. 5, I met with the Brethren in the Santa Fe church, at their South house, on the County line, between Miami and Howard Counties, Ind., to hold a series of meetings. Our meetings, at first, were well attended, with good interest, but this being a clay country, the frequent rains gave us bad roads, and soon our congregations decreased materially. The "Farmers' Alliance" was the leading topic, and it seems when anything of a political nature is introduced, religion, by some, is not much sought after. I do hope our Brethren will be wise enough to "keep themselves unspotted from the world" in this particular.

Feb. 23 I met with the Brethren in the Yellow

Creek District, Northern Indiana, in church council. The meeting passed off pleasantly. "How good it is when brethren dwell together in unity!" Brethren John Nusbaum and Hiram Roose were elected delegates to District Meeting.

On Sunday following, at their public meeting, we introduced the call for help in the drouth-stricken districts of the West. As many of our Brethren do not take the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and some outside friends did not have a knowledge of the great need for help in the West, I read from page 105 of GOSPEL MESSENGER, present volume, a few letters from some of the dear friends and brethren, especially Bro. J. E. Young's letter. After reading and giving a short talk, I saw many tears flow, and the sympathies of the whole congregation were aroused. Although the congregation was small, yet the brethren, sisters and friends had open hearts. The sum of $42.30 was donated. Some young men, outside of the church, gave $1.00. I see the Brethren are no respecters of persons, but give unto all the necessaries of life, regardless of their religious views, or whether they profess anything. I am truly glad that I belong to such a noble, free-hearted church. "If thine enemy hunger, feed him," is the language of Paul. How much more those who may be friends to our people and the doctrine of the Brethren! "Let your light so shine before men," is a pressing command. The Brethren do not make it shine to get the honor and applause of men, but only let it shine. God will abundantly bless all those who remember the needy!

Churches should not wait until the regular time of their council-meetings, to raise money for the Western sufferers, but at their public meetings call attention to this matter, and press the good work of giving, invite all to give. Many outside friends will gladly give, if they only have an opportunity. I frequently hear some remark, "How hard the times are!" I tell such I only wish I could take them West, and leave them there one month in the drouth-stricken district. I think that would cure them. Remember, the Israelites fell because of so much murmuring.

From Chandlersville, Cass Co., Ill.

WE left our home at Roanoke, Woodford Co., Feb. 17, and arrived at Chandlersville a few hours later, the same day, where we were met by an old friend, Decator Greenwood, who conveyed us about nine miles by wagon. The weather had turned quite cold, which was somewhat unpleasant. Upon arrival, we soon made our way to the place of meeting, where we met a respectable congregation, but only a few whom we had met in former years. Many with whom we were once acquainted, have gone to the spirit land. About twenty years ago we had here, in this County, a flourishing little church but, for the want of a settled, efficient minister, the church has been scattered. Much time, much labor, and, no doubt, many souls have been lost.

Now, Brethren, here we have another evidence of the importance of having ministers to send and locate in such places. Even yet there are about nine or ten scattered members, but they are almost as sheep without a shepherd. It is true, the Brethren from Sangamon County come occasionally, but a settled minister is much needed. Then, I think, the work might be revived and a church be again organized. Without help, matters will continue to drag until all interest dies out. How important it is that, as a church, we should call in all the help we have in our Brotherhood! In many places we have some able, good young brethren that should be put to work, so that these needy places might be supplied.

We need help badly to push our mission work in Arkansas, yet, so far, no help has been given. Thus the work must suffer, and, perhaps, go to naught, for want of help. I was in hopes of getting some help in some way, but thus far, all has failed. Who will be responsible? Why did God call ministers to the work? "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Query Answered.

Dear Bro. Forney:—

In answer to sister Lucinda Whitney's query in regard to 1 Tim. 5: 23, you said it meant just what it said, "A little wine for thy stomach's sake." How about the water? It says, "Drink no longer water." The New Version quotes it, "Be no longer a drinker of water." Could Timothy live and drink no water? Mark, it says, "Drink no longer water." Does that mean just what it says? Please answer through the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

B. F SNYDER

Degraff, Ohio

ANSWER.—I understand from Paul's language, that Timothy was so strictly temperate, that, for conscience' sake, he was a pure water drinker, and not given to wine at all, as an elder, bishop, or priest. As Timothy from a child knew the Scriptures, he well knew that the law of God forbade the priests to drink wine. See Lev. 10: 9; Ezek. 44: 21; 1 Tim. 3: 3; Titus 1: 7. Timothy abstained from the use of wine for conscience' sake; he would not even use it for his stomach's sake, as a medicine. Paul says he shall use a little for that, that he was no longer restricted to drink water only, but a little wine "for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities."

My Labor in Behalf of our Aged, Infirm and Orphans' Home in Kansas.

JAN. 30 I boarded the train for Herington Kans. Feb. 1 I attended services morning and evening in the Brethren's house, where they have an evergreen Sunday-school. On motion Bro. —— Talhelm was appointed solicitor.

Feb. 2 I went to the Abilene church. Here I attended six meetings, assisted by Bro. J. D. Trostle, who also kindly conveyed me from place to place, until we reached Abilene. From here Bro. Jontz conveyed me to Eld. Forney's, near the Chapman Creek church. From there I was taken by Bro. Samuel Haugh, fifteen miles west to Ottawa County, where there are ten or twelve members. I must say these members showed more readiness to help than I found at any place where I had been. They promised to furnish one room with bed, carpet, etc., besides contributing about $30 in cash. After preaching three sermons, Bro. G. Blunderfield took me to Solomon, where I boarded the train for Council Grove, to see some members. The next day I arrived at home and found all well except our youngest son, who was suffering with bronchitis. At this writing he is convalescent.

Throughout my trip I was kindly treated. Thanks to all and to the good Lord for his loving care!

JOHN SHERFY.

From Nocona, Texas.

THE Nocona church met in special council on Saturday, Feb. 14, at the house of Eld. Brubaker. Some of the business was of rather an unpleasant nature, yet everything passed off harmoniously, and, we hope and pray, to the benefit of all, to the glory of God, and the forwarding of his kingdom.

As the District Meeting of Southern Kansas (to which we belong), is drawing nigh, the business pertaining to that meeting was considered. On account of the distance and the limited means of the members, it was decided to represent by letter. On account of our isolated condition, and other causes set forth, we petition the District Meeting of Southern Kansas to apportion Texas, part of the Indian Territory (and Louisiana—at the discretion of the Mission Board), as a separate District. There are about one hundred and fifty members, ten speakers (four of whom are ordained elders) in the proposed District, not including Louisiana.

The Western sufferers were also remembered at our meeting, and our mites were given for their relief.

La Grippe is going the rounds in these parts now, and it seems as though very few will escape. The writer has been confined to the house for several days with it. Eld. Molsbee was taken down on Friday last with it, and was not able to attend the council, for which we felt sorry. We hope he, as well as others, may soon get well again.

This evening we meet at Eld. Brubaker's home to hold our first social meeting.

Bro. Jos. Brubaker, of Fairmount, Nebr., is expected here in a few days with his family, to try the genial climate of Texas. In all probability he will make it his future home. Everything around here has had the appearance of spring for several days; gardening has begun, and oats-sowing will be in order now.

Notes by the Way.

I BEGAN a series of meetings in the East Nimishillen church, Stark Co., Ohio, Feb. 7, and closed the 22nd, with nine accessions. The weather was disagreeable much of the time, yet the Christian zeal and interest was such that the attendance was remarkably good. Many thanks to the dear ones of adjoining congregations for their presence and encouraging words; also to the resident members for their tokens of love, and their noble efforts in the work of saving souls. Above all, may continued praise arise to our loving Savior, for the manifestations of his saving power.

A few clouds hang over this zealous band of workers, which, we hope, will ere long give way to bright sunshine, thus opening the way to still greater joy and success. I was sadly disappointed, when told at the depot that the last train for the day was gone, but, oh, how much sadder still if any, who have promised us to start for the heavenly home, should delay until the old ship moves out of the harbor and they hear the wailing cry, "Too late! Too late!"

Dear ones, will you not come soon? The Door of Mercy stands open to-day. To-morrow it may close against you forever! "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

A Sad Accident.

WHILE Bro. Samuel Frantz was working in the bottom of his well, trying to secure water for his dear family, the box, in which his hired man was lowering brick to him, to build the wall, gave away, and the contents, quite a number of bricks, dropped about twenty-two feet and struck him, breaking his back and three ribs, from which injury, the doctors say, he can not recover. O, how hard to see the dear wife,—a sister and her little ones,—gather around, with streaming eyes and sad hearts, feeling that in a few days more at the farthest, they must give up the dear husband and father! Bro. Frantz was anointed and feels resigned to his fate. Thank God for the religion of Jesus and hope it brings!

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and is devoted to the primitive Christian Gospel, taught in the New Testament and practiced by the apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It regards the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and contends that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins, and other precepts of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the necessary conditions of admission into the Household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, 15, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a mediator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and claims, and the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

OUR correspondence book has been well supplied with interesting items for some time. In fact, we have scarcely been able to find room for all that came, but by cutting down some items we have been able to keep the book empty. We are glad our brethren are keeping us so well supplied. The correspondence department is one of very great general interest to our readers.

"IF we make religion our business, God will make it our blessedness."

ONE baptized at the Hickory Grove church, Carroll Co., Ill., on the 1st inst.

GOOD meetings, with a number of accessions to the church, are reported from Waynesborough, Pa. Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh is doing the preaching.

A SERIES of meetings is now in progress in the Chapel at this place, and we are made to rejoice that sinners are turning to Christ. The meetings will continue during the week.

WE are sorry to learn that our dear Bro. J. C. Murray, of Nappanee, Ind., is not well. Under date of Feb. 26 he writes: "I am still quite unwell, and have a serious trouble in my head. I tried to hold a series of meetings at Yellow Creek church, Indiana, but had to give it up after a few evenings. We expect to begin a series of meetings here the evening of March 1. We expect Bro. Parker, of Ashland, Ohio, at some time during the following week. May the Lord bless his people every-where!"

BRO. GEO. W. CRIPE says: "I have just arrived home from a long siege in the field of about five months, and found Bro. Isaac Frantz here at work in a glorious revival. So far eleven precious souls have come out on the Lord's side and more to follow. I will report when the meetings close. LATER. — The glorious work still goes on at Cerro Gordo. Bro. Isaac Frantz, of Ohio, is preaching for us, and doing most excellent work. All are pleased that love the Truth. So far nineteen precious souls have given their hearts to God. To-night two noble young men came out. Rejoice with us! I will report again when the meetings close."

AMONG the more recent discoveries in Egypt, which will prove of great interest to all Bible students, is that of a tablet found near Luxor, close to the site where stood Thebes of the hundred gates. This tablet, made of clay and written upon while soft, and then burned in a kiln, like the tablets of Nineveh, contains an account of the doings of one named Chitbet. The writer goes on to tell, "of the great distress that had been caused by the Nile not overflowing its banks for seven years." The words are very distinct, and admit of no other interpretation. The reference to Joseph and the seven years of famine will at once suggest itself. Dr. Brugsch has critically examined the writing upon the stone, and concludes that it is perfectly genuine, and is the work of a priest who lived 400 years before the common era.

DR. SELAH MERRILL, of Andover, Mass., has been appointed United States Consul at Jerusalem. We had the pleasure of meeting and forming the acquaintance of Dr. Merrill, when we visited Palestine in 1884. He was then United States Consul, and we have never forgotten the kindness shown us during our stay in the Holy City. The President could not have made a more fitting selection for the place. Dr. Merrill is well-known as an author and archæologist. His books, and his researches and discoveries in Palestine have given him a world-wide reputation. Among other important discoveries made by him, was that of the foundation of one of the ancient walls of Jerusalem. We hope the doctor will be enabled, on his return to the East, to resume his labors in searching for the buried treasures of Bible knowledge. Evidences of the truth of God's Book are to be found on every hand in Palestine, and all who love the Bible are specially interested in their discovery.

THIS department has its limitations, and it should be distinctly understood that it is not intended to embrace within these limits, matters of a purely personal character. In the future, such questions will not be answered through the MESSENGER'S Querist Department, but will find a resting place in the waste basket. The justice and wisdom of this course will, we think, be apparent to all who give the subject a moment's thought. It is impossible for us to know the motives prompting a personal query, neither can we know all the circumstances surrounding the case, and even were it possible for us to be made acquainted with all the facts, yet we would not be justified in making public, a private matter. The perfect rule laid down in Matthew 18, works so well, when lived up to, that it is useless to try to improve upon it, and we request our dear brethren to think of this when writing queries.

Our meaning will be made clearer by referring to a query now before us: "Is it right for an elder to allow his children to borrow and read novels, etc., etc?" It wouldn't be very hard to answer the question, but suppose now that the elder doesn't know anything about the matter, wouldn't it be better all around, for the brother who asks the question, to go to the elder in the spirit of love and brotherly kindness, and ask him about it? Why send a query to the MESSENGER as to a personal matter of this kind? It isn't kind or brotherly to do so. We have, in the past, answered several queries of this character, but after giving the matter due thought, have concluded to admit nothing of a personal character, if we know it, in this department.

1. Dear Bro.: - Please explain Matt. 8: 22, the last paragraph, "But Jesus said unto him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead." RUEL SMITH.

ANS. —The question asked has been answered in these columns once before, but as we have a number of new subscribers, we answer it again. Luke 9: 59, 60 refers to the same incident and gives the Savior's reply in these words, "Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God." Here was a disciple who was willing to follow Jesus, but must first attend to something else. Are we to understand that his father was lying a corpse? The custom of the Jews was to bury the dead the same day they died, and if the father had just died, the disciple would not have been with Jesus. His father may have been aged and frail, and the son might have felt that after he had passed away and been laid to rest in the grave, he would then be ready to follow Jesus. But the Savior said, "Follow me now." He expressed, in a forcible way, the truth that the most important thing to attend to is our religious duties. It is only another way of saying, "Seek first the kingdom of God." We are to remember that, at all times and under all circumstances, our first and highest duty is to follow Christ, and anything that will interfere with this duty, must be set aside even if it be that of burying our dead friends. Our first duty is to obey God, and everything else must be made subordinate to this. This is the spirit of the words, and in our interpretation we should always look for the spirit and the lesson that the Scripture contains for us, and, having the lesson, proceed at once to put the teaching into practice. As to the seeming paradox in the words, "Let the dead bury their dead," the key may be found to it in the different senses in which the word is used. Those who accept Christ are alive spiritually; those who reject him are dead in the spiritual sense. Those who are thus dead, are left to bury the dead bodies of their friends.

Here is a call to one who is willing to follow Christ. The one duty hinders him. The Master would say, "The Lord has need of thee, the fields are white for the harvest, the laborers are few. Go thou and preach the Gospel. Leave the care of burying the dead to those who are dead, to those who have not accepted my Word, and the kingdom of God which is now being established in the earth. Your first duty is to do my will, to follow me and to preach my Gospel." It does not follow that the duty of burying the dead should at all times be left to others. The meaning is that the Lord's work is paramount to all others, and there may be times when even the burial of the dead must be left to others, and the Christian soldier go forward in the more important work of spreading the Gospel. When the duty of burial stands over against the duty of giving the Bread of Life to the souls of men, the former must be left and the latter attended to.

2. Will you kindly give some good reason why our sisters do not break the bread at Communion to one another, as the brethren do? I have asked this question several times but have not as yet received a satisfactory answer.

E. MILLER.

ANS.—We have several queries covering the same ground as the one here given. The question has been before our Annual Conference several times, in the shape of a request to make a change, allowing the sisters to break bread, and whilst a considerable difference of opinion obtained as to the question, yet it was decided to make no change for the present. We have had the reasons, given for the practice, set forth in these columns, and we have no doubt but that Bro. Miller has read them. We have no others to offer. If those already given are not satisfactory, the question can again be referred to our Annual Conference.

3 Dear Bro.:—Please explain through the MESSENGER 1 Cor. 15: 29, which reads as follows: "Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? Why then are they baptized for the dead?" What does baptizing for the dead mean? JASPER BARNTHOUSE.

ANS.—Perhaps no other passage of Scripture is made the subject of so many queries as is the one above quoted. We answered it in these columns during the year 1890, but it comes up again and again. On account of the number of queries we have on the subject, we answer it again.

We have four queries on the above passage of Scripture, and we trust this answer will suffice for all. These words of Paul have been variously interpreted, and an examination of a half dozen of standard commentaries does not settle the question as to the meaning of the language. Barnes, in his Notes, says, "There is, perhaps, no passage in the New Testament in respect to which there has been a greater variety of interpretation than this, and the views of expositors now by no means harmonize in regard to its meaning." Lange says, "The connection here, with what precedes, involves some difficulties. Nearly all Bible critics speak of the difficulty attending the passage in question." We herewith give some of the views held by different writers:

1. It is held by some that "the dead" here refers to Christ, the plural being used instead of the singular, meaning the "dead one."

2. Some hold that it means being baptized as dead,—dead to sin and alive in Christ Jesus. Immersion signified a burial and a resurrection, and hence those who were baptized were considered as dead.

3. Barnes, and with him a number of expositors, hold to the view, that the apostle here refers to the baptism of all believers, and that it means that they had been baptized with the hope of the resurrection of the dead.

4. Kendricks' interpretation is, that "baptism for the dead" means "baptized into relation to the dead so baptized as that they belong, by sacrifice, by suffering, peril, martyrdom—rather to the dead than to the living; and are thus the victims of a fate which has no alleviation nor apology, except in the resurrection."

5. Others hold, and among them are the majority of the commentators, that baptism for the dead is being baptized for, instead of, or in behalf of, the dead, and that it refers to an old custom which prevailed, of baptizing some one in place of the one who had believed, but died without baptism. The objection to this view is, that Paul would "seem to approve, or at least mention without disapproval, a superstitious practice, plainly inconsistent with his own teaching, but this is met by noting the fact that the apostle uses here the same kind of argument, as our Savior does when he asks the Pharisees by whom their sons cast out devils." Matt. 12: 27.

The multiplicity of views given is apt to be confusing. It only shows that the language has its difficulties, and that there is a wide difference of opinion as to its meaning. We are inclined to accept the latter and more literal interpretation, as presenting the fewest difficulties. This simply takes the apostle at what he says, and in no way weakens the force of his argument."

D. L. MILLER,

Dear Bro.:—As there are thousands of farmers in this great Miami Valley, who are already fertilizing the best parts of their farms in the anticipation of raising a large crop of tobacco, the following questions naturally suggest themselves to my mind:

1. Will Christ's reign on earth be a literal one? If so, will tobacco be raised, manufactured, and used as it now is?

2. Will intoxicating drink be manufactured and used as it now is?

3. Will we have any use for such officers as constable, sheriff, or prosecuting attorney?

4. Will we have any use for jails, dungeons, penitentiaries, etc?

5. Would it not be well for all professed Christians, at least to the extent of our fallible natures, to abstain from all such things as we have reason to believe will not be indulged in that happy period?

6. Would it not be wise for all Christians of all parties and churches to vote against the saloon and rum traffic, whenever opportunity presents itself?

I am glad to know that some of our States are making it the duty of teachers to teach the bad effects which tobacco and strong drink have on the human system; and am also glad that some of the States are considering the propriety of prohibiting County Examiners from issuing certificates to teachers who use tobacco, whiskey or profane language.

ENOCH BEERY.

ANS.—Bro. Beery's questions carry their answers with them. Let each one give them serious and prayerful thought. If we are to enjoy Christ's peaceable reign, it will be well for us to see to it, that we use our time in preparing for it.

THE CENSUS OF OUR CHURCH.

BY request of the Census Commissioner, we have assisted in trying to secure the number of members in our Brotherhood, with the number and cost of meeting-houses and their seating capacity. In order to have an accurate account, a blank was sent to some one in every congregation, with a request to fill it out and return to us, and although six months have passed since the schedules were sent out, we have not, as yet, been able to secure returns from all the congregations. Some State Districts are complete, others are lacking in one, two or three churches. Those who have not yet done so, will please fill out the blanks and return them to us at once.

From the blanks received we are enabled to form an estimate of our membership, and taking the Census of 1880, secured by Bro. Howard Miller, as a basis, the returns will show an increase of from seven to ten thousand members in the last decade. Whilst this is no large, yet it shows a healthy increase in numbers, and this, too, in the face of the fact, that, since 1880, the church has suffered a considerable loss in the withdrawal of the Old Order and Progressive Brethren from her communion.

We do not give this statement with any desire to boast, for we have nothing to boast of, but we may be encouraged by the fact, that our membership has increased under very adverse circumstances. We thank the Lord and take courage.

In some State Districts there has been a falling off in membership, owing to the heavy westward emigration during the last ten years. This is especially true of Illinois. A number of strong congregations have been organized in the West, the membership of which was largely drawn from Northern and Southern Illinois. The number received into church fellowship in these two districts did not keep pace with the emigration, and as a result the Census shows a slight decrease in numbers in Illinois. During the last ten years one congregation in Northern Illinois received into church fellowship, by baptism, between two and three hundred members.

We give the complete Census of Illinois, and other States will be given as they are completed, if the Brethren so desire us to do.

THE MASTER'S WORK, TRACTS, MISSIONARY WORK AND OUR PRAYERS.

BY S. W. HOOVER.

THE world all around us is a busy scene of industry and activity in all of its numerous institutions and various branches of business and labor. All of these tend to worldly pleasures, progress and reward. If all of this be true of worldly or temporal affairs, and we believe it is, the same, in a comparative sense, is also true of our Christian institutions, industry and spiritual progress. All is sure to bring its certain and happy reward. The former secures temporal, but the latter spiritual favors. To be less concerned about our spiritual, than we are about our temporal interests, is like one marching from ease to ruin.

The Tract Work offers to all a large and fruitful field for the industrious exercise of both Christian faith and Christian zeal. In this work willing hands and consecrated hearts and lives, may find ready employment. The work embraces a variety of branches, adapted to the several capacities and circumstances of both brethren and sisters. In either of these both may engage and do well. Skilled and experienced labor is not specially required or called for, as in the employment of the arts, mechanics and sciences. But here the aged, the young, the educated and uneducated, distributer, agent or solicitor, can all, as God directs, find work, comforting to himself and pleasing to the Master. They who perform well and faithfully their part here, may expect to enjoy an eternal rest over there.

To particularize, almost any one physically able to go about, in country, city or towns, in depots, on cars, and steamboats, and in ocean ports of incoming and outgoing vessels, etc., can distribute tracts among the public in a general and promiscuous way, as originally contemplated in the organization of the Tract Work. In this way the doctrine of the Cross and practice of the church of the Brethren will find its way into many homes. The fact is that tracts form an excellent means to introduce the Scriptures. By them others may acquire a more correct and extended knowledge of our Fraternity and principles.

But there is still another and better method by which more and better work can be done than by the above, to which I invite the particular attention of members, and especially those farthest advanced in experience and faith, and who are willing to demonstrate it by works. I refer to visiting from house to house, having a few tracts with each family visited, and, wherever at all suitable, taking time to introduce a point or two of doctrine, and, like a faithful "Paul," fervent in spirit and bold in action (when before Felix), "reason of righteousness and of judgment to come." Cards of invitation to attend preaching, if any near by, should also be left with each person and family visited, and presented with tracts. This kind of missionary work is, I believe, about as well, if not, indeed, better adapted, to able and energetic sisters, well established in doctrine and faith, and, in most cases, can be as well performed by them, as by brethren. In all cases have system about your work. Names and notes may be taken of those who manifest the greatest concern for their soul's salvation, which will be valuable for reference in view of future visits.

In view of this branch of missionary work and the ultimate good to be accomplished by the use of the Brethren's tracts, all interested should show deep and prayerful earnestness and spirit in the work. "To go into all the world, do good unto all men, work while it is day, pray without ceasing, that blessings may follow, are the words of Jesus and the Holy Spirit, and which contain largely the essence and life forces of the practical Christian, in living out and rounding up his holy character and life. To merely utter a truth is not enough. To be effective it must be made practical. The cause of our Master should, in no way, be allowed to lack for workers or support, and at least a portion of our time, labor and means, should go to it. The lack of will to do well our part may be the price of a soul.

But there is still another part of our daily duty connected with all of our Christian work, to which I wish to invite the reader's special attention. It is that of prayer. Prayer is the great essential requisite to success. Indeed, it is altogether out of the question to do any great work in the Master's vineyard, of whatever kind, if our heart and spirit are not in it and our prayers absent. "The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." "The true Christian worker prays because prayer is an essential part of his working. In short, to the Christian, that which is worth praying for, is worth working for, and he who truly prays, works toward the end for which he prays." (S. S. T.) Praying and working are essentially and inseparably connected. May the prayers of all the dear brethren and sisters fervently and unceasingly, in the utmost faith, go up to Almighty God in behalf of the church and all its institutions and one another, for the advancement and prosperity of the Redeemer's name and kingdom among the people.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

ON page ninety of the MESSENGER, current volume, I read: "We sometimes hear missionary enthusiasts lament because the church is so indifferent to missionary work -is so loath to give of her means to the spreading of the Gospel. Yet when we look at it properly, there is a reason for it. As the minister preaches, in a large measure will his congregation act."

There can not be much doubt as to the truth of the statements in the quotation above. But even if it is true that preachers make their congregations as they wish to have them, it ought not to be so. We who are of the congregation must not try to blame the minister for our shortcomings; we can not throw off the responsibility in that way. We are free to choose the good or the bad, free to follow the teachings of Christ or not; and we do wrong when we blindly submit our lives to the guidance of any man.

Suppose a minister tells me (and the great majority of the ministers in the world so tell their congregations) that it is not necessary to wash my brother's feet, to salute him with the holy kiss, that non-conformity, non-swearing, and plainness are not necessary, does his saying so make it so? Of course not, for I have the words of Christ and his Apostles to the contrary. And the same is true in regard to giving for missionary work, or any other good work. It does not matter what the particular minister I go to hear says; his words are of no more value than mine, or those of any other person. It is only when they are in accord with what is true that they are of value, that they are to be obeyed by me; and it is my business, as much as it is his, to find out whether he is speaking the truth, it is my business to find out what is "good," and to hold fast to it.

It would be a very good thing if all the preachers were more careful and more zealous; and perhaps they will be so some day. It is very fitting for one minister to exhort the others to be more faithful, more earnest in following the last and the great command of our Leader; it is the right thing to do. But that is not enough. There is a duty for each one; and those who are set apart as teachers can not do what should be done by some one else; and if they try to do it failure will surely follow. Following Christ is eminently an individual undertaking one can not do it for another. And we can not be justified because we have done what some one told us to do. Children may do wrong and still be innocent, and the blame can rightly be laid upon their teachers; but men and women can not act thus blindly and escape the consequences of what they do. They have minds, they are capable to judge whether an act is right or wrong; and it is their business to use their minds on all occasions, it is their business to pass judgment on whatever they do and on whatever any one else asks them to do. And it is only when we do so use our minds and our judgment that we are men and women in the highest and best sense. Of course this applies only to what men tell or teach us. We have not the same privilege when God speaks, for his ways are not our ways, nor are his thoughts our thoughts—we are to judge all things by what he says.

And it seems to me that one of our greatest objects should be to make men and women feel that they are individually responsible for what they do, and not their preacher or teacher or anybody else. If we were to judge man by the pictures we have of him he would be a sorry creature indeed. In most cases he is pictured as being a poor helpless being without a will of his own. Perhaps a great many are so; but I think many really well-intentioned people help to make man just this contemptible being; and one way in which it is done is by telling him that he is so, that he is helpless, that he must be kept in the right way by force. I think we blame the individual man too little and his surroundings too much. In most cases neither the man nor his environment is what it should be, but let us not burden the one with the sins or shortcomings of the other.

And when we have done all this, when we have taught every man that he must take the consequences of what he does, there will still be enough to make the minister responsible for, for we are all responsible for what we say as well as for what we do. The preacher has a greater responsibility than the layman, for he comes in contact with so many who must be taught, who depend (whether they should or not) upon him for teaching, who are inclined to follow implicitly all he says they should follow. This would be all very well if preachers were perfect, but while things are as they are it is not safe to follow any man in all he says. He may be honest and still be wrong. To say that all the ministers who deny the necessity of the peculiar ordinances of our church are dishonest when they so deny them would be saying what I think no one of us is ready to say, what no one of us could truthfully say.

But a great many ministers do wrong when they set themselves up as judges even of God's Word; they are wrong when they do not follow the example of Paul when he says, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." It is now common to hear ministers tell their congregations that it is not necessary to follow Christ as he has commanded us. And these congregations have so long depended on their preachers for instruction that they no longer think for themselves, and consequently do not do what they should. Of course this does not apply to our ministers when it is a question of an ordinance. But, as has been said, it does apply to them more than to the ministers of most other churches when it is a question of giving. And yet, when we look at the progress made by the church in this direction within the past six or seven years, we have reason to rejoice. There seems to have been a thorough shaking up given, and the most we can hope for is that it may continue until we finally do as much as we should; for, as yet, we are but started in the right direction, the goal is very far away. Shall we ever reach it?

And, after all, who is to blame? Surely we can not say all the blame lies with the ministers, though perhaps they are more to blame than the laymen, for by common consent they are looked up to as the leaders of the congregation, the shepherds of the flock. But we who are not preachers must bear our share of the responsibility. We are supposed to know our Bibles about as well as our ministers know theirs, we are supposed to know what the commands are, and as Christians we are supposed to follow them, whether any one tells us to or not. It must be acknowledged that both parties—those in the ministry and those outside of it—have come short of their duty; and neither can lay all blame on the other, and I feel sure neither wishes so to do. What we must look forward to, what we must labor for, whether we be preachers or not, is the time when we shall deserve to hear the "well done," and this we shall deserve to hear only when we have done our best. G. M.

BIBLE THEOLOGY CONTRASTED WITH POPULAR THEOLOGY.

BY S. CLICK.

Number One.

HAVING been a member of the Brethren church for nearly forty years, and a close observer of passing events, I have perceived a gradual departure from the original landmarks, and an apostatizing from true Bible doctrine. The transition has been so gradual as to be almost imperceptible by those thus drifting, excepting by individuals who have raised their voice against it at different times, but were silenced by the multitude, until to-day we find an institution confronting and opposing us, which numbers its votaries by millions. It is this mammoth institution or, rather, its claims, that we propose to examine, hoping and trusting that, under the blessing of God, we may be able to lead precious souls out of darkness into the marvelous light of the Son of God.

"Christ is the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." See John 1: 9. "This, then, is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." "If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth: but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." 1 John 1: 6, 7.

Now, dear reader, we have before our minds the object and purpose for which Christ came into the world, that is, to dispel the darkness from our hearts, to illuminate our minds, and anoint our eyes with eyesalve so that we can see the way that leads to the fountain which has been opened for sin and uncleanness. The plan of redemption was formed that we might be washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb. John says, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." Christ says, "I am the way, the truth and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me." Paul says, "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3: 11. Christ says, "Upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." He does not say churches.

Again he says, "I am the door into the sheepfold," not doors. The Savior and the Apostles acknowledge but one church, and but one form of doctrine to be obeyed, in order to become a member of that church.

Christ prayed the Father, just before he was crucified, that the true believers or disciples might be one as he and the Father were one. This oneness was to be the testimony to the world that the Father had sent him. John 17: 17–23. Paul says that by one spirit we are all baptized into one body. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism." Eph. 4: 5. How does this compare with the teaching of popular theology? Where is the evidence to the world, among popular religionists and the doctrine they teach, that the Father sent the Son? One teaches that sprinkling is apostolic baptism; another, that single immersion is, and a third, that there is no saving efficacy in baptism,—that you can be saved and fully sanctified without it. They will cite the case of the thief upon the cross as a testimony, thus taking an extraordinary case and making that the rule, in place of the plain example of Christ and his teaching.

Christ, in order to give us an example, went down into the River Jordan, and was baptized by John the Baptist. Before ascending to heaven, he called his apostles unto him and gave them a most solemn charge, saying, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

It does seem to me that the plain language, used in this commission, ought to settle the mode of baptism in the estimation of all trinitarians, when we take into consideration, that all the work of creation, providence and redemption was wrought out in the sense in which they are three, and not one.

Paul, speaking to his Colossian Brethren of Christ, says, "For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers. All things were created by him, and for him, and he is before all things: and by him all things consist." Col. 1: 16, 17.

This same apostle, writing to his Hebrew brethren, says, "God, who at sundry times and divers manners spake unto the fathers by the prophets, hath, in these last days, spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds." Heb. 1: 1–2.

Many other Scriptures might be cited, but those are enough to prove his divinity. Christ is called the Great God, the True God, and in prophecy the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. At his baptism all three were represented,—the Son coming up out of his watery grave, and the Holy Spirit, from the Father, rests upon his sacred head, accompanied with a voice from the Father, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." Surely this should satisfy the most skeptical as to what legal baptism is, when we have the testimony of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit.

Another point, that we wish to notice right here is, that the Father did not seal him, and publicly acknowledge him as his Son until he was baptized. Right here is a grand lesson for us. There is the great difference between Bible doctrine and popular theology. Popular theologians teach that we must have the Holy Spirit, and an evidence that our sins are pardoned, before we are fit subjects for baptism. Peter told the enquiring Jews to repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, and they should receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. Acts 2: 38. Blackstone says, "The order of the law is a part of the law," which is evidently a fact. Then, if we reverse God's order, we have no right to expect that God will grant us the power to become the sons of God, for only those who are moulded in God's mould will be sealed sons and heirs of God. John 1: 12, 13.

To reverse the law, would invalidate the title to a little real estate here on earth. Certainly it is that God changes no more than man, nay, verily, we must hear that great prophet in all things, for it is declared that "whosoever will not hear, shall be destroyed from among the people."

THE ORDAINING OF ELDERS.

BY M. J. M'CLURE.

HAVING been taught, by experience and observation, that the decision of Annual Meeting of 1890, in relation to the ordination of elders, is not always understood, or always observed, attention is called to the following points:

Said decision requires the consent of the majority of the elders, assembled at District Meeting, before an ordination be entered into.

In order that this requirement be complied with, a church must determine which brother it wants ordained, and send his name to the elders at District Meeting, or it will be impossible for them to take the necessary action.

Again; elders have effected ordinations since last Annual Meeting in direct violation of said decision, not considering that the work they did is illegal, and any work, performed by such informally-ordained brethren, will be illegal, thus placing such brethren in an unpleasant predicament, causing them to disrespect the decision of Annual Meeting, and defeating the very object said decision was intended to gain. It is not supposed that the elders, performing the work referred to, intended any wrong, but the results remain the same.

"A MAN who knows how to tell others their duty, ought to know enough to do his duty in the lines of his instruction; but there are a great many who know enough to teach more of truth than their own lives illustrate. 'There is one that is wise and teacheth many, and yet is unprofitable to himself,' is one of the keen sayings in Ecclesiasticus. It would be well if every teacher were resolved not to be of the number of this sort of unwisely-wise instructors."

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

One Restored.—At a recent church council at Adrian, Bates Co., Mo., all business passed off pleasantly. One dear brother, who had strayed away from the fold was restored again. Daniel Miller.

Correction.—In the report of funds received for the Bible school, Baltimore, Md., I credited the Lick Creek Sunday-school, Bryan, Ohio, with sixty-three cents. It should have been ninety-three cents.—Joseph J. Ellis, Secretary.

Homes for All.—We have a good country here for poor Brethren. Those who have no homes, should come here where land is cheap. Any brethren who are interested, should write me and I will give them the desired information. Oliver Williams, Custer, Mich., Feb. 23.

Members Revived.—Bro. Henry Light, of Mountville, Lancaster Co., Pa., is preaching for the members of the Spring Creek church, Pa., at the Conawago meeting-house. The members have been much revived, and sinners have been brought to a realization of their condition.—Wm. P. Yeder, Bachmansville, Pa., Feb. 20.

Visit the Isolated.—We are located near Drury, Ill., opposite Muscatine, Iowa. Those who desire to visit the scattered ones of the Lord's household, are invited to stop with us, and give us a few meetings. We have not the opportunities here that some have, and would greatly appreciate to have even a short series of meetings. Stella Gird, Feb. 17.

One Added to the Fold.—On Monday, Feb. 23, one sister was received into the church by baptism. This sister has been sick for some months and very much desired to be baptized, but was too weak to be taken to the water until this time. Bro. John E. Ikenberry, who was here on a visit, administered the rite. The Lord be thanked for his mercies and his saving grace. O. D. Lyon, Sidney, Nebr.

Among the Isolated.—I am on my return from a visit among the isolated ones of Carroll County. The severe cold prevented contemplated meetings. Ministers traveling over C. & N. W. R. R., should drop a card to W. H. Brocket, Carroll, Carroll Co., Iowa, and arrange to stop off and preach. He will meet you at the train. Brethren Stephen and R. A. Yoder, of the Harlan church, have arranged to go to Nebraska and Kansas, leaving Bro. Wash. Wyland alone in the ministry there. Ministerial visits will be appreciated at that point. This church has lost heavily by emigration, but otherwise is in fair condition.—J. D. Houghtelin, Panora, Iowa, Feb. 25.

Two Restored.—The members of the Waddam's Grove church, Ill., met in council Feb. 5. All the business was adjusted pleasantly. Two that had been living in the pleasures of sin for a while, resolved to come back to the fold. May they, with us, put their trust in God, who is able to help us in every time of need. A young sister said she could not be with the church for this time, but thought she would be after awhile. Oh, dear brethren and sisters, let us take heed to our steps that we be not carried into the sinful pleasures of life, for they will draw us from the love of the Brotherhood and the blessed teachings of our Dear Redeemer. Bro. Wm. K. Moore was chosen as our delegate to Annual Meeting. Brethren George Shick and Wesley Star are our delegates to District Meeting. Our love-feast will be May 21 and 22, commencing at 1 P. M. Israel Sisco, Lena, Ill.

Six Accessions.—Feb. 18 I returned from St. Paul, Va., where I held eleven meetings. The Brethren seem to be much revived, as they had been deprived of hearing the Gospel preached for several months. Six united with the church while we were with them. Five of the number attended the Brethren's Sunday-school last summer. We closed our meetings, as usual, too soon, as some others were almost persuaded. C. D. Hylton, Hylton, Va.

One Baptized.—Bro. J. B. Fluck, of Bedford Co., Pa., came to the Falling Springs church, Franklin Co., Pa., Feb. 9, and remained until the 22nd. He preached, in all, sixteen discourses, which were both practical and logical. Notwithstanding the bad condition of the roads, our meetings were well attended. The meetings closed with a full house and good interest. One young sister made the good confession, while others were made to consider.—Wm. C. Koontz, Shady Grove, Pa.

The Work in Kansas City.—The readers of the Messenger are already informed by the Brethren that we are now having regular appointments at the Chelsea Park school-house, Kansas City, Kansas, twice a month on the first and third Sunday. Perhaps there are still some members living within reach of the place of meeting, of whom we know nothing. I wish to say that I live in Rosedale, and that if all those members who live in Kansas City will inform me where they may be found, I will look them up. I would also be pleased to have all such call and see me. I live only a few blocks from Rosedale depot, also near to the Street Car Line. To reach the place of meeting, take the Elevated Street Car Line to Chelsea Park. The time of meeeting will be on Saturday evening at 7:30 and Sunday morning at 11 A. M.—Wm. Holsinger, Rosedale, Kans., Feb. 16.

One Added to the Fold.—Bro. D. S. Clapper came to the Roaring Springs church, Pa., Feb. 5, and commenced a series of meetings which he continued until the 22nd. There was a fair attendance, considering the rain and muddy roads. Much interest was manifested. Apart from the Brethren, the "Holiness People," so-called, are in the majority here. It is needless to say that their emotional theology was badly wrecked in the minds of many. The strong Bible doctrine, put forth by our brother made many to tremble and quake, when they saw their pet theories crumble before the power of Gospel truth. It is evident that "faith alone" and "sinless perfection" doctrine will not soon revive in this locality. One dear sister was added to the fold, and the Brethren were encouraged and admonished to faithfulness in every line of Christian duty.—S. R. Albright.

Refreshing Meetings.—Eld. J. S. Mohler just closed some very interesting meetings at Stella, Nebr. Notwithstanding the bad roads and inclement weather, our meetings were well attended, with increasing interest throughout, and fair prospects of quite an ingathering in the near future. This place is within the limits of the Falls City congregation. We rented a farm and moved here last spring, finding only a few members sufficiently near to attend our meetings. We soon discovered that we had no rubbish to remove before reaching the confidence of the people. With our hands thus "lifted up," it became a pleasure to direct others to the Blessed Christ. We have indeed a goodly land, combining all the advantages any one could desire. Any of our brethren, intending to change their location, would do well, first to look at this country.—P. E. Whitmer, Feb. 19.

Annual Council.—The brethren and sisters of Cedar Lake church, DeKalb County, Indiana, met Feb. 21 in annual council. The report of the church visit showed a membership of about ninety. Quite an amount of business was transacted. Among other matters we appointed Sunday, March 4, as the time to re-organize our Sunday-school. June 11 is set for our Communion meeting. Services are to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. —G. I. Patterson, Feb. 23.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, County and State. Be brief. Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

The Aged Persons, Infirm and Orphans' Home.

We feel it a duty that we owe to our many friends, and brethren and sisters, throughout the Brotherhood, to let them know something about the prosperity of our prospective enterprise, as we believe many feel interested in its success, as shown by their liberal donations, letters of inquiry, etc. Some are giving us reasons to hope for something, when the enterprise is once fully established and under headway. Some, here in Kansas, seem timid, because they say they have been imposed upon, by others violating their promise. We are very sorry for that, but all that donate for the "Home" in Kansas will not be disappointed by a promise of equivalent in value, for we make no such promise. He that did promise a rich reward to all who liberally and cheerfully donate to the poor, never disappointed any one. Any one that donates to the poor should never expect much, if anything, in return in this life, but an exceeding rich reward in the world to come, if given with a proper motive.

While there are many in Kansas who have nothing to spare, especially in the extreme Northwestern part, there are, nevertheless, those who have some means to spare, and we hope they will feel to do so, as God loveth a cheerful giver.

It was thought by some that we had better publish what we have received, in order to encourage others, especially outside of the State of Kansas. We take pleasure in doing so when the donor does not object. A sister in Philadelphia, who does not desire her right hand to know what her left hand doeth, sent us the sum of one hundred dollars; the Huntingdon church, Pa. (partly by the Sister's Mission), $27.00; a sister from the Waddam's Grove church, Ill., sent the widow's mite as she calls it. We can only say, "Many thanks to the donors, and to God who will abundantly bless you for it!" Several others, in Kansas, have given and promised $100 each, but we still need several more such, but as Abraham commenced with the Lord with fifty (a dear brother in Mount Morris, Ill., commenced this work with $50) and came down, step by step, to ten, so we will not venture higher. We would be glad to hear from some more before March 20, with what they feel they can spare.

I have been made to realize what a blessing it is, to give, if it is but a small amount. Since I live in Kansas, there have been, by each one giving a trifle to the General Mission Committee, several houses of worship built, which would not have been erected for years yet, if ever. Now, again, in donating to the needy, could the donors fully realize the happy hearts they make, and the many prayers that daily ascend to heaven, in behalf of the donors, they would feel amply paid in this life. Then, if you add the consciousness of doing duty and the promise of the reward in the future, surely there is a blessing to the giver, as well as the receiver. I feel sure no one feels any the poorer financially and much richer spiritually. A little from each one does a great work, when concentrated.

Brethren often do not give because they think their mite is not worth sending. Suppose we reason this way. Each brother sends one dollar to Bro. George Keedy, Booth, Reno Co., Kans. One thousand could do that and none would miss it. What a great blessing it would be to the poor in Kansas for generations to come! Or if one hundred brethren think five dollars each would suit them better, see what a blessing at this end, though small when you start it. That is not all, the joy and happiness it would create in the hearts of the dear members here in Kansas, whose hearts are beating in sympathy for the poor, and who want to build them a home. If I could speak with the tongues of men and of angels, the half could not be told.

Our treasurer has not reported yet, and may not till the District Meeting.

The case referred to by Bro. P. B. Porter, of the Burr Oak church, Jewell Co., Kans., in GOSPEL MESSENGER, page 70, current volume, with one or two more we heard of, somewhat similar, will be more fully taken into consideration after the District Meeting has appointed trustees. My mind would be to sell the property, if an opportunity offers. The interest of the money will be worth more than the farm, so far away, and also less trouble. To exchange the farm for land near Booth, to any advantage to the home, is quite uncertain.

More after the District Meeting, if the Lord will. ENOCH EBY.

Booth, Kans.

Terrible Accident.

HAGERSTOWN, Ind., on the Logansport division of the Panhandle R. R., was this afternoon the scene of a frightful wreck, resulting in the death of four persons. Two more are probably fatally injured and twenty-five others are more or less severely hurt.

The train wrecked was known as the fast Cincinnati express, and was supposed to be running at the time at the rate of over fifty miles an hour. The train does not stop at Hagerstown, and as it was coming around the curve near the station, something about the engine broke, derailing every car of the train, consisting of the smoker, the day coach, and a parlor car. The train, however, hung together until past the station and the canal bridge, a short distance beyond which there is an embankment of fifteen feet. Here the cars broke loose from each other and rolled over just after crossing the bridge. The day coach rolled clear over, down the bank, the parlor car lay on the side, at the foot of the bridge, and in it were the bodies of the four men that were killed. The inside of the car and furniture were all battered to pieces, and the mangled bodies of the men were lying in a pile. The writer arrived at the scene soon after it happened. It was heart rending to see so many bodies spattered with blood, and hear the cries and groans of the unfortunate ones. The uncertainty of life, as again shown in this occurrence, brought to mind the language of David to Jonathan, "Truly, as the Lord liveth, there is but a step between me and death." Probably not three minutes before these men were hurled into eternity, they were in the vigor of health and enjoyment of life. May all take warning from these sad occurrences, and heed the admonition of the prophet to Hezekiah the King, "Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die and not live." Paul says, "It is appointed unto man once to die but after this the judgment." Oh, let us think solemnly of the great future and live accordingly!

In Memoriam.

OUR esteemed brother and father in Israel, John Studebaker, died near Troy, Ohio, Feb 10, 1891, of paralysis and old age, aged 78 years, 10 months and 8 days.

Deceased was born in the State of Pennsylvania, in 1812. He moved with his parents to Miami County, Ohio, in 1819. At this point we glean the following from his diary: "I was sent, when quite a small boy, to learn shoemaking. We carried our kit from house to house. My boss soon run out of work. Then I was sent,—a worthless boy, —to a Mr. Robinson to learn carding and fulling (which business he followed for a number of years). He worked with me on the principle, 'If you are a man, be a man,' and I soon learned to be obedient and kind."

Bro. Studebaker was married to Nancy Rudy in 1834, who survives him. This union was blessed with seven children, one having preceded him to the eternal world. He was baptized in 1835, by Eld. John Darst, in the bounds of what is now known as Lost Creek church, where he resided until 1865, when he, with his family, moved to Lawrence, Kans., where, in 1866, he was elected to the ministry.

His labors in the ministry, considering his age, were characterized with quite a degree of zeal. Even in private conversation he was somewhat enthusiastic, always manifesting a deep interest in the young. He returned to Ohio, in 1870, where he remained until after the death of Bro. Quinter, when he and wife moved to Huntingdon, Pa., and spent one year with their lonely daughter,—sister Quinter. A longing desire for the familiar scenes of childhood and early life seems to have brought him back to Ohio in 1889, where he remained to his death, which was as radiant and peaceful as the setting sun on a pleasant summer evening. Funeral services by Bro. D. S. Filbrun and the writer, from Rev. 21: 1. Peace to his ashes!

JACOB COPPOCK.

For Information.

OCCASIONALLY we, and some of our brethren and sisters, receive a letter of inquiry in reference to the necessities of life, in this part of Kansas. So far we have not heard of any sufferers in Kansas, excepting in the North-western part. The drouth seems to have prevailed more in the North than in the South. We had one call from the Neutral Strip, and one from Ness County, Kans., one also from Hennessey, Oklahoma. We would desire our brethren and sisters to inform us immediately if they know of any destitute of the necessaries of life, in South-western Kansas, or the Indian Territory. Please identify yourselves as much as possible, as in days of yore, when help was sent to Kansas, advantage was taken of the charity of others, and we do not wish a history of that kind to repeat itself, if we can avoid it.

We still have some means, placed in our possession from Mount Morris, Ill., as published by Bro. D. L. Miller, recently, in the GOSPEL MESSENGER, which we will take pleasure in sending to all those whom we know to be needy. Address either the undersigned, or A. F. Miller, or W. A. Rose, at Booth, Reno Co., Kans. ENOCH EBY.

Notes of Travel.

THE writer is now on his east-bound trip. The last place where I labored before leaving the place I call home, was the East McPherson congregation. Some interest was awakened, and the good Book was called into requisition. My place of work is now with the few members of this place. My next place will be Herington, Kans. From there I shall proceed in harmony with the program below. My health is as good now, as it has been for a great while. The route I have laid out, gives opportunity to call on those who are somewhat isolated. I would love to do this much more than I do, but am not able to do so. For the ability to do the Master's will, on this long trip, I crave the prayers of all God's children, who may be informed of our work.

PROGRAM OF TRAVELS.

Ramona, Kans., Feb. 22 to 28; Herington, Kans., March 1 to 11; Seymour, Iowa, March 12 to 20; Libertyville, Iowa, March 20 to 27; Muscatine, Iowa, March 27 to April 2; Chicago, Ill., April 3 to 10; Wakarusa, Ind., April 10 to 23; West Dayton, Ohio, April 25.

The above is given by request of those who are immediately concerned. The limits to time at each place, as far as the limit goes, is a matter of necessity. At several of the places there are only a few members. I put no limit to the meetings at Dayton, because both East and West Dayton have asked for meetings, and I do not know how much time they want. The field and the man both belong to the Lord. A. HUTCHISON.

Literary Notes.

The Light of the World; Or, the Great Consummation. By Sir Edwin Arnold (author of "The Light of Asia"). Illustrated with portrait of Mr. Arnold, and 14 full-page reproductions of Hoffman's celebrated pictures on the Life of Christ. Cloth, square 12mo, 280 pp., $1.75; paper edition, illustrated with Frontispiece, 50 cents. New York, Funk & Wagnalls.

This poem was published simultaneously in America and England on February 16th, the American publishers being Funk & Wagnalls of New York. As before announced, there has been in different portions of the poem collaboration between Mr Arnold and an American poet, the results of this collaboration, of course, being incorporated in both the English and American editions. The American edition contains also an Introductory by Richard Henry Stoddard, besides a reproduction of the celebrated paintings on the life of Christ by the German artist Hoffman by arrangement with the German publishers.

The central theme of "The Light of the World," is, of course, Jesus Christ. Mr. Arnold's treatment of the subject is marked by the deepest reverence, and is certain to excite that of the reader. The poem consists of seven books, as follows: Book I, Mary Magdalene; Book II, The Magus; Book III, The Nativities; Book IV, (in two parts), Two Voices; At Lydda; Book V, The Love of God and Man; Book VI, The Great Consummation. Preceding the poem, which is written in blank verse, is a sort of introductory book entitled "At Bethlehem," which is written in rhyme and covers (which is not, by the way, very much with Mr. Arnold does his work) the period of the story, is, in its most interesting form, Pontius Pilate, and [illegible] Roman Governor, directed to the [illegible] for commandant [illegible] and escort. On his [illegible] the memory of Christ [illegible] the Roman governor, and he [illegible] with Mary Magdalene. Mary [illegible] Lord, Pilate finds [illegible] interview:

[illegible]
[illegible] place with [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] ride
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Among the audience who have been listening to the words of Mary, is an Eastern slave belonging to one of the Magi, who had paid visit to the infant Jesus and who has returned home before he dies, the story of the Lord's life. The next day he is given audience by Mary, and thereafter the story of Christ's life, his teachings, his death, his resurrection, are told by Mary, the Magus listening and questioning, and at times interrupting with comparisons and contrasts between the teachings of Christ and those of Buddha. Mr. Arnold follows, for the most part, the accepted facts of the Gospel narrative. He exercises poetic license, however, in making Mary Magdalene identical, both with Mary, the sister of Lazarus and of Martha, and with the woman who broke the alabaster box of [illegible] feet of Jesus, for which identification Biblical scholars do not recognize any clear scriptural authority.

"To quote from a popular hymn, 'The light of the world is Jesus,' and as such it is presented in this poem but the author manifests the additional purpose of showing that Jesus has been, is, and completed the object not only of the chosen people but of all objects to adore, including Buddha. The poem is in the main a dialogue between Mary Magdalene and a venerable Buddhist who comes from India to learn the results of the great purpose of Bethlehem, of which the [illegible] Great had carried the news to that far land. The Indian questions Mary closely, though reverently and sympathetically, during six days, compares the teachings of Jesus and Buddha, recognizes the limitations of the latter, and concludes that Jesus was indeed the Son of God.

"The diction is careful, noble, pure and exquisite, as becomes the subject, the clime and the characters; it will please all readers of poetry and fill Christian souls with rapture. Perhaps it may do far more. Should 'The Light of the World,' like 'The Light of Asia,' be translated and read in the East, it will be a more effective tract than any the missionaries have put forth, for the author never forgets what the missionary seldom remembers, that Jesus was himself an Oriental."

Shortly before her death she called for the elders and was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord, after which she said she was ready to go. A large concourse of people assembled on the day of her funeral, to pay the last tribute of respect to her honored remains. May she sleep sweetly until the trumpet sound shall awaken the righteous and gather them into the kingdom of God.
JOHN F. KAHLER.

CLAPPER.—In the Hopewell church, Yellow Creek, Pa., Bruce McClellan Clapper, infant son of Bro. J. H. and sister Carrie Clapper, aged 8 months and 12 days.

He, though young, as he was, was noticed and appreciated, seemingly, by all. He was an unusually bright, intelligent-looking boy. While God has now one more bright angel, the most consoling thought is this, that he has escaped all of life's terrors and is on the other shore, enjoying the sweet blessings of heaven. He is walking on the gold-paved streets of that holy city, the New Jerusalem, in the beauties of which we may all share, if we hold out faithful. The parents of the deceased have the sympathy of the community and their many friends in their bereavement. Services by Bro. Levi Holsinger, assisted by Bro. J. Bowser, from Samuel 20: 18, "And thou shalt be missed because thy seat will be empty."
M. S. H.

MILLER.—In the George's Creek church, Fayette County, Pa., sister Sarah Miller, aged 68 years, 4 months and 27 days.

Sister Miller lived as a faithful and consistent member of the Brethren church over fifty years. Funeral services in the Presbyterian church near Fairchance by the writer.
JOHN C. JOHNSON.

MILLER.—In the Middle Creek congregation, Feb. 15, 1891, Bro. Christian L. Miller, aged 77 years, 5 months and 22 days. Funeral services by the writer, assisted by Bro. D. H. Walker.
ISAIAH C. JOHNSON.

HOWARD.—In the Nettle Creek church, Indiana, Jan. 4, 1891, of consumption, Bro. Isaiah Howard, aged 77 years, 11 months and 21 days.

Deceased was born in York County, Pa. He was the sixth of eleven children, and the son of Henry and Patience Howard. He came to Indiana after having served his apprenticeship as a carpenter. In 1848 he was married to Mary Ann Berg, and immediately thereafter located on the old homestead, three miles north of Cambridge City, where he resided until death. To brother and sister Howard were born eleven children,—six sons and five daughters, all of whom are yet living. The youngest is now over seventeen years of age. Bro. Howard became a member of the church of the Brethren about ten years ago, and lived a very devoted Christian life until his death. Funeral services by Eld. Daniel Bowman and Bro. B. F. Whissler to a large number of sympathizing friends.
ABRAHAM BOWMAN.

OWNBY. -At the home of her only daughter, in Afton, Iowa, Aley A. Ownby, aged 75 years, 5 months and 6 days.

Deceased was born Sept. 11, 1815, in Franklin County, Va. Her maiden name was Wray. She was married to James H. Ownby in 1839 and their union was blessed with 5 children, of whom three survive her. They moved to Indiana 1849 to Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, in 1851, to Knoxville, in 1852, to Decatur City in 1855. Here her husband died in 1883. Deceased was a faithful, loving and consistent member of the Brethren church since 1843.

Interment at Decatur City. Funeral services conducted by the writer and Eld. Wm. J. Stout. Text, 2 Tim. 4: 6–8.
LEWIS M. KOB.

HOLMES. — Within the bounds of the English River church, Keokuk Co., Iowa, Feb. 20, 1891, Samuel Isaac, son of friend William Holmes, aged nearly 24 years.

OXLEY. — In the Buck Creek church, Henry County, Ind., infant son of brother Joseph and sister Rebecca Oxley, aged 5 months and 21 days. Funeral services conducted by the home ministers.
ISAAC WIKE.

SHERFY. — In the Appanoose church, Franklin Co., Kans., Feb. 21, 1891, Elmer Frederick, son of Bro. John and sister Louisa Sherfy, aged 8 months and 4 days.

Funeral services conducted by the Brethren from Matt. 19: 14, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Hence we sorrow not as those who have no hope, but look forward with fond anticipation to the time when we will again be reunited as an unbroken family above.
JAMES T. KINZIE.

KELTNER.—In the same place, Feb. 20, 1891, Bro. Albert James Keltner, aged 24 years, 8 months and 24 days.

Bro. Albert was a young brother of promise and, like Daniel, possessed of an excellent spirit, which endeared him to all with whom he was acquainted. He was known only to be loved by all. In his sickness of eight weeks' duration, he was visited by many, and the unanimous verdict was that he was an exception for patience. His sufferings, at times, were intense, but his complete resignation to the will of the Lord enabled him to wait patiently till the end came, when he calmly and peacefully fell asleep in Jesus. While the dear family, of which he was a member, feel keenly the pangs of grief, as well as the church the loss of a faithful one in the prime of life, yet we mourn not as those who have no hope. His funeral took place Feb. 22, and was attended by a large concourse of people. The occasion was improved by the Brethren from James 4: 13, 14, 15.
D. B. EBY.

LAHRE.—In the Yellow Creek congregation, Stephenson Co., Ill., Feb. 12, 1891, sister Sarah Lahre, aged 82 years, 11 months and 26 days.

Sister Lahre was the mother of twelve children, seven sons and five daughters. Of this number five, with her husband, preceded her to the grave.

Seven children, fifty-seven grandchildren, and thirty-two great grandchildren mourn the loss of a saintly mother in Israel. Funeral occasion improved from Rev. 14: 13.

MEYERS.—Oct. 29, 1890, sister Lizzie May Meyers, aged 17 years, 8 months and 29 days.

Her disease was typhoid fever and diphtheria. She was a member of the Middle Creek church, and was buried at the Pleasant Hill meeting-house. Funeral services by Bro. D. H. Walker and the writer from 1 Thess. 4: 13, to a large congregation.

KNABLE.—Also in the same church, sister Laro Knable, aged 82 years, 6 months and 1 day.

Deceased was a consistent member. Funeral services by Bro. Y. S. Wagner, of the Reformed church, at the Pleasant Hill meeting-house.

CRUDEN'S
COMPLETE
CONCORDANCE

THIS excellent work, which we offer for sale to our readers, at the low price of $1 50 post-paid, is the only one of the kind that may be depended upon as being strictly reliable. Any verse in the Bible may be readily found by looking for any material word in the verse. Besides this there are given the significations of the principal words, by which their true, Scriptural meaning may be known. A full account of Jewish customs and ceremonies is given, as well as a complete concordance of the proper names of the Bible and of the books called Apocrypha. Send all orders for the above work to this office.

Doctor Koch's Discovery.

Dr. Koch's great discovery is said to prove efficacious in two cases where the patient has contracted consumption in low lying countries,—almost all the level European districts where the disease is traceable to purely climatic conditions, the moist atmosphere being a fine breeding region for the microbe. But in the high and dry altitude traversed by the Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route, consumption not only can not exist but is surely curable in it early stages. And this is testified to by thousands who have regained health and strength in the life giving air of the Mountains. 718

That Brilliant American.

Samuel Bowles, the famous editor of the Springfield Republican, said, in recording his impressions of the Puget Sound Country:

"Up here, above the latitude of Quebec and Montreal, we basked in the smile of roses that are even denied to us in New England. Here, within the circle of the softening sea, reigns a year that knows no zero cold, and rarely freezes water or snow; that winters the fuchsias and the most delicate roses, English ivies and other tender plants, and summers them with rioting luxuriance; that grows the apple and the pear and the small fruits to perfection."

The Puget Sound Country is a wonderful agricultural country awaiting development. There is nothing open to the home seeker to compare with it and it is the future goal of the great army of home seekers. In healthfulness it is wonderful and in productiveness unsurpassed. Thousands last year journeyed to this charmed region over the Union Pacific, the original overland route, and thousands more will go this year. 718

Europe and Bible Lands.

BY D. L. MILLER.

A new edition, THE TENTH, of this excellent book of travels has just been issued. The extensive sale of the work gives abundant proof of its great popularity. It was thought, at first, that one or two editions would supply the demand, but already ten editions have been issued and yet the book finds a ready sale.

Thousands of copies have been sold outside of our church, and many strong testimonials have been recieved from those who have read the book. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden — The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens. —The Seven Churches of Asia —Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon Lepers and Leprosy. Mountains of Judea. -Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb. —Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea. —River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee. -Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, white paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth, or $2.00 for full leather binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

TESTIMONIALS.

We have space here only for extracts from a very few of the kind letters received by the author.

A copy of Bro. D. L. Miller's work on Bible Lands is before me. I like it very much. It contains much spiritual food for the Christian as well as many useful historical facts.—Eld. Enoch Eby.

It is an interesting book and should be in every family, and read by every young man and woman, so that they may know how the people live in Europe and the East. I would not take three times what the book cost me and do without it.—Eld. John Knisley.

I have read Europe and Bible Lands, and I am ready to confess that it gave me more satisfaction than I anticipated. I am especially pleased that the history you give of the Bible lands corresponds in its arrangements so well with the Bible. Since reading your book, I think I can almost see the different cities, mountains, rivers, scenery, with the valley and the river of Jordan.—Eld. John Forney.

Your book brought back to me many pleasant recollections of countries I saw long ago, and which you describe so vividly and truthfully. You have done a good work in publishing a book which contains so much interesting and valuable matter, especially for our young readers, giving the present aspect of many countries and the present condition of many interesting questions.—Hon. R. R Hitt.

Having given considerable time to the study of sacred history and antiquities, I was especially interested in that portion of the work devoted to the description of Bible Lands, and can truly say that I have obtained from it much information that I have not been able to obtain heretofore, although I have perused volumes. The author has been careful to combine the past and present history of those lands, the better showing the fulfillment of prophecy, which makes it doubly interesting to the Bible student. And then, the cheerful, spicy manner of narration makes it of incalculable worth.—M. H. Robinson, Sherwood, Ohio.

I received your book of travels in the Holy Land, and have finished reading it. I consider it an excellent work, not only for our people, but all who have an interest in the Holy Land and a desire for Bible knowledge. It gives, in a plain, clear style, much information regarding the country, towns, mountains, rivers and seas made sacred by the footprints of our Savior. Another thing which makes your book valuable is the religious character given to all your travels, even outside of Palestine. I would be glad if all our reading matter had such religious character underlying it; how safe and profitable it would be for the Church, our children, and the world to read!—Eld. R. H. Miller.

I admire your book very much, and while it has cost you much work and great anxiety, it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to others long after you and your wife have gone to the Paradise above. I consider the book a credit to you and the Church. When you left us for your trip, I knew you would make a great effort to put your thoughts in a readable shape, and do your utmost to describe everything of interest. In that respect you have succeeded far beyond my expectation, and now instead of reading your work for pleasure, I consult it for solid and reliable information. I hope the book will have a large sale, for it deserves it, and ought to be in every family, especially in the Brotherhood. -Eld. J. H. Moore

Mr. Miller has been careful in collecting his facts, and conscientious in describing what he has seen. He has not sacrificed truth to mere picturesque effect. It is this very quality of simplicity and truth that makes the book interesting. After one has been satiated with the common type of the book or letter of travel, which aims at describing the writer's fancies or saying something fine, but which seldom descends to describing things as they are, it is really refreshing to read this straight-forward and faithful narrative. More than one-half of the book is occupied with Bible lands. There are many books on the Holy Land, and this work will make no pretensions to supersede them; but it will find its way into many homes where the larger works have not appeared. By reason of its simplicity of style, it is well adapted to younger readers, and it will doubtless stimulate in many young minds a greater interest for Bible study.—A. W. Burnett, Strasburg, Germany.

To those of our patrons who have kindly offered to supply us with the numbers of the Christian Family Companion which we called for, we extend our thanks. As we need only one set, and are now supplied, we feel under many obligations to those who were so ready to accommodate us.

THE Brethren in the southern part of Pennsylvania, are arranging to hold their Communion meetings in rotation before the time of the Annual Meeting, so that brethren from the West can arrange to attend them. Those coming on the Pennsylvania Railroad, via Harrisburg, will find the first appointment at the Lower Cumberland church, and from that place there will be appointments, through the valley, to the place of meeting. Ministering brethren, wishing to stop at these churches will please make a note of this. Notices will be given in due time.

DO WE ADVOCATE DIVISION?

FROM what has been said through the MESSENGER about leaving the church when we can not agree with all its teachings, several have written to know whether we advocate the idea that, as soon as we find ourselves differing from some of the teachings of the church, the best thing to do is to leave it. We answer, most emphatically, No. We advocate no such doctrine. And if there has been anything said that would lead to such conclusion, it was not so intended. There are a number of other things that ought to be done before a course of this kind is resorted to.

First, we, as a church, have never claimed perfection. We do not know that we have arrived at this point yet in either faith or practice. We have been laboring in this direction, and our experience has been that we have, so far, been making some changes and some additions to former faiths and practices. This may be said of our practice in holding the Lord's Supper, the time and manner of washing feet, the introduction of the missionary work, Sunday-schools, etc. All these things had a beginning in some individual mind. By these persons these subjects were examined as they never had been before. They were the outgrowth of a new ray of light. This was followed by a conviction of duty, and, as a result, they became advocates of a change to that which they were fully persuaded was the spirit of truth. Had those brethren been snubbed and told, if they could not believe and accept that which the church then had, they should step out, —that there was no room for such people in the church, where would we be to-day? No, our old brethren never so advised. Over twenty years ago we were among those who pushed the single mode of feet-washing—perhaps we were over-zealous, but we pushed away at it until the first District Meeting of Middle Pennsylvania was held, when a number of the old elders took us, with others, in charge about the matter. We shall never forget that meeting held on the loft of the church-house. Before that body we had an opportunity to present and advocate our position, and after we were all through and they had heard us very patiently, what do you suppose they said to us? Did they tell us that we were self-willed and stiff-headed, and that, "if the present practice of the church don't suit you, be a man, step down and out, —go where you can be suited? It is not right that you should remain in the church and make trouble by trying to introduce a change of practice." No, they said no such things. They did not even tell us what they thought of the arguments we made. Neither did they give us words of discouragement. But they did tell us to exercise patience—that we could not make the whole church see just as we did at once. If our position was right, the church would see it after a while and we would get what we wanted. What we see and have to-day shows that there was wisdom in such advice and it was not only appreciated but kindly accepted.

Almost the same might be said of all the changes that have been made. They had their origin in a few individuals, and, by their tugging away at them, the idea enlarged until it became a majority and was accepted by the church. Had our brethren advised all these to leave the church because they held views differing from the accepted practice of the church, there would be no end to the divisions we would have had up to this time, and that part which would have been left would not, at all, be the church of to-day.

We note this to show that it was not the intention of anything that has been said in the MESSENGER to advise those who happen to differ in regard to some of the practices of the church to leave its communion, rather than to cause a little friction by advocating views and convictions received from a careful study of the Word. The only thing essential in such cases is discretion, patience and a proper Christian spirit.

These differences do not obtain in regard to the fundamental principles of the church (we know there are some who do not accept the idea of there being fundamentals, but such is a theological hoax, as the Scriptures plainly teach that God recognized "the more weighty matters of the law" and so should we), but largely about ways and means. And about such things we can afford to exercise both patience and charity. The "stepping down and out" principle, as applied to such things, is wrong in toto. It is a wrong to the church because it takes away from it the possibilities of going towards the truth —of advancement in the divine life, and would place it in the niche of oblivion, to become dead to the great object for which it was organized. The church, in all ages, needed men who had convictions from the ever-developing light of Christianity, and were not afraid to stand up to them. Such men are to the church what new posts, girders, and braces are to a bridge. It may cause a small jar to pull the decaying ones out, but it is the only salvation of the bridge.

The Catholic church had reached an era of perfection, in her own estimation, and, as a result, any one who dared to differ from her set ways had but one thing to do—receive the curse and go. In this way she destroyed her own possibilities for advancement and purification, and to-day her faith and practices are nothing but dead forms, and the whole lump a mass of rottenness from centre to circumference.

It is also a wrong against those who have convictions of right about things in which we may differ from the general practice of the church. Some of these differences may be wrong while others may be right, but all demand careful and charitable consideration by the church.

It is said that in the early history of our church feet-washing was practiced after supper. How was this practice changed? It was through the knowledge of a single brother. By a careful study of the original text he discovered that the supper was prepared, but not eaten before feet-washing. Here was a change of practice, advocated by a single man, and, had he been advised to leave the church because he had a conviction of right, different from his brethren, it would have robbed him of enjoying communion with a people who, in the fundamental principles of the Scriptures, believed just as he did.

It is no small thing for a man to be driven away from the church of his choice just because of some little differences that may be held, as to the practice of the church. In all these things both sides should exercise that charity which thinketh no evil, and not let every little difference be a cause of separation. No, let us have union,—not division!

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

HOW READEST THOU?—Luke 10: 26.

'Tis one thing now to read the Bible through,
And quite another thing to read to learn and do:
'Tis one thing now to read it with delight,
And quite another thing to read it right.
Some read it with design to learn to read,
But to the subject pay but little heed;
Some read it as a duty once a week,
But no instruction from the Bible seek;
Whilst others read it with but little care,
With no regard to how they read or where!
Some read it as a history to know
How people lived three thousand years ago.
Some read to bring themselves into repute,
By showing others how they can dispute.
Whilst others read because their neighbors do,
To see how long 'twill take to read it through.
Some read it for the wonders that are there,
How David killed a lion and a bear;
Whilst others read or rather in it look,
Because, perhaps, they have no other book.
Some read the blessed Book they don't know why,
It somehow happens in the way to lie;
Whilst others read it with uncommon care,
But all to find some contradiction there!
Some read as though it did not speak to them
But to the people at Jerusalem;
One reads it as a book of mysteries,
And won't believe the very thing he sees;
One reads with father's specks upon his head,
And sees the things just as his father said.
Another reads through Campbell or through Scott,
And thinks it means exactly what they thought.
Whilst others read the book through H. Ballou,
And if it cross his track it can't be true!
Some read to prove a pre adopted creed,
Thus understand but little what they read;
For every passage in the Book they bend,
To make it suit that all-important end.
Some people read it as I have often thought,
To teach the book instead of being taught.
And some there are who read it out of spite,
I fear there are but few who read it right.
So many people in these latter days
Have read the Bible in so many ways,
That few can tell which system is the best,
For every party contradicts the rest.

THE OMNIPOTENT "I WILL." John 17:-24.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

HANNAH GOOD,

My Dear Sister:—

YOURS of Feb. 3, came a few days ago. Your letters are always a precious testimony to a living and present Jesus. The Gospel would be to us no glad tidings of great joy unless there was a Holy Ghost within us to witness with our spirits that the ascended Redeemer is our security and Advocate. There is no joy in religion until by faith we appropriate its provisions as our own. "Unto you therefore which believe he is precious." 1 Pet. 2: 7. To know that all the fullness of God in Christ is ours—this is indeed "joy unspeakable and full of glory." 1 Pet. 1: 8. If we are certain that there is "reserved for us in Heaven an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away," what shall hinder us from "rejoicing in the Lord always?" 1 Pet. 1: 4; Philpp. 4: 4. When "our life is hid with Christ in God," who can harm us? When God himself justifies us, who is he that condemns? Col. 3: 3; Rom. 8: 33, 34. The true believer is as safe as God can make him. If Christ is secure, so is the Christian, for both stand in the same relation to God.

The Father hath accepted the Son on the ground of his own righteousness while fulfilling his vicarious mission on earth; and he accepts every soul in Christ that rests exclusively in the righteousness thus achieved and offered. The believer CAN NOT perish. God must become impotent and unfaithful before the weakest babe in Christ can be swept into the vortex of destruction. The truth and righteousness and omnipotence of Jehovah are pledged for the eternal deliverance and blessedness of every soul that trusts in Jesus.

But that little monosyllable faith is one of the biggest words in the vocabulary of redemption. God's great trisyllable is righteousness, and this must be fulfilled; and as no one on earth could fulfill it after the advent of sin, there was no other way left for God but to become man and fulfill it himself. THIS fulfilled, it was fulfilled indeed, once for all. The Man Christ Jesus, our Brother, and Fellow-sufferer, proxy-sufferer, went back to Glory, the Captain of our salvation, our Representative and Advocate. To believe in him in the Gospel sense, is to be reckoned as he in the sight of God. But faith is not fancy; it is the very "substance" of Eternal realities. Heb. 11: 1. Neither are believers drones or Antinomians.

As far as God's righteousness reaches in the person and work of Emmanuel, so far does faith reach. Faith has accredited to it all there is in Jesus, and that is "all the fullness of the GODHEAD bodily;" and what it receives by imputation it expresses according to ability in all the forms of relationship and duty to God and man. How glorious, how perfect, how reasonable, how beautiful are the ways of God in the salvation of man!

To believe, and not doubt, is to have "the peace of God which passeth all understanding, keep our hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Philpp. 4: 7. "We walk even as he also walked," and carry on our mitre the blazing inscription that reveals our pedigree and destiny—"HOLINESS TO THE LORD." Redeemed from all iniquity, PURIFIED UNTO GOD, a peculiar people, ZEALOUS OF GOOD WORKS;—such are they who by faith are identified with Christ Jesus.

Although I sympathize with you in the death of your mother, I am far more glad than sorrowful over her release. In her 88th year she went to her grave fully ripened for the golden harvest in the glad morning of the Resurrection. Job 5: 26. She lived by, in, and for God, and her unclothing of mortality was the realization of these marvelous words: "To day thou shalt be with me in Paradise." Luke 23: 43.

How sweet the beatitudes of the Holy of Holies after so long service and so many afflictions in the outer court! "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the LAMB which IS in THE MIDST OF THE THRONE shall feed them and shall lead them unto LIVING FOUNTAINS of waters: and GOD shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Rev. 7: 16, 17. "There shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." "There shall be no night there," and yet the City has no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it; for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the Light thereof." "And they shall reign forever and ever." "Joint heirs with Christ," in all the exhaustless wealth and glory and joy of JEHOVAH! Rev. 21: 4, 23, 25, and chapter 22: 5; Rom. 8: 17; Heb. 1: 2.

Is not this "a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" to engulf in oblivion "our light afflictions which are but for a moment?" Verily, "it doth not yet appear WHAT WE SHALL BE;" but we know, we know, WE KNOW; oh the thrilling certainty of all this coming apocalypse and realization justified by revelation and claimed unwaveringly by faith! John 3: 2. With such royalty and sacerdotal honors and privileges in unquestioning anticipation, what is more natural than that genuine believers should give such hell-confounding, world-astounding, and heaven-gladdening emphasis to the two great twin words of grace and faith, "we know," "we know," "WE KNOW." "These sayings are FAITHFUL AND TRUE." Rev. 22: 6. "Wherefore COMFORT one another WITH THESE WORDS." 1 Thess. 4: 18. You have a mother in the City of God, and the Gates of Pearl are ajar for you.

Union Deposit, Pa., Feb. 11.

"ELIJAH'S SUCCESSOR."—2 Kings 2: 12 22.

BY S. B. MILLER.

"GOD buries the workmen, but carries on the work." Though workers die, the work must and does go on. Elijah had faithfully accomplished his mission, by doing what God had commanded him to do.

For over twelve years Elisha had been listening to the sublime instruction of Elijah. He follows Elijah until he sees him taken from earth. Who of us can follow a kind, loving, Christian father, mother, or friend to the grave, and then return just as we were before? The departure of a righteous person brings heaven nearer to us. We can but feel as if we can see the heavenly gates ajar, and feel the rays of heaven's light shining round about and upon us. As the fathers and prophets of Israel close their labors here on earth, their mantles fall behind them. Who shall be their successors? Young men are constantly preparing themselves to fill important positions in life. How many are preparing to be mantle-bearers? Remember, brethren, that the mantle will not rest upon your shoulders unless the grace of God fits you for the labor. Some one must carry God's work onward.

"Behold, I pray thee, the situation of this city is pleasant." Our surroundings are enjoyable. The world is gloriously adorned, and its resources are for the good of men, "but the water is naught." The sinful hearts of men emit the bitter water of death. The ground is beautiful, the seed is good, and pure, but the "bitter water" causes the earth to be barren. Oh, who can purify these waters? How can it be done? Disciples of Christ, "ye are the salt of the earth." Go forward with the Gospel of Christ, and purify the heart, the fountain head of sin. The purification must be at the fountain head. The world needs the consoling and purifying powers of the Gospel. Though we can not accomplish our work in precisely the same manner as our fore-fathers, the apostles, and prophets did, yet we can be prompted by the same spirit. The same power that wrought with them in their labors, will be with us to-day. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

Mt. Morris, Ill.

SOMETHING ABOUT TREES.

BY FANNY MORROW.

BORN and raised amidst the beautiful scenery of Richland County, Ohio, memory still clings with tenacious fondness to the delights I enjoyed in viewing her lovely valleys, hills and woodlands. Twenty-seven years of life, spent now in prairie countries, have not destroyed my love and admiration for trees, beautiful trees, which bear such an important part in the furnishing of our globe. How enchanting the scenes presented in spring-time, when the tender green of many shades appears, covering the unsightly limbs! As summer advances a canopy of dark green, exuberant foliage is formed, a welcome retreat from the piercing rays of the sun. Looking upon such an exhibi-

state. Down, deep in the soul a voice whispers to us, "We shall live again,"—that death does not end all. It is not all of life to live. We intuitively believe in the resurrection from the dead, without effort. This proves that the Divine Being implanted the fact of the resurrection and the future, indelibly upon the tablet of every heart.

The untutored savages of the forest, who never learned the doctrine of the resurrection from revelation, yet generally believe in a future state; hence they bury the hunting implements with their dead, believing they will need them again in the fair hunting-grounds above.

The Chinese cultivate and prize highly, long hair on their heads, thinking that this affords the angels in the resurrection a better opportunity to lift them out of the grave.

The Hindoo wife will permit herself to be burned to death on the funeral pile of her dead husband, believing that in so doing her happiness will be increased in the future world.

Thus we find traces of evidence among all the nations of earth, whether civilized or uncivilized, of their belief in the future state. Martha believed in the resurrection before Christ taught it, by saying of her brother Lazarus, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." John 11: 24.

THE VOICE OF NATURE.

To further show the possibility of the resurrection, we shall go out to glean a few thoughts from the field of nature. In the cold, icy, dreary months of winter, the vegetable world is seemingly dead. Just then it seems impossible for vegetation ever to come to life again. Everything looks so gloomy, while the icy monster holds his sway. But after the lapse of a few months, the genial rays of the sun will break the bands of ice and snow, and warm the cold earth, causing vegetation to spring forth and cover the earth with a beautiful mantle of green. The flowers will bloom, and the trees will be covered with living foliage, causing the songsters of the wood to come from a far country to sing us heavenly music. If God, in so short a time, can make such a mighty change in the vegetable world, can he not as easily bring to life again, those who have died, and clothe them with heavenly beauty? Surely! With God all things are possible. It is no harder for God to bring forth an angel from the grave, than it is for him to bring forth a beautiful flower from a handful of earth.

Another evidence in nature argues strongly as to the possibilities of the resurrection. We are all familiar, doubtless, with the insect called "locust." They come periodically, about fifteen years apart. Before they die, they deposit in the woods a small egg, which, in some way, finds its course to the ground. There it remains through all the changes of heat and cold, and wet and drouth, until its time to come forth has arrived. Then it comes forth again, — a fully-developed insect, by millions, soaring into the air aloud with song.

If God will so care for, and protect, such an insignificant insect as the locust, and bring it forth to life again, will he not much more care for and protect us, and bring us forth in the glory of the resurrection from the dead? Surely!

THE VOICE OF REVELATION.

In the Old Testament, the evidences in support of the resurrection, are not so abundant and clear, as in the New Testament. The first evidence we have in the Bible of the future state, we have in the translation of Enoch. Gen. 5: 24. Though Enoch's translation was not strictly a resurrection, but merely a change, still it proves to us the future state of man.

The next evidence is the expression of David at the death of his child. 2 Samuel 12: 23. It seemed to afford him much comfort that he could go to his child. The Psalmist, evidently, did not mean the grave, for that would not have given him any comfort, but he, no doubt, meant that he would associate with his child again in the future state. Next we have the vision of Ezekiel in the valley of "Dry Bones," by which was represented the whole house of Israel, at a time when Israel was in bondage in a far distant country, and had given up all hope of ever returning to their native land again. Ezek. 37: 1–10.

Next is the prophecy of Daniel 12: 2, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." In Malachi 3: 17 we read, "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."

When we come to the New Testament, the evidences, in support of the resurrection, are more numerous. We shall not merely refer to the evidences, but quote them in full, even if it does require more space, for in so doing, we get the evidences together and they mutually support each other, and also aid us in confirming our hope in the resurrection of the just.

"For thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Luke 14: 14.

"Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Luke 20: 36.

"Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." John 5: 28, 29.

"And preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead." Acts 4: 2.

Because he preached unto them Jesus and the resurrection. Acts 23: 6.

"That there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." Acts 24: 15.

"Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day." Acts 24: 21.

"Declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead." Rom. 1: 4.

"If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead." Philpp. 3: 11.

"Who concerning the truth have erred, saying that the resurrection is past already; and overthrow the faith of some." 2 Tim. 2: 18.

Of the doctrine of the resurrection from the dead. Heb. 6: 2.

"That they might obtain a better resurrection." Heb. 11: 35.

"This is the first resurrection." Rev. 20: 5.

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection." Rev. 20: 6.

SCRIPTURAL TESTIMONIES OF CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

Jesus says of himself, "I am the resurrection." John 11: 25. That is through and by him every one will be resurrected. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. 15: 22. All the race died in Adam before they lived, in consequence of the sentence of death upon Adam and Eve, before a child was begotten. So, by virtue of Christ's resurrection, every one who died in Adam will be resurrected from the dead

"For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures: and that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once." 1 Cor. 15: 3–6.

"Go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead." Matt. 28: 7.

"Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here." Mark 16: 6.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen." Luke 24: 5, 6.

"This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead." John 21: 14.

"He, seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption." Acts 2: 31.

"And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus." Acts 4: 34.

"Hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." 1 Peter 1: 3.

"I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forevermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death." Rev. 1: 18.

Other Scriptural evidences might be adduced, testifying to the resurrection of Christ, but those already quoted are sufficient to remove every shadow of doubt, as regards the fact of the resurrection from the dead, from every believer. With all these evidences before us, "The voice of the soul," "the voice of nature," and "the voice of Revelation," can there remain any doubt in the mind of the skeptic or infidel, as to the future state of the human race? We think not.

Doubtless there are those who would rather not see the resurrection, who prefer their dark deeds to be forever covered in the darkness of the grave; hence such persons try to disbelieve in the future state, but this will not prevent the resurrection, in God's own appointed time.

Bro. J. H. Miller came to the Brick Church, one mile north of Union City, on the State line, Dec. 10, and closed his meetings Dec. 24. There were none added to our number, but we feel that we were greatly benefited and built up in the most holy faith.

During our series of meetings we had an interesting children's meeting that will long be remembered by both parents and children. Our prayers are that Bro. Miller may be spared many years to work in the vineyard of our Lord.

Bro. D. S. Filbrun, of Brandt, Miami County, Ohio, began a series of meetings Dec. 25, 1890, at the Roe school-house, four miles east of Union City. The house was too small to accommodate the people, but there was a good interest manifested, and good order There were no additions to our number, but a feeling was awakened that there will be an ingathering in the near future. Bro. Filbrun also conducted a children's meeting that, we trust will be a grand success for the advancement of Christ's Kingdom.

Bro. Silas Gilbert, one of our home ministers, began a series of meetings on the evening of Jan. 1, at our south house, four miles south-east of Union City, and closed Jan. 15. We had an excellent time for our meetings, with the exception of a few times, when the rain hindered. While there were no additions to the church, we have some promises for the near future. James T. FEB. 14, our council was held at Tropico. A fair attendance was present, and everything seemed to pass off in the spirit of love. Brethren Moore and Metzger were present to assist with their wholesome counsel. They also preached for us at night and next day. At our council a liberal collection was taken up for the Western sufferers.

Since our last we learn that there was a series of meetings conducted by Bro. Lehmer, assisted by other brethren, at Glendora, this County, and that six were added to the church by baptism. Almost daily some brethren or friends from the East are coming into our County. The long-continued dry weather seems to have come to an end, as now we are having good rains and many hearts are glad. From Lincoln, Nebr.

WE began a series of meetings Nov. 22, at a school-house ten miles south-west of the City of Lincoln.

How glad we were to see our dear brother, Enoch Eby, come into our midst and earnestly engage in the work! His stay was short, but in the two sermons preached by him, both saint and sinner received a portion. Christ was pointed to as our Redeemer and Example and many good lessons were given from the Word.

After Bro. Eby left, the home ministers continued the meetings till Nov. 29, when Bro. Jacob Ryan, of the Weeping Water church, Cass Co., came to our assistance, and wielded the Sword of the Spirit to our edification.

At the close of these meetings two sisters were received by baptism. May they, with us, be faithful until death!

We now number twenty-nine members. Feb. 14 we met in quarterly council in the City of Lincoln. Our trustees were elected by ballot. It seems hard to find a lot on which to build a church-house. Lots are high and our means limited, but we hope soon to decide upon a lot, and be able to push the work forward.

The money subscribed for the meeting-house in the city, thus far amounts to $715, besides a donation of $200 by the General Mission Board, making a total of $915.

This is a hard year to build. The shortage and failure of crops in our State last year causes our funds to run low, and much will be needed ere we can harvest another crop, yet I must say that our Nebraska Brethren have done well, and many have given liberally. Still much is needed to complete the building, and we thought best not to go in debt.

Any one who would like to help the work along, can do so by sending his donation to Bro. L. H. Eby, Lincoln, Nebr. You may be sure it will be thankfully received.

At our council Bro. L. H. Eby was elected delegate to District Meeting. The weather was pleasant through the months of December and January. February has been our coldest month.

Our snows have been few and light. I think I may safely say, that we had not more than four and one-half inches of snow-fall all winter, up to present date.

May Zion prosper every-where, is our earnest prayer! D. G. COUSER.

YESTERDAY was held the regular quarterly council in the St. Joseph congregation. A fair representation of the members was present. To us these meetings are always interesting, for there we can talk on matters pertaining to church work, interchange our views, and offer suggestions relative to the work in hand and the welfare of the members. Among the business transacted, was the appointing of a Communion, to be held at the Wenger church, June 12, beginning at 5 P. M., to which a cordial invitation is extended. It was also agreed to re-organize our Sunday-school the first Sunday in April. Our ministers,—Eld. H. W. Krieghbaum and Wm. C. Miller were sent as delegates to District Meeting and Eld. Krieghbaum to Annual Meeting. The Western sufferers were also remembered. A number of brethren and sisters had previously sent in their mites, so that the amount collected was not as large as it otherwise would have been.

Our series of meetings, which commenced Dec. 14, 1890, was conducted by Eld. Amos Peters, of La Paz, Ind., who preached sixteen sermons for us, closing on Christmas night with a full house. Some thought there would be no congregations present on that day, as other denominations had entertainments, calculated to attract the young, and many older ones, too, but we had good meetings, both day and evening.

There were no accessions to the church during the meetings, yet our brother gave us many encouraging thoughts, and his labors were much appreciated. During Bro. Peters' sojourn among us, it was ascertained that he had been a soldier in the Confederate Army, and he was prevailed upon to give us a talk on "Life in the South," and how he escaped from the Rebel Army. On Saturday night, Dec. 19, he delivered this special sermon, taking for his text, "Escape for thy life." He made some excellent Bible applications upon the incidents related. C. M. WENGER.

My Eastern Trip.

SOME of my dear brethren, in the eastern churches especially, have been looking for a communication from me through the columns of the GOSPEL MESSENGER. My intention was to have continued the series of articles while proceeding on my ministerial tour among the churches, but having forwarded my first article without my signature, it was deposited among the nameless letters. It is the established rule of our editors not to publish anonymous letters. I did not mean to disrespect the rule, but simply forgot to sign my name.

I spent about nine weeks in visiting the Norristown, Philadelphia, Hatfield, Indian Creek, Skippack, and Mingo churches. I shall long remember the joys and sorrows of this journey through the churches in the land of my nativity, freighted with anxious cares and serious responsibilities.

The Skippack church I fondly cherish, as the church that received me from my wayward course. I shall never forget my welcome reception into the bonds of Christian fellowship. Long I had wandered through the wilds of sin. I had witnessed the storms of human strife, and had trembled by reason of the goadings of conscience in the shock of battle. I was pained at the groans of the dying and sadly deplored the scenes of bloodshed and misery. I had three years of experience of ocean life, with its rounds of wearied toil, waves and hardships. The nautical world, especially, was the school of my discipline, and the foaming surges and the horrible aspect of the deep in its fury, by the guiding hand of Providence, I believe was employed to break the spell of sin and the sway of the Satanic power. I came, as the Biblical prodigal of old, to my native land,—contrite, lone and weary, and you, oh, my native church, in your humble attitude and Christ-like mien, received me with smiles of welcome and loving embraces into your heaven-procured refuge,—the church. Language can never depict your then beautiful aspect to my penitent eyes. O, how great the contrast between the floating prison on the boisterous main and the humble, graceful and loving vision of the church! I trust that the weary, heavy-laden and contrite child, whom you received into your sacred enclosures still fancies that humble vision of old, and I hope that, by this time, he has advanced in Christian piety and still is an humble and fervent advocate of the simple order of God's house which you maintained and exemplified at the time of his reception.

But, oh, my native church, must I live to see your beauty marred? Must I live to see your graceful banner trailing in the dust? While you still have loyal adherents to the Truth in its humble bearings and Christ-like tendencies, I notice sad digressions from the ancient landmarks of beauty and power. O, do not ape a gaudy religion that boasts of the crown, minus the cross, whereof the end will be a sad failure!

Retrace your steps, ye erring ones
And taste that pure first love again;
Sing as of old love's thrilling songs,
And spread the humble Savior's fame.

THE District Meeting of Michigan, was held in our church Feb. 21, preceded by the council-meeting of our congregation, on the 19th. Not much business came before the church. One was disowned who refused to hear the church. The District Meeting was not very fully represented by delegates, but all business was attended to in the fear of the Lord. A query and a petition go from our District to Annual Meeting. Our District Meeting is being followed by a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Isaiah Rairigh, who spends most of his time during the winter season in the mission field.

In Bro. D. Vaniman's synopsis of a series of sermons, delivered by Eld. Enoch Eby, I would like to have a further explanation of the point in the sixth discourse,—Why is it that fallen members need not be rebaptized? EZRA RICHARD.

OUR first quarterly church meeting for 1891, occurred Feb. 26; we had a very nice little meeting. Considerable business came before the council, but all was satisfactorily disposed of. We elected a full corps of officers for the current year. After settling up all our expenses, we find a small balance in our treasury. This is as it should be. Have a church treasury, and always keep it well supplied with funds. Two dear souls, who had not walked with us for some years, made application to be re-instated into the church again, which was gladly done, through much rejoicing, and we pray God that they may hereafter be bright and shining lights in the church, so that others may see their good works, and thereby be constrained to glorify their Father which is in heaven.

We also appointed solicitors to solicit funds for the Western sufferers. May God put it into the hearts of all our dear brethren and sisters to lend a hand in this great work, and thereby relieve the needy! If all would lend a helping hand in this matter, the needy could be greatly relieved, and we would not miss anything, for he that "giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord."

ON Saturday, Feb. 28, the church met in quarterly council. All the business that came before the meeting was attended to in a spirit of love and good feeling.

It was our sad and painful duty to disown several members. May they soon see the fatal steps they have taken, and return to follow the footsteps of their Blessed Master.

The church decided to re-organize our Sunday-school. Bro. Frank Gilbert was elected as Superintendent, and brethren Henry Keltner and Geo. Fisher, Assistants, who are aided by an able corps of officers and teachers. It was decided to begin the school on the second Sunday of April.

Our love-feast will be held June 18 and 19. An invitation is extended to all. Bro. Jacob Delp was chosen as delegate to Annual Meeting and brethren Preston Clair and Geo. Fisher were chosen to represent us at District Meeting. We ask an interest in the prayers of God's children everywhere.

OUR regular council was held Feb. 7. Everything was disposed of in a Christian-like manner. We have a live church, always working in the vineyard of the Lord. Our Sunday-school will begin in the near future. Bro. George Stauffer was elected as Superintendent, Bro. Jacob Cornish as Assistant, and Bro. J. H. Nowlan as Secretary.

Bro. Flora came to our church Feb. 15, and held a series of meetings, ending Feb. 22. Although none were added to the church, we are convinced that lasting impressions have been made on the minds of many, and we hope to see a bountiful ingathering of the seed sown during these meetings. The members were all greatly built up in the faith, and we pray that we may all try to carry out the principles of the Gospel, and heed the instructions of our beloved brother.

Funds for Western Sufferers in North-Western Kansas and Western Nebraska.

MY sympathies were aroused on learning the sad condition of the people of the North-western part of this State and Western Nebraska. I at once concluded to head a subscription paper and start out to see if I could induce any one to aid them. Most of the afternoon was spent in canvassing our little town and soliciting persons that came in from the country. The result of this I give below, with the names. Please acknowledge it in our paper, that they may see all accounted for. The donors have my thanks for their kindness and respect shown me, in giving for the poor. They have only lent to the Lord, who is amply able to repay.

Remember, the Lord loveth a cheerful giver, and he that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord. Let us fill that crown with stars, for the opportunities are many, and the crown is sure for the faithful child of God: Media, Kans., T. A. Robinson, $2.00; A. J. Robinson, $1.00; R. A. A TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Walter Kenney, a well-to-do farmer, living five miles east of Cameron, Mo., came into town Feb. 11, and filled up on local option whiskey. He returned home in the afternoon and drove his family away from the house except a son about nine years old. That night the house caught on fire and was entirely destroyed. The son was awakened by the fire, but, unable to rouse his father, and no help being at hand, the old man perished in the flames. Kinney stood high in this community, but has been drinking heavily of late, and was thought by some to be insane.

The mother of Miss Kate Drexel, who has recently "taken the veil" at Pittsburg, was a member of the Brethren church. Miss Kate inherited about $7,000,000, which she gives to the Catholic church for the education of Indians and negroes, and has herself taken the irrevocable vow of poverty, chastity and obedience. She belongs to the "Convent of the Sisters of Mercy" at Pittsburg.

Bro. Isaac Crist made us a visit recently, in the interest of the Old Folks' Home, established at Booth, Kans. He preached two sermons to us that were full of spiritual meat and power, and then departed on his way southward into Cherokee County, to visit the Cherokee Brethren. We are glad to have Bro. Isaac visit us. We are glad, also, to learn that the prospect for the speedy endowment of our Old Folks' Home is very good.

They have had Eld. J. H. Our Sunday-school is an evergreen one. We do not skip about, after the "International" sort, but take the Testament, chapter after chapter. We began at Matthew and have now progressed nearly through Acts, and feel to recommend this system to our Brethren every-where. In fact, our whole school is a Bible class.

Certainly we think the Editor should have discretion as to what is best to publish, and what is best to leave out. That is what an Editor is for, and if he has the good of the church at heart he must exercise great care. People often write, under impulse, what they would not say, or write, after deliberation. The best pieces, however, are usually written under impulse; so are the worst ones,—I mean those most productive of evil. There is an inspiration about writing, but sometimes it comes from the wrong source. The impartial Editor is the best judge. Let him discriminate!

A Useful Life Ended.

FEB. 14, 1891, our esteemed brother, Jacob P. Lerow, of Upper Conawago congregation, Adams Co., Pa., passed quietly away and was gathered unto his fathers. He was greatly concerned about the church, and it was his wish that he might not pass away until he would see it in good working order, but the death of his wife, his son and daughter, all in a comparatively short period, pressed very weightily upon the old father, and he, too, wanted to go. He served the church, as near as we can ascertain, about thirty years in the ministry, of which the last eight were spent in the office of Bishop. In that capacity he manifested some of those excellent traits which should be woven into the character of all, appointed to this high office. Unwavering he moved along, steady and evenly in his life,—never elated if successful, never despondent if disappointed. In council-meetings he never flinched when he knew he was right, but always yielded his opinion when shown to be in error. Notwithstanding the sharp expressions, sometimes uttered by some, we never saw a frown nor flush of anger on his countenance. He never became excited, but was cool, calm and composed, gentle in his deliberations, safe in his counsels and impartial in his decisions. His nearest kinsmen must attest that he knew no man after the flesh.

As age grew on him, he confessed that our church was far behind in some of the things, now seriously considered by the General Brotherhood, —Tract Work, Missionary Work and Sunday-schools. As he stood one day, talking to the writer, feeling that his career would soon be ended, he reminded us of an old warrior at the close of day, standing on some point of eminence, overlooking the field of battle, reviewing the scene of action, pointing out the mistakes, and showing where and how better work might have been done.

Thus he showed where the church failed, where it can yet improve. He urged the establishing of a good Sunday-school, and stronger efforts in the Missionary and Tract Work, setting an example by arranging with his family for a donation to this enterprise for the advancement of the good cause. We feel that the church has lost a good counselor, and while our sympathy is drawn out toward the entire circle of bereaved friends, we remember especially the two lonely daughters, the only surviving members of the immediate household, who will most deeply feel the loss of a father.

MAY WOMEN SPEAK IN THE CHURCH?

D. L. MILLER,

Dear Brother:—1. Please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35. "Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church." JOSEPH AMICK.

Dear Brother:—2. Will you please explain through the MESSENGER 1 Tim. 2: 12: "But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence." D. W. [illegible]

EDITOR MESSENGER,

Dear Brother:—I have read the MESSENGER carefully, and notice what you have had to say on sisters speaking in the church and praying in prayer-meeting. I have also read our dear brother Quinter's views on the subject, but I would like to have the subject treated again. Thousands are uniting with the church every year, and they are anxious to learn the sentiment of the Brotherhood on this question.

Yours in Fraternal Love,
JOS. G. CALVERT.

Sterling, Ky.

ANS.—We give place to these three queries, out of a number, on the subject of women speaking in the church. There seems to be a general desire to have the subject treated again in the MESSENGER. The general interest on the subject grows out of the fact, that since Sunday-schools and social or prayer-meetings have grown so largely in favor among the churches, our sisters take part in the work, and use the liberty given them to speak in the social meeting, and to teach in the Sunday-school. In view of those facts, the queries come in. Some there are who can not reconcile our present practice with the language of the apostle quoted above. Our dear Bro. Quinter gave this subject a great deal of study and thought, and wrote a lengthy and exhaustive editorial on it, which was published in the MESSENGER some years ago, and was, by special request, republished since his death. Bro. Quinter's treatment of the subject was so full and complete, that it leaves nothing new to be said. To us it was entirely satisfactory, and we would be quite willing to let that suffice, but by urgent request we give the subject some consideration.

The Scriptures referred to in the queries seem to be clear and pointed. The language is easily understood, and standing alone, the only conclusion to be drawn from them would be, that women are prohibited from speaking in the congregation. The injunctions are clearly set forth: "Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak . . . It is a shame for a woman to speak in the church. . . . But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man." The last clause would, if literally interpreted, prevent women from teaching either in public or in private, and no one would care to assume a position of that kind.

In looking at the apostle's language here, we must compare it with other Scriptures, and if we examine the question carefully, we will find that woman took an active and prominent part in the work of the apostolic church. Other passages of Scripture clearly indicate, that the women prayed, prophesied, taught, and labored faithfully in such church work as was suited to her condition in life. We must, therefore, in order to harmonize these Scriptures with others, look for a meaning that does not prohibit women from taking some part in the public services of the congregation.

Let us first look at the work of women in the New Testament.

1. Anna, the prophetess. A widow, eighty-four years old, a woman upon whom the Holy Ghost rested. She enjoyed the privilege of speaking in public, even in the Temple, and that, too, under the Jewish Dispensation, but just as the day-star of salvation began to shine. When Jesus was forty days old, he was presented to the Lord in the temple, and here it was that Simeon blessed mother and child, and Anna, a prophetess "coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Luke 2: 38. This is a remarkable incident under the Law. Paul says women were commanded to be under obedience. But the presence of the babe, Jesus, in the temple, is made the occasion of a special manifestation of the prophetic spirit, and this through a man and a woman,—Simeon and Anna. Is this not strong evidence, that, under the Gospel, woman was to have more liberty than under the Law?

2. We pass over the faithful work of the woman, who followed the Master in his labor of love for humanity, seeing her "last at the cross, and first at the sepulchre," and notice the first prayer-meeting held by the disciples after the ascension of the blessed Lord. In this meeting, held in an upper room, where abode the eleven apostles, there were present "the women,"—those who loved and followed the Lord. "These all,"—the eleven apostles,—"continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren." Acts 1: 14. The words used, "continued with one accord," denote persevering, constant employment, with one mind,—the entire meeting was a unit. There was an entire harmony of feeling. They were all one in Christ Jesus in that high, spiritual sense in which the apostle says there is "neither male nor female." But did the women take part in this meeting? This language plainly indicates that they did. The social meeting continued some days, and immediately preceded the outpouring of the Holy Ghost. "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place." Acts 2: 1. The words "they were all," refer to the disciples, about one hundred and twenty in number, who had "continued with one accord in prayer," and they were thus together when the Holy Ghost fell upon them. "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance." Acts 2: 4. Here again, the question is asked, Did the women speak? Let us see? They, the disciples, were all present, then the women were there too. They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they all began to speak. Then the women also received the spirit and spoke with tongues. Peter settles the question when he quotes from the prophet Joel. "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh:" not only on men. "And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." Acts 2: 17. He tells the people, who were witnesses to the marvelous occurrences on the day of Pentecost, that the words of the prophet were fulfilled in their sight for both sons and daughters; men and women were prophesying before them. The fact that women took part in the social meeting, and were made partakers of the spirit of God, and did prophesy on the day of Pentecost has a weighty bearing on the subject of women taking part in public worship. Paul's words, given in the queries, evidently do not refer to women praying in the social, or prayer-meeting, speaking with tongues or prophesying.

3. Paul, in his journey toward Jerusalem, tarried at the hospitable home of Philip, the Evangelist, "The same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy." Acts 21: 9. Here, again, we have a clear record of women who engaged in prophesying, i. e., speaking in public, to the edification of the hearers, in the early Christian church. Paul knew these sisters, and certainly his prohibition was not intended to reach cases of this kind. This record gives another instance of the fulfillment of the words of Joel the prophet. Lange has this to say of the daughters of Philip: "His four daughters, who had received the gift of prophecy and of interpretation, and who, as pure virgins, represent the chastity of the daughter of Zion, furnish new and clear evidence, that all believers alike, enjoy the privileges of children; and even the earlier instances of the prophetess Miriam, Deborah, etc., prove that there is no difference in the kingdom of grace between male and female." Gal. 3: 28.

4. In connection with women praying and speaking in public, we have reference to some who attained to a considerable degree of prominence, as expounders and laborers in the apostolic church. The first one to whom reference is made is Priscilla. She, with her husband, engaged in instructing, teaching and expounding the Truth to Apollos, "an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures," but he knew only the baptism of John. "And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue: whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly." Acts 18: 26. Paul's words, "I suffer not a woman to teach," does not refer to the expounding and teaching of Priscilla, for he speaks of her afterwards in the highest terms of praise. "Greet Priscilla and Aquila my helpers in Christ Jesus: who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles." Rom. 16: 3-4. It is worthy of note, that Paul here places the name of Priscilla before that of her husband in giving the praise that is due them from him, and all the churches of the Gentiles for their good work in expounding the way of God. And this doubtless, because, as Meyer aptly says, of her "preponderant Christian activity and relative superiority."

5. "I commend unto you Phebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea: that ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also." Rom. 16: 1, 2. Our sister Phebe, referred to, was, according to the Revised Version, marginal reading, a deaconess, and as the words of Paul show, was held in high esteem by the apostle. Being a deaconess, and having used the office well, otherwise Paul would not have praised her, she had purchased to herself "a good degree, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus." 1 Tim. 3: 13. Evidently the language of Paul, in 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, and 1 Tim. 2: 12, did not prevent women from becoming servants, deaconesses of the church, and of securing to themselves the meed of praise, given so strongly by the apostle.

6. "Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labor in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which labored much in the Lord." Rom. 16: 12. The first two named were probably sisters, and Meyer places them with Persis in the same office with Phebe. Whether they were deaconesses or not, we can not fully determine, but the language certainly implies more than ordinary service and labor in the church. This is apparent from the special mention made of their work by the apostle. Dr. Arnold says, in his comments on this Scripture: "The apostle's frequent commendation of females, who abounded in their Christian labors, toiling not only much, but, as the verb implies, laboriously, makes it evident that he would not restrict them from the most abundant Christian activity." Barnes says: "These names, with the participle rendered "who labor," are in the feminine gender, and these were probably two holy women who performed the office of deaconesses, or who ministered to the sick, and who, with Persis, thus, by example, and perhaps by instruction, labored to promote the spread of Christianity. Pious females then, as now, were able to do much in their proper sphere to extend the truths and blessings of the Gospel." Here, again, we find women engaged in work in the church, which, if a literal interpretation be made of the apostle's language in the queries, she could not consistently do.

7. We call attention to one more Scripture, which clearly sets forth that women may pray and prophesy by complying with certain requirements. In 1 Cor. 11: 3–16 the apostle refers, without rebuke, to women praying and prophesying, and not only so, but he gives explicit directions as to the manner in which they should engage in these services. He prescribes a prayer-covering for the women, and with their heads covered the right to pray and speak in public is accorded to them. To argue that women should not have this privilege, would be to entirely ignore the plain truth set forth in 1 Cor. 11. But does the word prophesy, as used in this Scripture, refer to public speaking? This is very generally conceded. Dr. Gould says: "This word 'prophesying' is not restricted in Greek, as it is in English, to the fore-telling of future events, but denotes inspired speaking in general. Furthermore, this word, like our word 'preach,' refers always to public utterances, so that the praying would probably be of the same character, which also appears from the nature of the subject." Dr. Barnes says: "The word prophesying here means, evidently, teaching, or publicly speaking to the people on the subject of religion." Lange says: "Prophesying. Speaking in public. . . . Such a discourse, as set forth the mysteries of the divine counsels, or of the human life, under a divine inspiration." With the views here expressed, agree Bible scholars generally. Again, we find a privilege impliedly granted to women, that does not harmonize with the direct prohibition of the apostle in the words of our queries.

We have given a number of examples of women speaking in public, as well as Scripture according her that privilege, and when we come to harmonize these with the Scriptures given us in the queries, we are forced to the conclusion, that the apostle does not mean to entirely prohibit women from speaking in public, and we must look for an interpretation that will harmonize this with the practice of the apostolic church, and with other Scriptures on the same subject. With this object in view, we look again at the apostle's language. "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak. For it is a shame for women to speak in the church. But I suffer not a woman to teach or usurp authority over the man."

The language here shows that there is a speaking of women in the church that is not allowed, as plainly as the eleventh chapter of first Corinthians shows that there is a kind of speaking that is allowed. The speaking that is allowed is expressed by the word prophesy, that which is not allowed, and of which it is said, that it is a shame for a woman to engage in, grew out of the method of conducting the assemblies when Paul wrote, and on this point we quote from Dr. Adam Clarke: "It was permitted to any man to ask questions, to object, altercate, attempt to refute, etc., in the synagogue; but this liberty was not allowed to any woman. St. Paul confirms this in reference also to the Christian church; he orders them to keep silence; because it was deemed indecorous for women to be contending with men in public assemblies, on points of doctrine, cases of conscience, etc." This, then, is the kind of speaking which the apostle forbids. It is not in keeping with the sphere of women to thus engage, in the public assembly, in altercation and controversy with men. She lowers the diguity and the modesty of her womanhood by such conduct, and thus it becomes a shame for her to speak in the church. The fact that the apostle tells them to ask their husbands at home, shows that he refers to the custom of asking questions as here indicated.

It is also worthy of notice that the apostle was correcting this custom or method of conducting the public assembly of the brethren. "How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation." 1 Cor. 14: 26. Here was confusion, so much so that he says farther on, "For God is not the author of confusion but of peace." The full meaning of the word confusion in the Greek is tumult, unquietness. Here was an assembly of Christians, engaged in the public service of God, and each one, men and women, had a question to ask, an interpretation, or a doctrine, or a revelation to present, others had psalms to sing. The meeting resulted in a tumult and confusion and disorder reigned. Paul corrects all of this, and prohibits women from speaking in such meetings, but not a word is said against her prophesying, for he says: "Ye may all prophesy one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted . . . Let all things be done decently and in order."

The apostle's language, in 1 Tim. 2: 11–12, places women where God placed her in creation. The order is God, Christ, man, woman. Man stands, then, as the properly constituted authority in the home and in the church, and it is not right that a woman should usurp authority, neither is it right that men should usurp authority. If a woman have the gift of prophecy, and of teaching and expounding the Scripture, and she is given authority by the church to exercise the gift that is in her, certainly there is no usurpation of authority, and she would have the right to pray and prophesy, but if she should assume to herself the right to speak in public, to stand at the head of the family, and to arrogantly teach, she would be usurping authority, and this the apostle positively forbids, and a similar course, as to speaking and teaching, pursued by men, would be also condemned.

God has given women their place in his creation, and it is in the opportunities afforded for doing good, the highest and holiest condition in life; —wifehood, motherhood, the home, the family,— here is her legitimate sphere. If God, however, endows her with the gift of prophesying and of teaching, and if her condition in life is such that she can engage in such work, without neglecting other duties, the Scriptures, it seems to us, open the way for her to exercise the gift that is in her.

We close our consideration of this subject by quoting the concluding remarks of our dear Bro. Quinter in his able article on the question: "May Women Publicly Prophesy."

"Christian denominations have not been very consistent in regard to women's prophesying publicly. Many of those denominations that construe Paul's teaching against it, have had women among them who labored publicly in various ways in promoting religious and moral enterprises in the world.

"The position that we, as a Christian body occupy at present, in regard to this matter is expressed in the 7th article of the Minutes of 1859, which reads as follows: 'Does the Gospel admit of female preaching? And if it does, shall they not have authority from the church under whose jurisdiction they are? Ans. As Paul recognizes a distinction, in Rom. 12: 6–7, between teaching, ministering and prophesying, and as he evidently approves of females prophesying, 1 Cor. 11: 5, we think a female can not teach or preach, according to 1 Cor. 14: 34; 1 Tim. 2: 12, in the ordinary acceptation of those terms; yet we can not, under all circumstances, forbid them to prophesy.' Public prophesying was here meant.

"Our brethren had occasion to consider the subject. We had a sister by the name of Sarah Major, nee Sarah Riter, who, while yet quite a young woman, felt it to be her duty, though a great cross to her, to bear public testimony to Christ and his Truth. She was a woman of more than ordinary ability, of high Christian culture, and of most exemplary character. Owing to the limited views that many brethren took of Paul's teaching, concerning the liberty that women have in the church, she had considerable opposition to encounter at first, but it diminished as her profitable and edifying labors became known by the churches; so that, after she had exercised awhile in public, she had more calls from the churches than she could fill, and she had many friends outside of the Brotherhood."

MODERN SKEPTICISM.

BY D. E. PRICE.

SKEPTICISM and infidelity are closely allied to each other; hence Webster gives skepticism, infidelity and unbelief as synonyms.

When applied to the Holy Scriptures, it generally manifests itself in seeking for contradictions, or disagreements with either themselves or nature, and we, who profess the Christian religion, often fail through our ignorance, in reconciling them, and thereby give more occasion to those who are inclined to doubt the reality of the Bible and Christianity.

We will first refer to the language of our Savior, Matt. 12: 40, "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the whale's belly: so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." This Scripture is almost universally applied to the time that Christ was in the grave, which we can not sustain by any testimony. Now the skeptic demands of us to show that he was three days and three nights in the grave, which we invariably fail to do and bring reproach on the cause, while strengthening the infidel in his course.

According to the record, Christ was only about thirty-six hours in the grave, and was not buried in the heart, but in the surface of the earth, which still makes more of a contradiction, or disagreement. Hence we must look somewhere else for the fulfillment of that Scripture.

We will hear what Paul has to say on the subject, Eph. 4: 9, 10, "Now he that ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heaven, that he might fill all things." We understand that the heart is near about the center of the body, and Paul's language, "the lower parts of the earth," would convey about the same idea. When did he descend to the lower parts of the earth? Did he do so while his body lay in the grave? Nay, verily. He descended after his resurrection. Everybody believes that he ascended to heaven in his resurrected body, and Paul says, "He that descended is the same as he that ascended." Hence, if Christ ascended to heaven in his resurrected body, he also descended to the lower parts of the earth, or the underworld, in his resurrected body.

We will now refer to 1 Peter 3: 18, 19, 20: "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit: by which he also went and preached unto the spirits in prison; which sometime were disobedient, when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water."

Here is where a great many again fall into the same error, by taking the position that Christ preached to the spirits in prison while his body was in the grave. However, no one can sustain that idea if he properly reads the text. One of the greatest reasons of our misunderstanding the Scriptures is, because we do not read them careful enough.

Another point to which we must pay strict attention is, to supply in the mind what is not expressed in language; for all written language as well as spoken, is more or less elliptical, and if the omitted part is not supplied, we do not catch the full meaning of what is written or spoken.

Now, then, let us examine Peter's language, "For Christ once suffered for our sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh." Now we have a dead Christ, which all have to admit, but quickened by the Spirit. Quickening means to make alive, hence now he (Christ) is made alive. How is he made alive? Peter says, "By the Spirit." Now we have him dead and made alive, and are ready to read further. "By which (Spirit,—not expressed, but understood, which must be supplied in the mind) also he (not his spirit, but he through the influence of the Spirit by which he was made alive) went and preached to the spirits in prison. Hence, if language has any meaning, we are driven to the conclusion that he preached to the spirits in prison after his resurrection, which perfectly agrees with the language of Paul, already quoted.

The question may now arise, "When was Christ three days and three nights in the heart, or the lower parts of the earth?" We answer, "Some time during his forty days' sojourn on earth between his resurrection and ascension into heaven."

We were accosted in our early experience in the Christian religion, by one of those characters with the following question: "What gave light to the world the first three days of creation?" We at first did not know just what he meant. "Why," said he, "the sun by which the earth is illuminated, was not made until the fourth day." We were at first about as much puzzled as we ever were in all our life, but, after a little meditation, we thought of what Paul says in Rom. 3: 4, "Let God be true, but every man a liar." We said we would not deny the record because we could not understand or comprehend it, but we would be the liar, and take God at his word, and accept it by faith. But we have given the subject more thought since, and think we would answer differently now. We are commanded to "give an answer to every man that asketh us, a reason of our hope with meekness and fear." We read concerning the New Jerusalem, the Holy City which came down from God out of heaven, Rev. 21: 23, "And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." Again, 22: 5, "And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light."

In view of the above, we conclude if the Lord God and the Lamb will be the light of the New Jerusalem, he being the Source of all light and life, could enlighten the world before there was a sun or moon.

CHURCH ENTERTAINMENTS.

BY A. SIMS.

MODERN schemes for raising money for God's cause, as church fairs, lotteries, socials, bazaars, tea-meetings, etc., are sinful, for the following reasons:

1. They are contrary to the teachings and examples of the Bible. The simple method of free-will offerings alone is approved. See Ex. 35: 5–29; 2 Cor. 8 and 9; Luke 16: 35; Matt. 10: 8. Suppose Moses had got up a great bazaar to draw the surrounding heathens into his camp to get means to build a tabernacle? How would it harmonize with the character of the early Christians, to read in Paul's epistle, a direction to the saints to have festivals to raise money for the poor; or an exhortation to godly women to get up a grand concert like our modern devices?

The idea is erroneous and impious, that every dollar contributed to the cause of Christ, must receive a consideration in music, tea, oysters, or fancy articles. God demands free-will offerings, not expenditures that come from selfish motives, as a sort of an inducement to engage in them. Must we be bribed to duty with a stick of candy or a piece of cake? The money given in such ways is equivalent to saying: "Lord, I'll take half of this money for personal pleasure, and you can have the other half."

Is this benevolence? If, in the spirit of willing and cheerful obedience, men can not be persuaded to give to the Lord, "hoping for nothing again" as an equivalent, we have the best reason to believe that he does not want such giving at all.

Said a Presbyterian elder: "And now, brethren, let us have a supper, and eat ourselves rich. Buy your food, and then give it to the church. Then buy it back again. Then eat it up, and your church debt is paid." As Rev. A. J. Gordon says: "To receive an equivalent in food or goods for the money put into the Lord's treasury, robs the offering of its richest element—that of sacrifice. The very savor and sweetness of a gift in the sight of God are contained in this, as abundant Scriptures show. In God's reckoning, the value of an offering depends as much on what it costs the giver, as on what it nets the receiver. Therefore the treasury of the Lord is vastly more enriched by the widow's mite than by the widow's muffins.

2. To seek the assistance of the world, instead of obeying and trusting God for help, is a flagrant sin. What would be thought of a wife whose faithful husband supplies all her wants, if she should distrust and dishonor him by going to his enemies for money; or, to obtain it, should open his house for the entertainment of sensual pleasure-seekers? Yet such is the course pursued in these church entertainments. "Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of this world is enmity with God? Whosoever will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God." "Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help." The world loves its own. Of course the churches that depend on the world for support, are obliged to please the world, and to conform to it.

H. L. Hastings says: "If churches can not live without dishonoring the Lord, let them die decently and speedily. When such cumberers of the ground are cut down, there may be room for other trees that will bear good fruit. If ministers of the Gospel can not be supported without resorting to such means to obtain a livelihood, let them go into their secular business, with their backslidden churches, and leave their room for men whom God has really sent to preach his Word. The commissioned messengers of Almighty God—sent to warn a slumbering world of approaching judgment—are not dependent upon such sources for their support. This whole system of supporting religious worship by the sale of gimcracks and the giving of entertainments, is a fraud. A religion that can not be sustained without such devices, is not worth sustaining; and the ministry which is dependent for its support, on this sort of 'backsheesh'—begged from the votaries of the world, the flesh and the devil -is a disgrace to the Gospel which it professes to proclaim."

3. These methods greatly blight the spiritual life and soul-saving power of the church. Long observation confirms this view. These fun-loving church members are merely a dead weight of baptized worldlings. Professing godliness and yet practicing worldliness, they are making more infidels than all our enemies outside of the church. Many wonder why they do not have such powerful revivals as they had in former days. The real cause is to be found in the extreme worldliness that generally prevails among the ministers and members of modern churches. Their own sins are hindering the salvation of souls, and causing the awful desolations in Zion. The craze for money to gratify pride and ambition, absorbs so much of their time and labor that the salvation of souls is made a secondary consideration. Money and salary first, then a revival effort.

If these so-called revival meetings should come in the way of another entertainment, they are easily postponed, for money they will have, whether souls are saved or not. A brother writing to us concerning a protracted meeting, says: "As yet only one soul has been converted. Yet it is not much wonder. During three weeks, the meetings were closed three times for Christmas trees and the like." To say that the church of Christ can not be sustained without these contrivances to beguile the world into its support, is to confess that Christianity is a failure.

The practical effect of such a lamentable confession is, to lower the religion of the Bible in the estimation of the very persons whom it seeks to bless. Said an infidel: "I think your God must be in great need of money, if I may judge by the tricks which the churches practice to get it for him."

Thus is the spread of the Gospel hindered by this confessed weakness. A locomotive with the steam up, not only goes without help, but it draws the train. Such is Christianity. Where there is real piety, there is no need to call in flirts and fops to play and snicker over dolls and tomfooleries. No indulgence is right which unfits us for holy communion with God. Contemplate the gossiping, joking and fun in such meetings, and then attempting to pray!

Often these entertainments lead to disputes and divisions, and the devil thus steals away all inclinations to pray. "Neither be idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play." All these unseemly entertainments necessarily give sanction to an irreverent spirit in the place of worship, and educate society practically to disregard the sanctity of Jehovah's house. The sacredness of the sanctuary is soon forgotten in the roars of giddy laughter, stamping of feet, and rehearsal of silly anecdotes.

4. These entertainments lead to a forgetfulness of God, and beget in the minds of the young, a taste for amusement elsewhere. The pieces and parts acted on the platform, engender a love for theatricals; and from the church performance they go to the theatre. A young man that had been employed at a theatre, said that he had received in Sunday-school concerts his first training and taste for the stage. What possible good can result from these juvenile exhibitions of elocution and song, finery and vanity, flowers and gilt pasteboard? They do indeed "draw" immensely, but not to the Truth, or to Christ. Choral services and Sabbath-school concerts advertised as entertainments, are really feeders of the theatre, and not counter-attractions. "Evil communications corrupt good manners."

We are not permitted for pleasure's sake to enter into worldly fellowship. T. K. Lombard says: "What are festivals and tea-meetings as usually held by the churches, but parties of pleasure? What are the attractions on such occasions, but worldly allurements; and what is the entertainment but worldly pleasure? How can those, who so frequently enjoy pleasure parties in churches, think it a sin to attend them outside of the churches, even though it is in a circus or theatre? For what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial?" "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing."

5. These church bazaars, lotteries, etc., lead to extravagance and gambling. Often prices are asked for articles at bazaars that bear no kind of honest relation to current and legitimate values—thus teaching and practicing covetousness. Sometimes young men are led into the sin of extravagance by the persuasion of some pretty young lady, and the first lesson leads to more recklessness. Gambling is a resort to a game of chance to make money. Are not lotteries, grab bags, guess cakes, etc., all games of chance in the fullest sense of the word? Have not others as good a right to make money through games of chance as the church has? May not church members, and others, as properly attend games of chance in other places as in the church? Is gambling any less so when practiced in a church, and by church members, for church purposes?

Such works, constantly conducted by the church, tend to produce a dissolute life in society. A minister went to visit a young man in prison, who was convicted of forgery. The minister began by giving the mother's tender message, and then related the interest all the church felt in the prisoner's welfare. The prisoner impatiently replied, "Do you know that you caused me—all this trouble? I began the business in your Sabbath-school. Don't you remember the Sunday-school fair, when they first set up raffling, and hid a gold ring in a loaf of cake? For twenty-five cents I got a box of books. I was pleased with my luck, and then I went in afterwards for chances. Sometimes I gained and sometimes I lost. Money I would have for lotteries. Half crazy with excitement, I used the names of other men—thus committing forgery. Here I am. Don't let the church come blubbering around me. Their raffling ruined me!" "It is written, My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

Working for the Master.—The South Bend church, Ind., began a series of meetings last Sunday with the expectation of obtaining the assistance of Bro. L. Hillery, of Kansas. Last night he arrived and we expect to continue eight or ten days, the Lord willing. We are in the midst of a blizzard, and while the cold weather is a little against us, we will labor on as best we can.—Wm. Borough, March 4.

Good Meetings.—Bro. Daniel Mohler closed a week's meetings at our Upper house last evening. While there were no additions to the church, some good preaching was done, which, we hope, will be as bread cast upon the waters.—John E. Metzger, Edna Mills, Ind., March 2.

Refreshing Meetings.—Bro. H. W. Strickler came to us Feb. 8, and preached, in all, seven sermons at the White Lock school-house. Though we had no additions, yet we feel that much good was done. Bro. Henry did his work well. From here he went to Steffenville, where he delivered fifteen sermons. At this place the Brethren have the use of a large union house. We were made to wonder how the people could listen to the powerful pleadings of our brother and yet refuse the terms of salvation.—Mary Thorp, Steffenville, Mo., March 3.

Notice.—All the brethren and sisters, attending the District Meeting, to be held in the Pleasant Hill congregation, Allen Co., Ind., April 2, 1891, and who are going by way of the B. & O. R. R., will purchase full-fare tickets to Avilla, requesting agent to furnish Certificate Form No. 2, which entitles you to return tickets at one cent per mile, making one and one-third fare for the round trip. Now, do not buy round-trip tickets, but go according to directions. If you do not fully understand, write to me. Bro. Gump requests all to come via the B. & O. that possibly can. The connections are poor on the T. S. & M. S. R. R.—Hiram Forney.

One Added to the Fold.—The members of the Olathe church, Kans., held their quarterly council Feb. 28. Although considerable business came before the meeting, yet, in about three hours, everything passed off pleasantly, in a manner which becometh the children of God. Two queries passed the meeting, intended for Annual Meeting. Bro. I. H. Crist is our delegate to District Meeting. Since our last report one dear soul made the good resolve and united with God's family. We expect Bro. J. H. Neher, of McCune, Kans., to begin a series of meetings at the church-house March 12. The prospects for an ingathering are encouraging.—A. M. Sharp, Gardner, Kansas, March 2.

Members Much Encouraged. We commenced a series of meetings in the Forest church, Richland Co., Wis., with the hope that Bro. D. B. Eby would do the preaching, but were disappointed, upon hearing that, on account of sickness, he could not meet with us. We continued the meetings, however, over Sunday, and on Feb. 19 Bro. D. E. Brubaker, of Mt. Morris, Ill., came to our assistance. He continued the meetings until March 1 with increasing interest. While there were no immediate accessions to the church, the brethren and sisters were much encouraged and many are nearing the kingdom. Pray for us that the church may be enlarged and the name of the Lord glorified!—John Shepherd, Feb. 4.

Interesting Meetings.—Bro. David Dilling, of White County, Ind., came to the Koontz church, Pa., on the evening of Dec. 27, and commenced a series of meetings, which he continued until the evening of Jan. 7. He preached, in all, sixteen sermons, having crowded houses and the best of attention. Bro. Dilling worked with his usual energy. Close attention was paid to the Word spoken, and we think many lasting impressions were made. We are glad to say that three persons came out on the Lord's side. Bro. Dilling went from here to the Snake Spring Valley church, and continued meetings there several weeks. There were six additions to the church at that place. May they so live as to influence others to come to Christ!—Emma Guyer, Loysburg, Pa.

PROPOSED TRIP TO THE EAST.—Bro. Martin Shankster and wife, of Ainger, Williams Co., Ohio, expect to make a trip through Allen, Knox and Richland Counties, Ohio; also Bedford County, Pa. They will stop with Brethren and friends on their way as circumstances may admit.—Noah Long, Frontier, Mich.

FROM A MISSION POINT.—At this place, a mission point, supplied by the Brethren of Rockingham County, the GOSPEL MESSENGER is highly appreciated, and, since last November, is the only preacher we have had. During the summer we have preaching about once a month by the above-named brethren. The Brethren at North Mill Creek are building a new church-house, and will soon have it completed.—A. L. Cook, Masonville, W. Va., Feb. 28.

ONE RESTORED.—Bro. Heistand, of Swanton, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Jan. 31 in the Swan Creek church, Ohio, assisted by our home ministers. Our meetings were well attended, and closed Feb. 15 with a good interest. The members seemed to be greatly built up, and one dear sister, who had wandered away, came back again to the Father's house. At present Bro. Heistand is holding meetings in the Brethren's house in Swanton.—Lizzie Hall, Baldorf, Ohio, Feb. 28.

ONE BAPTIZED.—The members of the Beaver Creek church, Winamac, Ind., with the assistance of Bro. A. S. Culp [illegible] and Bro. Abram Rinehart, met in council Feb. 14, 1891. Our membership was well represented, and the business of the meeting passed off pleasantly. A choice for two deacons resulted in the election of brethren Samuel White and Jacob Flory. The brethren stayed with us, and preached seven interesting sermons. Feb. 23 Bro. Frank Fisher came to us and preached for us under rather unfavorable circumstances, but our meetings were generally well attended. One was baptized on Sunday. Bro. Fisher closed his meetings on Monday night, by giving us an interesting history of the Old Folks' Home.—Jeremiah Hahn.

NINE SOULS FOR THE LORD.—On Sunday evening, Feb. 15, Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh, of Huntingdon, Pa., began a series of meetings in our meeting-house at Waynesborough, Pa. A deep interest manifested itself at once. At this writing seven were added to the church by baptism, and there are two applicants for baptism. Others are seriously impressed. Bro. John did an excellent work here, so far, and is willing to continue. He has the work at heart. Though he is young in the ministry, and this was the first series of meetings held by him, yet he impresses the people with the importance of living up to the Word of God. Some evenings, though the weather was bad and roads almost impassable, the audience room could not hold the people. The church is much edified and built up.—J. J. Otho.

WORKERS WANTED.—In behalf of the Irish Grove church, Iowa, we send forth an earnest request to our brethren, who contemplate a change of location, to come and help the cause along at this place. We feel that we are prospering spiritually, but we greatly need more earnest workers. In regard to our temporal resources would say we live in the famous "Blue Grass" region and, during the past twenty-six years, have never witnessed an entire failure of crops, excepting wheat. While there is much rolling land along the streams, there are some first-class farms for sale on reasonable terms. The prospects are that some of them will be sold soon and we are anxious for them to fall into the Brethren's possession. We will cheerfully answer all inquiries.—W. W. Folger, Osceola, Iowa, March 7.

QUARTERLY COUNCIL.—The Bear Creek church, Ohio, met in quarterly council March 4. Much business was brought before the meeting, but all was disposed of satisfactorily. The church decided to hold a love-feast April 23 at 10 A. M. We also elected our Sunday-school officers. For Superintendents the choice fell on brethren Peter Neff and David Kinsel. L. A. Harries, March 5.

GOOD MEETINGS.—Bro. E. W. Davis has been holding some meetings at Irving, Kans., with the best of attention and attendance. Many confessed that we are on safe ground. What we want now, is more meetings, that they may be brought to a full knowledge of the Truth. Jos. Meyneh, March 3.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.—The members of the Yellow Creek church, Elkhart Co., Ind., commenced a series of meetings Feb. 8. The home ministers conducted the meeting until Feb. 11, when Bro. J. C. Murray came and preached eight sermons. Lasting impressions, we believe, were made, but we are sorry that, on account of ill health, he had to discontinue the meetings for this time. Feb. 21, was our quarterly council, which passed off harmoniously. Our elder, Bro. J. H. Miller, of Goshen, was with us, and preached for us next day at our regular meeting. At the close of the meeting we raised about $36.00 for the Western sufferers. John Overholser.

PLEASANT COUNCIL.—The members at Centre View, Mo., have been at work in the Master's garden which requires continual care and pruning,—not with knife and nippers,—but with gentle reproofs and kind admonitions, with words of encouragement to press onward and upward, to be more watchful, prayerful and zealous in our work for the Master. For this purpose we met on Thursday, Feb. 26. We also transacted business for District and Annual Meetings. There were three received by letter whom we welcome among us. Considerable business came before the meeting, but all was adjusted satisfactorily. We still feel hopeful and much encouraged with the work at this place. Amanda Wilmore, Feb. 28.

FOUR SOULS FOR CHRIST.—Bro. Solomon Blickenstaff came to us Feb. 17, to carry on a series of meetings in Williamsport, Ind. He labored for us about two weeks. As an immediate result two were made willing to accept Christ. Since then Bro. Billheimer preached two discourses for us. We have regular meeting in the above place every first and third Sunday. At our last meeting two more made application to be received into the fold. We have a good interest at the above-named place. Ministering brethren, passing through Williamsport, by giving timely notice to the writer, will be gladly received. We have a good house of worship. The writer, being alone in the ministry, would be glad for assistance in the work. J. E. Frederick.

PROFITABLE MEETINGS.—The Brethren at Moscow, Idaho, held their council-meeting Feb. 14. Everything passed off pleasantly. Bro. Hodgden commenced a series of meetings the same evening and closed last evening. While there were no additions, we can say they were profitable meetings. The members were much encouraged, and built up in the faith. Our congregations were small, owing to so many of the churches holding meetings at the same time. The field is too large here for one minister to attend to. I wonder, sometimes, why it is that so few of the ministering brethren come to this country; we need more ministers that have consecrated themselves to God, to carry the Bread of Life to lost and dying souls. Eld. Hodgden has labored faithfully since his arrival here, but the harvest is great and the laborers are few.—J. U. G. Stiverson, Moscow, Idaho, Feb. 23.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF FUNDS.—I received $10.00 from George J. Klein and wife of Conrad Grove, Grundy Co., Iowa, to be divided as follows: The sum of $5.00 to the writer and family; $5.00 to be distributed among the needy members. Bro. M. Snyder sent $5.00 to the writer, and a young sister sent $1.00, to be given to one needing it most. We hereby express our grateful thanks to the donors. We are now at a time when aid is most needed. John F. Cline, Goodland, Kans., March 4.

FEB. 7, I went to Middle Tennessee on mission work. I had seven meetings in Warren County, three at Wilson's school-house, one at Bro. A. H. Duncan's house and three in McMinnville. Good attention was given to the Word preached and I was kindly treated by the people. At the latter place I preached in the Baptist church.

Feb. 13, I went to West Tennessee, where I had twenty-two meetings, at six places,—nine at Field's school-house. Here a new church was organized, called the "New Hope." Seventeen members, including one minister in second degree,—Charles W. Davis, and one deacon, comprise the new organization. A love-feast was held at the home of sister Gaunt. Here I baptized four,—two young men and two young women. One of the sisters had to be carried into the water on her chair, as, owing to rheumatism, she was not able to walk. A large number of spectators were present to witness the scene, and a solemn impression was seemingly made on their minds. It was the first time they ever saw baptism performed in that way and many of them seem to think it was the right way to baptize.

The brethren and sisters of the above place would like if ministers, passing that way, would stop and preach for them. They have a good country. For further particulars address John Davis, at McKenzie. GEORGE C. BOWMAN.

SINCE Feb. 16, we have had considerable sickness in the family. Both of our children have had a heavy attack of, what Dr. Chase terms, scarlatina with high fever. Others have scarlet fever direct.

We are, thus far, spared from the dreaded disease and are now doing quite well. On account of sickness, we abandoned evening meeting Feb. 22. We have no public services to-day, and can not tell but that we will be necessitated to abandon meetings at least another week, because of the disease, above mentioned, being contagious. In addition to having the above in the family, I have this week been suffering from a heavy attack of quinsy, which I am now hopeful of scatter-

tion of loveliness, it is easy to believe, the "groves were God's first temples."

Fruit orchards, with all their variegated display of leaf, bud and blossom, present an enchanting scene, suggestive of many a delicious repast. Well may it be said a fruit orchard is of threefold use to man, it satisfies the sense of seeing, of smelling and of tasting. And autumn! Who can describe the gorgeous beauty of woodland hills in autumn, when the bright and varied hues, that nature alone can produce, have been flung over the forest, presenting a scene, rivaled only in grandeur by the bow of promise that God hangs upon the clouds in summer.

"God of the forest's solemn shade!
The grandeur of the lonely tree,
That wrestles, singly with the gale,
Lifts up admiring eyes to thee
But more majestic far, they stand,
When side by side their ranks they form,
To wave on high their plumes of green
And fight their battles with the storm."

Much beauty and use are combined in our nut-producing trees; also in the sugar maple. Those persons who never visited or worked in a "sugar camp" in spring-time, or hunted the beautiful brown chestnut in autumn, have missed something nice in life.

The value of trees for useful purposes is inestimable, such as for fuel, building of ships, and of houses, making of furniture, etc. The mahogony tree of tropical climates and the rosewood of Brazil are both trees of large growth, very hard and susceptible of a fine polish; therefore are used much in the manufacturing of furniture.

The nutmeg tree grows principally on the Islands of Banda in the East Indies, and reaches the height of twenty or thirty feet, producing numerous branches, and supplies us with the nutmeg, which is in such general use.

The cinnamon tree grows on the Island of Ceylon, and in size is about the same as the nutmeg-tree; it furnishes a favorite aromatic. Tea trees are found in China and Japan; also in Chili and Peru, where it is said to be an evergreen, and grows to the height of ten feet. The coffee tree grows in Persia, Java, Brazil, and the West India Islands and in other warm climates. It will grow to the height of eighteen feet, but when cultivated is generally limited to six or seven feet, for convenience in gathering the berry.

The bread-fruit tree grows on the Islands of the Pacific. It is usually about the size of a large apple-tree. The fruit, of a round or oval shape, grows on the boughs, and, when ripe, is yellow and soft, with a sweet, pleasant taste. It is the principal food of the natives. Imagine how it would seem to us if we could just step out and help ourselves to the "staff of life," whenever we wished, without all this toil and trouble of sowing and reaping, kneading and baking! And yet no one, in this favored land of ours, would willingly exchange our civilization for the condition of the people in the bread-fruit regions.

The date-palm tree grows most luxuriantly in Persia, Palestine and Northern Africa, and yields annually great crops of fine rich fruit, furnishing a greater part of the food of the poor, and also a vast surplus for exportation. This tree has been known to reach the height of more than one hundred feet. The leaf is known as an emblem of victory. It was branches from this tree that were strown in the way before the Savior, upon the occasion of the one remarkable entry he made into the city of Jerusalem. May it not have been prophetical of his coming again in final triumph and victory?

We also read of some very curious trees, such as the tallow-tree which grows in the province of Canare in India. It bears a fruit which, when boiled, is manufactured into candles which give as bright a light as tallow, and are free from unpleasant odor. Not less curious is the tallipot-tree, a native of Ceylon, the leaves of which are each large enough to cover ten men and keep them dry in a rain, and are so very light that they are carried from place to place and used for huts or tents.

The banian-tree, of Cochin China and India, is a great curiosity. The branches, after they have extended themselves some distance from the trunk, shoot down toward the earth and take root, thus forming new stems or trunks so that each tree forms a complete grove, supported by many columns. One is said to have three thousand trunks or stems, affording room for many hundreds of people to live in its protecting shade.

"Branching so broad and long, that in the ground
The bending twigs take root, and daughters grow
About the mother-tree, a pillared shade,
High overarched, with echoing walls between."

An author of high character says that laborious and learned researches of the historical date, on the principle derived from the actual admeasurement and counting the circles of trees of like kind, gives us that which, we think, is reliable information of the age of certain trees, as follows:

A date-tree in Egypt,	age,	324 years.
Apricot-tree in Damascus	age,	300 years.
An elm-tree in America	age,	335 years
A walnut-tree of Baalbec	age,	400 years.
A fig-tree in Damascus	age,	648 years
An olive-tree in Palestine	age,	719 years.
A live-oak in Louisiana	age,	1,000 years.
A sycamore in Palestine	age,	1,050 years.
Yew-tree in Surrey, England	age,	1,400 years
Yew-tree in Scotland	age,	2,500 years.
Some mammoth trees of California	age,	3,000 years.
A cypress tree in Mexico	age,	4,000 years.

How few and fleeting do the short years of man's life appear, in comparison to these monuments of distant ages! What could they not tell us could they speak?

"Father, thy hand
Hath reared these venerable columns: thou
Didst weave this verdant roof. Thou didst look down
Upon the naked earth, and forthwith rose
All these fair ranks of trees. They in thy sun
Budded, and shook their green leaves in thy breeze,
And shot toward heaven. The century-living crow,
Whose birth was in their tops, grew old and died
Among their branches, till at last they stood,
As now they stand, massy and tall and dark,
Fit shrine for humble worshiper to hold
Communion with his Maker."

Trees are frequently mentioned in Scripture from the first description of Eden until the final rendering of St. John's Revelation. Reference is made to trees by way of instruction of parable, of illustration, of comparison. The righteous are compared to a tree, planted by the rivers of water, who bringeth forth his fruit in his season, and whose leaves also shall not wither. The wicked are said to spread themselves like a green bay-tree.

The prophet Jeremiah says, "The man who trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is, is like a tree planted by the waters, that spreadeth out her roots by the river, whose leaf shall be green, and that shall not cease from yielding fruit." Solemn and holy thoughts come to the Christian's heart when the trees of Olivet and Gethsemane are mentioned.

"Sacred tree of Olivet! in thy branches lie
Far deeper spells than prophet-grove of old
Might e'er enshrine: I could not hear thee sigh
To the wind's faintest whisper, nor behold
One shiver of thy leaves, dim silvery green,
Without high thoughts and solemn of that scene
When, in the garden, the Redeemer prayed—
When pale stars looked upon his fainting head
And angels ministering in silent dread
Trembled perchance within thy trembling shade."

Happy is that people who shall one day be permitted to walk beside of the river of life, and partake of the fruit of the tree of life in the new Jerusalem to come!

MELCHIZEDEK OF SALEM.

BY PROFESSOR A. H. SAYCE.

One by one the narratives of the Old Testament upon which the over-subtle analysis of modern criticism had cast suspicion and doubt are being vindicated by the progress of Oriental research. The cuneiform records of Babylonia have shown that the campaign of Chedorlaomer, described in the fourteenth chapter of Genesis, is not the "legend" certain German critics have affirmed it to be. The names of the Babylonian princes, the political situation presupposed, and the occurrence of military expeditions to the distant land of Palestine, have all alike received full confirmation from the "written bricks" of ancient Chaldæa. But not the campaign of Chedorlaomer only, the meeting of "Abram the Hebrew" with Melchizedek, the king of Salem and priest of the Most High God, has now been verified and illustrated by a discovery of the most startling character. The figure of Melchizedek is no longer mysterious, and the critic can no longer maintain that the account which is given of him is the pious invention of a later age.

Three years ago a number of cuneiform tablets were found among the ruins of a city of ancient Egypt, the site of which is now known as Tel el-Amarna. The city was built by Amenophis IV., an Egyptian monarch of the eighteenth dynasty,—about B. C. 1430,—who deserted the religion of his forefathers and became a convert to the Semitic worship of Baal, as represented by the solar disk. The attempt of Amenophis to impose the new faith upon his Egyptian subjects led to a quarrel with the powerful priesthood of Thebes, the result being that the king was compelled to leave the capital of his father, and to build another capital, farther north, at the spot now called Tel el-Amarna. The new city was filled with the adherents of the new creed, most of whom seem to have been foreigners; but its existence was short. The death of Amenophis was followed by civil war, the Semitic strangers were driven out of the country or enslaved, and a "new king arose" who restored the old religion of Egypt. The city of Amenophis was deserted, and from that time to this has remained a heap of ruins.

The cuneiform tablets which have been discovered on its site formed part of the royal archives. Many of them have been removed from Thebes by Amenophis, a large part of them consisting of documents which had been addressed to his father. Almost all are of the same nature. They consist of letters and despatches sent to the Egyptian court by the kings of Babylonia, Assyria, and Syria, and the Egyptian governors and vassal princes in the subject province of Palestine. They are written in the script and language of Babylonia, which was at the time the common language of culture and diplomacy, and prove that all over the civilized world of the East there must have been libraries and schools where the complicated writing of Babylonia could be studied and learned. In the collection are a considerable number of letters from the south of Palestine.

The most interesting of these were written by a certain Ebed-top, the governor of Jerusalem. He claims to have occupied a different position from that of the other Egyptian governors in Palestine. In one of his letters he writes: "Neither my father nor my mother has exalted me in this place; it was the prophecy of the Mighty King that caused me to enter the house of my father;" and in another he declares more explicitly: "I am not a governor appointed by the king [of Egypt] my lord. I say, I am the ally of the king, and I have paid the tribute due to the king. Neither my father nor my mother, but the oracle of the Mighty King, established me in the house of my father." At the same time, the district of which Jerusalem was the center is described as being "the country of the [Egyptian] king," and Ebed-tob begins his letters with the usual formula of the Egyptian official: "To the king my lord, my sun-god, Ebed-tob thy servant speaks thus: At the feet of the king my lord seven times seven I prostrate myself." He was, in fact, a protected prince, like the protected princes of modern India; and he shared his power with an Egyptian "commissioner" who lived in Jerusalem, and resembled the English "resident" in a native Indian state.

The "Mighty King" from whose oracle Ebed-tob states that he derived his authority, was the title given to the deity who was worshiped on Mount Moriah. The actual name of the deity is given us in one of the letters. Here Ebed-tob speaks of "the city of the mountain of Jerusalem, the city of the god Uras, whose name [there] is Salim." Salim or Shalem, the god of "Peace," was accordingly the name of the divinity whose temple stood on the "mountain of Jerusalem," and he was identified with the Babylonian god Uras, the morning sun. Since Urusalim is the equivalent of Jerusalem in the letters, while we learn from a cuneiform tablet that uru signified "city," it is clear that Uru-salim, or Jerusalem, must have meant "the city of the god Salim."

It was of this god that Ebed-tob was priest. He had been appointed to his office by a divine oracle. He had not inherited it by the right of descent. So far as his office was concerned, he was without father or mother: it was not to them that he owed his power.

What a light this throws on the description of Melchizedek in the Book of Genesis! He, too, was not only "king of Salem," but also "priest of the Most High God." And it will be noticed that he was king of "Salem,"—king, that is to say, of the deity from whom he derived his royal as well as his priestly rank, not king of Jerusalem, "the city of *Salem."

He was, as we read in the Epistle to the Hebrews (Heb. 7: 3), "without father, without mother, without descent." There was no need of making mention of his parents, since it was not by right of inheritance that he had, as Ebed-tob expresses it been "exalted in this place." The description given of Melchizedek in Genesis is precisely that which Ebed-tob gives himself, with the difference that whereas Ebed-tob was the tributary of the Egyptian monarch, Melchizedek was still an independent sovereign.

But there is a further passage in one of the letters of Ebed-tob which confirms the historical accuracy of Genesis. He there quotes the following oracle of his god: "'While there is a ship in the midst of the sea,' such is the oracle of the Mighty King 'the conquests of the country of Nahrima and the country of the Babylonians shall continue.'" Elsewhere a reference is made to the fact that "the temple" on Mount Moriah was sufficiently strong to withstand the attack of the Babylonians. Nahrima is the Aram-Naharaim of Scripture; and we are reminded by the mention of it, that, shortly after Joshua's conquest of Canaan, the Israelitish tribes were oppressed for eight years by the king of Aram-Naharim (Judg. 3: 8). But the mention of the Babylonians reads like a commentary on the text of Genesis. If Babylonian forces could be feared at Jerusalem in the century before the exodus, at a time when it was a garrison of the powerful Egyptian Empire, still more could they have been feared there in the age of Abraham. It was with good reason that the priest-king of Salem came forth to welcome the conqueror of the Babylonian invaders and to pronounce that he was "blessed of the Most High God."

Perhaps not the least interesting of the results to be derived from the old letters of Tel el-Amarna is the antiquity of the name of Jerusalem and of the sacredness of the mountain on the summit of which the city stood. Centuries before Solomon, "the peaceful one," had erected there the temple of the God of Israel, a sanctuary had existed on the same spot, dedicated to a god whose name was "Peace," and the fame of whose oracles had extended as far as Egypt. The "Most High God," whose priest was Melchizedek, was no invention of local vanity, no myth inspired by the later history of Jewish Jerusalem; he had been worshiped on Moriah long before Moses had led his brethren out of Egypt, or the armies of Israel had appeared in Canaan. He had been worshiped, however, by a cultured and literary people. The population found by the Israelites in Canaan possessed books and libraries, scribes and scholars. There is no reason for supposing that after the Israelitish invasion, a knowledge of letters died out among them in the cities which the invaders were unable to take. We learn from the first chapter of Judges, that Taanach and Megiddo and Gezer remained in Canaanitish hands, like Accho and Zidon, Achzib and Beth-shemish, and that "the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day."

Now, among the tablets, contained in the collection of Tel el-Amarna, are letters from Megiddo and Gezar, Accho and Zidon, while the letters of Ebed-tob were all despatched from Jerusalem. Clay tablets do not perish like documents on papyrus or parchment; and, since the letters sent by Ebed-tob and his brother governors show that the cities over which they ruled, contained archive-chambers filled with similar documents on clay, it follows that the ancient records of Jerusalem may easily have been preserved down to the day when David made it the capital of his kingdom. We have no reason for refusing to believe that in Jerusalem, as well as in Gaza and the other cities of the Philistines, the old libraries continued to exist down to the time when modern criticism allows that the Israelites became a literary nation. And if the libraries remained, there would have remained also scribes and scholars who were able to read the books preserved in them.

Such a conclusion has a very important bearing on the question of the credibility of Old Testament history. It has long been tacitly assumed that both the Israelites themselves, and the populations by whom they were surrounded, were ignorant of the art of writing books at the time of the conquest of Canaan and during the age of the Judges. The literary period of Israel has been supposed to commence with Samuel. The oldest inscription yet discovered in the Phœnician alphabet, the date of which can be determined with certainty, is that of the Moabite king, Mesha, the contemporary of Ahab. If the art of writing had been known centuries earlier, how is it, it has been asked, that no older inscriptions have been found? The want of such inscriptions has been regarded as a powerful confirmation of the assumption that the literary age of Israel began only with the rise of the Israelitish kingdom. For all earlier events, the historian of a later day had to appeal to tradition and legend, instead of contemporaneous literary testimony.

The Tel el-Amarna tablets, and more especially the letters of Ebed-tob, have shown that the assumption is not justified by fact. It is true that, in the epoch to which they belong, the literature of the country was not inscribed upon papyrus, or expressed by the help of the Phœnician alphabet. It was entrusted to the more enduring material of clay, while the language and script, in which it was preserved, were alike disused in the Palestine of a later day. But the Israelitish conquest of Canaan did not destroy the libraries which existed in certain of the cities which successfully resisted the conqueror; and, where the libraries remained uninjured, readers who could make use of them would have remained too. Samuel and his contemporaries were not compelled to trust to tradition and legend for the earlier history of their country; there were written documents in plenty, which they could consult. And a comparison of the fourteenth chapter of Genesis, with the contents of the letters of Ebed-tob, has shown us that they actually did consult them; the description of Melchizedek, king of Salem, mythical as it has often been alleged to be, turns out to be in strict accordance with fact. Nothing can prove more clearly that neither the ancient records of Jerusalem, nor a knowledge of their contents, had perished when the Book of Genesis was written; and what was true of Jerusalem, must have been true of other cities of Palestine as well.

In the song of Deborah and Barak, we are told that "out of Zebulon" came down "they that handle the pen of the writer." Judges 5: 14. An ignorant criticism has endeavored to find a new meaning, unknown to Hebrew philology, for the two last words of the verse, and to change "the pen of the writer" into a "marshal's baton." The endeavor was based on a false assumption. We now know that both scribe and reader existed in Palestine long before the time of Deborah, and that the conclusions, adverse to the historical character of the Old Testament, which have been founded on the contrary belief, must fall along with the foundation on which they rest.—S. S. Times.

*Is it fanciful to see in the title "Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9: 6) a reference to the ancient title of the priest-kings of Jerusalem? They, too, were rulers of the "City of Peace" and priests of the divinity whose name was "Peace."

THE RESURRECTION.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

THERE is no other subject in all the range of imagination, thought, reason, or investigation, that is fraught with such tremendous issues, as is the resurrection from the dead. To the saints it will be a time of joy unspeakable and full of glory; to the wicked, a time of weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth. It is the crowning work of human redemption. Without it, Christianity would be a failure. Eternity may roll her ample rounds, we still live on, on, on; never, never, no, never to die any more. Its vastness is incomprehensible. It is the terminal point between two worlds. From that point the human race divide eternally.

THE FACT OF THE RESURRECTION.

While the resurrection is an established fact, yet doubts will arise, and skeptics exist and weaken the faith and hope of some. In order to fortify our minds and establish our hearts in regard to the certainty of the resurrection, this article is written.

We shall draw our evidences, in support of the resurrection, from the following sources:

First, the voice of the soul.
Second, the voice of nature.
Third, the voice of Revelation.

THE VOICE OF THE SOUL.

Nearly every person believes in the future

ing. We have, thus far, evaded being quarantined by doing our own doctoring.

Yesterday when meeting a lady agent, respecting our church lot purchase, she readily accosted me thus: "You are a minister of the Gospel, are you not?"

Replying affirmatively, she further stated, "I sometimes feel like laughing at you ministers: there is no need of that sickness and suffering. I believe in Christian Science in the fullest sense. Mind is greater than BODY and should rule it and allow no sickness."

After a brief continuance I asked, "Does Christian Science practice, in its order of healing, the Gospel method as given by James 5 (quoting it)?"

Hesitating, she replied, "Yes, in a manner."

"In a manner," may and may not be the Gospel manner. As a science, it is well named. Christ or Christian adds much in this age to the appellation of many organizations. I have no doubt as to the purity of Christian Science. Christian Science means simply the science of God's Word, if we may thus apply the term. The Psalmist says it is pure, James says it is perfect. Let us not place too much confidence in any science, under a religious cloak, unless we weigh them well, not even the so-called "Christian Science."

From Flemington, Taylor Co., West Va.

BRO. ZACHARIAH ANNON held a series of meetings in the West Virginia College Chapel, near Flemington, Taylor County. The meetings commenced Feb. 12. Eight discourses were delivered to fair congregations, considering the rainy weather and muddy roads. The order was very good, and, we think Bro. Annon has given the people, at the above-named place, something to think about. The college referred to, is owned by the Free Will Baptists. Bro. Annon preached only at night, except on Lord's Day, the 15th inst.

The Bethany congregation, to which Bro. Annon belongs, has two local churches,—one near Thornton, Taylor Co., W. Va., the other near Nuzum's, Marion Co., W. Va. The nearest is fifteen and one-half miles distant from the writer. As the brethren do not often preach in this locality, and as the writer has no conveyance, excepting by rail, to reach the Brethren's church, he sometimes does not hear a sermon by the Brethren for several years. There are five or six members here on a territory of about seven miles square.

Some of our members here have starved spiritually for that food which develops the soul, and enables it to rise to the things beyond. A few years ago there were six more members in said territory, but two have gone to the Far West, two have passed over the chilly waters, and two have made shipwreck of their faith. Think of us, dear ministering brethren, when two or more of you are at a meeting, where one would be sufficient.

West Virginia Items.

I LEFT home Feb. 5, on a visit to Raleigh County, W. Va., and arrived at Bro. Sutphin's near the church, on the night of the 6th. We met at the church next morning, in council, with the brethren and sisters of Raleigh church, and also had the pleasure of meeting with brethren S. W. Riner, Jas. A. Hutchison and A. B. Duncan, of Oak Hill, Fayette Co., W. Va., Eld. Riner has the oversight of the Raleigh church, there being no minister in that congregation.

The meeting was continued until the evening of Feb. 16. We had twenty meetings in all. On Saturday, Feb. 14, two young sisters were buried with Christ in baptism. On Monday, two more, —a young man and his companion, —were, in like manner, baptized. On the evening when the meeting closed, three more young souls made application for baptism, and will be baptized in the near future. The meetings closed with good interest.

Many more were near the Kingdom, and our prayer is that the work of grace, now begun in their hearts, may go on unto perfection, that many, who are yet unsaved, may be saved with an everlasting salvation.

I never expect to forget the love and respect manifested by the dear brethren, sisters and friends in Raleigh County during this, my first visit among them. May God's choicest blessings be theirs to share continually.

Brethren and sisters, pray for me, that I may do the work that is enjoined upon me, for I am alone in the ministry here, and there are but very few members in this part of Greenbrier County.

Notice to the Churches of North-eastern Ohio.

HAVING had a consultation with Eld. I. D. Parker, Moderator of our last District Meeting, we hereby give the following notice. The matter did not seem clear to us that it was our duty to give this notice, but as several other Districts did so, we concluded that it would be an encouragement in the right direction. We therefore give notice to the churches, composing the North-east District of Ohio, that those who have not yet responded to the urgent calls for help, by the people of the destitute districts of the West, shall appoint solicitors and collect what money they can, and send the funds to Bro. D. L. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill., who will see that the money is properly applied. Persons who are not members of our church should also have an opportunity to contribute to so worthy a cause, as the destitution will not be relieved before another crop is raised.

JACOB MISHLER,
Clerk of last District Meeting.

Literary Notes.

Frederick Douglass: the Colored Orator. By Frederic May Holland, author of "The Reign of the Stoics," "Stories from Robert Browning," "The Rise of Intellectual Liberty," etc. Cloth, 423 pp., $1.50; Funk & Wagnalls, New York.

This sketch of the eventful career of the distinguished representative of the colored race in America, was written, the author tells us, in the hope, partly, that it would in some degree reduce the color prejudice, and partly as a fitting tribute to a man for whom he entertains a high admiration. The work deals with all the romantic incidents of Frederick Douglass's life, following him from the log cabin of his childhood on the bank of the Choptank River in Maryland, though all the best and worst phases of slavery, to his long-cherished escape therefrom, and to his advance, stride by stride, to the distinguished position he now holds as the representative man of his race, a position in which he has won the confidence of his own people, and wrung from the white race unqualified admiration for his purpose, character and intellectual grasp. The main incidents of Frederick Douglass's life have already been detailed in scattered notices in the press of the country. The author has not only collected, arranged and verified all those, but has given an added interest to the work by valuable information obtained from Mr. Frederick Douglass, Jr., and by numerous anecdotes related to the author by the hero of the story, shortly before his departure for Hayti. A series of ten unpublished lectures and many other manuscripts were at the same time handed to the author, and have proved useful in illustrating Mr. Douglass's views and character.

Doctor Koch's Discovery.

Dr. Koch's great remedy seems to prove efficacious in those cases where the patient has contracted consumption in low lying countries,—almost all the level European districts where the disease is traceable to purely climatic conditions, the moist atmosphere being a fine breeding region for the microbe. But in the high and dry altitude traversed by the Union Pacific, the Original Overland Route, consumption not only can not exist but is surely curable in its early stages. And this is testified to by thousands who have regained health and strength in the life-giving air of the Mountains. 7t8

That Brilliant American.

Samuel Bowles, the famous editor of the Springfield Republican, said, in recording his impressions of the Puget Sound Country:

"Up here, above the latitude of Quebec and Montreal, we basked in the smile of roses that are even denied to us in New England. Here, within the circle of the softening sea, reigns a year that knows no zero cold, and rarely freezes water or snow; that winters the fuchsias and the most delicate roses, English ivies and other tender plants, and summers them with rioting luxuriance; that grows the apple and the pear and the small fruits to perfection."

The Puget Sound Country is a wonderful agricultural country awaiting development. There is nothing open to the home seeker to compare with it and it is the future goal of the great army of home seekers. In healthfulness it is wonderful and in productiveness unsurpassed. Thousands last year journeyed to this charmed region over the Union Pacific, the original overland route, and thousands more will go this year. 7t8

Europe and Bible Lands.

BY D. L. MILLER.

A new edition, THE TENTH, of this excellent book of travels has just been issued. The extensive sale of the work gives abundant proof of its great popularity. It was thought, at first, that one or two editions would supply the demand, but already ten editions have been issued and yet the book finds a ready sale.

Thousands of copies have been sold outside of our church, and many strong testimonials have been recieved from those who have read the book. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens. The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner. Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea. Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion. Mount Moriah. Solomon's Temple. Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan. Bethel. The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee. Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, white paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth, or $2.00 for full leather binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS. In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

TESTIMONIALS.

We have space here only for extracts from a very few of the kind letters received by the author.

A copy of Bro. D. L. Miller's work on Bible Lands is before me. I like it very much. It contains much spiritual food for the Christian as well as many useful historical facts.—Eld. Enoch Eby.

It is an interesting book and should be in every family, and read by every young man and woman, so that they may know how the people live in Europe and the East. I would not take three times what the book cost me and do without it.—Eld. John Kinsley.

I have read Europe and Bible Lands, and I am ready to confess that it gave me more satisfaction than I anticipated. I am especially pleased that the history you give of the Bible lands corresponds in its arrangements so well with the Bible. Since reading your book, I think I can almost see the different cities, mountains, rivers, scenery, with the valley and the river of Jordan.—Eld. John Forney.

Your book brought back to me many pleasant recollections of countries I saw long ago, and which you describe so vividly and truthfully. You have done a good work in publishing a book which contains so much interesting and valuable matter, especially for our young readers, giving the present aspect of many countries and the present condition of many interesting questions.—Hon. R. R. Hilt.

Having given considerable time to the study of sacred history and antiquities, I was especially interested in that portion of the work devoted to the description of Bible Lands, and can truly say that I have obtained from it much information that I have not been able to obtain heretofore, although I have perused volumes. The author has been careful to combine the past and present history of those lands, the better showing the fulfillment of prophecy, which makes it doubly interesting to the Bible student. And then, the cheerful, spicy manner of narration makes it of incalculable worth.—M. H. Robinson, Sherwood, Ohio.

I received your book of travels in the Holy Land, and have finished reading it. I consider it an excellent work, not only for our people, but all who have an interest in the Holy Land and a desire for Bible knowledge. It gives, in a plain, clear style, much information regarding the country, towns, mountains, rivers and seas made sacred by the footprints of our Savior. Another thing which makes your book valuable is the religious character given to all your travels, even outside of Palestine. I would be glad if all our reading matter had such religious character underlying it; how safe and profitable it would be for the Church, our children, and the world to read!—Eld. R. H. Miller.

I admire your book very much, and while it has cost you much work and great anxiety, it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to others long after you and your wife have gone to the Paradise above. I consider the book a credit to you and the Church. When you left us for your trip, I knew you would make a great effort to put your thoughts in a readable shape, and do your utmost to describe everything of interest. In that respect you have succeeded far beyond my expectation, and now instead of reading your work for pleasure, I consult it for solid and reliable information. I hope the book will have a large sale, for it deserves it, and ought to be in every family, especially in the Brotherhood.—Eld. J. H. Moore

Mr. Miller has been careful in collecting his facts, and conscientious in describing what he has seen. He has not sacrificed truth to mere picturesque effect. It is this very quality of simplicity and truth that makes the book interesting. After one has been satiated with the common type of the book or letter of travel, which aims at describing the writer's fancies or saying something fine, but which seldom descends to describing things as they are, it is really refreshing to read this straight-forward and faithful narrative. More than one-half of the book is occupied with Bible lands. There are many books on the Holy Land, and this work will make no pretensions to supersede them; but it will find its way into many homes where the larger works have not appeared. By reason of its simplicity of style, it is well adapted to younger readers, and it will doubtless stimulate in many young minds a greater interest for Bible study.—A. W. Burnett, Strasburg, Germany.

ON last Sunday evening we had the pleasure of a sermon by Bro. J. Allen Meyers. He has now charge of the schools of Mifflin County, is a young man of ability, and the church should have the benefit of his services. The church is now getting quite a number of young men of this kind, and for want of a proper system to properly use and encourage them, much of our talent is going to waste.

"MAN at his worst can show himself worse than the brutes; he can sink lower than the lowest of the lower creations. Man at his best can represent the very image of God in which he was originally created; he can rise higher than the angels. Every one of us is moving steadily in the one direction or the other. Whatever our future is to be, it is in the direction of our present onmoving."

"GOD lades the wings of private prayer with the sweetest, choicest, and chiefest blessings. Ah! how often hath God kissed the poor Christian at the beginning of private prayer, spoken peace to him in the midst of prayer, and filled him with light, joy, and assurance upon its close! As is the fresh air to a close, infected room, so is the keen, invigorating breeze from the throne of God, which peers into the narrow chamber of the heart, stuffed with the prejudices, passions and fancies of our own little circle, of our own little thoughts, whose doors have never been opened to new ideas or bright feelings, whose windows have been closed against all wider and higher views."

THE old saying, "When the heart is right everything else is right," though much abused at times, often proves to be true in more respects than one, as was witnessed at the river side last Sunday afternoon, in baptism. "For Jesus' sake" subordinates everything else and makes possible things that would otherwise seem impossible. Yes, we have reason to thank God that there is a faith that overcomes. Good Father, give us more of it!

WE have before us a chart entitled: "Chart of Christian Denominations, Historical, Divisional and Doctrinal," by Eld. P. S. Meyers. The size of the chart is 24 by 36 inches and is designed to show, at a glance, the origin of the different religious denominations as we now have them in the world. At the bottom of the chart proper is given a synopsis of the faith and practice of the churches named. On the border of the chart are the following illustrations: Anointing, Baptismal Scene, Christ, the Crucifixion, the Lord's Supper and Washing Feet. The arrangement is rather novel, and though the author does not claim for it perfection, there is much in it that is suggestive and may lead to a more diligent search after the Truth. It is a pretty and instructive ornament for the home and can be had by addressing Eld. P. S. Meyers, Cerro Gordo, Ill.

IT WAS IMMERSION, AND NOT ONLY SO, BUT TRINE IMMERSION.

BY L. H. EBY.

THE above heading is the answer to question No. 87, page 47, of a small volume entitled, "A Catechism on Baptism," by J. M. Cramp, D. D. The question is as follows: "In what manner was baptism administered in the early ages of the church?"

We are indeed glad to note that many leading minds in other churches, upon investigation of apostolic baptism, both from Scripture and early church history, as a rule, find overwhelming evidences in favor of trine, or three-fold immersion; hence the only wise answer of Eld. Cramp to the above question. Thus decided other Baptist Brethren, namely, Cathcart, Robinson, Wilkinson and Orchard.

This small volume is divided into three parts:

Part 1. What baptism is.

Part 2. What baptism is not.

Part 3. The duty of Christians with regard to baptism. The author presents much truth under the different parts, in a Christian-like spirit.

The arguments and truths so strongly presented, favoring apostolic baptism, causes one query in the mind of the writer, and may cause the same in the minds of all our dear Brethren who chance to read the volume. It is this: Why,—in the face of such witnesses as the above, from the Baptist Fraternity,—do our Baptist friends still observe single immersion, backwards, and why do they give it to the people as apostolic baptism? Why? The above volume can be purchased for ten cents, by addressing the American Baptist Publication Society, No. 1420, Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

ORIGIN OF THE RIVER BRETHREN.

Copied by Sarah Miller from the Writings of her Father, Moses Miller, Deceased.

FROM circumstances connected with the start or organization of this people, it may be said, that they started about one hundred years ago. Eight persons united in the organization. The names, as near as I can remember them were, Jacob and Hans Engel, Stem, Sheaffer, Bark, and Hikes. I have heard old brethren tell that sometimes it looked as if they would unite with the United Brethren, but not agreeing with them in baptism and other points of doctrine, they came to my grandfather, George Miller, who was ordained, in 1780, Bishop of the Big Swatara church, Pa., and desired him to baptize them, but did not wish to unite with the Brethren, but start a church of their own. Grandfather Miller refused, saying, that he had no Gospel merely to baptize, but that he would have to receive them into the church, and that they would have to be willing to take and give admonition, according to the Scriptures.

They made the second effort to have grandfather baptize them, when he said, "If you want to begin something of your own, you would better baptize yourselves."

So they met at the Susquehanna River, between Bainbridge and Marietta, Lancaster Co., Pa. The lot fell on Sheaffer, who baptized one, and that one baptized the other seven. And as they baptized in the river and were living in that locality, they obtained the name "River Brethren."

As Sheaffer was their first administrator of baptism, they were in some instances, called "Sheafferites," and as their number was eight, they sometimes called themselves Noah's children.

The idea that some hold, that they went from the Brethren, is incorrect, but, at a later date, a small number of the old Brethren joined them, Jacob and Joseph Keefer, both my cousins,—Henry Buser, Catharine Risser, Anna Brehm, and Susanna Miller.

In doctrine the River Brethren differ from the Brethren, generally preaching the forgiveness of sins and the gift of the Holy Ghost before baptism. About forty-five or forty-six years ago they had a supper or full meal connected with their Communion. I remember that one of their ministers then said they would not practice anything but what they had Scripture for but they have long since done away with the supper. They have their experience meetings, and some are good in telling what they have experienced. They are plain and, like the Brethren, contend for self-denial.

They are divided into three parts,—the old River Brethren, the Yorkers or Stricklerites, and the Buserites. I remember fifty years ago, that one of their members said to my mother, "The old Brethren house has fallen, and the new are building it up." Mother said, "The old is still standing, so you must build beside the foundation." When they divided, I had to think of what my mother said.—Written by Moses Miller, Sept. 2, 1881.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

FROM THE TABLE TO THE CROSS.

SOFTLY wanes the light of day;
Twilight's mystic doors unclose,
Shedding down a silvery spray
Over nature's sweet repose.
Silently night's dusky shades
Gather on Mount Olive's crest;
And the evening hush pervades
Gethsemane, so loved and blest.

From a hallowed upper room,
As the shadows darker grow,
One in manhood's youthful bloom,
Comes with weary step and slow
To the garden in the Mount:
Sadness marks his pallid face,
And his lips at sorrow's fount
Drink, yet overflow with grace.

Low upon his face he falls,
Filled with sorrow unto death!
Direst one his heart enthralls!
Anguish trembles on his breath!
And his throbbing bosom tells
Of a burdened soul within;
Yet no stain upon him dwells —
No iniquity nor sin!

Hear him reverently pray:
"O my Father! if this cup
From me may not pass away
Thy will be done." Death fills up
The nauseous, gory chalice
Which to his white lips is pressed:
Was there ever grief like this
Swelling frail and mortal breast?

Sweat, like blood-drops, trickle down
His wan cheek. A shadowed cross
Wreathed with thorn-inwoven crown
Before him stands: a world's loss
Is dimly twined about them,
And man's sins are interlaced
With the thorny diadem,
By unholy fingers traced.

See! an angel from the skies,
Floats on golden wings of light,
Comfort beaming in blest eyes;
Peace, perfuming angel flight;
Strength, it lends his wearied form,
Wipes the sweat drops from his brow;
Grace imparts to meet death's storm,
Love, to keep his sacred vow.

Armed and low, a band of men,
Through the winding garden path,
Seek him in the olive glen,
Where he wrestled with sin's wrath.
But he meets them in the way
And receives the traitor's kiss;
Ere he dies, that souls astray
May return to life and bliss.

Like a lamb he meekly stands,
While false tongues his name revile;
Smitten, scourged, by godless hands —
He in whom there is no guile!
See! he climbs steep Calvary
By his heavy cross weighed down;
Griefs and sneers borne silently,
And his mocking, thorny crown.

Thus his weary steps we trace,
Through the retrospective scene,
As he moves with solemn grace,
Dignified by love serene.
Sad, but sweet the memory's stay,
That his suffering saved our loss;
Blood and sorrow mark the way
From the table to the cross.

"TAKE UP THE COMPLETE ARMOR OF GOD."

BY LANDON WEST.

WHILE reading Wilson's "Emphatic Diaglott," the plainest and best translation of the New Testament, in my opinion, that we have, I find the above command in Ephesians 6: 13, and while reading the verses that follow and examining the specifications of the Christian's armor, to be worn by each follower of Christ, I can not but admire the thought given in reference to the armor for the feet of a Christian, namely "the preparation of the glad tidings of peace." I can not but wonder what this preparation implies and what, if once put on and worn, would give peace to every member of the body of Christ,—peace on earth and good will to all men. Indeed, I feel it is a thought that all of us should look after, and a gift which all of us should covet earnestly. An armor that will protect a soldier and, at the same time, give him peace and a path of peace, while he, all the while is in active warfare, is wonderful, and should be sought for, and worn by all people.

How can we stand in the evil day without something for our feet to rest upon? And how can we stand at all, approved of God, with nothing for our feet, when the preparation is prescribed for them? These are questions that all of us should look after. We are told how we may stand and what armor to put on, that we can stand, but peace is for the feet, and by them peace is to be worn and, of course, must be put on.

It is a Gospel preparation, and prescribed by them who gave the Gospel, and as we look for what is named for the feet, we find nothing but feet-washing in John 13, and that was prescribed by the Savior himself, and it is named again in 1 Tim. 5: 10 for the saints' feet.

The lesson, taught in John 13, was evidently a preparation for that occasion and gave a lesson on peace, never shown before. That given to Timothy, was another preparation for the occasion there named and described, which manifested peace in the fullest sense of the word. What better evidence of peace and good feeling could be shown, than that of serving one another,—even to the washing of their feet?

Now, if all the professed followers of Jesus Christ would take on the whole armor, prescribed for them, and worn, too, by their Great Leader, and also by the great teacher of the Gentiles, would it not secure for them peace with all men? And would they not then, willingly, become "servants one of another?" Gal. 5: 13. If all those who profess to love him who died for all men, would love and serve one another, as the Master served his servants, would we not all be servants one of another, and in love serve one another? Our feet, would they not then be shod with a preparation of the Gospel that would give peace to all its possessors? While all soldiers are in active warfare, all the while against the common enemy, yet we could and would follow peace with all men, and possess all the benefits of this preparation of the Gospel of peace. May God help us to see what is prepared for our Christian armor, and may we all put it on and wear it, that peace may be ours, both on earth and in heaven!

WHAT SHALL SISTERS READ?

BY MANDILLA FOX.

I SEE in No. 4 of the GOSPEL MESSENGER an article, "What Shall Women Read?" Would it not be well to inquire, What shall sisters read? Most of us are fond of reading whenever an opportunity affords. Some have a great deal of time to read, and the question arises, What shall we read? Ought we not rather obey God than man? Then it is no hard matter to know what to read. Read God's Word or, in other words, the Scriptures. "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me,"—so says Jesus.

When we go into Brethren's houses, we find all manner of reading matter. What is all this for? To store the mind with knowledge, of course. Why not read the Scriptures? If we do not get the desired information at once, read again and do not let it for once be said that we go to the world for information that we should properly get from the Scriptures. Well may the world rejoice that we are getting more like it! Does not all this come from improper reading matter?

Some may say, "I have no time for reading." Paul says, "Study." Let all read the Bible when they have time and think over it whenever they possibly can. Always remember that reading without reflecting is like eating without digesting.

If the Scriptures were read as they ought to be, there would be no need of urging people to watch and pray, for they would soon realize that the enemy is at hand and they would have to watch. Then, too, they would come to a knowledge that of themselves they can do nothing, and they would feel a strong impulse to pray, so that watching and prayer would come as natural as eating. Such persons need not be scolded into consistent lives. Dear sisters, let your light so shine that the world may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven, for "if that light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness?"

DEATH THE GATEWAY TO JOY.

BY A. REBECCA WAMPLER.

Suggested by the Death of Sister Hattie L. Miller.

To the faithful follower of Christ there is no death,—only transition. The exit from this world,—or death if you please to call it,—to the true Christian is a glorious explanation. It is a revelation of things that have long clouded the mind in mist. It illumines that which before was dark and unfathomable. It is opening the windows to a glorious dawn. It is shutting up the catechisms of doubt, and the unrolling of all the scrolls of positive and accurate information. Instead of standing at the foot of the hill and looking up, it is standing at the top of the hill and looking down. As a great mind has exclaimed, "It is the last mystery taken out of theology." Thus we may look upon it as only being the departure of the spirit from its habitation of clay, for mansions built of gold and jasper.

How longingly must the sanctified soul wait for this transition! What unspeakable joy must fill the heart of the believer when he realizes his hour has come, for soon he will be at home with his Redeemer in heaven, where new joys will continue to unfold through countless ages of a never-ending eternity.

We know that it can not be that earth is man's only abiding place. It can not be that our life, like a bubble, is cast up by the ocean of eternity, to float a moment on its surface and then sink into nothingness and darkness forever. Else why these high and glorious aspirations, which leap like angels from the temples of our hearts? Why is it that the rainbow and the cloud come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off and leave us to muse on their faded loveliness? Why is it that the stars which hold their festivals around the midnight throne, are set beyond the grasp of our limited faculties and are forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? Because we are born for a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread out before us like the islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful beings that have come before us like visions, will stay in our presence forever.

This is the joy that death brings to the faithful Christian, and this is the joy that is prepared for those who love the Savior, and we may all share it if we will. Then can it be said of us, when we have entered that rest:

"Beautiful toiler, thy work all done,
Beautiful soul into glory gone,
Beautiful life with its crown now won,
God giveth the rest.
Rest from all sorrows, and watching, and fears;
Rest from all possible sighing and tears;
Rest through God's endless, wonderful years –
At home with the blest."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

BY ENOCH EBY.

Dear Bro. D., your questions demand a Gospel answer. Your first question alludes to Acts 20: 7. "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight." Then he went down and brought Eutychus to life. Then came up again, and broke bread and ate, then talked even till break of day. Acts 20: 11.

In answer to your question, if the above text proves the necessity of breaking bread every first day of the week, I would say, Not any more than Acts 2: 46 proves the necessity of doing it daily in the temple, and from house to house. It does not even prove that they broke bread on that occasion, on the first day of the week. They came together on the first day, as their usual practice was to worship on that day, as nearly all Christendom does yet; but that text does not prove that they broke bread every first day, and at no other time. It does plainly prove, however, that they broke their bread after night, and even after midnight. When any one presses his claims so strongly upon you, as a young minister, on that point, tell him that consistency teaches he should attend to it between midnight and day-light.

Your second query refers me to John 3: 5, "Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." It is self-evident from your question, that the Nicodemuses are not all dead yet, or they would not associate the term "water" in the text with a natural birth, as he did, hence his question in verse 4. There is only one way to reach the condition to enter the kingdom, as he understood it, and that way was blocked with absurdities and impossibilities. Had the Savior used the noun "child" instead of "man," there might be some little logic in it, but even then it would not be good sense to make the unavoidable a something which all have, a condition or qualification to enter into the kingdom.

There is but one legitimate conclusion at which the reader can arrive,—that the water, referred to in the text, is the natural element of water into which the penitent believer is taken and buried, and from which he may arise in newness of life, and be qualified to receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

We may be born of blood, of the will of the flesh, or of the will of man, John 1: 15, but to be born of God, the soul must become impregnated with the incorruptible seed by the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever. 1 Pet. 1: 23. This will develop a new creature, 2 Cor. 5: 17, which, then, must be born of water (German,—out of water). This does not give life, but merely changes the state and cleanses the life that visibly existed before. The Pentecostians must be baptized for the remissions of their sins, Acts 2: 38, put on Christ, Gal. 3: 27, and receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. The same may be said of Paul, "Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins." Acts 22: 16. A manifestation of life is not sufficient. The sinner must be washed and dressed, by putting on Christ, laid in the arms of his mother (the church), as a new-born babe, who will feed it with the sincere milk of the Word that it may grow thereby. 1 Pet 2: 2.

Your third question cites me to Mark 16: 16–18. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Your difficulty is, as to whether those signs follow the believer now as they did in the days of the apostles. Measurably they do. A certain one said, "In a spiritual sense they do."

We inquire, Why were signs and miracles wrought by Christ and the apostles? By, Christ, to establish his Messiahship, and the same may be said of Moses' leadership. The apostles wrought miracles to confirm the Word. Mark 16: 20. They confirmed the Word with signs following. See Heb. 2: 4. God also bore them "witness both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will." The Word must be confirmed and this was done by poor fishermen. They astonished the public with incontrovertible evidence that they possessed supernatural power. Now the Word is written in a book and confirmed, so that the necessity for miracles ceased with the apostles.

Permit me here to remark, however, that the apostles never did perform miracles by presumption. The Lord used them as instruments and they were under the power of the Spirit in doing all God's work. To explain, I relate the following: In my youthful days we had a neighbor who was a very zealous professor of religion. He concluded if his religion was genuine, he should be able to perform miracles. His first effort was to put a stone in the oven, and to pray that it should turn into bread. I do not know how long he prayed, but he failed. He next put his hands on a hot stove-pipe. He thought if the three holy men were fire-proof in such a hot furnace he surely could stand that, but, of course, did not keep them there long. His third and last effort was to walk on water, and this did not only end his miracles, but would have ended his life, had it not been for some persons near enough to hear him. He gave heed to the devil, but the Savior did not. To-day, if God needs and wants miracles, he has the same kind of material to work with as in that age, but we repeat it, there is no necessity for them.

ASLEEP IN JESUS.

BY ROSA SPICKLER.

How often have these familiar words been sung by the children of men; yea, many lips that are now stilled in death have uttered them in days gone by, and may they not be repeated by those who come after us, even unto the end of time? When those we love and cherish are torn from us by the cruel hand of death, and these words are hymned above their shrouded forms, how consoling the thought, "Asleep in Jesus!" How glorious the language! Do we, can we, in our finite minds, comprehend the import of the same? I fear not. But, ah!—may we not in the blissful future realize to the fullest extent the meaning thereof? Yea, verily, if we are the faithful children of God.

Then let us renew our diligence in the service of our Master, fearlessly standing for the right amidst all oppositions! Though trials and affliction come, though sorrows and bereavements overtake us, let us look to him who is able and willing to help in time of trouble. We, as young soldiers of the cross, may be tempted on every hand by the allurements and fascinations of a sinful world. Even our friends and associates may endeavor to draw us from the simplicity of the Gospel, but let us be true to our Savior, who has died that we might live, and may we ever be found at the foot of the cross, there learning the sweet lessons of humility and holiness. After a little while, when our labors in life are ended, and we shall be called to cross the mystic river into the great unknown, then, oh! then, may these solemn words be truthfully sung to our remembrance:

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

Polo, Ill.

[The dear young sister, who wrote this article has passed over the "mystic river," and now enjoys that blessed sleep in Jesus. Within a few short weeks after she had written the above essay, the messenger of death came and called sister Rosa to her eternal home. At her funeral the beautiful hymn, "Asleep in Jesus" was sung. Ah, how little we know as to the future! Our dear sister, when she wrote this article for the Messenger, did not know that so soon "these solemn words would be sung to her remembrance." May her last earnest appeal to the young soldiers of the cross never be forgotten, and may we also be ready, for we know not when the death angel cometh. Ed.]

PATIENCE.

BY H. SHAFFER.

In Luke 21: 19 we find these words, "In your patience, possess ye your souls." How much, then, should this impress the mind of every one who is interested in the final welfare of his soul! For "what can a man give in exchange for his soul?" We understand the word "patience" here to mean calm endurance and submission to God's will under afflictions, in tribulations, in trials, in prosperity and in adversity. The word "soul" comprises the immortal spirit of man,—the intellectual part of his nature. How often are we tempted and tried, and made to feel that we can bear it no longer? But we have the assurance that we "shall not be tempted above that we are able to bear." 1 Cor. 10: 13.

For an example of patience let us turn to the life of Job. On one occasion he exclaimed: "Oh, that my grief were thoroughly weighed, and my calamity laid in the balance together! For now it would be heavier than the sand of the sea." Job 6: 2. He desired even that God would "let loose his hand and cut him off." His wife, seeing his afflictions, exclaimed, "Dost thou still retain thine integrity? Curse God and die." Job 2: 9. He was sorely afflicted and divested of all earthly possessions, yet with patience he endured it all, and when he humbled himself before God, "the Lord gave him twice as much as he had before." "So the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning." Job 42: 12.

When we look at the life of our Blessed Savior, and that of the apostles, we can see that they exercised patience under the most trying circumstances. How much less will it take to save us, in this our day, than it did the apostles? If we wish to be made "perfect in every good work to do his will, working in us that which is well pleasing in his sight through Jesus Christ," we dare not omit any one of the seven Christian graces which, Peter says, we should add to our faith. 2 Pet. 1: 5-7. Patience being one of these, it is well worthy of our attention. We should always bear in mind how this is brought about in us. How many of us can say with Paul, "We glory in tribulation also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience?" Rom. 5: 3. Can we, with James, count it "all joy when we fall into diverse temptations, knowing this, that the trying of our faith worketh patience?" He also says, "Let patience have her perfect work that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." James 1: 2-4. Therefore let us, "who are risen with Christ, set our affections on things above," and "cast not away therefore our confidence, which hath great recompense of reward" Heb. 10: 35. "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus who is the author and finisher of our faith." "For we have need of patience that, after we have done the will of God, we might receive the promise." "For yet a little while and he that shall come, will come and will not tarry." Heb. 10: 36, 37.

THE RESURRECTION.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

No. 2.—Reasonableness of the Resurrection.

It does not seem reasonable that beings, so highly advanced as man, should live only a few days or years at most, then die and forever remain buried in the silence of the grave. Man is too great and noble a work for so small a purpose. If death ends all, then our life is a miserable failure. The few, fleeting pleasures of earth do not balance our sorrows and disappointments. Man has capacities for enjoyment and longings of soul that this life can never supply. We conceive in our mind a country most beautiful, where the soft, brilliant light is never obscured by midnight darkness, nor by the threatening clouds of storm and tornado; where the verdure is ever of living green, and the flowers bloom eternally; where the leaf never fades nor falls and the flowers never wither; where the groves are fairer than Eden, abounding in songs of heavenly melody; where the sparkling waters of life's pure river roll steadily on; where the city of God,—the home of the saints,—is built upon foundations most glorious to behold, whose gates are of pearl and streets of pure gold.

We conceive of a life that knows no pain, no sorrow, no disappointment, no suffering, no hunger, no thirst, no heat, no cold, nor death,—a life that is always young and beautiful, fair as the morning and fresh as the rose, upon which the ages of eternity can not impress the ravages of time, of disease, or of sin. We conceive of a state of society, absolutely free and uncontaminated with the least taint of sin,—society that is perfectly pure and lovely, rejoicing in the highest degree in promoting each other's happiness, where all are in the full enjoyment of the noblest faculties of the soul, with nothing to mar the uninterrupted flow of pure love, heavenly peace, and angelic happiness. No swearer, nor liar, nor thief, nor murderer, nor drunkard, nor miser, nor fornicator, nor adulterer, nor anything that defileth can ever enter there.

For such enjoyments we often long amidst our suffering, and sorrows, and tears, here below. Can it be that beings, so nobly endowed, with such holy longings of soul, and grand conceptions of mind must forever be barred, by the iron gate of death from coming forth from the prison-house of the dead? The voice of the soul says, No; the green verdure and flowers say, No; the sun, moon and stars say, No; all heaven says, No; Revelation says, No, never, never, NEVER!

Christ burst the iron gate that barred the way so long to the portals of eternal glory, and walked forth, in the shining splendor of the resurrection, the greatest conqueror of the universe, conquering death and the grave. He holds the keys of death and hell,—Hades, – the grave, by which he will unlock every prison-house of the dead, in the morning of the resurrection of the dead.

A FEW THOUGHTS FOR THE POOR.

BY J. L. KLINE.

While I read the article by our beloved brother, Enoch Eby, upon going security, some thoughts came vividly to my mind that were brought to my notice in reading a similar article about two years ago. I must confess that my mind is entirely changed from what it was then, and this article is particularly designed for such poor brethren, whose opinion may differ from the convictions of our dear elder brethren.

There was a time when the writer thought that a good many poor brethren could be helped upon a better basis, financially, by buying things and having some one go security for them, if they could not get them on their own credit. Since then I have gone through the fire of experience. My mind, as above stated, is entirely changed, and I fully acquiesce with my brethren. I have found that "going security" is the wrong way to help the poor, because it is not the Gospel way.

Let me tell you, as one who has learned the lesson well through the best teacher, "experience," that it is far better, and also a course of wisdom, to earn and save the money, and then pay for things when we buy them.

ARE WE READY?

BY SARAH H. MOYER.

Many of the misfortunes which come to us come from our lack of readiness to meet them, things which might have been expected. We are not ready for things for which we might have made preparations; we are not ready to die; we are not ready for the judgment. Hence, in the Savior's exhortation, he says, "Be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." Matt. 24: 44. Let us take heed to these words. Let us not apply them to a multitude of other things to which the language has no reference! Let us not substitute either our words or thoughts for those which the Master has chosen; but let us weigh the words as they are given to us!

Our Savior, who died on the cross, arose from the dead, and ascended on high, will come again, in such an hour as we think not. Those who are found watching will be blessed; those who are slumbering will awake to sad disappointment. Those who are ready will go in with him to the marriage, and the door will be shut. It is for this day,—the day of decision, the day of judgment,—we are to be ready; even for the coming of him who is the Light, the Hope, and the Savior of his people. As servants wait for their absent master, so should we wait for our returning Lord, knowing that he will surely come and will not tarry. He will come when men are not aware. His appearance will be like the lightning flash! Blessed are they that shall then be found watching, because, if they watch and pray always, they shall be counted worthy to escape all those things that are coming on the earth. The only way to be prepared is to be in constant communion with him.

Let us, then, be true Christians, a separate people, standing by our colors, true unto him who has loved us and has redeemed us with his precious blood, and let us never be ashamed to own him as our Savior.

"Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words, in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." Mark 8: 38. Therefore it behooves us to be watchful, that, when the Bridegroom cometh, he may own us and bid us enter into his joy.

From Sandy Creek Church, W. Va.

We have just enjoyed the most encouraging series of meetings we ever attended. Bro. Jasper Barnthouse, of Markleysburgh, Pa., came to us Feb. 24, and remained with us until March 5, laboring faithfully during this time.

Our meetings were well attended, and the interest was excellent. During Bro. Barnthouse's stay with us, twenty-three dear souls were baptized, and two reclaimed.

The writer continued the meetings after Bro. Barnthouse left us, until Sunday evening following. As an immediate result, ten more made the good choice, and were buried with Christ in baptism, to walk in newness of life. Thus, in less than two weeks' meetings thirty-five were received into the church. Thank the Lord for his goodness to us! May the dear lambs prove faithful, so as to receive the crown of life!

During our meetings, Bro. Jacob Thomas departed this life March 1, after several weeks' illness. About ten days before his death, he called for the elders of the church, and was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord. He was afflicted with dropsy. A few days before his death, they thought he was a great deal better, but in the midst of their hopes, he suddenly died. Let us all prepare for the change that awaits us!

March 11.

From the Field.

By request of the brethren and sisters of the Wooster church, Wayne County, Ohio, I commenced a series of meetings in what is known as the Leisure meeting-house, located about one and one-half miles south-east of Smithville, a place known or remembered by many brethren from the fact that the Annual Meeting was held on the same farm in 1872 (if not mistaken in date) where the meeting-house now stands. The meetings commenced on the evening of Feb. 15, although I did not get there until the evening of the 17th. We continued the meetings day and night for two weeks with good interest. The weather, the greater part of the time, was very inclement, and the roads in bad condition, yet the meetings were well attended, and excellent attention was given to the Word preached. I preached, in all, twenty-two sermons. As an immediate result two precious souls were added to the church by baptism. Others, we are certain, were fully persuaded in their own mind of the necessity of choosing that good part, which can not be taken from them, but allowed themselves to be still unwilling to act, thinking that there is still time enough to make their peace with God. May they soon act and accept salvation ere it is too late!

To those precious souls who have recently started in the service of their Master we would say,

Be watchful, be prayerful, be humble, honor the Lord in your conduct, and he will honor you with the gift of the Holy Spirit. To those, whose consciences testify that all is not well with them, we would say, "Grieve not the Spirit of God which has deigned to visit you. Reject not the light that God hath sent you, by continuing in sin! Yield yourselves as the humble and faithful subject of Christ, and your sorrow will be turned into joy, and your trouble to peace."

In conclusion we would say, Let us all be faithful servants! Let us be diligent in performing the work allotted us by our Master, that, when death comes, we may pass quietly from earth to heaven, to meet in our Father's house with all his children, to part no more forever!

ACCORDING to arrangements I went to Hamler, Henry Co., Ohio, Jan. 11, to conduct a series of meetings in that place. The few brethren, living near there rented the large hall of Mr. Hamler, to hold a week's meetings. I commenced on Sunday evening, Jan. 11, with a large congregation. Good attention was given to the Word preached. On Saturday evening, Jan. 17, I announced to the congregation, that on Sunday evening would be the last meeting, according to the arrangements made. When I stated that the brethren were only few in number, and did not feel able to pay for the hall any longer, Mr. Hamler proposed to let us have the hall free, and he would furnish the oil, so that we would not be at any expense whatever. So we concluded to continue as long as my health would permit. Feeling that I was gradually getting worse, the meetings were closed Thursday evening, Jan. 22, with a large attendance and good interest. I talked with a good many aged persons who have been professors of religion for thirty years, and never heard the Gospel preached by the Brethren. Several said to me that they had nothing to stand on now; that their props were all gone.

I returned home next day and found one of my sons suffering with sore throat. The same day I was prostrated with the typhoid fever and it was just six weeks before I could sit up any length of time. I am now, at this writing, able to walk about in the house, and feel thankful to the Preserver of Life, and the Giver of all good,—to him who has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." May I soon be able to work in the vineyard again! I ask an interest in the prayers of the church every-where. JOSEPH HOLDER.

March 10.

From the Manor Church, Md.

IN GOSPEL MESSENGER of Feb. 24, 1891, page 124, Bro. Wm. Hertzler, in an article he has written, gives a brief account of the ministerial meeting, held at the Manor church, Md. We were very glad to meet Bro. William there, as well as all our dear brethren. Our meeting surely was one of great interest and benefit, as expressed by our brother.

In writing this article, we have no desire to open a controversy; we only make a statement which we trust our brother will receive as we give it,—kindly and in love. He refers to the subject, "Who are the meek, and how and when shall they inherit the earth," which was a very interesting one, but in importance one of the least at our meeting, as there is nothing vital, no doctrinal principle in it.

We have our different views on these subjects, and are at liberty to express them there, but in giving afterwards a few arguments advanced, we may, unintentionally, send forth wrong impressions.

We were glad to learn Bro. Hertzler's views. While some entertain his views, and while they may be right, we here would be greatly misrepresented, should the impression go out that his views prevail in Western Maryland, and especially in the Manor congregation. He says, "A fair and Scriptural exposition was given." We failed to hear the Scripture advanced, or at least any to sustain that opinion. Our Savior said, "I go to prepare a place for you,"—not alluding to this sin-cursed earth. Human nature is the same to-day as it was in all ages. David said, "My steps had well-nigh slipped, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked, until I went into the sanctuary of God." The wicked enjoyed and possessed more than the righteous.

One Scripture advanced was that we, the "meek,"—inherit this earth by promise. If that alludes the time right here, just now, then many of the meek, having no possessions, die without enjoying God's promises. Peter speaks of our inheritance as incorruptible, undefiled and one that will never fade away. The patriarchs confessed they were only strangers and pilgrims in the promised land. They looked for a city whose Builder and Maker is God. The inheritance is not here in this defiled earth, since we can not stay here if we desire, for death will take us away. The meek do not desire to stay here, for Paul says, "I desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better."

Many strong arguments were advanced contrary to our brother's views, but he, desiring, no doubt, to make his article as brief as possible, thought best to mention only those advanced by Bro. Stouffer and himself.

We are glad to see such interest manifested in these meetings all over the Brotherhood, as they are of so much benefit to us, especially the younger ministering brethren. D. VICTOR LONG.

From the Donald's Creek Church, Clarke Co., Ohio.

BRO. L. W. TEETER came to us Feb. 13, according to previous arrangements, and commenced meetings in New Carlisle the same evening. He continued until the evening of March 1, preaching twenty-eight sermons to fair congregations. While we had several very rainy nights, we had a fair attendance during all the meetings. One was baptized and one reclaimed.

While we can not report a large number of accessions, yet one soul is worth more than the whole world, and we feel that these meetings are a feast to all of God's children that are in the fold, as they can be much built up.

I often wonder why all the members do not take more interest in these meetings. If the whole church would combine its forces, what a power of good might be accomplished!

Sister Teeter accompanied Bro. Lewis to our place. We much appreciate her presence in the sanctuary as well as at our home.

Bro. John M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa., held a series of meetings in the North Bend house, in the above-named congregation, commencing Feb. 14, and ending March 1. He preached in all twenty discourses, holding forth the words of eternal life and truth with great power. Sinners were made to tremble. As an immediate result eight dear souls agreed to forsake the world and its vanities and to come into the fold of our Lord and Redeemer. May the Lord bless Bro. Mohler in his labors, to the saving of many souls.

Jan. 10 wife and I started for Benton County, this State, where I was to hold some meetings, according to previous appointment. At Warsaw we were met by Bro. David Kinsey and taken to his home. On Sunday, Jan. 11, we were taken to the place of meeting, about six miles north-west of Warsaw, where we found a full house of anxious listeners.

Jan. 15, Bro. R. S. Rust, in company with Bro. George Ihrig, from the Spring Branch church, came to assist in the meetings. We held thirteen meetings at this place with two accessions by baptism. The doctrine, at this point is comparatively new. There are six members living here that are near enough to attend the meetings. There are also several members living ten or fifteen miles away, that did not get to the meetings. Judging from the attendance and the interest manifested throughout the meetings, we believe more good can be done at this place by putting forth an effort. The members here would like very much to have a regular appointment, and we trust that the brethren will not forget them when passing that way. We closed the meetings Jan. 20. The next day, in company with brethren Rust and Ihrig, we went to the Spring Branch church, about fourteen miles south of Warsaw. Here the Brethren at once made an appointment at their school-house, for the purpose of aiding the Western sufferers.

On Friday evening, Jan. 23, after being admonished as to our Christian duties, $3.40 was collected. The members here are mostly poor in this world's goods, but are ever ready and willing to be governed by the "Golden Rule."

Jan. 24, Bro. Rust and I, with others of the Spring Branch church, went about twenty-five miles east into Camden County to hold a series of meetings, Bro. Rust being sent by the Mission Board. Here we held thirteen meetings, resulting in five accessions to the church by baptism. Good interest prevailed throughout the meetings. Part of the time the house was uncomfortably crowded. There are sixteen members at this place, and Bro. Rust will preach for them once each month.

At this place we closed the meetings Feb. 1. Next day we started back to Benton County. Wife and I stopped at Mount View to visit some of the members. Here we also had four meetings in the Brethren's church. This congregation is under the care of Eld. M. T. Baer, with Bro. Campbell to assist in the ministry.

Feb. 8 we started again for the Spring Branch church, to begin a series of meetings. Here, as usual, we found a full house of anxious listeners. All were made to feel sad that two of our beloved brethren have lately been called away to try the realities of another world,—brethren Joel Ihrig and James Brown. While the church will miss them much, we trust they have gone to rest.

Here we also had good congregations. One came out on the Lord's side while in her youth. May she be a light to the world and an example to her many associates. There are about twenty-four members here, with Bro. R. S. Rust as their minister. They are in love and union, and are to be commended for their zeal in the Master's cause.

On Friday, Feb. 13, we started for home, leaving Bro. Rust to continue the meetings. Upon our arrival at home we found all well, for which we were thankful to our Heavenly Father. We extend our thanks to all the Brethren and friends who have been so kind to us while with them. May the Lord bless them! Israel Cripe.

Notes of Travel.

Feb. 19 I boarded the train for Olcott, where my oldest son, Daniel Wise, resides. Here I preached in the evening to an appreciative congregation. Feb. 20, I passed on to Eden Valley church where I preached in the evening.

Feb. 21 was the regular quarterly council in the Eden Valley church. All passed off well, considering the character of the business transacted. I preached at night, also next day at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.

Feb. 23 I was taken to St. John's, the County-seat of Stafford County, Kansas. Here I visited with two old members, and at night preached in the house of Bro. Isaac Beaver.

Feb. 24 I was taken about eight miles North-east to Douglas school-house, where I met an interested congregation. Although the house was densely packed, so that standing room was in demand, the order and attention were very good.

Feb. 25 I was taken away, through the storm, to a point about eight miles distant. As the afternoon was quite stormy, we decided not to go to the appointment that evening. I will say, for the satisfaction of many, that the Eden Valley church is doing well.

Feb. 26 I returned home and found all well. I thank God for his care over us! John Wise.

To Mary Bucher Beahm.

NUMBER THREE.

Dear Daughter: –

There was a thought presented in my previous letters about progression. Now I call your attention to the opposite word,—retrogression. Some call that progress which, in fact, is retrogression. When we get nearer to God and his humble ways we progress, and when we get farther away, we retrogress. This retrogression is promoted by two prime causes, viz, by looking on ourselves, and by looking on others. Paul, in 2 Cor. 10:12, states it thus: "But they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise."

We measure ourselves by ourselves like the pupil does in his penmanship. He has his headline to copy after, and tries to imitate it as long as he is near it, but when he gets further away, he forgets it and looks on his own writing. The longer he looks on his own, the worse his writing gets, and, frequently, by the time he reaches the bottom of the page, it does not look much like the headline any more. He measures himself by himself. They who do so are mere pretenders. They are not actuated by God's Spirit. They have no rule to go by. They are full of pride, self-conceit, and self-love. To them the real and fictitious are the same.

So to the other cause, looking on others, we frequently hear it said, "I am as good as this brother or that sister." That is a dangerous way to measure ourselves. The question is not, "Am I as good as this or that one?"—but "Am I good enough?" This philosophy runs about like this: A mother wishing to leave home says to her son and daughter, "Isaac and Mary I want to go to neighbor Jones'. Now I want you to be good children when I am gone, and do not go into the room at father's books." But children are forgetful, inquisitive, and that which they shall do they are apt to leave undone, and that which they shall not do, they will as likely do. This is natural. "For I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet. But sin taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence." Rom. 7:8. When mother is gone Isaac and Mary somehow stray into the room, and presently Isaac is at father's books. Then Mary rebukes her brother, "Isaac, mother said we should not go at father's books." "Yes," answers Isaac, "mother also said we should not go into the room; now, if it is right for you to go into the room, it can not be wrong for me to be at father's books." And Isaac is right.

"If!" With that word the devil gains a rich harvest. "If you have the right to go into the room, it follows that I also have the right to be at father's books." But as Mary had done wrong, Isaac was wrong too. We can not rub ourselves white on a black kettle. "For I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:20. Geo. Bucher.

Kleinfeldersville, Pa.

From Elizabethtown, Lancaster Co., Pa.

March 7, we, the Spring Creek church, Dauphin Co., Pa., had our annual council-meeting. All business before the council was disposed of with a friendly feeling. Our love-feast was appointed for May 19, at 9 A. M., to close May 20, at noon. Those of the West, who feel to be with us on that occasion will please remember the date above given. The place of the feast is near Derry station on the Harrisburg and Reading R. R.

Our council has also agreed to send a petition through District to Annual Meeting for the purpose of looking a little deeper into the Hymn Book question. As we have about eighteen or twenty churches who need a German book associated with the English, we therefore want a good work for the purpose. When the last German edition came forth, we saw at once that our people were not satisfied with it, and so they never adopted that book. For the purpose of getting what we wanted, a petition was sent to our District Meeting, asking the privilege of getting up a suitable book. That body granted that a committee of brethren might do so on their own responsibility. A committee went to work, compiled a book, got it printed, 2,000 in number, and the new work was soon standing higher than the regular book. In course of time it was necessary to get out the second edition. This time 4,500 were printed, and that supply is all again. Hence the above petition was sent. Union in all things is certainly essential in the house of God, but to be a unit on the Hymn Book question takes a great deal of sacrifice, and when it becomess a duty to make sacrifices, discretion should be respected.

I will right here state our objections to the authorized Book,—English and German. So great a number as 800 hymns is not needed; over the half could be dropped and some Gospel Hymns added, such as our young folks love to sing, and a great many aged ones, too. Use a little larger type for the benefit of poor eyes.

The German Hymn Book is a great deal more objectionable than the English to us, for several reasons; first too small a type, too much crowded together; second the wrong men as committee men to get it up, all foreigners excepting one, and he has had no chance to help to do the work. Foreigners have certainly not the knowledge of our wants as the "Pennsylvania Dutch" people have, and therefore are not competent to get up a Hymn Book to satisfy our people. There are too many dry hymns in the Book, and numbers of others we love are wanting. The Book we got printed at Lancaster gives much better satisfaction to our people in all respects. Still it could be a little improved in both the English and the German part. Whereas we must have books again, we came to the conclusion to wait with our third edition till after Annual Meeting. If our General Conference is able to provide for our wants, all right; if not, then we must do the best we can on the Hymn Book question. It seems to me there is a way in which satisfaction can be reached. WM. HERTZLER.

Items from the Osage Church. Crawford Co., Kans.

OUR quarterly church-meeting passed off pleasantly to-day. The day was a stormy one, and only a few were out. The sum of $3.50 was raised by contribution for Western sufferers, with promise and prospect of more to be contributed soon. Bro. Abner Campbell was elected church trustee to fill the vacancy occasioned by Bro. Nehemiah Carl moving away. Eld. J. H. Neher was chosen delegate to District Meeting and Annual Meeting, if he goes. A call was made for District Meeting as soon as we can get it.

Last Tuesday a mad dog,—a large yellowish greyhound passed through the neighborhood. Several dogs were bitten, some hogs, and, it is feared, also some cattle. Several persons narrowly escaped. He was pursued and killed after a chase of over six miles. His appearance in the neighborhood was sudden and mysterious and it is feared he did much damage before he came here.

Sister Mary Shively is sick; otherwise health among the members is as good as usual.

WE, the brethren and sisters of the Appanoose church, met in quarterly council Feb. 28. The business of the meeting all passed off with that Christian spirit that should characterize the children of God. There were two letters granted. One young sister, much to our regret, decided to walk no more with us. We hope she may see her error, and again return to the fold, before it is too late!

The business, preparatory to our District Meeting, was also considered. We send one query to District Meeting in regard to our church name. Bro. Daniel B. Barnhart will represent us at our District Meeting.

Bro. A. W. Vaniman, of McPherson, came to us Feb. 23, and remained until March 1. He preached in all eight sermons, holding forth the Word with power and demonstration of the Spirit. We feel that the church is much built up, and that sinners were made to see the danger of living in sin. Although we saw no immediate results to our meetings, we feel sure that some are almost persuaded, and are counting the cost, and we hope they will soon make their return to Christ.

From the Quemahoning Church, Somerset County, Pa.

A FEW brethren, in the extreme eastern part of the congregation being desirous of having a more convenient place of worship, last summer went zealously to work soliciting means, and in a short time had such a prospect that the church endorsed the project at once, and chose a building committee, which, without delay, gave the contract to Bro. Ananias Blough, who, although young in years and experience, pushed the work, and, by Feb. 8, had the building ready for occupation. On that day it was solemnly dedicated to the Lord. Services were conducted by Bro. D. L. Walker and the undersigned, to a crowded house of attentive listeners. The house is located near the Somerset and Cambria R. R., on a lot donated by Bro. Jacob B. Blough, and is named Sugar Grove meeting-house. This congregation has now four meeting-houses.

After the dedication services, meetings were continued by Bro. Walker till Thursday evening with good attendance and excellent attention.

Feb. 26, another series of meetings was begun by Eld. Silas Hoover in our large meeting-house and continued one week, with good attendance, considering the condition of the roads and inclemency of the weather. The attention was excellent. While both meetings were productive of much good, they were too short to bring an increase in numbers. E. J. BLOUGH.

BRO. DAVID BROWER, of Coos County, Oregon, came here Dec. 20, and began meetings next day with a good congregation, considering rain and muddy roads. He preached fourteen interesting sermons, with the best of order. The members seemed to be greatly built up by his faithful labors.

After the close of the series of meetings he preached for us every two weeks at our meeting-house, and the intervening Sundays at the different school-houses. His labors among us did much good and, we trust, may be like bread, cast on the waters,—to be gathered not many days hence.

Bro. David bade us farewell this morning, March 3, for other fields. SUSAN M. RHODES.

THIS congregation, as far as known, is in peace and union. We baptized seven in 1890, and received five by letter. Ten letters were granted. Three of our members have passed away during 1890.

We held our communion Oct. 1, 1890. Quite a corps of ministers was with us, among them brethren John H. Moore, D. S. Caylor, Frank Fisher, James Neff, B. Neff and J. Rife. We had a full house of communicants and the best of order.

We have had two series of meetings this year. Bro. Jacob S. Snell, of Collamer, Whitley Co., Ind., came to us on Jan. 14, and commenced a series of meetings. He preached for us until Sunday night, Jan. 25, delivering, during that time, sixteen able discourses. Though we had no immediate accessions, we feel very much built up, and hope that the future results may be for the good of the church and the honor of Christ. Bro. Snell preached in the old house on the Strawtown pike, six miles south of Peru, and two miles east of Bunker Hill, Ind.

Bro. John H. Miller, of Goshen, Ind., came to us Feb. 5, and commenced meetings that evening in our south house, one and one-half miles south-east of Wawpecong. We had attentive congregations but, owing to various causes, the meetings did not result in immediate accessions to the church. JACOB J. FOX.

From Sylvan, Ill.

BRO. JAMES R. GISH and wife arrived here, Feb. 17, and commenced a series of meetings at the M. E. church in the Oregon precinct. He proclaimed the Gospel in all its primitive purity, and preached eleven sermons while with us. After laboring with us two weeks, Bro Gish left us March 3, for Arkansas. May our prayers ever ascend to God in his behalf!

At present we have one applicant for baptism, and while there are no other additions, we know that others were made to realize their condition. In fact, most all seemed to be interested. Our congregations were often small, but we feel that God, in his infinite mercy, was with us. Bro. Gish preached some very interesting sermons, and we feel much encouraged in the work. Our members are living somewhat scattered and nearly all are sisters. While we feel our weakness, we learn, by the Good Book, ever to look to Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith. EMMA C. GREENWOOD.

BRO. M. DIERDORFF, of Yale, came to our church Feb. 14, and remained until March 1. The meetings were held in the Baptist church in the northern part of our congregation, at a point where our doctrine was new. The weather was very inclement part of the time, and the roads muddy, yet the attendance and interest were very good, and the people took quite an interest in the Word preached.

On Sunday evening, March 1, the meetings closed and we thought there would be no additions to the church, but on the way home Bro. Dierdorff and one that was in attendance at every meeting, had a conversation which resulted in his making application for baptism, which was attended to on Monday, March 2. The one baptized was the head of a family; his companion and three of the children were members. We all feel to rejoice with them that the husband and father has made the good resolve, and pray that he may hold out faithful. We are having considerable snow at this writing. A. W. HAWBAKER.

"IT is a common mistake to rate our demerits by the apparent size or importance of our misdeeds. We often console ourselves with the idea that, after all, these smaller incidental lapses and minor flaws in our morals are only 'little things.' We are sure that we do not lie outrageously, nor utterly disregard the Lord's Day, nor commit burglary or murder. Others do these evil deeds which the law stigmatizes even when the civil authorities do not punish the evil-doers. Our failings, on the other hand, are too inconsequential for the criminal code. But, after all, does wrong inhere in the thing done, or in the principle represented in the action?"

The Gospel Messenger

Is the recognized organ of the German Baptist or Brethren's church, and advocates the fundamental doctrine taught in the New Testament and pleads for a return to apostolic and primitive Christianity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that Faith toward God, Repentance from dead works, Regeneration of the heart and mind, Baptism by Trine Immersion for remission of sins unto the reception of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, are the means of adoption into the household of God,—the church militant.

It also maintains that Feet-washing, as taught in John 13, both by example and command of Jesus, should be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper, instituted by Christ and as universally observed by the apostles and the early Christians, as a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening or after one observed the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That the principle of Plain Dressing and of Non-conformity to the world, as taught in the New Testament, should be observed by the followers of Christ.

That the Scriptural duty of Anointing the Sick with Oil, in the Name of the Lord, James 5: 14, is binding upon all Christians.

It also advocates the church's duty to support Missionary and Tract Work, thus giving to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel and for the conversion of sinners.

In short, it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discords of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - - March 24, 1891.

BRO. JOHN W. HOFFMAN should now be addressed at Ringgold, Washington Co., Md.

BRO. JACOB CONNER changes his address from Royer's to Grater's Ford, Montgomery Co., Pa., April 1.

IN Bro. D. R. Price's report in MESSENGER, No. 7, of money for Western sufferers, read Lamott Sunday-school, Crawford Co., Ill., $7.10, instead of Hutsonville, etc.

BRO. JOHN METZGER writes us from Lordsburg, Cal., that he expects to return to Cerro Gordo, Ill., by April 1st. After that date he should be addressed at that place.

BRO. S. A. HONBERGER goes to Esterly, La., to labor in the mission field at that place. There seems to be an opening there for good work, and we pray the Lord's blessing upon our brother as he goes out into this important field. Bro. Honberger's correspondents will please address him as above.

BRO. WM. M. LYON has changed his address to Bridgewater, Va. Bro. Lyon has not been heard from through the MESSENGER for some time. We hope he will find time to give us an occasional article.

WE note the following changes of address: Our brother, Dr. L. E. Miller from Berlinton, Ind., to Plymouth, Box 614, Marshall Co., same State, and Bro. S. S. Kalebaugh from Gardner, to Prairie Center, Kansas.

WE have good news from Cerro Gordo, Ill., Sandy Creek, West Va., and Mt. Morris, Ill. At these three places nearly 100 souls have been added to the fold of Christ. Surely, God is blessing his people! Let the good work continue.

BRO. DAVID MYERS, of New Franklin, Ohio, has something to say about Farmers' Alliance, and thinks we should not publish anything referring to them. We aim to keep politics out of our paper, and we advise our brethren to keep out of politics.

BRO. JAS. R. GISH writes, under date of March 3rd as follows: "We left Cass County, Illinois, on the 3rd at 3:50 P. M., where we had a number of scattered meetings to accommodate the different parts of the neighborhood, and while scattering the meetings was not so profitable, we still hope there may some good result from the effort. We arrived at Stuttgart on the 4th at 12:30. For the present address me here."

OUR dear brother, D. D. Thomas, with his family, who have been with us for nearly two years, left us last week for their home in Ohio. During their stay at this place brother and sister Thomas won the love and esteem of all who learned to know them. Unassuming and modest in their manners, they won friends by their true worth. They take with them, to their old home, the best wishes of all who knew them at this place. May the Lord abundantly bless them, as they return to their old home, where Bro. Thomas will continue his labors in the ministry.

THE Brüderbote, our German church paper, is still published at McPherson, Kansas. Send for sample copies. There are many who do not know anything of the German paper, and we kindly invite our English brethren and sisters to help Bro. Snyder in sending forth the doctrine of the Brethren through said medium. The paper is issued semi-monthly at seventy-five cents a year. If several hundred brethren in our Brotherhood will each one donate the paper for one year to some German neighbor, they will be doing a good work. Address J. M. Snyder, McPherson, Kans.

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN is in his work-shop again. The Chips given below came too late for the column where they usually appear. We give them place here:

1. Let us have the Census of 1890, as per sample in No. 10, GOSPEL MESSENGER, published in the MESSENGER, or, better still, in pamphlet form with name of County, in which each church is situated, added, if this information is at hand.

2. ORDAINING ELDERS.—By referring to the ruling of Annual Meeting, Art. 16, 1890, it will be seen that the necessity of ordaining elders may originate with the officers of the church, or the elders of the District Meeting.

3. TEACHER AND PUPIL.—It is a momentous fact that what the teacher is, his pupil, who comes in daily contact with him, will, in some degree, gradually become. All the relations of life carry with them momentous issues. "Evil communications corrupt good manners." The opposite is equally true. High above all teachers stands the One who spake as never man spake. It is not possible to improve upon his methods. He is the proper teacher and guide for all Sunday-school teachers and workers. Our business is to learn to understand and follow his methods. It is an infallible law of our being, that the more we admire and study the principles of his life and the methods of his teaching, the more we become like him in life and character.

WE have a communication from Bro. Luther Bedel, of Jackson Co., Ind., relative to the killing of his son, Bro. Arthur Bedel. It is a sad, sad story, and we sympathize with the bereaved family. May the Lord sustain them in their great affliction!

THE General Church Erection and Missionary Committee will meet at this place on Tuesday, April 7th. The District Treasurers will please send money in their hands prior to that date, so that it may appear in the next Annual Report. Those who feel like giving something to the General Fund now, are requested to do so at once.

BRO. GEO. W. CRIPE, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., sends the following item of glorious meetings in the church at that place: "Our dear brother, Isaac Frantz, of Ohio, closed meetings at our place last night with a crowded house, and against the desire of many. But the dear brother had labored so long and faithfully, that we were willing to let him return to his dear children, having preached forty-one most excellent sermons, all so well taken that we can say he did the cause much good. Thank God for such men who will not shun to declare the whole counsel of God! The immediate result of his labors were thirty-four gathered into the fold, twenty-seven baptized, and seven reclaimed. The prayers of this church go with him. The Lord be praised!"

IF those of our correspondents, who insist in sending anonymous communications, will take our word for it, they will save themselves the expenses and trouble of sending unsigned articles to this office. We have only one rule in regard to such correspondence,—it goes into the waste-basket. When we take up a manuscript for examination, unless the handwriting is familiar, we look first for the name; if the writer has neglected this important item, the article is not even read. We refer to this again, because we have before us a communication which closes with these words: "Please don't put this in the waste-basket." "Several sisters." We admit the plea is a touching one, but even as we write these lines the waste-basket receives another addition to its already heavy burden.

THE Brethren's Quarterly for the second quarter of 1891, comprising April, May and June, has been sent out to all who have ordered it, and a good supply is still on hand for those who have not yet been supplied. The lessons of this quarter are still in the Old Testament, and Bro. James M. Neff has taken pains to render them so instructive and interesting that all can not fail to be edified in the study of the events and the many good thoughts to be derived therefrom. The true object of all Old Testament study should be, to lead to a better understanding of the New, and in this the Quarterly aims to render the needed assistance. A glance at the titles of the lessons and the place where they are found, is afforded by the following: "Saved from Famine," 2 Kings 7: 1–16; "The Good and Evil in Jehu," 2 Kings 10: 18–31; "Jonah sent to Nineveh," Jonah 1: 1–17; "Nineveh Brought to Repentance," Jonah 3: 1–10; "Israel often Reproved," Amos 4: 4–13; "Israel's Overthrow Foretold," Amos 8: 1–14; "Sin the Cause of Sorrow," Hosea 10: 1–15; "The Captivity of Israel," 2 Kings 17: 6–18; "The Temple Repaired," 2 Chron. 24: 4–14; "Hezekiah, the Good King," 2 Chron. 29: 1–11; "The Book of the Law Found," 2 Chron. 34: 14–28; "The Captivity of Judah," 2 Kings 25: 1–12; "Missionary Lesson," Isa. 60: 1–12. The price of the Quarterly is, single copy, 10 cents; three copies, 25 cents; eight copies, 40 cents; twenty copies and over, four cents each.

THE following lines from sister Evans, of Ingalls, Oklahoma, tells of the serious illness of our dear brother, James Evans. We know our brethren and sisters will grant the dear sister's request, and unite in praying for Bro. Evans' recovery: "My husband (James Evans), is daily becoming weaker, and now hangs between life and death. We are alone with our children, surrounded by strangers, forty miles from Wharton, the nearest railroad station, and no Brethren or friends near us. Our only hope is in God, for my husband is beyond all human aid. May I ask those dear brethren and sisters, with whom we have held sweet communion, to unite in praying for his recovery, for the effectual, fervent prayers of the righteous availeth much? If it is our Father's will he can raise him up, but his will, not ours, be done."

ON Saturday evening, Feb. 28, Bro. J. G. Royer commenced preaching in the Chapel, and continued until Wednesday evening, March 4. Bro. T. T. Myers then took up the work, and has continued until this date, March 91. From the first it was apparent that the spirit of the Lord had been at work. The members were earnestly engaged in prayer for the success of the meetings, and as a result the work has, so far, been wonderfully successful. The meetings have been largely attended, and the interest taken in them by all has been very marked. The interest was good from the start, and when Bro. Royer closed, four had come out on the Lord's side. As the meetings continued, others were convinced and determined to serve in the ranks of the enemy no longer. So far twenty-three have come forward, and expressed a desire to unite with the church. Of this number fifteen have been baptized, and others will follow the Lord down into the water in the near future. The meetings will continue for a few evenings yet, as there are others who are almost persuaded to turn from their sins and seek salvation. We rejoice in the God of our salvation, who sends these precious seasons of refreshing to cheer us on our journey home.

ON Saturday, March 14, our quarterly council was held in the chapel at this place. The meeting was a pleasant one, and we believe those who were present enjoyed it. Bro. Edmund Forney, of the Pine Creek church, and Bro. M. S. Newcomer, of West Branch were present and assisted in the work. Bro. Galen B. Royer was advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and Bro. Wilbur Stover was called to the ministry. The choice for a minister was held in accordance with a decision of our last Conference, which says: "Let churches, having brethren possessing the necessary qualification, from time to time hold elections to increase our ministry with a view of meeting the growing demand for preaching the Gospel, both at home and in all the various localities of the missionary field of the world. And let all ministers, when elected, be advised and urged to hold themselves in readiness, as much as possible, to be used by the church whenever they may be needed." Bro. Stover expressed a willingness to be used as the church and the Lord might direct. The greatest need of the mission work of our church is consecrated, faithful men, who are willing to go into new fields and remain there. If those churches "having brethren possessing the necessary qualifications" will hold elections, the want that is now so widely felt, will be filled in the years to come, and the work will not be hindered as it now is. We trust that our brethren will see to it that elections are held in accordance with the advice of Annual Meeting, and that we may have, in a few years, plenty of help to fill all the Macedonian calls that now must go unheeded.

THE church festival still flourishes, and the ingenuity of those who manage these affairs in the interest of the churches is severely taxed to get out new and novel entertainments to draw the crowds and "have some fun." A brother at Seward, Kansas, sends us a hand bill, advertising an entertainment of this kind. In large type is printed the following: "WEIGHT SOCIAL. The ladies of the M. E. church will give a supper at Seward, Kansas, on Tuesday evening, March 3, 1891. The gentleman taking his girl to supper will pay for same at the rate of one-fourth cent per pound for every pound his lady weighs. This will include the regular supper; oysters extra. Come out everybody and let us have some fun." It seems strange indeed, that a church that claims for its membership complete sanctification and holiness, will permit such things in the house of God. But then they want the money, and the young people the fun, and that settles the matter.

HONESTY OF PURPOSE NO EVIDENCE THAT WE ARE RIGHT.

"THERE are honest men and women in all churches," says some one, and we may add, that this saying is true of all the religions of the world. Association with men and women of different denominations, and creeds, and religions, gradually forces the conclusion upon the observer, that the foregoing is a true statement. This far we, doubtless, all agree, but when the statement is used as an argument, as it sometimes is, to show that all churches are right, we demur. You will find honest, and according to their standard, good people wherever you go in the world, but honesty of purpose can not be accepted as a standard of right. Let us look at some examples of honesty of purpose.

In his great and decisive contest with the prophets of Baal, Elijah had a manifestation of the honesty, the zeal, and the earnestness of the four hundred. They put themselves to torture, and showed beyond all doubt that they honestly believed that Baal would come to their help. They were grossly deceived and in the worst kind of error.

A brief stay among the followers of Mohammed will convince the most skeptical, that numbers of them believe as honestly and as firmly, that the false prophet is the true prophet of God, as Christians believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. Honesty of purpose does not keep them from a fatal error.

Go to Salt Lake City, to the homes of the Mormons, and you find thousands of men and women who honestly believe in the inspiration of their prophet Joe Smith, and they will give you such evidence of their honesty of belief and of purpose, that you can not help but conclude that they are honest. And yet, what a terrible error they have fallen into!

In the Roman Catholic church there are millions who are honest in their belief, that the Pope of Rome is the representative of Christ on the earth, that the ecclesiastical power of the church can deliver souls from purgatory, and admit them into the kingdom of God, that the same power can forgive sins, and that the actual body of Christ is present in the wafer. They believe this with all honesty of purpose, and yet they are not saved from error.

So in all the Christian churches of whatever name or character, whether they have much or little of God's Word, there are to be found men and women who honestly believe they are right, and are striving to do right, as they understand and see the right; but we have seen, by the examples just given, that honesty of belief and of purpose, is no safe-guard against the most fatal and lamentable errors, for multiplied millions of human beings cling to the error with the strongest convictions of right, and give every evidence of an unswerving faith and honesty of purpose.

But some one asks: "If honesty of purpose is not a true standard of right, where shall such a standard be found?" There is only one answer to this question. The Word of God is the only true standard. If a man says: "I am right, and I am honest in my belief," let him be tested by the infallible standard, the Word of God, and if he measures up to that he is right, and there can be no mistake about it.

If a church claims to be right, and the claim is upheld with all the earnestness and honesty of purpose, possible, by her communicants, and she does not measure up to the true standard, — the eternal Word of God, she is not right, no matter how honest her members may be in their belief, that their adopted church is right. It takes more than the honesty of purpose of the communicants of a church to make her right. It takes nothing more nor less, than a strict adherence to all that God's Word contains; anything short of this won't do.

We have an infallible standard of right, and we ought to thank God for it. We are not called upon to depend upon our own feelings, our own convictions, or our honesty of purpose. We are called upon to take the Word of God, the Gospel of Jesus Christ as the man of our counsel, and as the rule of our faith and practice, doing this with an honest heart, for without this we can not serve God acceptably, we may know that we are right, and we may enjoy a full assurance of our acceptance with God.

But we must be willing to be led by Jesus Christ. We must lay aside our pre-conceived notions and prejudices, and follow where he leadeth. As the needle is true to the pole, so must we be true in walking in the direction that he points out to us. Some there are who remind us of the hunter, who lost himself a number of times in the dense forest. His friends advised him to purchase a small pocket compass, telling him that the needle would always point North, and thus he might find his way out of the forest. He took their advice and bought the compass. He wandered far into the great forest, the sun was obscured by clouds, and the hunter lost his way and was compelled to sleep under the shelter of the trees for the night. When his friends found him they asked him why he did not use his compass. "I did," was the reply, "but all I could do I could not get it to point in the right direction." Lost, himself, he thought the compass did not point right. So people go to the Word of God. They can't get it to point in the direction they want to go, and they do not follow it, but they will tell you they are honest. We may admit their honesty, but deprecate their unwillingness to be led into all the Truth.

We need, above all things, to be careful about this standard of right. Errors that affect our temporal affairs may not be serious in their consequences,—at farthest they can only concern our present life, but errors in regard to the Standard of Truth will affect our eternal interests. Let us take God's Word and follow it with an honest purpose, and then all will be well with us.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."—1 Cor. 16. 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver."—2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not."—2 Cor. 8. 12.

"MEN and women come to church to be made better; they come to be saved and not to be lost. They come for practical instruction, and not to be tasked with intellectual abstractions. They want the living truth for living uses. To their common sense, their consciences, and their hearts, it is our privilege to preach the most marvelous, and precious, and glorious Gospel that God's wisdom could devise. When it is preached faithfully, simply, and closely only it will tell. By the Holy Spirit's blessing our hearers may become—many of them will become—'sound on the main question' of salvation for all eternity."

"THERE is an evil silence as well as an evil speaking. While it is our duty not to speak evil of others, it is oftentimes our duty not to be silent about the evil in others; for there is a wide difference between evil speaking and a dutiful speaking of evil. Many people seem to think that the highest compliment they can pay to a dead friend is to say that "he never spoke against anybody." But men sometimes are wrongly silent concerning the evil in others, in order that they may not condemn the same evil in themselves, or from some other unworthy motive. He who keeps silent about evil when it is his duty to be outspoken against it, is himself an evil speaker against his own soul"

"NOTHING is harder in life, nor nobler, than to do one's simple duty when there is a strong temptation not to do it. A duty that would be very easy at another time, is a very difficult one just then. Yet it may be said that a man deserves no credit for doing his simple duty. That is true in one sense, but not in another. A man has no right to claim any credit for simple duty-doing at any time; yet if he does his simple duty when strongly tempted not to do it, he shows the spirit of a real hero, or of a real saint. Even though he claims no credit for himself, in such a case we should fail in our simple duty if we did not accord it to him. When did any man ever bear himself worthily and with nobleness, save by doing just that which, under the circumstances, all things considered, was his simple duty? Our nobleness is really tested by our ability to perceive and to honor the nobleness of another's simple duty-doing—when it is worthy of such recognition."

"IT is seldom wise to enter into a discussion with a skeptical man on the doctrines of religion. The best thing is to have such a life back of your words that you can say, 'Come and see for yourself whether religion is not a blessed thing to have.'"

"PRESENT duty is the only duty that is incumbent on us as duty. What may be our duty by and by, at the best, a matter of conjecture; for we may never reach the hour when that possibility has become a reality. As Carlyle says, 'Our grand business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.' If this truth were more clearly in our minds, we should have less worry over the supposed conflict of our duties in our daily living and doing."

"There are brave, sympathetic souls who go through life scattering sunshine and fragrance, to whom the present is the time for action. Conscious of their own purity, integrity, each soul they meet is but another child of God, having need of what they can give. They give themselves as the gift. Out of a heart, overflowing with kindly impulse, throbbing with the consciousness of the brotherhood of man, these souls obey the impulse of the divine in themselves, and the wedding feast is gayer, happier, because they are there; their presence cools life's fever of ambition, haste, and greed. In their presence the tongue of slander, misrepresentation, pique, is silent, because they speak an unknown language. The grave is but the body's receptacle, so clearly do they see above it, while the strangers who meet them in life's journeyings feel their hearts burn within them with new love, new sympathies, new experiences. Never to them is the neglected moment, never for them is the neglected opportunity. What man thinks of them is never their standard of action, but ever present before them is the measure of God's trust by the blessing and opportunities life gives them."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

BY JAMES Z. GILBERT.

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old he will not depart from it"—Prov. 22: 6.

"Go . . . teach."—Matt. 28: 19.

THE time is fast drawing on when the Sunday-schools, which are discontinued during the winter season, will be re-organized and will begin anew the work of the salvation of souls. We say "salvation of souls" for we believe that the Sunday-school is, or should be, a department of the church, training the children in the way they should go, that, when they arrive at the age of accountability, they may be ripe for the kingdom.

We think it needless to urge a re-organization of every Sunday-school held during the last year. None should entertain the first thought of abandoning the work. On the other hand, all should endeavor to make their school a nucleus around which to cluster others.

Even before the tiny sprout springs forth from the sod, and the birds of the spring begin their merry songs in the sunshine, every Christian worker should be busily engaged in searching out a place where he may plant the seeds of righteousness by starting a new school.

Is there an isolated community near, or even far, which is not in the habit of attending religious services? There is the place to sow. If not a church, find a school-house; if not a school-house, find a private dwelling in which to hold Sunday-school sessions.

The manner in which the work is begun, determines, in a great degree, the success of the future. It is not in the province of one or two to say that on a stated day a Sunday-school should be organized at a certain place. Far from this! The people should be consulted as to whether they would like to have a Sunday-school in their midst or not, and whether there would be any objections to a specified place.

Furthermore, it is quite essential that the prospective Superintendent take a close view of the surrounding religious atmosphere of his school. If the people do not seem very anxious to attend the services, a friendly visit to each home can do no harm, but much good is often accomplished.

This visit should be made, if possible, before the Sunday-school is to begin. By this you not only obtain valuable information, but, at the same time, you can impress the most valuable truth,—that you are interested in their welfare. This affords also an excellent opportunity to solicit the aid of the parents in the work. Hard, indeed, must be the heart that will not kindly receive such a call.

Having surveyed the ground to be worked, having left the impression of your honest intention, and having solicited the aid of all, the work may proceed.

"The harvest is great and the laborers are few." Who shall be the laborers? Can not each congregation having, say, a membership of fifty, find at least one in their number who would do well at the head of a Sunday-school? It would seem that more than one may be found.

Will not some one feel the weight of souls and begin, this opening spring,—even now,—to sow the good seed for the Master? Will not each church that has the Sunday-school work at heart elect one or more of her number to begin the great work? Should the brother go alone? By no means! Hold up his hands! Frequent the closet in his behalf; then the good work must prosper! Fear not the result! If we but do well our part, God will do the rest!

Upon the rising generation depends the future church. If that generation is not educated in the light of the blessed Gospel, while young, what can we expect for the future church? It is important, then, that each one be awake to the interests of our beloved Fraternity. Let each one work in every field he can, and the light of heaven will be brought near many a benighted soul. May the prayers of our great Brotherhood ascend in behalf of the Sunday-school!

Mt. Morris, Ill.

A POPULAR ERROR.

BY J. S. FLORY.

POSSIBLY there is no other error so common to religious belief as that of claiming the presence and operations of the Holy Spirit, apart and independent of the written Word of God. Many are the delusions, growing out of this mistaken idea. It is a usual thing to hear persons express themselves as being confident that they are led by the spirit of God, because they have the inward consciousness of it, and by this one witness they are satisfied. From this common error arise the wonderful workings of mourner's-bench-religion and all the kindred popular views so prevalent at the present day. It is evident that God's promises are yea and amen, but to claim more than his promises indicate, is to tempt God and lay ourselves under the penalty of a great sin.

Seeing what seems to us a leaning even of the "very elect" to the workings of this growing delusion, we venture to reason in a brief way upon the subject.

Paul to Titus, 2: 11, says, "The grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men." Paul does not mean here, as is often held forth, that, in some miraculous way, God visits all men with the spirit of conviction. Without doubt, the Apostle means to say, and as the proper rendering has it, "The grace of God that bringeth salvation to all men hath appeared." This harmonizes with Christ's words, "The Kingdom of God is at hand." That is to say, the salvation of the whole world, irrespective of persons, has been brought about through Christ, and this grace of God has appeared in a way that all can comprehend it.

In John 6: 44 Christ says, "No man came to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him." Does he mean to say this drawing is through the spirit of God, apart from the Word of God, as many teach? Surely not! Look carefully at the next verse! "It is written in the prophets, and they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me."

Here we see how the Savior qualified his expression about the Father drawing. It is done through the Word of God. We must learn what God's will is, hear unto believing it, learn unto obedience, and in this way get to Christ. The popular way of proceeding is to emphasize the meritorious work of Christ and just believe in him as your Savior, and God's miraculous spirit will draw you to Christ and tell you you are pardoned and accepted as his child. Now, the Bible way says we must believe in God, the Father, hear him, learn of him, that we may know how to get to and in Christ, and the only drawing that the Bible teaches in this respect is the power of the Gospel. There is such a power in faith that, learning of God's love and mercy in offering salvation to sinners, conviction takes place, and through the influence of the blessed promises of God, conversion follows, and thus sinners are brought to Christ by the drawings of the Father, the Word of God and, as Christ says of his word, it is spirit and life.

Thus we understand how men are led by the Spirit of God, by his Word. The wooings of the Spirit of God,—his Word,—bring back the prodigal to the Father's house. The Spirit of God will not always strive with man. Only while the Gospel dispensation lasts will God strive with men in a way to influence them to return to him. While there is an influence through faith in his Word to draw, will there be striving. When the heart becomes callous and hardened through unbelief, then there is no striving spirit in the Word, to draw sinners to God.

In former times, as the apostle says, "God spake unto the people through the prophets (somewhat in a miraculous manner) but in these last days he has spoken unto us through his Son." Christ himself, in a sense, was the manifestation of God in a miraculous manner, but to us, in a more glorious sense than he ever appeared to the prophets, therefore we must see to it that we do not refuse to hear the Son in all things. Recognizing Christ as the medium through which God speaks to us, why hold forth any other medium through which God will operate to the conviction and conversion of sinners? The Bible way of converting sinners makes true converts,—converts that will walk in all the commandments of God blameless.

The Spirit of God, so abundantly infused into the Gospel, makes it a power to awaken sinners, even to raising them from the dead, and, by the manifest power of love and mercy which they see in the great plan of redemption, they are constrained to come that they may be saved. Then, when united again to our Federal Head,—grafted as a living branch into the Living Vine,—a new creature in Christ Jesus,—we may lay claim to the workings of the "Comforter," the inflowing of the divine presence,—not independent from the Word, but in harmony with the Word. It is through the Holy Ghost that the true inwardness of the Word is manifest to us, and by it we are led and taught to live "soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

MEN AND MEANS.

BY R. F. BRUBAKER.

In taking a view of the missionary work of the church of to-day, my mind is called out in various directions. The missionary spirit is gaining ground amongst us. It is a pleasure to see such a spiritual awakening all along the line, and while we are glad to see a general move in that direction, we desire, in this article, to enter into a further investigation of the subject.

MEN.

One of our special needs of to-day is, more men that are willing to sacrifice their time for the Master's cause. While we have some among us endued with a goodly portion of the Holy Spirit, we need still more. The number is too small that are willing to leave their homes and go into mission fields, when called on by the Mission Boards,—District and General. We do not wish to be understood that it is altogether the fault of those who are called by the church to labor in Word and doctrine because things are in the condition in which we now see them, but nevertheless it is possible that there has been a lack upon the part of overseers, so, that, to a greater or lesser extent, the results have not been as favorable as they otherwise could have been. Many hindrances have impeded the progress of the missionary work. More men of the Apostolic cast are needed at the present time, to carry on the work. When called on to go to mission fields, let there be many who say, "Here I am! I will go and do the best I can for the furtherance of the Master's cause." The blessings of heaven will surely follow such a course.

MEANS.

To get the best results from the means with which the Lord has blessed us, is a subject requiring much thought. Though we have solicitors, to get means to help carry on the Lord's work, there is only a small per cent of the wealth of our beloved Brotherhood brought into action. The way and manner in which more of our means could be secured for the Lord's work is worthy the consideration of every child of God. Until we can feel the responsibility of the proper use of that wherewith God has blessed us, we will be slow to respond to the noble work.

The "endowment" plan seems to strike me most favorably. A permanent fund with which to carry on missionary work is a basis which, if wisely carried into effect, will certainly bring about good results. To my mind every State District should have a Missionary Board, consisting of three or five brethren, appointed by the District, to look after the missionary wants of the District. Each State District should have an endowment fund, to be controlled by the Mission Board. A permanent fund like this, under the control of the Mission Board, of which fund the interest is to be used only, would surely be a blessing to the cause of Christ. Perhaps some are ready to say, "What is gained in this way of procedure?" I will answer in this way: We have brethren in most all of our local churches who are blessed with considerable of this world's goods, who, if asked to donate, or will, a part of their estate for the cause of the church of their choice, would gladly do so. If one-tenth of the means could be utilized in this or a similar way, the Mission Boards could do more aggressive work. Thus we see that means are needed as well MEN.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

HOME AGAIN.—To all with whom we stopped during the last two months, we will say that we reached our home March 1, and that we thank you all for the kindness extended toward us. We were at Dorrance and Russell, Kans., and at Shannon, Yellow Creek and Astoria, Ill. Samuel and Clara Bowser, Kingman, Kans., March 4.

MINISTERIAL LABORS DESIRED.—We are much encouraged, in our isolation from church privileges, by the weekly visits of the MESSENGER. We are too far from any of the Brethren's appointments, to meet with those of like precious faith, and would be very thankful to have ministers stop with us in traveling through this section of country.—Nannie J. Weaver, Johnson City, Tenn., March 3.

TWO ACCESSIONS.—Bro. Jacob Appleman was with the Paint Creek church, Kans., as announced in MESSENGER some weeks ago, and preached nine sermons. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not very great, but the Word was preached with power, and two young souls were born anew and accepted Christ as their Savior. Our hearts are made glad to see young people coming to Christ, for by and by we, that are older, will cross the river, and they can take our place.—A. C. Numer, March 1.

TWO SOULS FOR CHRIST.—Bro. Reuben Shroyer, of Pierce, Ohio, came to the Wooster church, Ohio, Feb. 16, and commenced preaching that evening. Although the weather was very unfavorable nearly all the time, we had very good meetings. Bro. Shroyer preached twenty-three sermons in all, and shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. Although laboring under bodily affliction, by his earnest pleadings two precious souls came out on the Lord's side and were buried with Christ in baptism.—Maria Runkle, March 8.

GOOD MEETINGS.—Bro C. H. Brown, our home minister, conducted a series of meetings at the Thomas Centre school-house, Thomas Co., Kans.,—the first ever held by the Brethren at this place. The weather was very inclement, which made the attendance very small, but good attention was given to the Word spoken. There were no additions to the church, but some are counting the cost. May they not delay until it is too late, but accept mercy while it is yet called to-day. We feel that Bro. Brown is doing a good work in this County. May the Lord bless his labors that many may be led to the light!—Annie S. Partch, March 8.

QUARTERLY COUNCIL. — The Yellow River church, Marshall Co., Ind., held her quarterly council March 7. All the business was transacted in a spirit of love. The pastoral visit, made by our ministers, brought out the request for social meetings. On putting the request before the church, there was no opposition, and Wednesday evening was the time set to have the meetings at the private houses, for the benefit of the aged, and such as have not the opportunity of attending church. Eld. John H. Sellers and Bro. Martin A. Eisenhour represent our church at District Meeting. Our Sunday-school was organized with brethren S. B. Yoder and Samuel Keller as Superintendents. John Sellers Jr., and Ira C. Eisenhour, Secretaries. Our Communion meeting will occur June 12.—B. F. Eisenhour, Plymouth, Ind., March 9.

Two Added to the Fold. Another precious season of worship is to be reported Feb. 26. Bro. B. F. Honeyman, of Gettysburg, Ohio, commenced a meeting at Stillwater Junction in the bounds of the Bear Creek congregation. He preached fourteen inspiring sermons, and closed with good interest on March 11. Two were added to the church during the meetings. One of them was baptized in the stillness of a starry night. Others are counting the cost.—Mary J. Guenther, Dayton, Ohio, March 12.

Pleasant Council. The Swan Creek church held her quarterly council March 7. It was a meeting long to be remembered. When we see so much love displayed among God's children, it is the means of encouraging us on our pilgrimage. Much business was before the meeting but all was disposed of in a Christian way. Brethren Perry McKimmey and Jacob Heistand represent this church at District Meeting. The church decided to have a love-feast June 20, commencing at 10:30 A. M. Meetings are to continue over Sunday. Persons desiring to attend the feast should stop at Wauseon or Delta where they will be met by notifying the writer in time David Berkebile, Delta, Ohio, March 9.

His Talents are Not Wasted.—In Gospel Messenger No. 9 I notice an article from the pen of Bro. S. H. Love, in which he says, "Bro. Evans is going to far-distant Oklahoma, there to bury himself and his polished talents." Does our dear brother mean to imply that the souls, starving for the Bread of Life in the West, are less precious in the sight of the Lord than their more fortunate brethren of the East? No, Bro. Evans can not bury those God-given talents,—they are a part of his Christian light, and he believes in letting that shine so brightly that all can see it. We thank God that Bro. Evans came among us and we hope that his labors will prove successful. David Saith, Cuba, Kans.

New Meeting-house. The members of the Beaver Creek church, although limited in means and few in number, have, with a little assistance from other churches, succeeded, by their untiring zeal and united efforts, in building a very pleasant house of worship, 30 by 40 feet in size, well seated and lighted. The sisters took an active part in soliciting means for the lighting of their church. The enterprise of all surely merits praise, and affords an example worthy of imitation. There are twenty-five members now living near the church, nine of whom have lately moved there. Land is cheap, ranging in price from $10 to $25 per acre. We think brethren would do well to visit this country before going farther West in search of homes. Address all communications to Jeremiah Hahn, Lakeside, Pulaski, Ind. Frank Fisher.

Deacons Elected. A council-meeting was held at the Flat Rock meeting-house in the Flat Rock congregation, Feb. 28. The business that came before the meeting, was disposed of in a satisfactory manner. There was an election held for a deacon, which fell on our dear young brother, Carson Miller, who was duly installed, according to the directions of Annual Meeting. May God's grace be with him in his new duties! March 7 was the regular council-meeting at Timberville (same congregation) which was well attended by brethren and sisters from adjoining congregations. Here, also, an election was held for a deacon. The lot fell on our dear brother, Benj. F. A. Myers, son of Eld. S. H. Myers, of Timberville, Va. Bro. Myers was installed in regular order, with much solemnity. The brethren and sisters at the Timberville church agreed to hold a love-feast, on Saturday and Sunday, April 25 and 26. —J. H. Garber, New Market, Va., March 9.

Ministerial Aid Desired. We, the Brethren at Parsons, Kans., are left without a minister and would like if those of our ministering brethren, contemplating a change, would give us a call. Those traveling through this section of country are also invited to give us a few meetings. I know it would help us much, for we only have preaching once a month. If you want members to starve, just give them spiritual food only once a month. We have a Bible class every Wednesday night, with a growing interest. We ask the prayers of God's people every-where.—Peter Fouts.

Six Souls for Christ.—The members of the Rock Run church, Elkhart Co., Ind., commenced a series of meetings Feb. 13, and continued until March 7. Bro. Daniel Snell, of Sidney, Ind., did the preaching. The weather was inclement, and the roads bad, the greater part of the time, consequently the attendance was not as large as it would have been otherwise. We had good meetings, and good impressions were made on the minds of the people. The church was greatly revived and encouraged in the good work, and sinners were warned to shun the awful results of sin. Six precious souls were gathered into the fold of Christ. God bless and reward our dear brother. May the Lord crown his labors with success!—B. F. Stutsman, Goshen, Ind.

Quarterly Council. The members of the Okaw church met in quarterly council March 5. One, that had been living in sin, came home to the fold. Five were received by letter, and four letters of membership were given. Bro. John Arnold was elected to superintend our Sunday-school. He is assisted by Bro. Bingaman. The church granted that we might have singing school in the church, conducted by the Brethren. A Communion was appointed for May 23, commencing at 3 P. M. We hope some of our Western ministers will make a note of this and stop with us on their way to Annual Meeting. The needy in the West were remembered to the amount of $66.00. All our business was disposed of in love and union. —E. F. Wolf, La Place, Ill., March 5.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, County and State. Be brief. Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Wayside Notes.

My last was written at Colfax, Ind., Feb. 5. I returned home Feb. 12, at midnight, after a very pleasant meeting with the Brethren of the Potato Creek church. It was my first acquaintance with this church, and I was very sorry that I could not remain longer. I was only with them eight days, as I had promised to be present at our meeting in New Carlisle, not to do the preaching, but to get the benefit and help in the work. I feel that when a series of meetings is held that the ministers of the congregation should be present, if possible.
